GERMAN MINISTER SAYS FRANCE RESPONSIBLE IF POLES REVOLT; FRENCH TO MARCH IN 48 HOURS

PARIS GOVERNMENT AWAITS BRITISH REPLY TO NOTE ON SENDING REINFORCEMENTS BUT WILL NOT DELAY SENDING TROOPS.

FRENCH PRESS VIEWS SITUATION AS CRISIS

PARIS, July 22. — (Canadian Press).—The departure for Upper Silesia of the French division in readiness on the Rhine was said in official circles this afternoon to be a question of forty-eight hours. The Government will wait a reply to the note handed to Great Britain yesterday, which is expected during the day or to-morrow. Immediately afterwards, it is forecast, marching orders will be given the division, which will proceed for Silesia by rail through Germany.

HOLDS FRANCE RESPONSIBLE.

BERLIN, July 22. — (Canadian Press).—France will be responsible if the Polish insurrection breaks out in Upper Silesia, declares Minister of the Interior Gradnauer in statements published by the Taggeblatt to-day.

"Only a speedy decision regarding Upper Silesia can avert a disaster," the Minister says. "The situation in Upper Silesia is critical. The Polish insurrection can only break out if France desires it and brings it about."

VIEW SITUATION AS CRITICAL.

PARIS, July 22. — (Canadian Press).—The Anglo-French controversy which has arisen over the demand by France that Allied reinforcements be sent to Upper Silesia is still regarded by the French press in the light of a crisis. It is understood that Premier Briand, after a meeting of his Ministers to-day, will reiterate to President Millerand his position and insist upon the necessity of sending additional troops.

IRISH AFFAIRS CAN NOT RELAPSE, THINK DUBLIN NEWSPAPERS

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

DUBLIN, July 22.—Despite the tone of the Irish communique of yesterday indicating that peace negotiations might be considered ended, Dublin newspapers continued hopeful today.

"Even supposing the present negotiations fail," said The Irish Times, "it will be impossible for Irish affairs to relapse into the dreadful state from which they were rescued by the truce."

THE MEN WHO WRITE THE NEWS YOU READ

MILLER

Webb Miller, chief of the Paris Bureau, came to the United States seven years ago, at the time of the United States expedition into Mexico led by General Pershing. He was working on a Chicago newspaper when the trouble started, and hurried to the Mexican border, where he was attached to the United Press staff there, living for several months in a box car at Columbus, N.M.

After service in various bureaus of the United Press in the United States, he was transferred to London. During the early part of the Great War he served in the London bureau, and as a staff correspondent in Ireland.

In the summer of 1918 he went to Paris, and later accompanied the Allied troops in the final drive which broke the German resistance and ended the war. After the Armistice, Miller spent some time in the Rhine territory occupied by the Allies, and was recalled to London in 1919. He remained there until February of this year, when he became chief of the Paris Bureau.

He comes from Dowagiac, Mich.

To-morrow — A. L. Bradford, staff correspondent of the United Press at Washington, who is keeping The Examiner readers in touch with developments in connection with the coming conference of the Great Powers on limitation of armaments and the problems of the Pacific.

FEMALE TRAINER JUNGLE DWELLERS HERE NEXT WEEK

Is training wild animals a hazardous trade?

Mlle. Aurora, one of the world's greatest animal trainers, who has the distinction of breaking more forest animals than any other female trainer in the business throws a little light upon the subject.

"No railroad man or mechanic works harder than the bespangled person who must smile at the audience as he or she enters the cage of lions, and statistics of the show business indicate many fatalities," says the little trainer. "Every time a man or woman enters the narrow confines of the cage or arena, with one of the jungle dwellers, be it with tiger, lion or leopard, he or she risks life itself, and the mere fact of years of docility and obedience on the part of the animal is by no means a guarantee of safety. A back turned, a sudden move or unusual blow and the master may in an instant be under the slave, bitten, torn or kneaded into a lifeless pulp," she said continuing.

Mlle. Aurora, whose varied life has been spent with great animal shows or in breaking wild animals, knows whereof she speaks, as she herself on numerous occasions has been threatened with death by the so-called caged animals.

Mlle Aurora has re-entered the arena this season and will present the feature animal act in World of Mirth's Wild Animal Show, during their engagement in this city, under the auspices of Peterborough Exhibition Board. It will be remembered that Mlle. Aurora was the first individual that every attempted to handle animals of entirely antagonistic nature in the arean at the same time. She is one of the few remainnig trainers of the old school and an attraction extraordinary herself.

The World of Mirth Shows will be here all next week at the Exhibition grounds.

Gold in Leaves Big as Quarters Found on Farm

DISCOVERY PROMISES TO BE ONE OF THE MOST SPECTACULAR MADE IN NORTHERN ONTARIO.

OTTAWA, July 22—(Special despatch to the Examiner).—A patented farm at Bourke's Sidings near here has suddenly sprung into prominence. Gold, in loose leaves as big as twenty-five cent pieces, has been discovered on the farm, it is alleged, and local experts say that the find promises to be one of the most spectacular discoveries in Northern Ontario.

Samples of the gold have been brought out and testers say that the ore itself is of high grade type and occurs in a body about eight feet wide. As yet there are no indications of any rush to the new bonanza, probably on account of the farm being a patented one.

MAYOR WANTS TO WIND UP WORK ON THE BRIDGE

HAS CALLED A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE COUNCIL TO-NIGHT.

Mayor McIntyre has called a special meeting of the Council to-night for the express purpose of winding up the work on the Hunter street bridge. Some time ago a similar proposal was made but it fell through. The Council intended that the contract be terminated and the remaining work be done under the supervision of one of the city's departments, probably the Board of Works, whichever the Council desired to carry it on. But the Hunter street bridge contract has clung to the Council with the tenacity of the Old Man of the Sea; in fact Ald. Gordon in a prophetic moment warned the Council that it would doom any members who sought re-election next January.

Mayor McIntyre bluntly says that the work must cease right now. If the chipping of the granite finish continues the men will be employed another three months, and the Mayor regards most of this exterior chipping as wasted time and money. "Who's going to see the north side of the bridge?" His Worship asked. "It's ridiculous keeping a staff of men at work that isn't needed."

So the finish on both the north and south faces will be indefinitely suspended at once if Mayor McIntyre has his way. He sent a request to Frank Barber or his deputy to be present to-night, and if the meeting turns out the way the Mayor expects there are a few of the top-priced employees—workmen is scarcely the word and foremen is a trifle too specific—who will be out of luck. In other words the Mayor contends that the Hunter street bridge is no all the year round Christmas tree, and besides he realizes that public opinion demands that a halt be called to unnecessary expenditure. Citizens generally are pleased with the appearance of the inner faces of the railing and other parts visible from the roadway over the bridge, but opinion is perhaps unanimous that the north and south faces will be so rarely seen that there will be no loss to the general effect and appearance of the work is closed down now.

ENCIRCLING MOVE BY GREEKS' WING CUTS OFF RETREAT

RETIREMENT OF TURKS IS IMPERILLED AS MOVEMENT CARRIED OUT.

SMYRNA, July 22. — (Canadian Press). — An important encircling movement by the Greek right wing is reported here to have cut the retreat of the Turkish Nationalists towards Angora from the Eski-Shehr railway junction point captured by the Greeks in their sweeping offensive Tuesday evening. This turning movement is being carried out to the south and east of Eski-Shehr.

WEST ONTARIO LIVE STOCK TO BRITISH MART

CLOSING OF UNITED STATES MARKETS BY NEW TARIFF LEGISLATION FORCES CATTLE MEN TO TURN ELSEWHERE.

LAMBTON EXPECTS TO SHIP 750 CARS SOON

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

PETROLIA, July 22. — With Buffalo and Chicago markets closed to Canadian live stock, the cattlemen of Lambton and other Western Ontario counties have had to turn elsewhere to dispose of their beef, and the result will be that a big Transatlantic trade is likely to be developed before the end of the year.

This week the first shipment of cattle from Lambton to Liverpool was made. It was made up only of 74 head, 40 contributed by John Zavitz and 34 by Fred. Dolbear, of Alvinston. They were prime beef animals, and representative of thousands of others available on Lambton farms for the cross-Atlantic trade.

It is estimated that over 750 carloads will be sent overseas from Lambton within the next few months. A few carloads of cattle were shipped to Liverpool this week from the Exeter district, and the venture was regarded by the drovers as one which would be repeated on a much larger scale if the sale proved profitable. Cattlemen look with favor on the idea of taking steers for fattening from the Western Canada ranges, provides the price of finished animals in England is found to be worth while.

PARKS GETTING AN EXTRA GROOMING

DOMINION FLORISTS MEET HERE EARLY IN AUGUST—CARETAKER IS ANXIOUS (AC)

With the florists of Canada meeting here in convention on August 8, 9 and 10, Frank Wise, caretaker of the city's parks is giving the flower beds and lawns a special grooming. To the eye of an amateur Victoria Park has seldom looked better and the same may be said of Central Park, but Mr. Wise isn't satisfied He sees them from the higher ground of the professional florist, and only one bed of coleus and his centre circle of calladrum, elephant's ear win his approbation.

"We ought to have our parks looking their best, if possible, when these florists from all over Canada come to Peterboro", said Mr. Wise. "If we had some money at our disposal we could buy fertilizer and tone up some of the beds. If you can't make bricks without straw, neither can you grow plants without manure. If the Council would appropriate $2500 a year for the Parks we could make a fine showing and also take care of some of the groves around the city. Orillia spends $5,000 a year. They have just one park, but they have a greenhouse and grow their own plants."

Mr. Wise has a fund of ideas which if put into effect would enhance the City's beauty spots, but he and the Park's committee are cribbed and confined within an appropriation that fetches ideas and ambitions back to earth just as they begin to take wing under the illusion of freedom.

DENY LEPROSY IN WINNIPEG AS WAS STATED IN PAPER

TORONTO WEEKLY RESPONSIBLE FOR ASSERTION, WHICH OFFICIALS BRAND UNTRUE.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 22.—City health officers of Winnipeg officially denied yesterday a report in a Toronto weekly paper that leprosy had appeared in Winnipeg.

'No leprosy has appeared in Winnipeg" Dr. A. J. Douglas, Medical Health Officer, declared to-day, unequivocally.

Dr. H. J. Leeming, city bacteriologist, branded as untrue the statement published in the east. "No person with that disease, or anything like it, was taken to a hospital, and no case was reported," Dr. Leeming said.

"WHO WON THE WAR?" ANSWERED; "I WON IT," SAYS FRENCH "TIGER"

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

PARIS, July 22. — The question of "Who won the war?" has been decided finally, according to the newspaper, Ectair. Printing, what purported to be an interview with former Premier Clemenceau, that paper quoted him as saying:

"America does not understand by what terrific efforts I won the war. I had to fight three battles, the first against the Boches; the second against the divided Allies; and the third against the French Chamber, which had lost hope. But I won."

ULSTER FIRM IN OPPOSING PLANS TO WEAKEN HER

Special Despatch to Examiner.)

BELFAST, July 22. — Ulster will cling to her demand that Irish peace shall not weaken the power of the Northern Parliament, according to the Belfast newspapers to-day.

"Premier Craig's policy rules out of consideration many proposals for diminishing or interfering with the powers and status of the Ulster Parliament," declared the News Letter. "If the government offer does not infringe on that policy, Ulster will continue satisfied with the peace efforts."

The Northern Whig warned that warfare will follow the failure of the negotiations. "Sinn Fein's rejection of the offer," it said, "would open up a great vista of strife, revolting every humane instinct.

"We should know that we are in a fight to a finish on a clear issue, and that every one would have to side with Britain's friends or foes."

NEW MEASURES NOT USED YET AGAINST WETS

PROVINCIAL POLICE HAVE AS YET TAKEN NO EXTRA MEASURES TO COPE WITH ILLICIT LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

NO ATTEMPTS MADE TO SEARCH TRAVELLERS

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Ont., July 22. — No extra measures have as yet been required to cope with the illicit importation of liquor into Ontario, according to Capt. H. Collison, who is acting as Commissioner of Provincial Police during Major-General Elliott's leave of absence in France.

As yet, it has not proven necessary to station any additional officers along the Provincial boundaries and no attempt has been made, or will be made, to search travellers coming into the Province with a view to discovering whether they may have flasks or bottles in their hip pockets. Section 70 of the O.T.A., however, permits an officer to search luggage where it is suspected that liquor is being smuggled into the Province.

Capt. Collison summed up the situation by stating that his desire was to see the law administered fairly and firmly, and with commonsense.

RELEASE W. HORNE WOULD-BE BRIDGE WRECKER IN WAR

ATTEMPTED TO BLOW UP RAILWAY BRIDGE—ADJUDGED INSANE.

OTTAWA, July 22. — (Canadian Press).—The Government has ordered the release from the penitentiary of Warner Horne, who tried to blow up the International Bridge at Dorchester, N.B., during the war, and who, on October 31, 1919, was sentenced to ten years on a charge of endangering life and property by damaging a railway bridge.

Warner Horne, it will be well remembered, caused considerable sensation during the early years of the war. Horne was arrested in the United States, and spent the last six years in American and Canadian prisons.

Some time ago penitentiary surgeons certified that he was insane, and it was on this ground that his release was granted.

He must, however, be returned to his own country, Germany, immediately upon his release.

PLEA TO SAVE LIVES OF TWO MEN TO HANG

DELEGATIONS REPRESENTING HOTRUM AND M'FADDEN, CONVICTED OF SLAYING TORONTO DRUGGIST, GO TO OTTAWA.

WANT COMMUTATION OF DEATH SENTENCE

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 22.—An attempt to save the lives of William McFadden and Roy Hotrum, sentenced to hang on August 3 for the shooting of Walter Sabine, druggist of Toronto, will be made this afternoon, when two delegations, one on the behalf of McFadden and the other on behalf of Hotrum, will meet Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, and make a plea for the commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment.

The shooting occurred in the course of a robbery, and the evidence is highly conflicting as to which of the two men actually pulled the trigger.

The delegation which will plead for the life of McFadden consists of Fletcher Kerr, his Toronto counsel, W. E. Turley, of the G.W.V.A., and Charles L. Bray, barrister of Ottawa. W. K. Murphy of Toronto will plead for Hotrum. There will also be a delegation from Hamilton, in which is included Charles Hotrum, an elder brother of the condemned man.

NO TRACE OF SIX WHO ROBBED BANK AT PETITE COTE

POLICE SEARCH FAILS TO UNCOVER SLIGHTEST CLUE.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

WINDSOR, July 22.—The escape of the six armed bandits who held up and robbed the Merchants' Bank branch of Petite Cote on Wednesday noon of a sum of money, estimated between $15,000 and $18,000, has been completed.

Despite the most rigid search by police, there is not the slightest clue on which they can work. A Windsor police car followed the tracks of the fleeing bandits to the town line between Anderson and Malden Townships, about 25 miles from the scene of the robbery, and there lost trace of them when the police car stalled.

VALERA TAKES BRITISH OFFER BACK WITH HIM

OPTIMISM PREVAILS AND FACT THAT TRUCE IS TO CONTINUE SHOWS FACTIONS ARE NOT DISCOURAGED.

HUNDREDS GATHER TO CHEER IRISH LEADER

BY CHARLES McCANN,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, July 22.—"President" De Valera carried Great Britain's peace offer to Ireland to-day.

"Though the immediate future is uncertain," he told the cheering crowd which bade him farewell at the railway station here, "we have perfect confidence in the ultimate success of our cause."

De Valera's train left at 7.30 a.m., but the early hour did not deter hundreds of Irish enthusiasts from crowding the platform at which the train stood. The smoky aisles were massed with men and women under Sinn Fein flags and self-determination banners.

Factions Not Discouraged.

LONDON, July 22. — (Canadian Press.) — The centre of interest in Irish affairs was transferred to Dublin to-day with the departure of Eamonn De Valera and his Cabinet for their seat of government.

The Irish leader is taking the document he received yesterday from the hands of Mr. Llyod George, setting forth definite proposals by the British government for a settlement of the Irish problem.

It is authoritatively stated that the truce in Ireland will continue for an indefinite period, thus convincing the most skeptical that the factions still are far from discouraged.

Press Optimistic.

London newspapers this morning take an exceedingly cheerful view of the entire situation, refusing even to anticipate the probability of a breakdown. Several political correspondents sunply reported versions of the Prime Minister's statement to the Southern Irish leader, which, although they agree in some points, differ sufficiently in detail to show that the terms still remain a matter of speculation and will not be cleared up until the official text of the proposals is made public.

AWAIT A REPLY.

LONON. July 22. — (Canadian Press).—The British Government's proposals to Eamon De Valera, Irish Republican leader, for peace in Ireland probably will not be made public until a definite reply to the Government's terms has been received from Sinn Fein leaders in Dublin, it was stated in official circles here this afternoon.

It is expected the Prime Minister will be able to make a comprehensive statement concerning the peace terms in the House of Commons next week, it was announced.

TERMS BEFORE DUBLIN LEADERS.

BELFAST, July 22. — (Canadian Press).—The copy of the peace terms handed by Premier Lloyd George yesterday to Eamon De Valera was placed before and considered by the Cabinet to-day. No opinion on the terms was requested by the British Prime Minister, it is stated, and none was given.

CREATE OLYMPIC INFORMATION BUREAU

GENEVA, July 20. — Arrangements for subsequent Olympic games are expected to be greatly simplified as a result of the creation of an Olympic "Information Bureau" at the recent meeting of the Athletic Congress here. The bureau, to be re-organized every four years, will be composed of athletic officials of the country in which the following games are to be held.

An executive committee, appointed on the recommendation of Baron Pierre de Coubertin, president of the Olympic International Committee, will start work on October 1. Godefroy de Blonay, Switzerland J. S. Edstrom, Sweden; Marquis de Polignac, France and Dr. Jarkowsky, Czechoslovakia, were nominated for the body.

Another committee, composed of Paul Rousseau, France; Franz Reichel, France and Allan Muhr, an American resident in Paris, under the direction of County Clary, will harmonize the decisions of the Paris Congress in 1914 with the complementary decisions taken at Lausanne this year.

The Olympic Alpine Advisory Committee, at its recent session, voted to present an Olympic prize for the most remarkable Alpine achievement between Olympiads. The award will be made on the basis of the sporting and scientific character of the feat and its usefulness to the world.

ORIENTALS GET GRIP ON BRITISH COLUMBIA'S TRADE

VICTORIA, B.C., July 22.—That Orientals are getting an increasingly firm grip on British Columbia's produce trade is indicated by figures compiled by the provincial department of agriculture, which have just been made public. More than fifty-five per cent. of the potatoes produced in the province are now grown by Chinese.

Most green-houses around Victoria district are now controlled by Chinese, according to the report. In the Victoria district Chinese have 193,370 square feet under glass and produce large quantities of early tomatoes, lettuce, other produce and flowers. In Vancouver ninety per cent. of the produce supplied to the markets is produced by Chinese.

In the famous Ashcroft and Lillooet districts, Chinese now own 2,300 acres and lease 1,905 acres more the report shows. Their holdings in these districts are in blocks, running as high as 640 acres. Recently more sales of land have been made direct from the white farmer, who finds he cannot make production pay, to the Oriental.

Officials of the department of agriculture are now investigating records to find out just how land is acquired by the Japanese. Two Japanese in one district were interrogated, says the report, and explained that in acquiring land the system was for the Japanese purchaser to make a selection, and when the purchase was approved by the Japanese consul the price was paid by that official. Of the 4,500 acres of small fruit in British Columbia, 2,341 acres are controlled by Japanese.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING FOR ALBERTA POTATOES.

CALGARY, Alta., July 22.—A co-operative marketing scheme for the disposal of this year's Alberta potato crop along a system in use by Michigan and Minnesota growers will likely be tried out this season. J. H. Hare, Commissioner of Marketing for the Department of Agriculture, recently returned from a trip to Michigan, Minnesota and Ontario points, during which he investigated the methods used for handling, grading and shipping of potatoes.

It is proposed to start in a small way, the Department of Agriculture working through the Edmonton Potato Growers' Association, the first of the kind to organize. The scheme will involve the establishment of a grading station at which all potatoes will be graded for shipment. Inspection will be given at the other end, potatoes going through in such cases subject to rejection. The details of the plan have yet to be worked out.

WHAT DO YOU READ?

(Fred. Kelly, in The Nation's Business.)

For some time I have been asking big successful businessmen what they read. And the astonishing thing is that, aside from the daily papers, stock reports and trade journals, comparatively few of them read anything. When it comes to psychology, philosophy, sociology or any kind of literature which stirs the imaginations, the average businessman isn't in the picture. And yet a half an hour a night, after crawling into bed, would in a few weeks make a person appear to be an authority on almost any subject. I say one would appear to be an authority—by comparison with others. If you knew anything at all about a subject, aside from the most current events, you know so much more about it than the average man does, that one might think you had devoted your life to it.

SINN FEIN NOT SATISFIED WITH PROPOSALS

BRITISH OFFER TO SINN FEIN FAILED TO CONCEDE WHAT ARE CONSIDERED VITAL PRINCIPLES

FELL SHORT OF VALERA'S DEMANDS BECAUSE IT PROVIDED CONTRIBUTION TO BRITISH EXCHEQUER, RETAINED BONDS BETWEEN ULSTER AND WESTMINSTER AND INSISTED ON BRITISH OCCUPATION OF IRISH PORTS.

LONDON, July 22 (Canadian Press). — Premier Lloyd-George's written offer to DeValera yesterday was more than the Sinn Fein expected in some respects. It was unacceptable, however, because it fails to concede what the Sinn Fein claims are the three vital principles, according to information obtained last night.

The British Cabinet authorised the granting of a broad measure of domestic independence, but the offer fell short of DeValera's demands, because

1—A financial contribution to the British Exchequer to facilitate the liquidation of the war burdens is retained, though it is less than the ninety millions required under the Home Rule Act.

2—Specialties (bonds) between Ulster and Westminster are still retained.

3—British occupation of Irish ports is insisted upon.

MOTORISTS MUST OBEY LAW

Motorists who fail to observe the law of the road meet with scant sympathy if the following judgment, which has been handed down by Mr. Justice Gibsone, in the Superior Court of Quebec, may be taken as a guide.

The judgment in question was given in the case of Bishop vs. Blondeau, the former of Portneuf and the later a resident of Cap Sante, and is in favor of Mr. Bishop, the plaintiff.

The evidence heard was that on one evening during November last the parties, both driving motor cars, met on the righway near Portneuf. Bishop flashed his headlights according to custom well-known to motorists which must be responded to by both drivers dimming the glare of their lights. Blondeau failed to dim his light, with the result that Bishop, blinded by the glare crashed into a farmer's wagon, completely demolishing the wagon and killing the horse.

Bishop then settled with the owner of the animal for $75, but Blondeau refused to accept any responsibilty or pay any part of the claim. He maintained that his car was an old one, not equipped with dimmers, therefore the accident could not be laid to him.

Mr. Justice Gibsone, in his judgment, ordered Blondeau to pay Bishop $68.50 and costs. The interesting feature of the case is that the entire original expense involved was $73, whereas Blondeau's total bill for having contested the case amounted to $390.16, which includes costs and lawyers' fees.

The Revised Statutes of Quebec (1917) quoted by Mr. Justice Gibsone, reads:

"(1417b) The operator or chaffeur of any motor vehicle shall not make use of any acetylene, electric or other headlight within the limited boundaries of any city, town or village, unless such light is so lowered, operated or provided with such a device so operated as not to dazzle or blind the driver either of a motor vehicle, or the operator of any motor vehicle, or any pedestrian on the streets or highways, or make it unsafe or difficult for any such driver, operator or pedestrian to ride, drive or walk on such streets or highways.

"Whenever two motor vehicles meet on any highway or whenever a motor vehicle meets another vehicle, the said lights shall be lowered in the same manner."

DEMOCRATIC CHANGES AT JAPANESE COURT

TOKIO, July 22.—hanges, democratic in nature, will probably be made for the court life of Japan and in the relation of the Imperial family to the people, as a result of the visit of Prince Hirohito to Europe It is likely that the printing of photographs of members of the Imperial family in newspapers and magazines will be permitted. The military guards which are always established on the occasion of a visit of a member of the Imperial family to any place outside the palace will also be simplified, if the suggestions which have ben formulated by officers of the Imperial Household are accepted.

According to one report, the household department requested the Crown Prince to inquire while he is abroad as to the customs which are followed in the royal family of Great Britain and as to the social works which re undertaken by them It is assumed that these customs and practices which exist in Great Britain will be adopted here following the Crown Prince's return to Japan.

But we have to confess that we don't always recognize good luck when we do meet it.

MEN ARE TIRESOME, HARD TO CONTROL

FOLKESTONE, Eng., July 22.—Every woman knows that men, "though interesting creatures, are tiresome, hard to control and are prone to seek their own way in spite of warnings," according to Mrs. T. A. L. Fisher, wife of the president of the British National Board of Education. She told an audience at the Royal Sanitary Institute Congress that most men become ill entirely through faults of their own nad "sowed seeds of trouble for themselves by eating too much, eating the wrong things, drinking too much, being lazy, keeping late hours or living in hermetically sealed rooms."

ROYAL FAMILY ENTERTAINS

4,000 ARE GUESTS AT GARDEN PARTY AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE, SUBSTITUTE FOR COURT.

LONDON, July 22. — (Canadian Press.) —King George and Queen Mary gave a garden party at Buckingham Palace to some four thousand guests. The spacious lawn presented a brilliant scene. The members of the Royal family were present. The function was attended by various foreign ambassadors and ministers, Dominion Premiers, Indian notables, members of the Government and others.

King George and Queen Mary shook hands with some two thousand of their guests. The lawn party was, to some extent, a substitute for the court which the King and Queen were unable to hold this year, and the informal presentations are equivalent to the usual presentations at court.

LOOP HOLE IN BONE DRY LAW IS UNEARTHED

NOR PROVISION OF PERSONAL SEARCH IN SANDY BILL, SO "HIP" ROUTE IS STILL OPEN TO THIRSTY.

BUT EVEN THIS ROUTE HOLDS DANGER OF FINE

TORONTO, July 22.—(Canadian Press.)—The man who failed to get in his stock before the 17th and faces the long drought with an empty cellar, will be interested to know that he can carry liquor into Ontario "on the hip" without being legally subject to a search by officers of the law.

The point has been raised before, but notwithstanding the fact that there was no legal authority for officers to search the person, it has been done. Yesterday experts of the Attorney-General's Department gave their views on the subject in relation to the operation of the Sandy Bill and their verdict was unanimous that the law did not provide for personal search, though an officer who suspects the presence of liquor, may search a traveller's grip or suit case.

Officials of the Department were not alarmed at the possibility of much liquor coming in "on the hip." It would not pay a blind pigger to travel to Montreal and back for the odd bottle or two he could carry on his person, and individuals who are not scared off by the chance of a $200 to a $1,000 fine if caught, will do little harm with an odd bottle. And there is always the chance that the officer may not know he has not a right to search. "If an officer has a good reason to believe a man is carrying liquor, he can arrest him, and find the liquor afterward," said an official. "The officer takes a chance, that's all."

IS GLAD SHE TOOK FRIEND'S ADVICE

TORONTO WOMAN SAYS SHE FEELS LIKE A DIFFERENT PERSON SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"I am certainly glad my good friend got me to try Tanlac, for it has only taken the medicine a little while to make me healthy and strong," said Mrs. Walter Scott of 58 Charles street, Toronto.

"I underwent a serious operation about eighteen months ago, and although it proved successful it left me in a badly run-down condition. I simply felt miserable, was melancholy and had no energy or strength. My appetite was very poor and I scarcely got any nourishment from the little I did manage to eat, for I couldn't digest my food properly. I had splitting headaches, and became so dizzy I almost fainted at times. I had fearful pains in my right arm and across my shoulders, and my sleep was so restless I felt more tired out mornings than I did on retiring the night before.

"Mrs. Morrow, who lives at the same address I do, got me to try Tanlac, and in almost no time it had me eating anything I wanted without a bit of trouble. My appetite is just fine, I am free from aches and pains and sleep like a child at night. Why, I simply feel like a new person and I can't say enough good for Tanlac. It's the best medicine ever made."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

DISPOSES OF FOUR WIVES FOR TEA AND TOBACCO

THE PAS, aMn.,—July 22—(Canadian Press).—A report from the north states that an Eskimo trapper, en route to a trading post to sell his furs, disposed of four of his wives each for pound of tea and some tobacco. The purchasers are fellow tribesmen returning from the du Brochette post of the Hudson's Bay Company and heavily laden with supplies. Two of the wives have been involved in similar transactions, the report goes on to say, and one of them has been traded six times, twice for a pound of tea, once for a can of condensed milk, one for a plug of tobacco and once for a slab of bacon. As it is the custom of the Eskimo, the original owner may redeem his wives upon payment of double the purchase price.

PREMIERSHIP BEEN OFFERED TO STEWART?

UNDERSTOOD ON GOOD AUTHORITY ALBERTA FARMERS OFFERED LEADERSHIP TO LIBERAL CHIEFTAIN, BUT WERE REFUSED.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

EDMONTON, Alta., July 22. — What may be regarded as a direct offer of the leadership of the new Farmers' Party in the Provincial Legislature to Premier Stewart is understood to have been made here by a high official of the U.F.A. Central Executive.

Although Premier Stewart when questioned, refused absolutely to discuss te matter and would not admit that he has even been approached to accept the Premiership of the famous government, it is reported from other sources on the best of authority that this U.F.A. official made a special visit to urge Hon. Mr. Stewart to come over to the newly elected administration as the director general.

So far as can be ascertained, Premier Stewart most emphatically turned the proposition down, reiterating his former declarations that he would be leader of no government but that of the Liberals.

HOW MANY TEASPOONFULS TO A TON.

The average weekly increase in SALADA sales during the first six months of this year has been TWENTY TONS. TWENTY TONS of tea would last the average North American consumer 32,000 years. Figure from this how many new customers have been gained for SALADA TEA in six months, for this 20 TONS a week represents the INCREASE ONLY in sales.

SURVEY NORTH MUSKEGS TO FIND POSSIBILITIES.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 22. — With a view to finding the agricultural possibilities of the muskegs of the North, a survey will be made this summer by a party of Federal Department of Agriculture experts. The various districts affected will be visited and particular attention will be paid to the Sawbridge district.

The question of developing the large areas of muskegs will be fully investigated, and following their report it is expected that experimental work will be carried on in a large scale, with a resultant benefit to Northern Alberta.

If the experiments carried out prove to be as favourable as anticipated, several rich areas will be opened to agriculturists, and the result will undoubtedly prove of great value to the agricultural industry of Alberta as a whole, and to the farmers of Northern Alberta in particular.

MAKE OWN WOOL INTO CLOTHING

Old Practice is Revived in North Hastings—Cuts Cost in Two.

"The old practise of having farmer's wool made into clothing for the use of the farmer's own family is being revived in Hastings," stated A. D. McIntosh of Stirling, Agricultural Representative for the county. How extensive the revival it was brought hame to me when I took my own wool to local mill for this purpose and was told there were so many other farmers ahead of me that I would have to wait two weeks before my work could be touched. We purpose having our own wool made into blankets and cloth for overcoating for the children. This finished material will not cost more than half of present prices and it will be of vastly better quality than good purchased in the ordinary way."

COUNCIL TAKES UP PROBLEM OF UPPER SILESIA

ALLIED MINISTERS HEAR BRIAND'S SIDE OF FRANCO-BRITISH DISPUTE OVER SENDING TROOPS.

BY WEBB MILLER.

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, July 22. — The Franco-British dispute over the Allied course in Upper Silesia was taken up to-day by the Council of Ministers.

Strolling over the grounds of President Millerand's summer home, Randouillet, the ministers heard from Premier Briand himself on his policy of rushing additional troops into Silesia, in opposition to Great Britani's desire to await the report from the Allied experts engaged in dividing the terrtiory between Poland and Germany.

The question, particularly as it bore on the British plans, evoked animated discussion.

MAJOR E. B. HOOPER RECTOR NEAR ST. ANDREW'S.

ALGONQUIN HOTEL, N.B., July 22—Apparently every one who owned a motor in St. Stephen and Calais came to St Andrew's yesterday to escape the heat. All afternoon there was a steady stream of cars through the town of Indian Point Park. The beaches were thronged with people who delighted in the cool sea breezes. Many enjoyed a plunge in the cool water of the Passamaquaddy.

Worshippers at All Saints' Church on Sunday morning had the pleasure of listening to the Rev. Dr. Sills, of Geneva. All Saints' is being congratulated on its new rector, Major the Rev. E. Bertram Hooper. Major Hooper's overseas record is well known to all Canadians. His pleasant personality and instructive sermons are drawing large congregations.

An especially interesting concert was given by the Algonquin Orchestra, the numbers seeming to be the most popular being: Piano solo, Valse by Schuett, Hungarian Dance, No. 1, by Brahms, Ballet La Giaconda by Poncielli, and the Adagio Pathetique by Godard.

A yachting party of nine Harvard students, who have been in port for several days, were charmed with St. Andrew's. To-day is delightful. This morning was not too sunny, making it especially good for golfing. This afternoon a stiff breeze blew off the land, causing the yachtsman to put on all sail. The temperature has been from 52 to 70, while at the same time in Montreal it has been 79, in Toronto 78, London 87, Ottawa 75, and Quebec 70.

PROBABILITIES.

Light to moderate winds, fine and decidedly warm.

A COMPLIMENT TO CANADA

The Canadian Pacific Purchases Nine Handseme Grand and Upright Pianos of Heintzman & Co., Limited

FOR USE ON THEIR PALATIAL OCEAN STEAMERS

Canada has reached a position in the world of manufacture where it is no longer necessary to go abroad to obtain the best in any line of goods. "Made in Canada" is the symbol of quality today.

In no department do these conditions prevail to a greater extent than in the manufacture of the Heintzman & Co. pianos. Royalty and world-great artists choose this piano when visiting the Dominion. They are found in all the great conservatories of Canada—meeting the most exacting demands of the most critical artists.

When great artists like Caruso, Tetrazzina, and Melba come to this country they assure themselves beforehand that a Heintzman & Co. piano can be placed at their disposal for their concerts and public functions. People everywhere take a pride in saying that their piano is a "Heintzman & Co."

Additional honors in the direction have come to "Ye Olde Firme," as they are familiar known, having been established since 1850, 70 years, in a purchase within the past week of Heintzman & Co pianos—three Grands and six Uprights by the Canadian Pacific for use on its palatial ocean steamers sailing out from Canadian ports on the Atlantic. Three Classic Uprights will go on the Empress of Canada, a Style D. Grand and a Classic Upright on the Montclare and Montrose. It will be a delight to Canadians who travel abroad to know that they will find these favorite pianos on whatever steamer of the C. P. R. may be their choice, adding this much more to the pleasure of the trip.

PASSING THE BUCK.

The conference called by Premier Drury to discuss the unemployment situation does not seem to have done much except to emphasize the fact that the greatest obstacle in the way of a return to normal conditions, and therefore the principal brake on the industrial and business progress of the country, is the reluctance of the majority of people to make the sacrifice that they expect everybody else to make. It was agreed by representatives of the manufacturers that a reduction in prices would stimulate buying, but everyone seemed to think the other fellows should make the first move. And labour's representatives claimed that before there should be any further reducion in the wages of the workers the cost of living must come down. Apparently there was no spirit of concession or compromise in evidence at the conference and the net result will be that the unemployment situation remains unaltered.

THE SAFETY LEAGUE.

The Ontario Safety League, in spite of the apathy of the public and the failure of the Ontario government to financially support its efforts, is continuing its campaign to educate the people to the necessity of exercising greater care against accidents. The theory behind the League's work is that accidents do not "happen"—they are caused usually by carelessness and lack of thought. The figures issued by Major J. J. Crowley, formerly of the United States' War Risk Insurance Department, show how absolutely necessary is it that the League should go ahead with its splendid campaign. When it is realized that in the United States five people are killed and twenty-one injured every minute, and that the majority of these fatal accidents are usually caused by the carelessness of the victim himself or of someone else, there is every justification for the continuance of a campaign of education to arouse the public to a realization of the situation. Only a day or two ago an Ontario man paid for his folly in groping for a bottle of medicine in the dark instead of turning on a light, by swallowing a dose of poison, and the newspapers are continually publishing similar stories. There is ample need for the Safety League, and it should be encouraged in every way possible to persevere in its work.

HANDS OFF THE HYDRO.

Mr. Tooms, M.L.A., deserves the thanks of his constituents for the very complete and comprehensive report of the proceedings of the Legislature that he has prepared. This means of enlightening the people as to new legislation introduced, might be copied with advantage by other members of the Legislature and of the Dominion House as well, for the general public has usually but a hazy idea of what is going on in parliametanry circles. Mr. Tooms has covered the ground as thoroughly as could be expected and has given a large amount of useful information.

With his views on Hydro matters, however, we can not as readily agree. He believes that the Ontario government should have a larger measure of control over Hydro matters and in that opinion the Examiner confesses its inability to see eye to eye with the local member. The hauling of the Hydro enterprises into the political arena would not be a [illegible] proceeding for the Hydro, [illegible] province or the municipalities. The great undertaking has had its fine success has been, to [illegible] extent, due to the fact that [illegible] conducted as a business [illegible] hampered by political [illegible] and with a policy [illegible] adhered to and carried [illegible] course that would have been [illegible] had the direction of the [illegible]ro's affairs been dependent upon the varying whims of the various political parties. Hands off the Hydro is good advice as well as a good slogan.

THE HEROES' GRAVES.

The Canadian government should lose no time in giving the facts in connection with the care of the graves of Canadian soldiers in France, for the sensational statements made by the Daily Express to the effect that "many graves in the Great War cemeteries of Flanders and France marked with the names of fallen soldiers are, in fact, empty of remains," has caused pain and distress to the many relatives concerned. The Imperial War Graves Commission has issued a statement which denies the allegation of the Express, and so far as it goes the reply is satisfactory. But the Dominion Government owes it to those who are mourning the loss of loved ones, to investigate the whole situation and to as speedily as possible let the people of Canada have the assurance that the re-interment and identification of the dead have been properly carried out, and that the last resting place of the men from Canada who made the supreme sacrifice is being carefully looked after. Any suggestion that Canada's interests in this regard are not being properly atended to would cause general indignation.

ABOUT FIGHTING MEN.

(Vancouver Sun.)

The feeling on the other side is growing that Jack Dempsey is not quite the man to be placed on the pedestal as a public idol.

Represenative Gallivan of Massachusetts has broken into print with the charge that the musclar Jack is a "bum and a draft dodger." He declares that when Les Darcy, an Australian, came to the States to fight some years ago, he was forbidden to enter the prize ring because some people in he United States said he was a slacker.

The representative does not quite see why Dem---- should be honored by a country that turned down Darcy.

In spite of several crude attempts at whitewashing, the fact remains that Dempsey did not show up to any great advantages in the world war. His valor was all displayed in the squarest circle. While other husky American boys were learning art of bayonet fighting, the champion was practising short arm jabs to win big prizes. While Dempsey wa slounging about in his training camp, many of his compatriots were taking the count of ten in France.

The champion fighter of the world was somewhere else when the greatest fight of all history was going on.

On the other hand, Georges Carpentier was at home when the French Government called. He ---- one of the first to offer his services to his country and he never hung be hind when the bell rang for the round with the Germans.

Although Carpentier was knocked out in the fourth round on July 2, he is the greater fighter of the two. If Dempsey is never beaten until he retires through old age, he will never be as great a fighter as the humblest doughboy sitting with wide open eyes at the ringside. He will be a very great athlete, but never much of a fighter.

And the boys of Vancouver who came back from the "big show" with a leg gone, maybe, or face mauled out of recognition will always have the satisfaction of knowing that with a bayonet and a rifle butt in a muddy sretch of trench, they could make Jack Dempsey, similarly accoured, run like a scared rabbit.

For Jack is something of a boxer but as a fighter he simply isn't there.

CAN'T PAY IN GOLD.

The Province of Ontario is not prepared to meet its obligations as pledged in its bond sales. This does not mean that Ontario is not absolutely solvent, or that it is unable to pay its debts, but it does mean that bonds are issued "payable in gold," which under existing conditions is an impossibility.

The Toronto Star tells this story:

"To the teller of the department a big, rugged man, who is probably a stalwart U.F.O. wherever he is known, and who must have a good deal of Scotch (human and not spirituous) in him, presented a coupon from a thousand-dollar band of the Province of Ontario, issue of December, 1920. The coupon was for thirty dollars, being one half-year's interest on th same, and bore in facsimile the signature 'P. Smith.' He asked the teller to fulfill its promise to pay the thirty dollars at the treasury of Ontario in gold coin.

"The teller was surprised at a unique request from a lone, and perfectly innocent-looking stranger anywhere from fifty-five to sixty-five of that segment of the Government, civil regret that the department does not handle gold. But, said the ingenuous caller, the coupon says the Province of Ontario at the treasurer's office will pay the interest in gold coin, and he merely wanted a solemn promise redeemed.

"The resourcefulness that is the most characteristic of Government officials speedily came into play—the stranger was asked to see somebody else. Resigned, submissive, meek, he was conducted to the chief clerk of that segment if the Government.

"The clerk hadn't the wherewithal to keep the engagement of his great and wealthy employer. To his suggestion that gold wasn't really necessary, and that the procedure of the ingenuous visitor was really not according to custom, he got the answer that a solemn promise, in print, of this great Province was a promise that ought to be observed in the observance and not in the breach.

"Why, he wanted to know, did Ontario make promises if it made no provision for keeping them? He was told that the banks do not customarily pay in gold if their currency notes are presented for redemption. Quite true, said the farmer, but a ten-dollar bank note doesn't say the bank will pay in gold. It only says it will pay dollars—not a word as to what sort of dollars. This provincial coupon, though, says distinctly that at the treasurer's office in the Parliament Buildings the interest will be paid in gold coin. Where was the coin?"

This is no joking matter. Ontario has promised to pay principal and interest of bonds in gold coin, but is not able to do so at maturity. A private corporation would be jugged if it attempted any such thing. The worst of it is the Ontario Government knows it cannot pay in gold, because the Federal regulations prevent it. Why, then, is the promise made? The only answer is "because it will advantageously affect the price of the bonds." What would happen to an individual or a company if it got money out of the public in this manner?—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Baseball in the Central Ontario district presents more tangles than the poltcal situation.

Unfortunately, fighting over the responsibility for the high cost of the Hunter street Bridge will not help to pay for the structure.

A cynical citizen, reading about the official opening of the new bridge, remarks that the only thing the citizens have to celebrate is the fact that it hasn't fallen down and killed somebody.

As an exchange puts it, the loudest sound in the world is the ticking of a clock in a store that does not advertise.

Good home made bread is the most palatable, wholesome and nourishing food in the world. It is far more economical than any other staple food. If people would eat less meat and other heavy foods they would feel better and help to keep down the cost of living. Bread made in the home with Royal Yeast Cakes is more nourishing and appetizing than any other. Nothing healthier for children and grown ups.

A fresh, rosy complexion indicates perfect health. To secure this in most cases all that is necessary is to take one to three Royal Yeast Cakes a day for a few weeks.

Yeast is a food. It supplies the water soluble vitamine which the diet may lack. Scientists tell us that this vitamine is essential to good health. Yeast is highly beneficial in many cases in which the system seems to be run down. The yeast cakes simply add to the diet.

Dissolve a Royal Yeast Cake in fruit juices or mix it with cereal and milk, and take it at meal time. The chances are in a few weeks the complexion will be clear. Constipation and other ills will be relieved. For children reduce the amount to one-half or one-quarter of a cake with each meal.

KENT'S ACTIONS AROUSE MY SUSPICIONS.

Chapter 17.

I had suggested to Kent that we invite the Walkers and the Lachmans down some evening, and at the very mention of Victor Lachman's name Kent had almost winced. I could see his lips press tightly together and a strange look come suddenly into his eyes.

I waited for him to say something, but he remained silent. I dropped the subject and he made no effort to pick it up again. After a while we got to talking about entirely different things so I did not allude to it again.

But if Kent forgot the incident, I did not. It brought back those old forebodings again.

Then one morning when the first of May came I found the bill for my hat in the mail. I was almost tempted to hide it, but I decided that that was foolish and, Kent would have to see it soon. Maybe it would bring things at last to a culmination and end it all.

I put the bill on the desk in the living room, with some other mail for Kent. All day the thoughts of it and the sight of it there made me nervous. But the more I thought about it the better I felt. It would be lots better for Kent to explain it all, than for me to go on harboring such crazy doubts.

I was in the kitchen getting dinner when Kent came home. He called "hello" to me, and then I heard him go into the living room. In a few minutes he came out, gave me a big hug and a kiss and went poking around the pots and pans to see what I had for dinner.

"Here—get out of that," I told him merrily. "Hurry, you'd better get washed up. Dinner will be ready in a few minutes."

"I'm as hungry as a bear, Barbara. What is it in the oven that smells so good?" he coaxed.

"Kent, you are a regular child, and besides you'll burn your fingers on the oven door," I protested laughingly as I caught his outstretched hand. "It's something you'll like but you can't see it yet. It isn't quite ready. Run along please, and I'll have dinner on the table in two minutes," I commanded.

When I heard him go down the hall to the bathroom, I hurried in to see if he had taken the mail, and it was gone. The bill for my hat was gone too—perhaps it was in his pocket at this very minute. It was not that I thought for one minute that Kent would scold me for buying the hat. He was so generous with me. But I felt that he would wonder why I had not used the money he had given me, and then I would have to tell him.

But Kent never mentioned the bill for the hat.

At first I thought he had not opened it. But when I made a pretense of going over to the desk and I saw the empty envelope, torn and rumpled, in the waste paper basket.

Instead of feeling relief that he had now questioned me, I immediately knew that he had avoided it purposely, and I felt the old suspicion creeping back again.

Then I wondered if he would speak about it tomorrow, or some other time.

The days went by and the longer I waited, and he did not speak, the more fearful I became. And then I realized that though I had been dreading the truth, I wanted it now more than anything else. The fact that Kent was keeping away from the subject only increased my curiosity.

I was determined now.

That night I lay awake long hours after I had gone to bed and planned and thought about it. All fear seemed to have left me and my only thought was to find out—to learn the truth at last.

And as I thought about Kent, I felt a strange little aloofness creep into my heart. Something inside of me told me that he was not playing fair, being absolutely honest, with me. The feeling that he was deceiving me hurt terribly.

Tomorrow—tomorrow, I would ask him and find out. I had waited long enough.

Tomorrow—Barbara Demands The Truth.

SWITZERLAND PUTS DIVORCE IN EASY REACH OF POOREST.

Incompatibility Is Given as Cause in Half of Cases — Geneva Averages 140 in a Year to 700 Marriages

LONDON, July 20.—Divorce is within the reach of all in Switzerland, writes S. J. Jennings in The London Daily News, and the facilities are used to a considerable extent. About 700 civil marriages take place in Geneva each year, and there are about 140 divorces.

Divorce procedure is comparatively simple. It is necessary to go to a lawyer, who prepares the case and brings it in the first instance before the Court of Conciliation. The parties appear privately before this court, and the judge endeavors to persuade them to renounce their intention and live amicably together. If he does not succeed the lawyer proceeds to collect evidence, and the matter comes again before the court after a lapse of three months. The witnesses are heard in private, but the lawyers' pleadings take place before the public court known as the Tribunal de Ire Instance. Altogether, divorce proceedings usually take about a year.

There are a large number of possible reasons for the granting of divorce, but in probably 50 per cent. of the cases the reason given is incompatibility of temperament, or as it is put, in a term of rather wider significance, "incompatibilite des moeurs." This plea is, of course, a very convenient one and saves much washing of dirty linen, besides the fact that the cause which in England constitutes the most potent plea for divorce is in certain cantons of Switzerland a criminal offence.

The cost of divorce proceedings in Switzerland is never prohibitive. Divorce is available to the poorest. According to the Swiss Constitution no citizen is allowed to suffer by reason of the fact that he is too poor to invoke the law, and if he proves inability to pay for legal representation his costs are paid from a fund raised under a tax known as the "Droit des Pauvres" (Right of the Poor). The cost of divorce, however, depends on circumstances, and witnesses are sometimes paid considerable sums to give evidence. Nevertheless, persons of small means who agree to seek divorce and have no children to complicate the situation, may hope to obtain their desire for a matter of, say, £12.

PETERBORO HELD FAST HAVELOCK LACROSSE TEAM TO 5-4 SCORE

SPRANG BIG SURPRISE ON THURSDAY AFTERNOON WITH A TEAM THAT INCLUDED FIVE JUNIORS —GAME TIED IN LAST QUARTER

Plugging the gaps in their line with five juniors, Peterborough's intermediate lacrosse team gave Havelock a real scare on their own front lot on Thursday afternoon, when they held them to the respectable score of 5 goals to 4.

"Another ten minutes, and we would have trimmed them," is the opinion Johnnie Sutherland brought back.

After Havelock's victory over Campbellford's husky team a week ago, the most sanguine of the comparatively little group of supporters of the local teams scarcely imagined anything like yesterday's showing. Havelock's recently acquired prestige created the impression locally that there wasn't a chance to win, and apparently Percy Lancaster's lads started out with an overshot of confidence; but after the first period they had their hands full, and from all accounts were put through an unexpectedly anxious session.

Havelock used their regular team. They opened the first quarter at a fast clip, King and Haughton scoring while Peterborough drew a blank. In the second Grover Halpin beat Powers twice, and Brinkman tallied another, leaving the half-way score 4 to 2. Neither team scored in the third period, but in the final Natress made it 4 to 3 and Rosenfield tied it up. It looked to be anybody's game at that point. The home crowd, considerably less than that of a week ago for the Campbellford game, yelled their heads off for a goal, and little Haughton turned the trick just before the last bell.

The teams were as follow:

Havelock—Goal Powers, point J. Hooper, c. point R. O'Brien, 1st def. Don Wright, 2nd defence C. Holmes, centre A. McGee, 2nd home D. Brennan, 1st home W. Brinkman, outside W. Haughton, inside Earl King. Subs, C. Brennan, W. Copp, and G. Wright.

Peterborough — Goal L. Lebar, point Fred Goodfellow, cover point Ed. Dillon, 1st defence Ed. Foley, 2nd defence J. Ward, centre Creighton, 2nd home C. Nattress, 1st home H. Tudhope, outside Saul Rosenfield, inside Grover Halpin. Spare, Lionel Brown.

Referee—W. H. Rowe, of Havelock.

Jack Creighton, who has been coaching the intermediates, went in at centre and was followed by Brown of the juniors, who played a nice game until he was slowed up with a slash over the knee. The centre field worked well all afternoon, and the juniors made a decidedly favourable impression on Mr. James Skinner, manager of the intermediates, and Mr. C. S. Cummer, president of the Lacrosse Club, both of whom went down with the team.

Mr. Skinner has patiently and hopefully stood by the intermediates, believing that this year's effort was simply missionary work.

Juniors Behaved Well.

He was delighted with the way the juniors Lebar, Foley, Ward, Brown, and Rosenfield handled themselves. Lou Lebar, junior, pulled a new stunt in goal. He stuck a finger mitt on one hand, and the shots he didn't stop with his stick he caught in his glove, except the five that got by him, and they were only a small fraction of his afternoon's work.

Harry Tudhope turned in his best game this year, and with Halpin, who was also in fine form, Rosenfield and Nattress, comprised an active home field.

On the defence, Goodfellow and Foley looked after King and Haughton respeltively, and made a good job of it. In fact, the team as a whole checked closely, and in that detail of their play showed a surprising improvement.

Ed. Dillon was a steadying force, and Johnny Ward completed a tidy defence.

The Havelock team were as fast, but not as effective as usual. Their combination was a treat, in spite of the checking, but they seemed unable to "get going." In the last half they had all they could attend to, and the two Peterborough goals in the fourth period was a stiff jolt. However, they came back with the deciding punch, and saved a situation that was anything but promising.

W. H. Rowe handled the game satisfactorily. He handed out eleven penalties, most of them for minor offences, but it was generally admitted that local referees fail to conduct the games as efficiently as the Toronto arbiters, such as Len Smith and Harcourt.

The game was clean and was played in the best of feeling.

How a Higher Critic Made Me Consistent

Did I really "believe the Bible from cover to cover" ?— By H. D! KENNEDY.

I was brought up in a Christian home and was always taught to reverence the Bible. I cannot remember the time when I would not rather read it than any other book. It alwsy seemed easy for me to believe it, yet for some reason I grew up with a strong prejudice against the iuea of our Lord's return to earth.

Before entering evangelistic work, I spent some time at the Moody Bible Insitute of Chicago, and while there often heard Mr. Moody and others speak on the subject, but what they taught me did not appeal to me at all, and I always felt proud that I had sense enough not to believe what I heard them teach on this subject. I had my own ideas, but did not believe that this doctrine was practical enough to teach in revival meetings, so during the early years of my work I left it entirely out of my preaching. My dislike for the subject was so strong that at one time I was on the point of writing a certain religious magazine of Chicago to discontinue my subscription because of their frequent reference to it.

A few years ago, however, I was holding meetings in a town near Chicago, and one night during the sermon I stated that I believed the Bible from cover to cover. At the close the Methodist preacher, who posed as a Higher Critic, came to me and said that he did not agree with what I had said regarding the Bible. He then added that Mr. Moody used to preach that way, and that his teaching had done our church a lot of harm. This rather surprised me, for being a Methodist myself, and knowing that Moody taught on the essential doctrines of the Bible, it had not occurred to me that there was any particular clash between the two. I told him I did not see his point, that I believed in Moody's work, and with the exception of his idea of Christ's second coming, in most of his teaching. To this he replied that I was not consistent; that if I believed the Bible from cover to cover, as I claimed to, I would sooner or later have to accept Moody's teaching on that subject. Now, if some advocate of premillennialism had made this statemade this statement it would have had no effect on me; but coming from a Higher Critic, with whom I had no sympathy it set me to thinking, and I seemed to have nothing to say. I wondered after all if it could be possible that I had not been studying my Bible aright.

A short while after this I was in another town, and a man vsisiting in the place attended some of the meetings. He seemed kindly disposed towards what was being done, and a little later I received an exceedingly kind letter from him, endorsing my work, and enclosing a substantial cheque to help me continue. He also sent me two books on Christ's second coming. This made me rather suspicious, for I saw at once that I could not agree with their teaching. However I wanted to be courteous, so I wrote him thanking him for his kindness, but I did so before I read the books, so that I would not have to express my opinion on their teaching; I feared that if I did I might hurt his feelings.

About this time I heard a prominent evangelist preach on the subject in an Ohio city. His views were entirely different from my own, but the fact that over four hundred persons "hit the trail" that night impressed me profoundly, for I had always claimed that this subject was not practical enough for revival work. I thoroughly believed in the evangelist and in the doctrines he preached, and after that service I had to admit that a "notable miracle had been done." There, before my eyes, I saw the result of a sermon preached on a subject that I never believed was taught in the Scripture. I was not convinced, but I certainly was interested. I could not deny that this man and many others holding his views were being used most of God in the world to-day. I also had to admit that so far as I knew there was no Higher Critic on their side of this question.

During the next year my friend who had sent me the two books, kept sending me literature on the same subject, and I always acknowledged having received what he sent before I read it, so that I would not have to commit myself on what I thought of the teaching. Nevertheless I read it all, and kept on stpdying my Bible to see if these things were so.

Early in the year 1914 I was working in an Iowa city and seeing an announcement in a Chicago magazine regarding a prophetic conference soon to be held in the Moody church, I sent it to my friend who had been sending me the literature, and suggesting that he attend the conference as he lived near the city. In a few days I heard from him, stating that he could not go, but wished that I might do so, and he enclosed a check which would more than cover my expenses. As I was to pass through Chicago anyway going to my next meeting, I planned to take in the prophetic conference.

I attended every session. Many of the strongest Bible teachers of the land, from the leading denominations, were on the programme. What impressed me most about this conference was the oneness of spirit among all the speakers and the harmony that seemed to prevail in all that was being taught, though they had come from far and near, and I did not suppose that any of them knew what the others were likely to say. They all seemed to claim that such men as Luther, Knox, Wesley and Spurgeon, as well as the early Fathers of the Church, believed this doctrine as they taught it.

After the conference was over I did not seem to have any case. These men apparently had said it all, and I felt that if I pretended to believe the whole Bible as the Word of God, I would have to accept the teaching I had heard. However before preaching on the subject I spent four years longer studying my Bible with an open mind and a teachable heart ,and the result is that the new testament has become a new book to me. Many things that used to appear so obscure are perfectly plain now. I know that the Lord who ascended with his glorified body is in like manner to return; that we are to look not for the millennium, but for Him; that if the millennium were to come first, He would not have told us to "watch", that the Lord's Supper was instituted that we might keep Him in remembrance "till He come," that Pentecost was not His second coming, for he spoke of the Spirit as another Comforter.

I don't believe in harping upon one string, or in making a hobby of this or any other Bible doctrine, or in setting dates as to our Lord's return, for God alone knows the eternal calendar; yet the fact that fanatics have done so, and have caused this doctrine to be held up to ridicule is not a sufficient reason why the preachers of our land should not preach it and fulfil their mission as true messengers, rightly dividing the word of truth. If we did so we might have fewer cults and isms, and fanaticism among our people.

After Long Suffering Mrs. Peasey Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered with irregular menstruation, was weak and run down, could not eat and had headaches. The worst symptoms were dragging down pains, so bad I sometimes thought I would go crazy and I seemed to be smothering. I was in this condition for two or three years and could not seem to work. I tried all kinds of medicines and had been treated by physicians but received no benefit. I found one of your booklets and felt inclined to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I received the best results from it and now I keep house and go out to work and am like a new woman. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to my friends and if these facts will help some poor woman use them as you please."—Mrs. J. F. PEASEY, 387 King St., Toronto, Ontario.

If you are one of these women do not suffer for four or five years as Mrs. Peasey did, but profit by her experience and be restored to health.

BRITISH ISRAELITES WELCOME AMERICA IN TEN LOST TRIBES

LONDON, July 21.—Once more the tradition that England and America are the ten lost tribes of Israel, the British throne the throne of David, and that the two nations shall dominate the world, has been revived with the meeting of the British-Israel Congress this week. Its activities have more than once aroused to fury such anti-Semitic organs as The Morning Post, and have revived tales that Semitic blood entered the royal house through Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's consort.

This year it was stated that the Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, the King's aunt, would be unable to attend, although she is a patron of the federation. Lord Gisborough presided at the meetings on King George's behalf at the Y.M.C.A. buildings, and the following address was sent to the King:

"Members and delegates of the British Israel Congress, a world federation representing all parts of the British Empire, believing that your majesty sits upon the throne of David, present their humble duty, and assure your majesty of their unswerving loyalty to your majesty's throne and person."

This year Lord Gisborough included America as an "ipso facto member" with Great Britain in the federation. He declared that the present position of America and the British Empire in national, moral, religious and financial spheres accords closely with the covenant of Abraham and the prophecies promising that the throne of David should be established forever. He quoted the Bible as saying that the lost ten tribes would command the gateways of the sea, as America and England do now, and said it was further decreed that the tribes of Israel would lend to all and borrow from none.

"It needs little examination," he said, "to show that the Anglo-Saxon race, in the greatest war in history, practically sustained in food, money and munitions every belligerent on the side of the Allies." He characterized the League of Nations, as ridiculous, and said that the real league which would control the world would be Anglo-American.

SHACKLETON TO EXPLORE SECRETS OF FAR SOUTH

LONDON, July 1. — (Canadian Associated Press by Mail).—In the new expedition being organized by Sir Ernest Shackleton, of which cable announcement has already been made, the leader will be accompanied by 17 picked men, including several heroes of former adventures The party leave London on August 20 in a little ship called the Quest.

According to present arrangements they will go directly south to explore the Southern Atlantic, call at Cape Town, and then cruise the unknown Antarctic Sea south of the Cape of Good Hope. They will afterward sail across the Southern Pacific and round the Horn homeward.

COMPETITION IN FIRST AID WORK

GRAND TRUNK RECEIVES REPORTS ON FIRST AID WORK.

Competitions in first aid work are now proceeding at the various terminals of the Grand Trunk Railway System in connection with the Chamberlain Trophy. Dr. Chas. A. Hodgetts, of the St. John Ambulance Association, Ottawa, is conducting the examinations and there is the keenest rivalry among the teams. The winners of this competition are given pride of place among all the ambulance teams of the railway.

The executive of the Grand Trunk takes a deep interest in encouraging first aid work in the large shops and terminals, and two cases have just been reported to Mr. W. D. Robb, Vice-President of the Grand Trunk, illustrating the good results that follow upon first aid instruction Fireman T. F. Gill was struck by a train near the engine round house at Turcot Yards, and seriously injured. Yard Foreman Discio, a first year ambulance man, at once took charge of the case and called Car Foreman Pearce, who has proved himself highly efficient in attending the cases of emergency. They at once applied the first aid treatment and turned the case over to the Western Hospital. The wife of the injured man, residing in Brockville, was notified within a few minutes of the accident, giving her an opportunity of reaching Montreal at the earliest moment.

In the second accident case fireman James Gunter jumped off his engine at Richmond, Que., and, slipping on a cinder, his left hand and arm were severely crushed by the wheel of a car. Fireman Gunter was taken to the first aid room and there attended to by Night Foreman Jones until the arrival of the doctors. The medical men state that the extemporized tourniquot applied by the foreman was so skilfully handled that it controlled the hemmorrhage and made it possible for the doctors to amputate the crushed arm at once and save the man's life.

The reports received by the Grand Trunk from the various hospitals show that frequently the practical knowledge of first aid principles possessed by the men in the railway's service has been of the utmost value to the injured, casualty cases reaching the surgeons in much better condition than in non-treatment cases and their subsequent progress favorably affected by the speedy relief received at the time of the accident.

COMMUNIST UNIONS DENY I. W. W. CLAIMS.

Allow Haywood Only 3 Votes — Internationale Urges Union With Other Radicals.

RIGA, July 20. — The Congress of the Third Internationale at its recent meeting in Moscow decided against immediate liquidation of the Industrial Workers of the World organisation, says the Moscow Izvestia. The Congress decided, however, according to the newspaper, again to ask the Industrial Workers of the World to unite with other radical bodies in America.

William D. Haywood, chief organiser of the Industrial Workers of the World, lost his fight before the Congress of Communist Trades Unions, which is now meeting in Moscow, to deprive American delegates representing revolutionary minorities and unoins not affiliated with the American Federation of Labour of the decisive votes among the American representatives.

Haywood demanded thirteen of the sixteen American votes for the Industrial Workers of the World, says the Izvestia, allowing three for the representatives of independent unions.

The Trades Union Congress decided the dispute by splitting the American vote, giving three to the Industrial Workers of the World, two to independents and eleven to unions not affiliated with the American Federation of Labour, including representatives of the Central Councils of Trades Unions in the cities of Detroit and Seattle.

The Trades Union Congress has decided to work in the utmost harmony with the Third Internationale, but to preserve a separate identity.

In the debate over the American vote Delegate Williams spoke for the Industrial Workers of the World and Delegate Flip for the other organisations.

Why Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is the Favorite Constipation Remedy with so Many Mothers

YOUNG Mothers in the midst of bringing up a family of small children should consider it a duty to investigate the action of the various remedies for constipation. This is the ailment most common among children, and it often leads to serious diseases. It is important for the mother to know the right remedy to give, for they differ widely in action.

Children do not take kindly to drastic drugs, salt waters, calomel, physics, castor oil, carthartics, mercurials and such things, and they find difficulty in swallowing these harsh medicines even when disguised in sugar-coated tablets or pills. It is not only that the child doesn't like the taste, but these drugs are so violent that they wrench the little system. They should not be given to children.

Thousands of wise mothers, after having tried many things, give only a combination of simple herbs with pepsin, known to druggists as Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. The formula is on the package. It is a mild, gentle remedy, free from all narcotics, that relieves constipation and its symptoms, such as headache, biliousness, colds, fever, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, and it does it without griping or weakening. A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin can be bought at any drug store for sixty cents and is enough to last an average family many months.

Last year over eight million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin were sold in drug stores, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, and as the preparation has been on the market over thirty years the second generation of mothers are now giving it to their babies. No careful, well-regulated home will be without a bottle for a mild, safe constipation remedy like this may be needed by someone in the family any minute. Every bottle is guaranteed to do exactly as claimed for the ailments of the stomach, liver and bowels or your money will be refunded.

TRY IT FREE!

There are heads of families who will want to prove to their own satisfaction that my Laxative Syrup Pepsin is as effective in constipation, as mild and gentle in action, as pleasant-tasting and safe, as I claim. Let such write me for a free sample. It will be sent postpaid. Simply say "Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 19 Front Street, Bridgeburg, Ont.: Send a free trial bottle of your Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin to—" and give your name and address. I will see that the rest is attended to promptly.

FRANCE WANTS "RUELLE," BUT BALKS AT PRICE.

PARIS, July 20.—Economy is always a watchword in France, and even more so since the war, but never before, to any great extent, have dissenting voices interfered with the renowned purchasing committee of the Louvre.

This committee is not angling for Jan Vermeer's celebrated canvas, "Ruelle" (the little street), painted by the Dutch master in the seventeenth century .

"Ruelle" is owned by the Mauritshuis, the gallery at The Hague, and can be purchased for France, it is said, for two million francs. But even French connoisseurs, who would swell with national pride to see Vermeer's gem in the Louvre, are to-day forced to consider the argument that two million francs spent in assuaging misery in the devastated regions is worth far more to France at present than another famous canvas hanging in the French Museum of Art.

The Louvre is a part of the French Government, and money spent for it comes from the coffers of the Government.

Frantz Jourdain, president of the Paris Autumn Salon and a world-known connoisseur, is among those who have been torn between the "Ruelle" and binding up the wounds still bleeding in France. His decision is now made.

"Two million francs spent in the devastated regions will bring far greater joy than the possession of 'Ruelle,'" says M. Jourdain. "It is there in its home at The Hague, and will be on view for the whole world, whether France buys it or not."

FALLS OFF TIGHT-ROPE — SUFFERS SERIOUS INJURIES.

ST. CATHARINES, July 19. — John Soper fell from a tight-rope, thirty feet above the ground, last night while performing on the Old-Home Week programme, and may die. He is a former St. Catharines man.

Soper was doing tricks with a barrel when an iron pin holding a guy wire broke and set the rope swaying. Soper lost his balance and toppled with the barrel hanging to his legs. As he fell he grasped the rope and, after hanging a moment, began to work his way, hand over hand, toward the telegraph pole to which the rope was attached. Hampered by the barrel, from which he could not free himself, Soper succeeded in travelling about 15 feet before he lost his grip and fell.

He struck the ground on his side, and lay tangled in the barrel. Fortunately he fell on the grass beside the road and not on the pavement. The mishap occurred so quickly that few realised the danger he was in, else a net or blanket might have been used to break his fall. He now lies in the hospital here with an arm and leg broken, beside possible internal injuries, which may cost him his life.

Soper, who used to do 'stunts" here a score of years ago, had not rope-walked for some years.

For hanging pictures a pin with points at both ends has been invented, one point being driven into a wall, after which the picture frame is pressed against the other.

CHASE & SANBORN • MONTREAL

VEGETARIAN AT 99 ATTRIBUTES HEALTH TO NOT EATING MEAT.

Ambition of California Man, Author of "How to Live a Century," to Write Another Book on Christianity.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 20.—Dr. James Martin Peebles, physician and author, who not long ago celebrated his ninety-ninth birthday anniversary and who wrote a book on How to Live a Century and Grow Old Gracefully, ascribes his long life in large measure to abstinence from eating animal flesh. Dr. Peebles stopped eating meat when he was thirty-nine years old. He wrote a book on the rules of living when he was sixty-two.

Asked what he considered the greatest contributory cause to his long life he instantly replied:

"One cannot strengthen life by living on death. I cannot bear the idea of eating dead cows and dead hogs; and it is not necessary. See how strong are horses and oxen; they do not live on dead flesh." Other rules he made for himself, and which he said he believed had helped him to reach his advanced years, included:

'Go to bed every night at 8.30. Out of bed every morning at 6. Never use tobacco. Never use intoxicating liquors. Never complain.

"Avoid all worry and keep a harmonious mind. Worry is among the worst things in the world. Have a strong will power. Always look for the new. Keep calm."

On his ninety-ninth birthday Dr. Peebles walked erect, only occasionally using a cane; his sight was good, although he used spectacles for reading; his hearing "as good as ever," and his appetite and digestion be declared excellent. His long white beard and hair gave him a truly venerable appearance.

Asked what his plans for the future were he replied:

"To live a number of years more and to write at least another book. This will be on the progress of Christianity as it is preached, showing how preachers are leaving hell fire, brimstone, purgatory and many other old time dogmas behind."

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

HERE'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO DARKEN AND BEAUTIFY FADED HAIR.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get the famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and the lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or a soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

U. S. ROTARIAN MADE BLUNT REMARK TO KING

LONDON, July 21.—The reputation which Americans have of blunt speaking even in the face of royalty is likely to be enhanced by a remark that passed between King George and Mr. Klumph, of Cleveland, O., on the occasion of the Rotarians' reception at Buckingham Palace, recently.

King George affably said to Mr. Klumph that he, too, would like to become a Rotarian.

"I don't see what is to stop you," said Mr. Klumph.

GERMANY HAS NOT GONE COMMUNIST

UPRISINGS IN EASTER WEEK ARE ABORTIVE, EXAGGERATED AND NOT SIGNIFICANT.

WORKERS HOLD ALOOF

LEADERS MOSTLY UNTRAINED YOUTHS, ADVENTURERS AND NONDESCRIPTS.

BERLIN, July 21.—The Communist uprising of Easter week in Germany did not prove that there is impending danger of Bolshevism in this part of Western Europe. On the contrary it brought to light the irresponsible agitation and trivial leadership of the German Communist party, and emphasized its consequent want of influence over the great majority of Germany people.

The uprising shows that the German workers have not "gone red," and, if anything, that there is less revolutionary spirit in Germany today than at any time since the armistice. The German workmen are perhaps as little inclined toward political action as any people in the world. They have not the least enthusiasm about spreading throughout the world any political doctrines, communism or any other.

It was also misleading to speak of the conflict between the German Government forces and the "reds" as "military operations," of Central Saxony as the "front," and even more so of the bands which attempted to establish soviets as a "red army." The Communist uprising at least had the value of showing up the absurdity of the statements of many alarmists, who for reasons of their own talked of the "enormous secret communist army." I saw various of these red armies during the uprising and not one of them either in leadership, organization or equipment was worthy of the name.

"Reds" Blamed for Bloodshed.

There is no doubt that the responsibility for much needless bloodshed last March rests with the Communist party. How much of this can be put on Moscow which now and then is supposed to need a 'blood bath" abroad to help along the revolution at home, it is difficult to say. Keeping the people of western Europe constantly agitated, arousing class feeling and hatred, and increasing popular misery as the best breeder of militant communism are tactics which I heard Sinoview advocate last year in Halle, and which no doubt are dear to some Communist hearts.

Even here in Germany a part of the German Communist party hesitated to arouse the workers to arms. Most of the leaders obviously kept their hands off. The big Berlin party went only half as far as that of Halle. In some parts of Germany the party ventured no action whatever. Indeed, in the fighting zone of Saxony the Communists were divided.

At the Leuna works the Communist head of the workers' council, for example, told me that he opposed this action as badly timed and plain suicide. The Zeiss works, which I visited at the time, though nearly half Communist, gave no support to the action, and the same was almost as true at Leipsic, one of the strongholds of the party.

Notable of the leadership in the March uprising was that most of the torchbearers were young, irresponsible boys who never played any part in the German labor movement and who had not the slightest claim to the confidence of the German workers. They were not, as many of the papers pretended, Russians or other foreigners. Most of them were members of the so-called Communist Labor Party, which has the blessings of Moscow, but which is not a member of the Third International. The leaders of this party are, for the most part, young fanatics, many of them overworked "Intellectuelle," which have made themselves dizzy with their own phrases.

Leaders Are Untrained Boys.

The rank and file among the Communist Labor Party are not the German workers, but the boys who grew up during the war untrained, who either ran wild in the streets, or who earned fat wages holding fat jobs. Among them too is a sprinkling of so-called National Bolsheviks, Nationalists, who, finding that Hohenzollern nationalism does not pay, are now trying the Frotzky brand.

The military conspiracies of these groups would be funny had they not led to the death of so many misguided workers. Some weeks ago a so-called "military conspiracy" was unearthed and prosecuted by the Government at Halle with much gusto. Nationalists who hoped again to draw salaries by carrying guns shook their heads, and talked of the dangers from the Bolshevik uprising in Germany. There was undoubtedly a conspiracy, but the military plans of this band were too childish for serious comment.

That the German Communist militants were committing a military folly was amply proved by the March uprising. Albert, one of their own members, publicly in the Red Flag warned the workers that armed action would be folly at a time when the other crowd had most of the guns.

Times have changed since the old Liebknecht days when every man had his gun and was in the habit of carrying it. This uprising proves that disarmament, at least so far as the individual German citizen goes, has been effective. The Orgesh and so-called home defence organization still have their rifles tucked away, but the individual German, whether worker or man in the office, gave up his last year, tempted by the premium.

The much exaggerated "red army" therefore went into the field with no artillery, very few heavy and light machine guns, and not one rifle for five men. The so-called fortress of the Leuna works despite fantastic stories had only 360 rifles, four light and one heavy machine gun. This I know because I saw their armory at the time the German press was talking out "800 machine guns and countless rifles."

GIRL HIKERS NEAR 4,500-MILE GOAL.

They Hit the Trail for New York From California Without a Chaperone or a Gun.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 20. — A half-acre desert in Wyoming or the brake beam of a freight train shared with a friendly hobo are far safer places than their native city, according to Miss Rebecca Brownstein, of 207 Van Sicklen Avenue, Brooklyn, and Miss Myra Levine, of New York. They know, for they left here Sunday on the last lap of their 4,500-mile "hike" by devious routes from San Francisco to the big city.

The girls, who are both 23 years old, started from San Francisco late in May. They arrived here Saturday night, having $40 left of the $290 they pooled when they left the Golden Gate. That balance is going to last them until the lights of Broadway and home flash in their eyes.

The two are former students at the University of Syracuse. They have really walked nearly 500 miles of their trip across the continent, and most of the remainder of the journey has been made in automobiles driven by kind-hearted travellers, who gave an occasional "lift" over mountain passes and across the plains, where villages were many miles apart.

They said they went from here to the coast by train and worked in California to raise their fund for the homeward journey. They were maids in homes in the Los Angeles film colony, and even worked in factories while getting together $290 for the homeward trip. While they accepted rides to vary the monotony of walking, they stopped at hotels and refused invitations to dine with families who gave them rides.

Both hikers are apparently fearless and carry no weapons. They agreed that their nerve in daring to travel unarmed had won respect of men they met, and not once in their 4,500-mile journey, in which they went more than 1,000 miles out of their way to see the Yosemite, were they annoyed.

"We found that New York girls are safer on a hike in the West than on the streets of their native city," Miss Levine said. "Only once on our trip did we know what terror meant, and that was walking at night through Hell's Half Acre Desert in Wyoming. It was bright moonlight, and we had heard awful stories of the desert in the early days of the settlers, and more than once our nerves were keyed up when the clumps of sage brush swayed in the faint breeze.

"We did twenty-three miles on a freight train on which several hoboes were riding, and they acted both as our champions and chaperones and offered to see us to the end of the 150-mile trip, but we did not care for that sort of train riding.

"Our journey was to study life at close range and to see the country. It has been such a wonderful experience we plan to see Europe next year the same way. When it came to a question of motor riding we could pick our cars and society, and hundreds of men and women stopped their cars when they saw us trudging along the road to offer us rides.

"Afraid? Not of anything we could see. That night in the Wyoming desert was the only one we put when we knew the meaning of fear and tales of stage coach robbers and desperadoes of fifty years ago were what unsettled our nerves."

The two girl hikers spent the night at the Y.W.C.A. here and set out early to continue their homeward journey.

MALE DANCERS SHOCK EVEN PARIS WITH THEIR NUDITY

"TAKE THEM OFF" IS THE WAIL SENT UP AFTER SWEDES, FINNS AND RUSSIANS CAVORT WITH JUMP, BALLET AND HAREM NUMBERS —THREATEN U.S. INVASION.

PARIS, July 21.—"No more male dancers," is the wail going up here from theatrical critics who are protesting against the growing inclinations of theatrical critics who are protesting against the growing inclinations of husky but graceful choreographic exponents to exhibit themselves in almost complete nudity. A recent exhibition by the Swedish dancer, Jean Borlin, said to be the illegitimate son of the King of Sweden, at a recent exhibition, gave even the least prudish a considerable shock. Borlin cavorted almost bare before a most distinguished audience.

'Ye Gods! If we let 'em continue what will we get next?" protested one morning newspaper that has studied the gradual influx of male dancers before, during and since the war, and says this tendency is incomprehensible, as it was expected that life in the trenches would have robbed men of any curiosity to see male contortions.

The critics have decided that this vogue started with the agility of Nijinsky and his Russian ballet, but not satisfied with the leaping dances, the Finns came next with combination of ballet and harem numbers, and by the time the Russian refugees, seeking the solace of French money after their experiences with the Bolshevists, arrived here the original ballet idea had been abandoned.

Instead, folk dances becomes a veritable rage of interpretations by physical contortion. This prepared the way for Borlin's tribe of dancers, who are incidentally going to the United States next spring unless the censorship proves too strict. So far as France is concerned, the people have had enough of male beauties, and are threatening to restore the days of the minuet and quadrilles unless the managers provide something more artistic than the Swedes and Russians have brought from the northern regions.

AN INSIDE BATH MAKES YOU LOOK AND FEEL FRESH

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, declaring this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the alimentary canal before eating more food.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others have bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to show the value of inside bathing.

HISTORIC FESTIVAL AT ROTHENBURG DRAWS MANY

Rothenburg, Bavaria, July 21.—Thousands of visitors gathered at Rothenburg this year to attend the historical festival, "The Master Draught," which is given annually in celebration of the preservation of the historic old town from destruction when Tilly captured it in 1631, after the surrender and retirement of Gustavus Adolphus' forces which cooperated with the villagers.

After the Passion Play, which is given every ten years at Oberammergau, the Rothenburg festival is probably the best known of all the Bavarian folkplays. Nearly all the 7,000 inhabitants of the picturesque walled town participate in the brilliant festival, which continues throughout most of the day.

The play opens in the valleys surrounding the fortified city. By degress the actors make their way to the city gates, enter the narrow streets and finally terminate the performance in the city hall, where Burgomaster Nusch saved the town from destruction by taking three liters of wine at one draught in response to the challenge of Tilly.

Every day at noon the residents of Rothenburg are reminded of Burgomaster Nusch's feat. When the great town clock in the city hall sounds 12. doors beside the timepiece open and lifesized figures of Tilly and Nusch appear.

CHILDREN ENJOY OUTING AMONG THE PINES OF JACKSON PARK

SUMMER CAMP PROVIDES ACCOMMODATION FOR THIRTY-FIVE CHILDREN—THE MENU.

About thirty-five little boys and girls are having the time of their lives at the Summer Camp at Jackson Park these days. Any child who spends the months of July and August in sourroundings like these provided at this Camp by the Peterboro Health Association is guaranteed to be turned out at the end of the period with bright eyes and brown cheeks.

The camp is situated at the southern entrance of the Park, just behind the caretakers' cottage, and the children romp and play all day long on the grass-carpeted plateau under the tall pines. A permanent circular kitchen, complete with floor and glass-paned windows, contains an oil stove, a table and sundry cupboards. There are two refrigerators outside, under the trees, and the dining-tent is an airy long enclosure, with long oilcloth-covered tables and benches. Mrs. Millet has charge of the coking, and concocts all manner of good things for the hungry youngsters. They have breakfast as soon as they arrive in their 'motor bus, a substantial mid-day meal and a board, milk and jam lunch about four o'clock. From fifteen to seventeen qurts of milk are used every day, and three pounds of butter, and from five to six large loaves of bread, besides meat, vegetables and jam. Many things are donated, such as the special item of waxed beans which was on the menu on the day the Camp was visited. Jam is often given by the ladies in charge, and two cases of oranges have been given alerady this year. All sorts of puddings, johnnycake, raspberry shortcake, jam sandwiches for lunch, sometimes even a fruit salad, and always quantities of vegetables, bread and butter and milk, are doing their part in building up the little bodies of these fortunate kiddies.

The Nurse

They have a rest tent where they gather after dinner, with an invalid chair for particular cases. The camp cots have small mattresses which are doubtless comfortable enough, but would look ever so much more attractive if covered with scome of cotton slips. This is one of the needs of the Camp which some benevolent-minded person might fill at a very small cost.

Miss Boyd, the nurse, has the supervision of the children during the day, and watches over their small fortunes. A line of basins on a bench under a tree, surmounted by a row of small tooth-brushes numbered with great care, represent the only task that confronts them from time to time. They have a paddle in the creek some time during the day and a welcome gift has just ben received in the form of enough rope for two swings. Mr. Rose had a great time getting these up, the youngsters swarming all over him and persisting in testing the new plaything before it was properly hung. Those who have already presented the Camp with toys and playthings and those who intend to do so may be assured of their use. A crowd of small kiddies gathered around the box of cut out dolls, deriving much amusement from the different costumes. The sailor boys, the nurses, one of whom was immediately endowed with a "fellow', and the little ladies of the picture world, were dressed again and again in a variety of costumes, while an enormous picture of a pumpkin brought from the group a rousing chorus about the renowned "Peter, Peter'. A red-headed family of dolls was christened on this occasion; a pair of twins, who had languished forlorn and nameless were called Jenny and Irene by a curly-haired maiden with big brown eyes, and another was named Rita, but a little pale lady who liked her dolly because it had such rosyq cheeks, clung to "Maggie" for her choice. One little lad who cannot play very much, follows the children around and sits in the shade watching them. There is always someone with him, one or other of the children who spins tops for his amusement, or ponder over the storied adventures of the bandicoot, the phalanger and the glutton.

The different ladies who have charge of the Camp from week to week give splendid service. Mrs. Kendry, assisted by Miss Marion Harvey, Mrs. A. W. Turner and Mrs. Jas. V. Gallivan have helped so far this month, and they evidently do a great deal in making the Camp the success it undoubtedly is, their duties including everything from marking the linen to sending up supplies of fruit for special occasions.

The children have already this season been treated to a water trip by Capt. Young, and to a street-car ride by Mr. Andrew Brown. Any donations of vegetables, of toys or playthings, or of materials for dolls' sewing outfits, will be gratefully received.

FIFTY EXCURSIONS BY STONEY LAKE

Up to Wednesday of this week the Stoney Lake Navigation Company had run fifty excursions out of Peterborough. This list was made up of the day trips up and down the river and many moonlights, which are likely to continue all summer.

Mr. Frank Young told The Examiner that he had nine applications in his date book. The Stoney Lake will be busy right up to the end of the summer.

Up to the present she has been working for the most part in Peterborough waters, but during August she will be diverted for a day or two each week to trips in the Lindsay and Campbellford sections.

The first Lindsay trip will be from Peterborough on Monday next.

FIVE FATALLY HURT EACH MINUTE IN U.S.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 22.—Thirty thousand persons are injured or killed in the United States each year.

Every minute five persons accidentally meet death.

Twenty-one persons are hurt every minute.

The number of accidents and deatfis annually totals 11,000,000.

Major J. J. Crowley, who was in the War Risk Insurance Department, to-day gave the foregoing statistics at a meeting of the Northern Divisions 100,000 Club of Missouri, held here.

"Shall we buy or sell?"

"How is the market?" he telephones by Long Distance at Station-to-Station rates, perhaps saving a tidy sum!

For people who wish to be "quick on the trigger," Long Distance is the quickest way to get action. The service was never more efficient than now.

CROP REPORT

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the head office of the Bank of Montreal from its branches. The branch managers have complete and intimate knowledge of each local situation and are in close touch with crop conditions in all sections of the districts shown:

Prairie Provinces.

Edmonton District. — Sufficient moisture; wheat practically all headed out; oats and barley coming on well; hay lighter than usual.

Calgary District.—Prospects north half district better owing to rains since last report; south half not so good; fair crop, but less than average expected in whole district. Some damage by hail. Hay short crop.

Lethbridge District.—All wheat headed; estimated average yield throughout 12 bushels; should increase with favorable weather; last rains doing good. First cutting alfalfa excellent. Prairie hay short but no fear feed shortage next winter.

Regina District.—Prospects above average except West District, where suffering from drought; hail damage above average; cutting will start in two weeks.

Saskatoon District.—Wheat and oats doing well and former nearly all headed. Prospects good except in few districts, which suffered from drought; scattered hail losses reported.

Winnipeg District.—While crops have suffered slightly from heat, there have been beneficial showers. Crops maturing rapidly and early harvest with satisfactory yields expected.

Province of Quebec.

Indications point to a light crop of hay, probably 50 per cent. of the normal. Cereals, root crops and grass pasture have been improved by recent rains, but still need moisture.

Province of Ontario.

The prolonged dry weather has checked growth and only moderate crops are now expected. General conditions have been somewhat improved by recent rains, although they came too late to be of benefit to a large percentage of the crops. Cutting and threshing of fall wheat is now in full progress, while in some localities, notably around Guelph and Paris, returns of over 30 bushels per acre are reported in other districts. The crop is poor, and on the whole it will probably be barely an average crop. Other grains are likely to show a light yield, they are short in straw and are ripening prematurely. The hay crop varies from poor to fair, only a few districts reporting a good yield. Present conditions as regards fruits are generally satisfactory. Small fruits show fair returns. Roots and tobacco are doing well. Pasture is short and dry. More rain is required.

Maritime Provinces.

Crops generally are greatly in need of moisture, although recent rains have improved prospects. Hay is expected to be light. Root crops are fair. Grass pasture generally is poor. Conditions in Prince Edward Island have been improved by recent rains.

Province of British Columbia.

Hay cutting nears completion; crops heavy throughout, grains heading out well, and indications point to a full crop; roots continue satisfactory progress. Tomato prospects now excellent on smaller acreage. Excellent hop crop is forecasted; estimated Okanagan fruit output will be 5,000 cars against 2,800 in 1919, the previous record year. Apples large and well colored; other fruits developing satisfactory. Cherry movement at peak, and quality good.

MANY TOURISTS VISIT PETERBORO

WELCOME SIGN OF LOCAL AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION.

Tourists driving into Peterborough if they fail to see the welcoming sign of the Peterborough Automobile Association on the Gravel road, just west of the scrap of bush known as the Little Woods, inviting them to use the information that Secretary L. Frazer is pleased to give out, are being personally invited by Mr. Frazer to use the association's facilities for information. Mr. Frazer said he had been kindly and warmly met by the Americans when he invited the tourists as their cars stood on the main street to use any of the services of the local Automobile Association, and the people from across the line had readily accepted. One visitor from Butte, Montana, declared that in six weeks' touring he had never before been stopped and invited to use information on roads, hotels, etc., and he commended the work of the Secretary in this regard.

Ontario Roads Good.

While many of the Americans are from New York State, Ohio is contributing most of the cars that come in here, and this in some measure may be due to the poor roads said to prevail there by Mr. Pierce and Mr. Riffle, two Ohioans from Lorraine, who motored through here recently. Ontario roads they said were far superior to those in their own State, because of the superior qualities of gravel as a foundation to the Ohio clay.

EDMONTON BUTTER SHIPPED TO NEW YORK.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 22. — Butter from the Edmonton district is in demand, and one of the largest orders ever recorded here was placed recently when Paul de Wolff, of Sardis, B.C., asked local dealers to supply him with 1,000,000 pounds destined for the New York market. A million pounds' order is a big one to fill, but agents at half a dozen or more other central Alberta points are also being asked to assist in filling the order.

THE TRAGEDY OF PREJUDICE AND REACTION

Brantford Expositor

No student of the political history of Britain, unless he is dominated by the spirit of re-action himself, can fail to see that the Irish problem of to-day, filled as it is with bigotry, intolerance and hate, is simply the culmination of the tragedy of prejudice and re-action which has tinctured the progress of Britain for upwards of half a century. If the conference of to-day which is being held between De Valera and Lloyd George, had taken place in Gladstone's day between Britain and Ireland, there would have been no Irish problem, and Ireland would have been contented, prosperous and happy, and would have been a bulwark of strength in the great war.

It is just thirty-five years since Mr. Gladstone, out of an experience in public life which covered half a century, came to the conclusion that the centuries-old feud between England and Ireland could be ended only by the granting of Home Rule. Was he right in that conclusion? What would be the verdict to-day upon the question by the sons of the men who stoned Gladstone to a political death and destroyed his plans for the conciliation of Ireland? There are some survivors of that fight left to-day, but few of them, unless they are hopeless reactionaries, would deny that at a momentous crisis in British affairs they took the wrong course.

It was not only in 1886 that this blunder was made. It was repeated in 1892; and again in a peculiarly aggravated form in 1914, when a threatened resort to force by the upholders of things as they were, gave the suggestion and the excuse for the counter "physical force" movement that developed into the guerrilla warfare that has had Ireland in its grips for five years. For thirty-five years there has been an obstinate and passionate resistance to every suggestion of any adjustment of the difficulty with Ireland involving the creation of a Parliament in Dublin. Those in Great Britain who have favored it have been systematically denounced as traitors, disloyalists, and renegades; they were held to be conspirators against the Crown and the unity of the Empire and all that sort of thing. Gladstone and his associates in the eighties were treated as social outcasts and the exclusive clubs closed their doors to them. Now in Downing Street, in the headquarters of the statesmanship of the Empire, Premier Lloyd George is negotiating not with constitutionalists like Parnell and Redmond, but with republicans such as De Valera and Griffiths, who are the representatives of rebellion and secession from the Empire.

Such a spectacle ought to give pause to all those reactionaries who seek to block the way of political progress and enlarged freedom. Even as late as 1914, when the Nationalist Party under Redmond was talking the Asquith Home Rule Bill, Sir Edward Carson, now Lord Justice of Appeal in Britain, was talking rebellion against the King's Government in Ireland and organizing the Ulster Volunteers to resist the inauguration of self-government. Sir Edward Carson, after the irreparable mischief which he created, has abandoned the leadership of Ulster and is strangely quiet. He knows that the policy which he instituted in Ulster has been imitated and put into violent practice in Ireland, with the resulting consequences of rebellion, anarchy, murder, assassination and all its accompaniments. It is a tragic spectacle, and the sons of the fathers are gathered together, in a more enlightened and liberal spirit, to repair the damage of ultra-Torryism in Britain.

COURTS TOLD OF FIVE STAGES OF COURTSHIP AND DRUNKENNESS

LONDON, July 20.—The five things necessary to courtship recently were described in the Law Courts. According to counsel engaged in a breach of promise case, they are:

Love letters.
A ring.
Introductions between families.
Presents and "outings."

"Look back upon your own engagements," he urged the jury (which included two women). "Can you say that during the period any one of the five was absent?"

The stages of intoxication were enumerated by a doctor at the Southwestern Police Court. He was giving evidence in a case in which a taxicab driver was charged with being drunk, and said the man was in "the third stage." The five stages, as defined by him, are:

General contentment or wellbeing and happiness.
Flushing of the cheeks, a bright eye and hilarity.
Inability to exercise the muscles as the brain directs.
Drunk and incapable.
Coma.

MACKENZIE BASIN RICH IN MINERALS

SAYS WHOLE COUNTRY FROM FORT NORMAN TO ARCTIC UNDERLAID.

VICTORIA, B.C., July 22.—The whole country from Fort Norman into the Arctic and the Mackenzie Basin seems to be underlaid with oil, natural gas and coal, declares Howard Colley, who returned from that district recently, after staking claims there on behalf of a syndicate of Victoria men. In many places the oil is boiling up out of the ground in natural wells, he said.

There are three such wells on the land Colley and his party staked. There are coal seams projecting almost everywhere, and in some places whole cliffs are exposed. Mr. Colley said the coal is not a hard variety, but seems to be a good bituminous coal. Natural gas is almost as common.

In the northern part of the district the Eskimos are using the natural gas. There are soft earth formations into which they poke long sticks, which they twirl around. Gas comes out of the hole thus formed. They light it and have a flame for cooking.

"But no one thinks of gas or coal up there," Mr. Colley went on. "It is only the oil they're after. They do not have to bother about going out and breaking off pieces of coal for fuel in their shacks. All cooking and heating is done by oil piped from the wells. As it comes from the well at Fort Norman, the oil is like kerosene. After it was strained through a moose hide it ran a gasoline engine."

The field promises such great results that the largest oil company has started to extend its drilling operations. On their way out the Colley party met several parties carrying in new equipment. Oil shale has been burning on the banks of the Mackenzie River bevond the memory of the oldest inhabitants. Mr. Colley told of coming on one occasion to a spot where the river cliff was like glowing coal. There are evidences at various spots of the shale being on fire. The Indians believe it to be something supernatural.

It took Mr. Colley and his party two weeks to stake the claims, as lines were cut through the willow thickets to connect the stakes. Some of the stampeders have been cutting no lines, and Mr. Colley believes that much confusion and overlapping of claims may result. So thick is the willow growth that it took thirty-four hours of work for the party to cut one and a quarter miles of line.

The party went into Fort Norman and come out again by the way of the Yukon, via White Horse, by dog team. At the head of Ross River the severest storms were encountered, and they were delayed for several weeks. To make matters worse, there was a shortage of game for a distance of three hundred miles. It was necessary to trade off three of the ten dogs, and three others died. The last few days the men carried their supplies on their backs and on the backs of the remaining dogs.

ECONOMIZE IN HOME BUILDING.

Bay Windows Are Not Necessary.

"There is one thing that no one I have met yet in the building business seems to fully understand, and that is, the meaning of 'rigid economy.' They know it is a very necessary thing. It is essential to the housewife, the city council and the C.P.R., and that all realize that the Dominion will go bankrupt if the government does not start to practice it; but as for economy in building a house they have not started to find out what it means," says a Montreal building expert.

His own construction work was progressing quite smoothly, he said. In return for good Canadian money in considerable quantities, the civic authorities had given him permission to dig drains, lay sewers, install water pipes, open streets, empty out materials on the sidewalk, and do all sorts of things, and apparently his home dream was in a fair way to realization. But his ideas of economy did not seem to coincide with those of many of the people he had to deal with.

"It's no use," he said, "expecting the Dominion Government to practise rigid economy if we who pay them their wages don't set them the good example. As it is they go about it just as we are doing. We throw away twenty dollars here and fifty dollars there because it's 'not worth while,' and go blind looking for a chance to save five hundred, and they copy our example by wasting thousands while they are looking for a chance to save a million all at once."

Bay Windows.

"Now, for instance, bay windows are very nice to look at, but they cost more than a straight brick wall. Fancy brickwork on the facade which involves turning a number of bricks out of their usual place, and gives the bricklayer a lot of extra work, cost more than their artistic appearance is worth. Then, it was put to me by several bricklaying contractors that used brick might look all right on the back of a blank wall but the saving effected was not worth the extra trouble. Those people surely forgot that every good brick thrown away because it has been used is so much of the country's resources thrown away.

"And the essentiol point to my mind is this. The fancy work that different architects, contractors, etc., have all thought it necessary to include in the interior of my house, would have added at least five or six hundred dollars to the cost of my house, had I not rigidly cut them out. It is possible that I might be able to afford these five hundred dollars. But it is also possible the next man may not. And by those few hundred dollars worth of vulgar ostentation I might prevent another man from building next door to me, who would have done so if he could have built $500 cheaper and still look as good as his neighbor.

"A bricklayer put it to me the other day that by cutting all the fancy work out, I was doing poor men out of a few hours' work. He overlooked the fact that if the simplicity of six houses built on these lines encouraged one man to come and build a seventh, where his simple, substantial structure would not be put to shame by his neighbors, the extra work furnished by the one would more than outweigh the labor reduction on the other six.

"One of the big architects of this city said the other day this was no time for building monuments," he concluded. It is time we realized that the community cannot afford to have a brick wasted, nor an hour's labor wasted on unnecessary ornamentation of any kind. But cutting out $500 worth of fancy work on each of say, twelve houses on one side of a street, you have nearly enough money to put up two more across the street; and the bay windows and fancy cornices, artistic tiles and bricks, cut glass doors and granite door steps, and so forth, can come in abundance when there are houses enough to spare in the community.

OPPENHEIM FINED FOR ALLEGED POKER PLAYING

LONDON, July 20.—E. Phillips Oppenheim, author, has been getting into trouble. He is a director of the Cleveland Club, Clarges street, London, and as such was fined £10 at the Marlborough Street Police Court for alleged illegal playing of poker, although he does not play the game himself. The Public Prosecutor said that the Commissioner of Police was out to stop poker playing in the clubs. Mr. Oppenheim was astonished at the charge.

"Yesterday," he said, "was the first time in my life I had ever entered a Police Court and I only wish it were possible to lodge an appeal against the fine that was imposed under such remarkable circumstances. . . .

"I don't happen to play poker myself, but I certainly contend that it is not a game of chance. . . . It was stated that counters representing £177 ($605) were on the table, but it should be remembered that were nine persons playing which gives an average of less than £20 each. The players were not poor. . . . Because they played poker, a game of skill that is so well known in club land, they committed an offense against the law. At the low stakes that are permitted you must have a long run of very bad luck before you can lose £30 or £40 whereas if you care to play bridge on the other side of the curtain at £10 a hundred there is nothing in law to prevent you losing £500 on a rubber.

A HARBOR CUT OUT OF SOLID ROCK.

There is a natural impression that all constructional engineering work of the ordinary kind in Great Britain was suspended during the war, but in point of fact it was found that it was possible to keep quite a number of schemes going in spite of the concentraton of effort upon definite war work. A case in point is supplied by an extensive harbour improvement which was begun in Gt. Britain a month or two before the war. The scheme included a new basin with an area of 2 1-4 acres and 1500 feet of new quays. All through the war the work proceeded steadily if slowly. Its most remarkable feature was that the basin was cut out of solid rock to give an average depth of 13 feet. The material excavated was ingeniously used to reclaim from the sea a considerable tract close to the sea a considerable tract close to the harbor.

POTATOES, PERFUME AND POLAND HAVE BECOME CLOSELY RELATED

ALCOHOL, FROM WHICH GERMANS MADE EAU DE COLOGNE, CAME FROM NORTHERN SILESIA, AND PRICE IS VERY HIGH.

(By MIRIAM TEICHNER.)

COLOGNE, Germany, July 21.—The relation between Polish potatoes and the price of eau de Cologne is not one of the obvious things in life. And yet, if one is possessed of curiosity as to whether eau de Cologne is made in Cologne, and sallies forth to find out, it soon developes that potatoes and perfume have something more than alliteration in common.

In the Glockengasse—its old number was 4711, which gave the name to the cologne—a visitor is greeted, as first, a trifle coldly. There seems to be an impression prevalent in German factories that all callers come for the purpose of being shown through the works and walking off with the priceless secrets of production. One is informed, forthwith, that the process of manufacturing the real eau de Cologne, which one is told is imitated but not equalled throughout the world, is secret, and that visitors in the factory are not allowed. Once one succeeds, however, in persuading those in possession that one is not a perfume spy, and is merely possessed of a curiosity as to whether eau de Cologne is born in that city, and how the shortage and price of alcohol have affected its manufacture, the tenor changes.

Herr George Leonhardt makes you welcome, and discusses potatoes and perfume with nerve and charm.

Alcohol From Silesia.

The alcohol with which the eau de Cologne was made came from potatoes grown in that part of northern Silesia which is now apportioned to Poland. That particular alcohol is no longer on the German market, and the manufacturers of the original and only eau de Cologne are able to buy only a tenth of the alcohol they need, rationed as they are by the Government, and further hampered by the fact that the spirit, which before the war cost from 68 to 70 pfennig a litre, now costs 22 marks, and with the new tax about to be imposed by the Government, will cost in the neighborhood of 63 marks.

Manufacturers of the eau de Cologne claim that theirs is not a luxury product. They insist it is much used in sick rooms, is excellent for headaches, and that, for that reason, it is a necessity and not a luxury and should be exempt from prohibitive taxation. To this point, however, the Government has given no sign of showing that it considers "4711" essential to the health and welfare of the race.

THE KING OF ICELAND VISITS COUNTRY FIRST TIME

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 21.—The first King of Iceland set foot for the first time yesterday on Icelandic soil. The welcome extended by the islanders to Christian X., of Denmakr, as I also of Iceland, bore a solemnly fervent character; apparently more solemn than was anticipated by the gay, easy-going crowd of Danish visitors who had come over for the occasion.

The Icelanders themselves took their King's visit tremendously seriously and regarded it as an event of momentous import. The majority of the capital's 18,000 inhabitants spent the day around the Public School building, which was made the official residence of the Danish royalties, and re-baptized "the Castle." Reykjavik's 100 automobiles were taxed heavily, carrying important-looking uniformed and decorated dignitaries to and from "the Castle."

At a gala dinner Queen Alexandrine wore the Icelandic national dress, the 70,000-kroner gift of the women of Iceland. With her heavy golden crown, it made the Queen look like a tapestry picture of a Viking queen of old Edda times.

Iceland being "dry," the loyal toasts were honored in mineral waters and lemonade.

In commemoration of his visit, King Christian has instituted a new decoration; the order of the Icelandic Falcon.

Both the King and the Queen will visit historical Icelandic places on horseback. The King will be mounted on a beautiful white charger 14 hands high; the tallest horse in Iceland.

Several excursions planned have had to be abandoned owing to the swollen state of the rivers.

The history of window glass making has no authentic beginning.

Don't crowd. It might prove uncomfortable if some one else should forget to be polite.

IRWIN'S DOUBLE LIFE BARED BY SUICIDE.

Baseball Manager Had Wife and Children in New York and Family in Boston.

HARTFORD, July 22.—Friends of Arthur I. Irwin, manager of the Hartford baseball team, and for thirty years noted "scout" and manager, who committed suicide last week by jumping from the steamer Calvin Austin, bound from New York to Boston, began an investigation of his actions for the last two days in this city, the search being started by his son, Herbert Irwin, of Boston.

This son knows now the story of his father's double life for the last thirty years, most of which the baseball man spent with a common-law wife at 565 West 192nd Street, New York. His legal wife, who lives in Boston, because of her serious condition followink the suicide, is being kept in ignorance of his infidelity. He had two daughters and one son by the New York woman. The New York son, known as F. Harold Irwin, is 27 years old, and is a clerk employed by the New York Central Railroad.

Several weeks ago Irwin was taken to a local hospital where he was told that only a serious operation would prolong his life beyond two months. The New York Mrs. Irwin says the last she heard from Irwin was in Hartford last week, when he told her he would meet her in New York on Saturday. That morning she heard from Boston of the suicide the night before. She says the only relatives she knew Irwin had besides her son, were a brother, Richard, connected with a New York brokerage firm, and John Irwin, proprietor of the New Yeymouth Hotel at Nantasket Beach.

Harold Irwin, of New York, visited his father while the latter was a patient at the local hospital, and several days ago, when the Boston son, Arthur Herbert Irwin, came here the New Yorker was amazed when people spoke to him concerning the brother of whom he had never heard.

Though reputed to have considerable money, Irwin contributed little in the last thirty years to support his Boston wife and children. His parting gift was a cheque for $500, received from the sale of his rights in a football score board device, which his brother John says was worth $1,500 in annual royalties.

John Irwin plans to interrogate Irwin's partner in this enterprise, Julian P. Hart, former President of the Boston Nationals, as to the identity of "seller" named in the bill of sale. He and the son Herbert, whom Irwin on his infrequent visits invariably called Harold, until repeatedly corrected, have announced they will make every effort to obtain the baseball man's property for the almost destitute Boston wife.

COLD OF HIGH ALTITUDES FORCED AIRMAN'S LAUGH

FRENCH AVIATOR, AT 9,500 METERS, DIZZY AND DEPRESSED, BUT UNABLE TO CONTROL HILARITY—TEMPERATURE AT 55 DEGREES BELOW ZERO CENTIGRADE.

PARIS, July 21.—Better than laughing gas is a trip to high altitudes, declares George Kirsch, who a few days ago established a new French altitude rcord of 9,500 meters, and intends to contest the American record.

"I managed to reach 9,000 meters in forty-eight minutes," he said, "but the climbing then became tiring. The last 800 meters required an hour and twenty minutes, but I descended with frightful rapidity, reaching ground in less than twenty minutes.

"The strangest experience was at about 9,500 meters, when I underwent such a great mental and physical sickness. Then I became dizzy with the wind whistling as though a great storm were in progress; but despite my depressed feeling I couldn't restrain myself from laughter."

Physicians believe the flier's laughing spell was probably due to the intense cold. Kirsch's record showed that he had been subject for seven minutes to a temperature of 55 degrees below zero centigrade, which probably acted upon the hilarity producing nerves.

75,000,000 POUNDS IS GOV. RAILWAY SUBSIDY

COMMONS APPPOVES SUPPLEMENTARY BRITISH ESTIMATES.

LONDON, July 22. — (Canadian Press).—Supplementary estimates to the amount of sixty-two million pounds brought down by Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, have been granted by the House of Commons. Of this total, the Chancellor stated that thirty-six million pounds were required to liquidate the Government's liabilities to the railway companies arising from the agreement under which the State took over control of the roads during the war. With this payment included, the Government subsidy to the railways for the year will total seventy-five million pounds.

MEXICAN CAVE HAS FORTUNE IN MONEY.

One Man Claims to Know Location of Treasure.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 22.—One man in the world knows the location of the Cavallo Blanco cave, in old Mexico, and knowing it may result in his becoming the possessor of $73,530,000 in gold and silver.

Adam Fischer, recently returned from Mexico, said he had re-located the Blanco cave, with its great treasure trove. He discovered it once before, but was unable to find it when he returned.

Fischer is now awaiting the decision of the Mexican Government on his application for a concession to remove the hoard.

The story of the gold and silver bars and Spanish octagonal dollars dates back to 1810. At that time, during a revolution against the Spanish Government, it is claimed that officers of the Government and army took the gold and silver from the treasury and hid it in the Cavallo Blanco cave, in the Cerro de Silla mountains, near Monterey, in the State of Nuevo Leon.

Hundreds have spent their lives in the search for the treasure, according to Fischer, but he alone has discovered its hiding place.

If Fischer gains possession of the great fortune, he plans to erect a $2,000,000 monument on Alamo Plaza to the heroes of the Alamo, and also make other munificent

KILLS RIVAL, WOUNDS WIDOW, HANGS SELF.

Rejected Suitor Fires at Couple With Shotgun at Ten-Foot Distance.

HANOVER, Pa., July 21.—Crazed by jealousy, Samuel Bowman, 39 years old, killed Emanuel M. Rohrbaugh, 26, a rival for the hand of Mrs. Minnie Resh, a widow of 27, seriously wounded Mrs. Resh, and then committed suicide, shooting and hanging himself. He fired point blank at the couple with a double-barreled shotgun at a range of ten feet.

Bowman laid in wait for his rival and the widow at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Eichelberger, who live two miles south of here. Rohrbaugh and Mrs. Resh spent the evening at a church picnic. They drove up to the Eichelberger home in an automobile about 11.30, and were about to alight when Bowman stepped out from behind a tree and fired without warning. The first shot wounded Mrs. Resh in the neck and shoulder. The second hit Rohrbaugh in the face and blew off his jaw.

Dr. H. M. Alleman, of Hanover, was summoned, and he ordered both the injured persons removed to the York Hospital, where Rohrbaugh died seven hours later. He then advised Jesse Crabbs, Chief of Police, of the crime. Crabbs notified police headquarters in York, Gettysburg, Littlestown and Westminster to be on the lookout and organized searching parties. Hundreds of persons soon gathered and searched the surrounding woods and fields. Meantime Special Officer Scheivert, accompanied by five men, drove to the house, a mile and a half away, where Bowman lived with his parents. They saw a man peep out from behind a window shade, but, being armed only with revolvers, did not enter the house. Chief Crabbs was summoned, and Bowman's father told him there was no use searching for his son, as he believed he had committed suicide.

Soon afterward Corporal Snyder of the State Constabulary, found a note, tacked on a porch post, reading:

"Father and Mother: You will find my body under the pear tree back of the barn. Please bury my body at Dubbs Church.—Samuel."

Going to the spot indicated, Snyder found the body, clad in shirt and overalls, suspended from a tree. Standing on a step ladder, Bowman had tied a rope around his neck and then shot himself thrice in the chest with a revolver. Bowman's dog attacked the constable when he approached the body.

Bowman had been calling on Mrs. Resh for a year. About four months ago Rohrbaugh began paying attention to her and she flouted Bowman. He threatened her and told her there would be a couple of funerals if she did not take him back. Rohrbaugh was an overseas veteran. Bowman was an employee of the Hostetter stone quarries and a noted marksman. Mrs. Resh and Rohrbaugh were shoe workers.

POLICE SHOOT DOWN TWO JERSEY BANDITS

Fire of Riot Guns Picks Fugitives Off Truck One by One.

DOVER, N.J., July 22. — Three motor truck bandits rifled a garage in Netcong early this morning, fled through Arlington, defied a lone constable who tried to stop them, and then ran straight into an ambuscade of Dover policemen who were armed with pistols and riot guns. In a sharp battle two of the robbers were wounded and captured. The third, who fired repeatedly at his pursuers, jumped from the truck and escaped.

Failing to halt the truck as they blazed away with their sawed-off shot guns, the policemen jumped into a waiting automobile and pursued the fugitives six blocks through town before the wounded driver slewed his vehicle to the roadside and surrendered with his companion.

The men in jail here charged with burglary are Michael McDonough and Warren Smith, of Newark. A Newark detective said he recognized McDonough as a man "known to but not wanted by" the police of that city. Smith's street address was fictitious.

NEW HOTEL AT PORT STANLEY

ST. THOMAS, July 22.—The erection of a modern 200-room summer hotel on the site of the old Fraser Hotel, Invererie Heights, Port Stanley, is planned, announcement was made to-day. A company of local capitalists is being formed to plan the project, which will cost in the neighborhood of $150,000. The need of more accommodation at Port Stanley is very much in evidence this summer at the popular resort.

WOMEN TELLERS IN BANKS PROPOSED

WOULD BE MORE PATIENT IN THE SAVINGS CAGE THAN MEN, ASSERT AMERICAN BANKERS.

At a meeting of bank officials in Philadelphia recently, the methods of handling new business were under discussion, and some speakers advocated the employmen of women tellers exclusively in the savings department, considering that they would be more patient than the men with prospective savings customers, and generally more courteous to them.

During the last few years there has been a tendency to make a fetich of efficiency, in the sense of ability to get through a volume of work with the minimum of error in a given time, but there is more to it than mere speed. One prominent American business man of the old school, discussing efficiency, claimed that so far as he had come in contact with the new slogan it frequently meant bad manners, and in his opinion was responsible often for loss of business. He wanted less speed and more courtesy.

From the bank standpoint there is nothing which pays like courtesy in dealing with customers. A teller with a pleasant manner can do more to attract business than advertising. A manager may work up business, but unless this is supplemented by politeness on the part of the staff at the wickets, much of his work will be thrown away.

OLD PEOPLE HAD A PLEASANT OUTING.

From 7.30 to 9 o'clock last evening, some of the inmates of the Protestant Home were taken for a drive around the city by Messrs. D. Wren, H. O. Fisk and G. A. Gillespie, members of the Peterborough Automobile Association. The old people had a very pleasant ride, taking special interest in the lighting of the city by night, which was a novel spectacle to those who seldom leave their place of residence after nightfall. The remaining inmates of the Home will be taken out this evening by Messrs. E. B. Fowler, C. E. Smith, C. S. Cummer and J. W. Worth.

AIR ROUTES INAUGURATED WHERE RAILWAYS LACKING

LONDON, July 21.—Regions that would have to wait many years before they could be traversed by railways are now quickly mastered by aerial transport. News comes to-day from the Air Ministry that a new air route has been opened up across the desert between Palestine and Mesopotamia. Notification has been received of the arrival at Bagdad of three airplanes of the Royal Air Force which have flown over this route.

The new route is about 580 miles long. It is an extension of the present Cairo-Ramleh route. It starts from Ramleh, where is the main Royal Air Force aerdrome in Palestine, passed through Amman (East of the Jordan) and Kasr Azrak, where landing grounds have been prepared, and proceds thence in an almost straight line across the Arabian desert to Ramadie on the Euphrates, and thence to Bagdad.

The distances between the principal stations are as follows: Ramleh to Amman, 65 miles; Amman to Kasr Azrak, 55 miles; Kasr Azrak to Ramadie, 400 miles; Ramadie to Bagdad, 60 miles.

SHOPKEEPER CATCHES THE SWINDLER WHO ROBBED RICH AMERICAN

NICE, July 20.—A clever French swindler here managed to extract $120,000 from a wealthy American, according to the local police, and "got away with it," but when he tried to borrow $150 from a French shopkeeper he met his Nemesis.

The man is Louis Laforge, self-styled "King Louis I. of Trans-Caucasia-Vitanvalie." A woman with him, Clementine Farapa, who masqueraded as "Princess Fergana, Duchess of Maikopp," was taken into custody at the same time.

The police say that the fake monarch is well known to them, and that he was arrested in 1918 and imprisoned for two years on a charge similar to the one now brought against him. The "princess," they say, attracted the attention of an American whose name is not given and promised to marry him. The "uing," just by way of showing that he was a good fellow, forthwith made the young woman, whom he claimed as his sister, Princess of Fergana," and promised the American post of charge d'affaires to the Court of St. James' from "Trans-Caucasian-Vitanvalie." Whereupon the police allege, the American paid with 120,000 good, hard dollars as a token of gratitude.

Whether or not the "king" collected in full is unknown, but, at any rate, he soon became hard up, and attempted to negotiate a loan from a local merchant. The shopkeeper, who didn't take much stock in royalty, notified the police.

GARAGE MEN ORGANIZE TO PROMOTE INTERESTS

SASKATOON, Sask., July 21.—For the promotion of the interests of garage men generally, an organization known as the Saskatchewan Garage Men's Association, with headquarters here, is now being formed with the ultimate object of the promoters to make it a Dominion-wide association. The organization, it is pointed out, is not being promoted for the advantage of the members against the public or any one. The plan is to stabilize the business of automobile and car repairs on the whole, with the belief that the benefits which accrue to members of the association will also result in great advantage to customers.

It is proposed that each garage man for the present in the province, and, later on in the whole Dominion, shall be a member, but such other men connected with garages in the way of employees or otherwise who wish to join will be permitted to do so.

W. J. DROPE ELECTED AT OTTAWA MEETING TAUGHT IN COLLEGIATE

W. J. Drope who was elected Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario, A. F. & A. M., is a former resident of Peterboro. He was for a number of years on the staff of the Collegiate Institute and is remembered by many friends in this city. Mr. Drope now conducts a private school at Grimsby. He was elected on the third ballot over George S. May of Ottawa. Col. W. M. Ponton, K. C. of Belleville was unanimously elected Grand Master at the meeting of the Grand Lodge which has been held in Ottawa this week.

CUP OF HOT TEA WILL COOL YOU.

"It is a great mistake to take too many iced drinks, ice cream and iced water in hot weather," a prominent local pharmacist stated, "because, for one thing, iced drinks always leave you hotter than before. The extreme cold of iced drinks is bound to cause a reaction which will result in raising the blood temperature rather than cooling it off.

"As a matter of fact, a cup of hot tea will cool you down much better than iced drinks or ice cream. A hot drink opens the pores of the skin and allows the blood to cool itself in the normal way provided for by nature, perspiration, producing a lower temperature at the skin, and reducing the blood temperature. Ice cream," he added, "was a perfectly good and nourishing preparation, but not the best cooler and thirst quencher."

Heat and Coughs.

A leading Montreal physician, commenting on the number of people who suffered from coughs during the early part of the heat wave, attributed this to the amount of ice water and ice cream preparations consumed by the public. There was nothing dangerous about these coughs, but they were a natural reaction from the chilling effect of iced preparations consumed while the parties were over-heated. "Drink plenty of fresh water without any ice in it, keep the alimentary canal well flushed, and have frequent baths," was his advice for keeping cool, "and exercise normal common sense and moderation in the use of ice cream preparations."

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK BROKE WAS FAILURE AS MANAGER

(New York Tribune.)

Raymond Hitchcock, the star comedian of 'Ziegfeld's Follies," is quite unruffled because of his recent appearance as the star in a voluntary bankruptcy proceedings.

It is a joyous Raymond Hitchcock who drifts in and out of the scene or more scenes at "The Follies." Shorn of his managerial cares and, as he says, free of th contamination of filthy lucre, he may now pursue art with a capital A.

"The true artist should always be broke," said Hitchcock. "It makes him work harder, and it will also help Ziggy buy oil for his yacht while we are perspiring here at the Globe." And he was a study of mock seriousness.

"Being broke is nothing," he reiterated. "Look how I retain my youthful figure and my girlish laughter, and, would you believe it, I haven't had my eyebrows plucked all summer! No lines of worry or anything."

One of Few to Spoof Ziegfeld Without Comeback.

Ziegfeld and Hitchcock are old friends. He is one of the few actors privileged to call him "Ziggy" right to his face, and also the only one who may spoof Mr. Ziegfeld about his penchant for purple hued shirts with collars that match.

It was Hitchcock's excursion into the managerial realms that put a dent in the family bankroll. He reckoned without the thought of transportation, $12-a-day small city hotels and other things that have made managers shudder the last few years.

"Now I'm glad the nightmare is over," said Hitchcock. "After all, I am an actor, and very few actors have any business dabbling in finance. It is a real joy to be clowning about at the Globe and, as I said, helping Ziggy keep the hedges trimmed and the big lawn cut at Hastings-on-the-Hudson.

"The Follies is my type of show. I like the changing scenes, the quick change from one thing to another. Ziggy's is the cavia technique in contrast to the beefsteak technique of many other productions.

"Fannie Brice, Ray Dooley and Bill Field haven't artistic temperament, and I haven't either, and we get along famously. Aside from that we are helping Ziggy buy a new tire for his imported French car.

"Everybody has been writing me to know what they could do to help me. I'm not that broke. I know a wheat cake juggler at Childs and he said to me one night, 'Ray, any day you get flattened in them theatres come around and I'll give you a good helpin' of batter, all nice and brown.' He suggested that I could bring my own syrup, however.

Hitchy Selects His New Winter Quarters.

"We must all help each other in these days. George M. Cohan has quit. Productions are being curtailed, they say, for next season and Ziggy has to have at least three new purple shirts. It is going to be a hard winter along the Rialto and already the boys are looking longingly at Central Park and Madison Square. I've got a good bench all selected in Greeley Square.

"It is near the centre of things and I will never be late to work as long as I work for Ziggy. Not when he is trying so hard to get enough ahead to paint his Palm Beach villa this winter. They need to have the lawns terraced down there, too.

"Why be a manager when you can let Ziggy do the worrying? All we have to do is work seven or eight hours a day and let him collect the money. Soft is not the name. The word is velvet."

Hitchcock in his first appearance in "The Follies" makes an address to 'Lib, old girl"—the Statue of Liberty—after rowing out beyond the three-mile limit to get a drink.

He also appears as a magician with Bill Fields and Ray Dooley. He is Armand in a Camille scene where Fannie Brice relines on her bed and sighs, "I've been a bad woman, but such good company." He also appears in the Dauphin scene in royal purple, in an amusing subway skit with Dooley, Brice and Fields—and altogether he has plenty to do.

"But I like it," he called out after the interviewer, "and it is a comfort to know that my efforts will not be altogether in vain. I have it from a reliable authority that through my help and the help of others in 'The Follies' Ziggy has made his first payment on a sassafras-colored overcoat for next winter."

SHIP'S FEED PIPE EXPLODES; TWELVE HURT; ONE FATALLY

ADMIRAL FARRAGUT DISABLED NEAR SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—(Canadian Press.)—The steamer Admiral Farragut is disabled 12 miles north of San Francisco Lightship by an explosion of her main feed pipe, according to word received here early to-day. Twelve members in the engine room were reported severely injured, one probably fatally.

TOMATOES RETAILING NOW AT 20 CENTS A POUND.

A sharp drop of 1.00 a basket in the price of tomatoes brings them within comparatively easy reach of the average purse.

To-day they are selling in the stores at 20 cents a pound, and on Saturday this will likely be the prevailing price.

Dealers admit the market is weak, as the crop is ripening fast, and next week will probably bring further declines.

The end of the raspberry crop is in sight, but blueberries are hanging on and thimbleberries are beginning to reach the market.

The first of the plums are already here, but the quantity is only a sample. The crop is reported light.

KU KLUX KLAN TO PROBE OUTBREAKS

TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER THEIR MEMBERS WERE IMPLICATED

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

DALLAS, July 22.—To assure himself that members of the Ku Klux Klan were not implicated in recent instances of mob violence in Oklahoma and Texas, Wm. J. Simmons, Imperial Wizard of the order, has detailed thirty men to investigate each of the cases. He telegraphed Texas and Oklahoma newspapers from his headquarters at Atlanta to this effect. Simmons said he was confident that K. K. K. members did not participate in the lawless occurrences.

RUMANIAN OUTLOOK IMPROVES AS RED MENACE DISAPPEARS

LONDON.—(By Mail).—An abstract of the latest monthly circular received by the Banca Commerciale Italiana from its Rumanian affiliated bank is given in The London Morning Post. Referring to conditions in Rumania, it says:

The general situation here is improving. The fear of a Bolshevist invasion is gradually fading away, inasmuch as with the difficulties which the Soviets experience in holding their own at home, there seems to be no danger for the time being of their seeking quarrels with neighboring states.

Very great progress has been achieved also in the internal position of Rumania and we are at present enjoying a period of political peace which many other European countries may rightly envy us. The agrarian law, which has just been passed and whereby the land is to be divided among the peasants, is in itself a sufficient defense against any communistic movement.

The question of foreign exchanges here, like everywhere else, is the chief trouble; the excessive inflation of paper currency and the considerable growth of the public debt have caused the lei to depreciate enormously. But there are signs that an early improvement may be looked for; first, of all, transport facilities are much greater; large numbers of locomotives have been bought and are still being bought, chiefly in Germany, and the railways are gradually finding it possible to extend their services both for passengers and goods. This is all to the advantage of the export trade, especially of timber and oil, while at the same time imports are beginning to find their way into the interior, chiefly from Galatz.

The coming wheat crop should bring a further general improvement; it was feared that it might have been endangered by the cold weather of last autumn, but the very mild winter and the recent abundant rains have so improved the prospects that a good crop may now be anticipated, and this is of paramount importance to a country so eminently agricultural as Rumania.

IN 1821 MIDDLESBORO HAD TWENTY-FIVE SOULS NOW EXCEEDS 130,000

In the year 1821 the people of Middlesborough numbered twenty-five souls. To-day, a century later, the population exceeds 130,000, writes Harold Begbie in the Pall Mall Gazette.

Iron has created this town, and there is the strength of iron in its people. In no great industrial centre have I seen a more wonderful pageant of manhood than here in Middlesborough, where the principal street on Sunday is so crowded by men from pavement to pavement that vehicles find it difficult to get along. These men, for the most part, are young, and carry themselves like soldiers, and are as well dressed as the average London clerk. A finer army of handsome, powerful and self-respecting men I have never seen. It is the new order of democracy.

What would Canada and Australia give for these men! But what a loss to England if they went!

Closed Foundries the Cause.

They are mostly out of work. Out of 1,000 men in one of the best foundries of a great ironworks only 200 are now employed—and they at a loss to their employers. Most of the ironworks are closed down, and the vast majority of their splendid men, in great bitterness of heart, are eating the bread of idleness. When you consider that for thirty years there has never been a strike of blast furnacemen in the Cleveland district you will understand the cuelty of this enforced idleness.

They live in neat villas, proud of their homes, proud of their children. They are the very salt of Britain's democracy: they have not the smallest disposition toward Communism: they accept the present system and make the best of it; they want to work and to save money; but—they are idle.

I stood in a vast foundry, where nothing moved, nothing sounded. "Listen," said my guide. The twitter of a bird in the roof came to my ears. "The sparrows have built their nests in our foundries and the starlings in our chimneys!" I asked if this had ever happened when the works were going. "Never! Why, they would be killed by the stife." "The stife?" Aye, the fumes, some call it stife, and some stithe: it's the same sort of word as stiffe. No, I have never heard of such a thing before—sparrows in the roof!"

He caught hold of my arm. "Listen," he said, "to the silence. It's hell." Then he added: "What I miss most is the hum of the blast furnaces. That gives a sense of life to the whole works. It's like a kettle boiling! You seem to feel that the place is throbbing with happiness. But now . . . it's like a cemetery." He pointed to a dynamo. "Doing nothing!" he exclaimed. I asked the weight of the wheel. "Eighty tons."

Blast Furnaces Blown Out.

Throughout Middlesborough the blast furnaces are now blown out, and no man dares to tell you when they will be blown in. The hum has ceased and thousands of young men, the flower of British labor, walk the streets. To the masters the blowing out of a blast furnace is a serious matter, for the life of the modern blast furnace is only seven to ten years, and each one takes 2,000 tons of brickwork, and the cost of renewal for each runs to nearly £5,000. This is serious enough, but for those splendid blast furnace men, who have had no strike for thirty years, how much more serious! The hum of the furnace is the hum of their domestic happiness.

Then there is another aspect of the tragedy of Middlesborough which is worth looking at, perhaps keeping in mind. Every day the hands of the ironworkers are getting softer and their muscles are losing their habitual strength.

"Even when the blast furnaces are blown in," I was told, "it will take months before we can get our bodies into the old condition."

But when will the blast furnaces of Middlesborough be blown? I look at the town from the Cleveland hills and I see only one of those masses of tall chimneys pouring out its pall of smoke.

Between four and five hundred minute trains used to pass through Middlesborough every day. Now you might stand at one of the level crossings all day long and never see one.

The whole town is stricken. Its trade has departed. It can never be regained till coal is once more cheap and abundant. And this will not be until coal owners and miners come together in a spirit of co-operation and service.

The hands of the ironworker are softening and his heart hardening. Over the homes of these men, so different from slum homes, falls the shadow of the pawnshop.

THE ALPHABET.

Idea That it Was Used 900 Years B.C. Now Unsettled.

It was at one time pretty generally held that the alphabet was invented by the Phoenicians, and that the names and Ideograms representing the various letters were phonetically and graphically descriptive of certain objetcs chosen by them as symbols, but recent investigation in this direction has tended rather to unsettle than to confirm this theory. Wherever the alphabet may have originated, there seems no doubt that in its firast introduction in a form closely resembling that with which modern times are familiar was from the Phoenicians to the Greeks. The Phoenicians were certainly using it with freedom in the Ninth Century before Christ.

The history of the alphabet shows that at no time has it represented any European languages with much precision because it was an importation adapted in a more or less crude fashion to represent sounds different from those which it represented outside Europe.

PICKED TEAMS PLAY DRAW AT THE OVAL LAST NIGHT

ELEVEN MEN WILL BE SELECTED TO REPRESENT PETERBORO AT BRANTFORD.

On the showing made by the players in last night's trial game at Nicholls Oval between picked teams the executive of the P. and D. Football Association will select eleven men to represent Peterboro in the Alfred Plenty competition against Brantford, in Brantford, on July 30, at the annual meeting which takes place in the G. W. V. A. hall tonight. The choice of the Peterboro footballers played at the Oval last night before the critical eyes of the executive officers and the fact that in seventy minutes play there was no decision, indicates how well the teams were balanced. Due to delay in starting the game and a ten minute interruption when the ball gave out and a new one had to be brought from downtown, at 8.15, when the periods were up the score was still zero on both sides and too dark to continue playing, Referee J. Clark called the game a draw.

The lineups were as follows:—

President's team—Goal, Griffin, (C.G.E.); r back McDonald, (C.G.E.); l back, Ralston (Cal); r half Burrows, (Vets); c half Stewart McMillan (Can. W.); l half Mann, (C.G.E.); o. r. forward, Manders, (C.G.E.); ir. forward, Hannah (Cal) c forward, Dyer (Vets); i. l. forward, McDougall (Com.); o. l. forward, Bartley (C. G. E.).

Vice-Presidents' team—Goal, Jones (Vets); r back S. McMillan, (Cal.); l back Chambers (Can. W.); r half, Williams (C.G.E.; s half Muir (Cal.); l half Hurle, (Vets); o. r forward Abrahams, (De Laval); i. r forward Parkins, (C.G.E.); c forward, Jones (Can. W.); l l forward G. Shaw, (Can. W.); o. l forward Monks (Vets).

Reserve players to attend: Cridland (Can. W.), Gamble (Vets), Mann (C. G. E.); Abrahams (De Laval), M. Shaw (Can. W.).

The Game.

The President's team wore the Caley's blue sweaters and the Vice-President's were outfitted some with the old red sweaters of the Vets and some with the new red and black striped ones. The Reds opened with a full team, the Blues needed one man to complete their line-up and he soon came on. The Blues had the edge on most of the play and Jones had a busy night but Griffin at times had plenty of work to do. Alf. Parkins, Harold Jones and Abrahams kept the citadel warm when within striking distance. The defence of the President's team was good and was largely responsible for keeping out the Reds. In the first period after about 18 minutes play Dyer and Chambers both kicked the ball simultaneously and it collapsed. In getting another ten minutes was lost and this left the game playing in the dark as it was 7 p.m. when it started.

It was touch-and-go all the way. Up and down the field the play went with the Blues stronger if anything but held to the zero mark by Jones' nice saves. In the last ten minutes they pressed particularly hard but fortune evidently sided with the Reds.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

The summer programme at the Capitol is exceptionally good. Last night's pictures included a little bit of many interesting things. The ultra rapid camera, the travel pictures of the Pyrenees, and the Miraculous Shrine of Lourdes, and the stirring serial, "Fighting Fate," were very much enjoyed. An animated cartoon depicting the defeat of an army of roaches by a cat and a baby and Mack Sennett's "Wedding Bells Out of Tune," supplied the comic element. Wedgwood Nowell in "813," the mystery play, does some good work. This is a gradually unfolding detective story of deep interest, with an extraordinarily dramatic ending and held the marked attention of the audience from start to finish. Parisian natural scenes of great beauty add to the attraction of the production, which depicts the machinations of several master minds in a struggle for power and wealth. Unexpected situations and unforeseen developments are the rule in this picture, which calls forth some splendid acting from most of those appearing in it, the hero, in his triple role of gentleman of leisure, master thief and Chief of Police, enacting his difficult part with great dramatic ability.

CRESSMAN'S HIT OUT VICTORY AND ARE LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

OPENING ATTACK GAVE HOME NINE FOUR RUNS AND THEY WON BY 9 TO 5.

WILL PLAY C.G.E.

Opening the game with a vicious attack on the pitching of Al. Doughty, Cressman's scored four runs in the first frame, and led all the way in their final duel with Westclox for the championship of the Mercantile League at Riverside Park last evening. The score was 9 to 5. Cressman's will now meet C.G.E., winners of the City League, in the first O.B.A.A. draw.

On batting form, it was Cressman's game. The store nine led off with five hits, and in the succeeding six innings got as many safeties as Westclox did in seven. Cressman's hit twice for extra bases, and Wade's long single in the first scored a runner from first. Doughty got the only extra base clout for his team.

Bartley whiffed seven batters. Doughty fanned five, and each issued two passes.

The early lead gained by Cressman's did not quench the Westclox fighting spirit, and at the end of the fourth, they were within one run of tieing it up. The clock-makers' chances looked bright in the fourth when the first two batters got on, Bartley showing poor control. But short hit grounders to the box caught two runners going into third, and Prosser, usually a reliable hitter, ended the rally with a fly to Hunter.

Cressman's Start Strong.

Hunter bunted the first pitched ball down third and beat it out. Wade hit between left and middle, Hunter scoring, while Wade remained at first. Bergoine drew a pass. Head singled to left, scoring Wade. Scates drooped a high one behind short, Bergoine scoring. H. Wolff threw out Cobb. Bartley hit to third, Head scoring, and Bartley beating the throw to first. Graham fanned, but had to be thrown out at first. Sage completing Cressman's batting order, flew out to Thirnbeck.

Westclox went out in a row, Doughty came back strong in the second, nobody getting to first. C. Wolff helped the pitcher by taking Bergoine's long fly for the third out.

The clock-makers started to make it a battle in their half of the second. H. Wolff dumped a grounder at Sage, who fumbled the ball. Doughty hit over short. Thirnbeck lined to Bartley, who threw out H. Wolff at the plate. On Powell's infield out to Cobb, Doughty made the plate with the first run. Thirnbeck showed some fast work on the paths, and when Henry hit back of short, Hunter and Scates went after the ball, the former dropping it. Thirnbeck scored. On DeGraw's short tap, Bergoine threw low to Cobb, the runner being safe. Sage threw out Lundy.

Thrown Out From Right.

Fast work by Westclox kept Cressman's away from the plate in the third. Henry's throw from right on Cobb's single, getting Scates going into third, stopped a likely-looking tally. This made two down. With Bartley batting, Prosser threw out Cobb on an attempted steal.

Westclox got one in their half after C. Wolff and Prosser had fanned. H. Wolff was passed, and he stole second. Doughty doubled to right, Wade just reaching the ball, with one hand, and Wolff scored. Thirnbeck flew out to Hunter.

In the fourth, Doughty threw out Bartley and Graham. Sage was safe on Thirnbeck's wide throw. The side was retired when C. Wolff got his hands on Hunter's long fly.

Powell started a rally for Westclox in this frame with a single to left. Henry walked. DeGraw's roller was handled by Bartley, who threw to third, getting Powell. Lundy also grounded to Bartley, who threw to third, getting Henry. C. Wolff was safe on Sage's fumble, and Prosser ended it with a fly to Hunter. Ed. LeBar, as umpire-in-chief, had two difficult decisions to make, one at third and the other at the plate. Objection was taken to the decision at third, that the baseman neither touched the runner or the base, and at the plate when Lundy was apparently hit by a pitched ball, the umps called a foul ball. Neutral spectators said afterwards that the umn was right in both cases. In Lundy's case, the umps held that the ball first hit Lundy's bat.

Cressman's got two in the fifth. Wade flew out to C. Wolff. Bergoine was passed, and a wild throw to first base advanced him. Head doubled to left, scoring Bergoine. Scates sent a short single into left and Cobb fanned. Bartley scratched a hit to short, scoring Head. Graham flied to Thirnbeck.

H. Wolff hit and stole second and third. Doughty was retired at first. Thirnbeck singled into middle, scoring Wolff. Powell and Henry were struck out.

Bergoine Hit Long Double.

In the sixth, Sage was safe on Thirnbeck's poor throw. He was forced at second by Hunter. The base-umpire sent Hunter to second on a balk by Doughty. Wade hit at the high ones and fanned. Bergoine doubled between left and middle, the ball going to the fence corner, and Hunter went home. Head was safe on Powell's error. The umpire-in-chief called a balk on Doughty and waved in Bergoine from third. Scates scratched a hit to short, scoring Head. Cobb was thrown out.

Westclox were easily retired in their half. Lundy alone getting on, through Sage's error, who lost a high fly.

Doughty made short work of Cressman's in the seventh, throwing Bartley out, and fanning Graham. Sage flied to Powell.

Cobb dropped a throw from Sage on H. Wolff's grounder. The runner stole second, scoring on Doughty's single to middle. Thirnbeck popped to Bartley. Theobald fanned and Bergoine doubled, Doughty going into third.

SPORT COMMENT

NEW YORK, July 22.—Ray Archer is running one of those windy palaces, full of trick doors, dark places and slides, over at Palisades Park.

He used to have a champion of the world until Jess Willard decided he could manage himself.

Since then he has slipped away from the boxing game until he is just a reader of the sport pages and an occasional adviser of his big protege.

Archer didn't allow Willard's breakaway to interfere with their friendship and he still is on close terms with the Kansas giant.

Willard has been writing him for a year, telling him he wants to come back. The big fellow never has lost the opinion that he could win the title back if he got the chance.

His chance rests with Tex Rickard, and the king of the promoters says he will not sign him up until he has the assurance that the Goliath can get into condition.

Archer says the big fellow can get in shape if he wants to, but he isn't sure that he wants to now.

"Willard is sore now," he said. "He had his heart set on getting Dempsey last winter and the disappointment was such when the match fell through that he got into a sort of despair.

"He worked hard for a whole year. Very few knew about it. When he was making inspection trips over his oil wells he would ride out alone in the buckboard, and when he got to the side roads he would jump out and run for miles behind the horses. He knew it was the failure to get enough road work at Toledo that was his greatest mistake.

"He was in better shape than he had ever been before last winter. He wanted to meet Dempsey on St. Patrick's day in Madison Square Garden and he had all the confidence in the world in himself. Then the match fell through, and for various reasons he gave up.

"He's still keeping in shape, however. He says he does it for a double purpose. He still believes he will get another chance at the title and he also does it to keep fit for arduous business."

SOLID RANKS OF "BLACK SOX" SPLIT AND EACH FIGHTS LONE BATTLE FOR HIS LIBERTY NOW

RIFT FOLLOWS TESTIMONY OF BURNS, WHICH INCRIMINATED SOME AND LEFT OTHERS UNTOUCHED—DEFENSE LAWYERS DISSOLVE AGREEMENT TO PRESENT SOLID FRONT.

(By Carl Victor Little)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, July 22.— The solid ranks of the "Black Sox" have been split and each player fought a lone battle for liberty to-day.

"Everyone for himself,' is now the code of the seven former White Sox stars charged with making a fake of the 1919 worlds' series and selling the classic out to the highest bidder.

The eight or ten lawyers for the defense who at the beginning of the trial decided to present a solid front, have dissolved the agreement.

The rift came as the result of the testimony of "Bill" Burns, confessed stake holder and gamblers' tool, during the world's series. Burns' story of the alleged fake series incriminated some players and left others untouched. Those who were not involved do not want to go down in the event of a crash, therefore the dissolution.

The difference in defense tactics was noticable today as the lawyers were on their feet fighting for their individual clients rather than permitting one attorney to do the talking for all.

Burns charged Eddie Cicotte and "Chick" Gandil with engineering the plot in New York a week or so before the series opened in Cincinnati. Other defendants do not want to get mixed up in the damning bit of evidence.

Throughout the whole of his sensational story, Burns has laid much of the plotting to Gandil, while he never yet mentioned the name of "Joe" Jackson. The first fight of todays' session came when the State sought to introduce the confessions signed by Cicotte, Williams and Jackson. They have since been repudiated by the three.

Attorneys for Felsch, Risberg, Gandil and Weaver ask that the confessions either be thrown out altogether, or that any portions in them dealing with their clients be disregarded.

A DOUBLE HEADER AT RIVERSIDE PARK TO-MORROW

There will be a double-header at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon that should provide an interesting programme for the fans.

The Canadian General Electric team, champions of the City League, and who will next week play off with the Cressman team for the right to represent Peterborough in the semi-finals of the Intermediate series of the O.B.A.A., will clash with the Peterborough Central League team at 3.30 o'clock. With a pitching staff composed of Chris. McCarney, the St. Michael's College hockey star, "Bun" Frost, "Eddie" Foley, and Len Johnston, the Electricians should extend the Solomon gang to the limit, and the game promises to be a real battle all the way.

It will be preceded by a City Juvenile League game between the Lakeviews and St. Peter's. It is the students' last chance in the second half race, and they are out to beat Lakeviews and stay in the running. The Juvenile are playing fast ball, and to-morrow's fixture, which starts at 2 o'clock, should be up to the usual standard.

All Peterborough Central League players are requested to be on hand early for to-morrow afternoon's game with the C.G.E., City League champions.

HANDSOME CUP FOR JUVENILES

MR. W. B. WARNE OFFERS TROPHY FOR COMPETITION IN LOCAL LEAGUE.

The Juvenile League players and fans generally will be delighted to hear that Mr. W. B. Warne has most kindly offered a handsome silver trophy, to be known as the Warne Cup, as a reward to the team winning the City Juvenile League. The cup will become the permanent property of any team winning it three years in succession. Mr. Warne's genefosity will be greatly appreciated and the trophy will add zest and interest to the League race.

TENNIS PLAYERS VISITED LAKEFIELD

Nine players of the local Y.M.C.A. team of tennis players visited Lakefield yesterday afternoon. Five sets of doubles and five sets of singles were played, Lakefield winning three doubles and two singles, and the Y.M.C.A. club winning two doubles and three singles, making a tie on the total number of matches. The Lakefield club will pay a return visit to the Y.M.C.A. club next Thursday afternoon and evening, July 28th.

LACROSSE NOTES

The Havelock intermediates have engaged H. S. (Sport) Murton as coach for the rest of the reason, according to the news brought back from the C.P.R. town yesterday. Percy Lancaster told the Examiner a week ago that he had done his best for the team in the early practices, but he hadn't the time to give the players all the attention they needed. Mr. Lancaster's services have been productive of first rate results as was shown in the game with Campbellford a week ago and also with Peterborough on Thursday. Murton is an experienced player with a long record in the lacrosse big leagues. He will have good material to work with and the effects of his training will be watched with interest by all those in the local district who have been following the rivalry, particularly between the Havelock and Campbellford teams. Havelock's desire for a coach coincides with the big gate they got in the Campbellford game. They will likely draw another bumper crowd when Campbellford returns for the game in the second half of the schedule which opened with the Peterborough contest yesterday.

"I believe we have a winning team now," said Jim Skinner, after the performance of the composite team of juniors and intermediates against Havelock yesterday. "If Havelock hadn't broke away with two goals in the first period the result would probably have been different. I forgot to tell Foley and Goodfellow to watch King and Haughton closely, and they had two goals before I had a chance to give them the instruction. After that the Havelock home was pretty well taken care of."

Peterborough has a postponed game with Havelock that should have been played here. It was deferred because of the financial slump the local team was going through. The management has every wish to hold up its end with the two other teams in the district, and will probably consider seriously at once the question of playing the postopend and remaining games. There is no doubt that the locals can put a strong team on the field here, and the continuance of the local end of the schedule must be settled at once in fairness to the Havelock and Campbellford teams.

(By H. S. MURTON.)

I was handed an ancient lacrosse rule book the other day through the courtesy of I. D. Bailey, the rule book of the National Lacrosse Association of Canada. It was printed in 1868, the year after Confederation, having been compiled at the second annual convention. The President in that year was W. D. Otter, Toronto; 1st Vice-President, W. H. Garratt, Belleville; 2nd Vice-President, F. E. Alf. Evanturel, Quebec; 3rd Vice-President, Tobin, Halifax; 4th Vice-President, Dr. Allen, Cornwall, and Secretary, W. George Beers of Montreal. It was the latter who composed the book, "Game of Lacrosse, the History and Science of the Game," on account of which he is often known as the father of lacrosse. That lacrosse at that time had a history gives an idea of its antiquity.

* * * *

The Council of the same year was drawn from Quebec, Montreal, Cornwall, Prescott, Brockville, Kingston, Ottawa, Belleville, Hamilton, Toronto, Paris, Brantford and Simcoe. It will be noticed how the early towns followed the great waterways. It is for the same reason that we find the earliest homes of lacrosse in Ontario centred about Yonge street, Toronto, which was then the highway of traffic before the railways came. Thus we have Newmarket, Stouffville, Richmond Hill, Bradford, Markham, Cannington and Beaverton among the most ancient seats of lacrosse in Ontario. For a town's settlement was incomplete in those days without the formation of a lacrosse team. The device of the old N.L.A. was capped by the motto, "Our Country, Our Game," showing the place lacrosse then held in Canadian esteem.

* * * *

Some of the rules are very quaint and amusing to us, pointing as they do to early conditions. For instance, Rule 16: "Should the ball be accidentally put through a goal by one of the players defending it, it is game for the side attacking that goal. Should it be put through a goal by anyone not a player it shall not count." Can you not picture the days when the crowd swarmed on the field or crowded about the goal, leaving a lane open to the flags and sometimes overstepping in their enthusiasm the rule of fair play and booting the ball through for their team. It must have often happened to call for an official ruling on a game obtained in such way.

* * * *

Or again what scenes of pioneer Canada this rule recalls. Rule 9, Sec. 6: "No Indian must play in a match for a white club unless previously agreed upon." And further, Article XI. of the Constitution: "No club in the association shall play for a money challenge except with Indians. Any club playing for money except with Indians shall be suspended from membership in the association." What a blessing those Indian teams would be for the amateurs of today—and how the challenges would fly about.

* * * *

There were, of course, no nets at that time, they are a modern innovation. The goal posts were surmounted by little flags, the club's colours, hence the name flags has still remained for the goal. They were 6 feet high, 6 feet apart, but the goals could be placed at any distance from each other as agreed by the captains of the opposing teams. There were two umpires at each goal. One of the numerous rules covering these all important officials reads: "Umpires must not be changed during a match except for reasons of illness or injury."

What a priceless job! The umpires at that time were the controlling officials. The referee was only to be resorted to for a decision when the umpires differed and he was not allowed upon th playing field during play. Examine the naivete of this mode of procedure and imagine it applied to the matches of to-day.

Sec. 3: "When 'foul' has been called (supposedly by a player) the umpires must leave their posts and cry 'time,' and from that time the ball must not be touched by either party nor must the players move from their positions until the umpires have return to their posts and 'play' is called." A match was decided then by the winning of three games out of five.

* * * *

That scoring was not frequent is indicated by this rule:

"In the event of a match being interrupted by darkness or any other cause considered right by the umpires and one side having won two games (i.e. now goals)—the other none—the side having won the two games shall be declared winners of the match. Should one side have won two games and the other one, the match shall be a draw."

BOBBED HAIR GETS BY HIM.

Nets and a Head for Spelling Win Jobs Where Controversy Began.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 22. — All the nationwide talk against bobbed hair first started here by Frank Daniels, an employee of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, of which former U. S. Senator Morgan G. Bulkley is President and active head, has not resulted in that particular insurance office being without its female 'bobs.'

Furthermore it was shown to-day that the bobbed hair is "getting past" Daniels, and that new girls seeking positions with the company simply pull in their bobbed tresses with a hair net, get the job desired, and then let loose their bobbed hair.

It is reported that the men to whom the bobbed stenographers were assigned merely grinned at the joke played on Daniels and have judged the new employees by their spelling and punctuation rather than by their coiffure.

"WHY WORRY" MAN SUICIDE

Dr. Armstrong, Indiana Lecturer on Cheer, Drinks Poison.

KOKOMO, Ind., July 22.—Dr. W. E. Armstrong, who attained prominence in Northern Indiana as a lecturer and orator, particularly with his address on "Why Wory," committed suicide to-day by drinking poison.

Dr. Armstrong, who was 54 years old, leaves a widow and two children. Financial difficulties are held responsible for his suicide.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 22.— (Canadian Press.)—Nominal losses ruled at the hesitant opening of to-day's stock market. Chesapeake and Ohio was the only exception, re-acting 1 3-8 points. The placing of Oils and Leathers on the free list by the House of Representatives failed to stimulate trading in these shares, most foreign Oils displaying further heaviness. Steadiness was shown by Canadian Pacific, Rock Island and U. S. Rubber. Exchange on London was firm.

The market moved in a narrow rut until the second hour when buying of rails impelled short covering. Canadian Pacific rose 2 1-2 points and gains of 1 to 1 1-2 were made by Great Northern, Union Pacific and St. Paul. Steels and equipments also hardened with Bethlehem as the only conspicuous laggard. American Woollen Corn Products and some of rubber shares rose substantially over yesterday's final prices. Tobaccos were featured by Liggett and Meyers at a gain of 6 1-2 points. Foreign exchange continued to recover and call money opened and renewed into next week at 5 1-2 per cent.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, July 22.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange firmer, demand 359 1-4; Canadian dollars 11 3-16 per cent discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 22.—(Canadian Press).—Reports that Russia needed vast quantities of wheat had a bullish influence on the wheat market to-day. Doubts, however, that money could be found to pay for the required grain acted as a retaining factor. The Chief demand came from a house with eastern connections. Opening prices, which ranged from 1-4 off to 1-2 advance, with September 1.26 to 1.27 and December 1.29 to 1.30 were followed by material gains all around. After opening unchanged to 1-8 cents higher, including September at 61 5-8 to 61 7-8, the corn market sagged a little but then scored a moderate general advance. The Northwest was a good buyer of oats. Prices started unchange to 3-8 and 1-2 cents higher, September 41 1-2 to 41 5-8, eased off somewhat, and then made fair upturns for all deliveries.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, July 22.— (Canadian Press.)—Trading on the local stock exchange during the first half hour this morning was dominated by considerable weakness in some of the leaders. Abitibi, however, remained unchanged at 25, but Brazilian lost half a point to 22 1-4. Brompton was quiet at its yesterday's closing quotation of 20. Laurentide was very weak, dropping two points to 85.

Local market was more active during this morning's session than it has been for some time past, and considerable trading took place. Abitibi remained unchanged at its opining quotation but Brazilian weakened another 1-2 point to 22 1-4. Brompton did not change, but remained steady at 20. Laurentide rallied slightly and closed 4 points stronger at 87 1-4 National Breweries, which did not put in an appearance until fairly late, was down at 1-2 point at 51 1-2. Wayagamack lost another 1-2 point before closing at 40.

TORONTO

TORONTO, July 22.—(Canadian Press). —Brazilian Common was again the leader in activity on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Opening at 23, it weakened steadily until it reached 21 1-2, then firmed up to 22 1-2, closing at 22. The remainder of the list was largely neglected. There was considerable trading in the victory's with the prices generally near those of yesterday, 22's moving up for board lots to 99.30.

HANGED HIMSELF ON CROSS.

Superior (Wis.) Man Had Taken Pictures of Himself in Death Posture.

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 22. — The naked body of Arthur A. McDonald, aged 40, was found hanging from a blue and red painted cross in the parlour of his home last night. A silk cord was drawn about his neck and into the wall.

Two photographs of himself in his posture of death, taken on Sunday morning, were found in the house.

McDonald had often invited neighbors into the house to see his cross, and the man seemed not disturbed when they peeped into the windows to watch him taking the peculiar pictures.

NEW FEATURE OF C.P.O.S. SERVICE

MONTREAL, July 22.—To have baggage examined by the customs officials before arrival at the port and checked to its inland destination, is one of the most highly appreciated features of service on the Canadian Pacific Empress liners, arriving at Quebec, by putting customs officials and a staff of baggage checkers on board the Empress ships at Father Point, the C.P.R. overcomes the long and sometimes tedious delay otherwise experienced, and by the time that ship docks at Quebec the special trains in readiness there to convey passengers to their inland destinations, and through this service, able to proceed immediately.

NOW, GIRLS, WHAT HAVE YOU TO SAY?

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 22.— Three essentials were laid down here as necessary for the dress of girls and women in business life, by delegates to the convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. They are: Becomingness, stylishness and comfort.

The delegates differ, however, on what might be called the proper costume, although all are opposed to any attempt at standardization, saying it destroys individualism. But all oppose extreme styles.

YET CHEAPER SODAS NOW GO AFTER BREAD

NEW YORK, July 22.—Following last weeks' successful demonstration against the prices of ice cream sodas comes a vigorous campaign by Bronx women against the high cost of the one time five-cent loaf.

The women of the Bronx are out for battle and they say that they mean to get back their nickel loaf or die fighting the good fight.

"General" Florence Grimm sallied forth today on the offensive. Large crowds swarmed around her automobile cheering her speeches and applauding every statement against the high priced bakery concerns. "Give us back our five-cent loaf" and "bake your own bread girls," these and other slogans on placards helped to swell the crowd of housewives.

Bakers told the committee of the Housewives' League that fully forty per cent. of their receipts go to labor. 'Reduce our high wage bills and we will guarantee your nickel loaf back," said the bakery owners.

TRIAL SHIPMENT ALBERTA HORSES TO TRINIDAD

CALGARY, Alta., July 22. — A trial shipment of Alberta horses is on the way to Trinidad, where they are being sent on an order from a business firm there which wants them for driving purposes. Twenty-three animals, of small build, standing from fourteen to fifteen hands in height and weighing from 700 to 1,000 pounds, bought in the vicinity of Calgary, are being shipped as a first consignment, and a second lot to make up a total order of fifty will follow later.

The shipment is in charge of J. D. Smith, of the department of agriculture. He will ship from Halifax by one of the West India steamer lines, and after delivering the animals to their buyers in Trinidad will spend sometime looking into the future horse market there and at other points in the Indies. If Mr. Smith's investigations are satisfactory it is likely that other shipments from Alberta will be made in the near future.

PRESCRIPTION HUNTERS MUST BE DECREASING.

SASKATOON, Sask., July 22. — The prescription hunters are growing less or else doctors in Saskatchewan are becoming very strict, for the monthly report of the Saskatchewan Liquor Commission for June shows a falling off in the number of "permits" granted. The average number of prescriptions written during this time was 18, and only seven physicians wrote over 100. Eighty wrote less than 25.

The report also indicates that the supply of liquor on hand is not decreasing as rapidly as was expected owing to the fact that the export business to the United States has not reached the proportions that were considered possible.

The seizures were made during June, and the number of convictions obtained for offences under the Act was thirty, with the fines totalling $5,000, compared with $1,965 in May.

The Rev. Peter Jones, Roberts Wesleyan minister, of Ashton-in-Makefield, was drowned while fishing from a boat in the Menai Straits near Carnarvon. He served as chaplain with the Welsh Division in France throughout the war.

COL. PONTON HEADS ONTARIO MASONS

BELLEVILLE MAN ELECTED GRAND MASTER AT OTTAWA YESTERDAY.

OTTAWA, July 22. — (Canadian Press).—Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., of Belleville, was yesterday elected Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario, A.F. and A. M., by a practically unanimous vote. W. J. Drope, Grimsby, was the chosen Deputy Grand Master, after three ballots. On the first ballot, at which 1,303 votes were cast, W. J. Drope received 418 votes as against 340 for George S. May, Ottawa; 338 for A. J. Young of North Bay, and 314 for Abraham Shaw, Kingston. Mr. Shaw was this eliminated, and the second ballot gave Drope 255, May 222, and Young 147. The third ballot gave Drope 213 against 186 votes cast for May.

Other Officers Elected.

D. A. Esdale, Ottawa, was elected Grand Senior Warden; M. P. McMaster, Windsor, Grand Junior Warden; A. J. Bruce, Fort William, Grand Chanlain; E. T. Malone, Toronto, Grand Treasurer; W. M. Logan, Hamilton, Grand Secretary; J. A. Orr, Sudbury, Grand Registrar; for Board of General Purposes: R. F. Richardson, Strathroy; Alex. Cowan, Barrie; A. J. Anderson, Toronto; J. Fred. Reid, Windsor, and Thomas Shanks, Ottawa.

The installation of these new officers is being proceded with, thus concluding the most important business of the session.

First item on the programme was the approval of the Grand Master's address. This was received and then a committee was struck to arrange for some suitable testimonial to be presented to the retiring Grand Master, M. W. Bro. F. W. Harcourt.

W. B. Sir George Maclaren Brown, P. M. Canada Lodge, London, England, and Euronean representative of the C.P.R., had conferred upon him the rank of P. G. Registrar by the Grand Lodge, in recognition of his services during the Euronean war to members of the craft from Canada, who were with the overseas forces.

The representatives of the various Grand Lodges of this continent were formally introduced to Grand Lodge, and accorded the grand honor. Hon. R. H. Grant, Minister of Education for Ontario, junior member of the foreign grand lodge representatives, being the representative of Iowa, responded on their behalf.

The Grand Lodge will meet in Port Arthur next year. The city of Hamilton, the other contender, was defeated.

TAKING NO CHANCES.

A Precaution Against Being Buried Alive.

In Wildwood cemetery, Williamsport, Pa., is located what is thought to be the only tomb of its kind in the world. It was built to the order of a citizen of that community thirty years ago to insure that none of his relatives should ever be buried alive. At the time of interment the body is removed from the casket and placed in one of the five vault compartments. These are lined with heavy felt to prevent injury, should the dead recover and become panic stricken. Ducts supply air to all compartments so that one in a state of trance may not be suffocated. No person other than the holders of the keys can unlock and open the massive iron compartment covers from the outside, but they can be opened from the inside by handwheels.

WEDDING BELLS

SAXBY—KENDEL.

St. Paul's Cathedral (Episcopal) Buffalo, N. Y., was the scene of a exceedingly pretty wedding, on Monday evening, July 18th, when Cecelia Eleanor, daugher of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Kendel, of 231 Oxford Avenue, Buffalo, became the bride of Henry Ernest Saxby, of Piquin, O., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Saxy, of this city, the Rev. Dr. Jessup officiating.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, gowned in white Chiney satin, and carrying a shower bouquet of brie roses, swansonia and sweet peas. Her veil was held cap fashion by a Grecian band of orange blossoms.

Miss Dorothy Kendel, the maid of honor, wore sea foam green organdie, with a hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Killarney roses and sweet peas.

Miss. Doris Slattery, the bridesmaid, wore a gown of honeydew organdie with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of honeydew sweet peas and roses.

Little Elizabeth Kendel was charming as flower girl, in white organdie and carried a basket of sweet peas.

The bride's mother wore a gown of midnight blue georgette over satin and wore a corsage of roses and sweet peas.

The best man was Mr. Henry C. Boswell of Toronto, Canada, a nephew of Sir Edward Osler, and Flight Commander in the R. N. A. S., who came from London, England for the ceremony.

The ushers were Thomas J. Kendel, brother of the bride, and William H. Saxby, brother of the groom.

Before the ceremony a programme of appropriate music was given, including a violin solo, Massenet's "Meditation" from "Thois," by Mr. Robert M. Kendel, brother of the bride, and one of Buffalo's younger virtuosos.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. A buffet luncheon was served, followed by music, by Mr. Robert Kendel's orchestra.

The bride wore the groom's gift, a lovely string of pearls. The best man received a set of gold cuff links, and the ushers, sapphire scarf pins.

Following a trip to the Kawartha Lakes, Mr. and Mrs. Saxby will reside at 413 West Ash St., Piqua, O.

TOBACCO AND HEALTH

EMINENT SURGEON ADVISES REGULARITY IN SMOKING.

"Smoke the same quantity of tobacco every day" was the advice of Sir James Cantlie, K.B.E., the eminent surgeon, when speaking on Tobacco and Health in London recently.

Sir James said that a few days previous to his address he read of a man who when he died was more than 100 years of age, and who smoked one ounce of tabacco per day. Probably if that man had cut his allowance down to half an ounce one day and one ounce the next he would not have lived so long. Smokers should not vary the amount of tobacco day by day.

He had seen men in the rifle competition at Wimbledon shooting whilst they were smoking. Even if they were not actually smoking they had pipes in their mouths, because they found it steadied their nerves. The man with a pipe between his teeth felt a certain amount of security.

Speaking of the pleasure to be derived from tobacco, Sir James Cantlie said he was sure that it was far more pleasant to be in the company of a smoker than of a man who did not smoke. Life would be much more pleasant if everybody smoked.

MAIMS VICTIM AND MAKES OFF.

HAMILTON, July 22. — Three women and a two-year-old infant were injured on the highway near the high-level bridge about 10 o'clock, when a heavy auto truck, said to be carrying license number C6490, crushed into the buggy in which they were riding. The driver of the truck did not stop to render aid, but, putting on the gas, made off in the darkness and left his four victims maimed and bleeding in the roadway.

OPEN OPPOSITION TO OFFERS OF BRITISH GOVERNMENT PRESENTED BY LEADERS OF THE SINN FEIN

GENERAL SENTIMENT IS THAT RESUMPTION OF HOSTILITIES IS PREFERABLE TO ACCEPTING TERMS PROFFERED BY IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT—CHANGE WHICH TRUCE HAS WROUGHT, HOWEVER, OFFSETS UNBENDING SPIRIT OF REPUBLICAN LEADERS—SMUTS TO PLACE HIS SERVICES AT DISPOSAL OF RIVAL IRISH LEADERS.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

DUBLIN, July 23. — Open opposition to the acceptance of Premier Lloyd-George's Irish peace offer was expressed by Sinn Fein leaders here to-day.

It was predicted that barring a new obstacle "President" DeValera would return to London in a fortnight—not to accept the plan in its present form.

The general sentiment of Sinn Fein leaders is that a resumption of hostilities is preferable to a potential Dominion Home Rule which does not include the right to secede from the Empire, to raise a separate Army, and which lacks any of the free features which comprise the constitutions of other Dominions.

There appeared, however, one vital reason for hope. A sober sincerity holds both factions against re-opening the old war wound, which everyone here believed would be a merciless fight to the death.

The momentary peace has wrought a sudden change in the appearance of the unofficial Irish capital.

Bagpipers throng the streets, mingling with the playing children, where before there were armed troops sitting in doorways. Everywhere Sinn Fein flags are draped peacefully over doorways. A month ago they would have been red flags in the face of the bull, and would have brought destruction to the householders who dared flaunt the Irish emblem in the face of the Black and Tans.

The entire city bears a carnival atmosphere. The movie houses are running late at night. The jolly Irish folk, worn by years of warfare, throng the streets until the wee small hours, looking five or ten years younger than they did a month ago.

There seems a sentiment that the Irish Republican Army has won its age-old war.

Smuts Enters Parleys.

LONDON, July 23 (Canadian Press). — General Jan C. Smuts, South African Premier, is expected to leave London for Ireland next week, probably on Monday, to place his services at the disposal of both Eamonn DeValera and Sir James Craig during their critical consideration of the Irish peace proposals made by Premier Lloyd-George.

This statement was made to-day in a quarter close to the South African Premier.

Ulster Not Concerned.

BELFAST, July 23.— (Canadian Press.)— Ulster at the moment is not concerned with the negotiations being carried on by the British government with the Sinn Fein, it is declared in Unionist quarters here. The negotiations, it is generally assumed by the public, deal with fiscaland financial questions. It is conceivable the Irish Political says, that certain eventualities Ulster would become involved but that the stage of the proceedings has not yet been reached.

Expect Settlement.

DUBLIN, July 23. — (Canadain Press.)—The impression is growing here that the Irish peace offer made by Mr. Lloyd George to Eamon De Valera, Republican leader, will work out in a settlement. The terms of the offer are still being held in strictest confidence.

Provides Fiscal Autonomy.

LONDON, July 23. — (Canadian Press.)—The outstanding feature of the Government's Irish peace proposals to Eamonn De Valera is the conclusion of fiscal autonomy, it was stated on high authority to-day. The position of Ulster is amply secured.

FILTER PLANT PROGRESS GOOD

WILL PROBABLY BE COMPLETED MUCH EARLIER THAN EXPECTED, SAYS WATERWORKS SUPERINTENDENT.

Good progress is being made on the filtration plant, and it is probable it will be opened much earlier than was expected, stated R. L. Dobbin, who is superintending engineer of the work.

A visit to the work will well repay anyone interested in engineering, and an idea of what the finished plant will be like may be obtained. Over 200 men are working on the job nine hours or more a day, and night shifts have been used on the reservoir to hurry the work along. The cement flooring of the 2,000,000-gallon 140 feet x 170 feet reservoir is complete, and the concrete has been poured in the south wall. The forms are being placed on the other sides, and pouring these will begin shortly. A 30-inch pipe is being placed in the reservoir connected up with the intake pipe, but cut off by a valve so as to only be of value in an emergency, and the chamber where the water is admitted is being rushed to completion.

Except for finishing the floor, the sedimentation basin is practically complete. This part of the plant is 74 feet x 113 feet. The west section of the plant is where the water is relieved of its fishy smell by running over low steps exposed to the air immediately after it is brought in from the river. This section is practically finished.

Forms for the six filter units are being completed, but only five of these units will be equipped. These units occupy 39 feet x 112 feet.

Intake Pipes.

A gang of men were yesterday working on the excavations for the two 30-inch iron intake pipes that will replace the present intake. Excavations for the pump pit were under way. A coffer dam has been built to construct the intake. Due to the unusually sharp slope of the bank and the extent to which the dam had to be carried out, a diver has been needed to place the dam. He has placed a barricade of sand bags around the wall, and yesterday was hammering and sawing away 10 feet under the water, quite content if brought up for a smoke now and again.

The busiest thing on the whole job is the stone crusher across the road in the gravel pit. From morn till night no rest for it, fast grinding up the gravel pit.

Reputable Clergy of Any Sect Can Perform Marriage

OFFICIAL DISPELS MISAPPREHENSION EXISTING IN REGARD TO NEW MARRIAGE LAW.

TORONTO, July 23. (Canadian Press.) There is not the slightest intention of excluding Unitarians or represetatives of other well established religious denominations from officiating at the solemnization of the marriage ceremony, according to A. E. Semple, of the Provincial Secretary Department, who in an interview dispelled the current misapprehension which has been raised by the recently enacted law requiring the licensing and registration of all ministers and other persons before they could be authorized to perform the marriage ceremony.

No reputable minister of any recognized sect will be refused permission to perform a marriage ceremony.

CARPENTIER GETS HERO'S RECEPTION

PARIS CROWDS THRONG STATION ON HIS ARRIVAL.

PARIS, July 23. — (Canadian Press).—Georges Carpentier, apparently more than ever the idol of the French sporting public, because of his gallant, if unsuccessful, attempt to capture the world's heavy weight championship was given a hero's reception upon his arrival in Paris at noon to-day from the United States.

St. Lazare Railway station at which the French boxer's train pulled up was crowded with his admirers and Carpentier appeared palpably surprised by the enthusiasm of his reception and affected almost to tears. He was captured by the surging crowd and borne against his will through the side door of the station and along the Rue Londres.

These reports have not been confirmed from these quarters.

OTTAWA, July 23.— (Canadian Press.)—Effective July 21, the United States, in order to prevent the spread of the corn borer, has prohibited the entry from Ontario points of a number of flowers and vegetables, as well as oats and rye straw. Their entry is allowed, however, if the shipper takes the precaution to have them properly inspected and attaches a certificate to the shipment.

NO ASSURANCE AS TO FATE OF THREE TO HANG

MINISTER OF JUSTICE HEARS DEPUTATIONS' PLEA FOR HOTRUM AND M'FADDEN BUT KEEPS SILENT ON MATTER.

SITUATION UNIQUE IN HISTORY OF APPEALS

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, July 23.—The two deputations which came to Ottawa to severally plead for the lives of Roy Hotrum and William McFadden left last night without any assurance whatever as to the probable action of the Government in the matter. Both deputations were given full opportunity by the Minister of Justice to present all the points, major and minor, of their cases, but the Minister gave no intimation as to what his recommendation in the matter would be.

The situation is somewhat unique in the long and interesting history of appeals for clemency. To some extent the fate of one man depends upon the guilt or innocence of the other. It has not been hinted in the evidence that there was any third party included directly in the robbery which ended in the crime of murder. Neither of the condemned men claim that any others but themselves entered the store.

While the counsel for McFadden laid stress yesterday on the remark of Judge Logie to the effect that he, the Judge, did not believe that McFadden had fired the shot, and upon a remark attributed to Hotrum to the effect that he supposed McFadden would have "to go all the way" though he had not fired the shot, counsel for Hotrum base their case on the allegation that the description given by Cecil Sabine, the murdered man, before his death does not tally with Hotrum's appearance, and rather fits that of McFadden and up on the alleged fact that the bullet which caused death did not fit the revolver later found on Hotrum.

TOWNSHIPS HAIL CITY BEFORE THE RAILWAY BOARD

FOR DELAY IN BEGINNING THE CONSTRUCTION OF A SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT AS PREVIOUSLY ORDERED.

Before the Ontario Railway Board on Monday next the Council must explain its delay in proceeding with the erection of a sewage disposal plant as ordered upon the injunction of the municipalities of Otonabee, North Monaghan and South Monaghan. A letter conveying this notice was received by the Council last night from Peck, Kerr and McElderry, solicitors, for the complainants, who are applying for further directions in view of the city's failure to carry out the previous orders of the Board.

City Engineer Parsons, City Solicitor Widdifield and any members of the Council whom the Mayor may appoint were instructed to attend Monday morning's meeting and explain to the Board the difficulties the city has had to overcome in its negotiations with the Provincial Board of Health as to the type of sewage disposal plant to be erected here; and also to inform the Commissioners that plans are in preparation and other preliminary progress has been made.

FINE AND PRISON FOR ANYONE WHO "SNAPPED" TWO FIGHTERS

(Special despatch to the Examiner)

NEW YORK, July 23.—Everyone of thousands of spectators who snapped a picture of Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier in action and brought them across the New Jersey line into New York, is liable to a fine of $1000 and two years in prison, United States district Attorney Hayward said here to-day. Newspapers and picture agencies that brought pictures across the line are also liable.

Hayward gave an opinion that the transportation of "still" pictures across state lines is just as much a violation of the federal law as the transportation of motion picture films.

Hayward declined to state if he would take action against any of the newspapers, photographers or individuals who took pictures and brought them back to New York or took them into other states.

IMPLEMENTING DEFAULT CLAUSE, CITY NOTIFIES CONTRACTOR OF BRIDGE CONTRACT TERMINATION

COUNCIL DECLARES WORK NOT COMPLETED WITHIN TIME APPOINTED AND SUFFICIENT PROGRESS HAS NOT BEEN MADE.

RECOMMEND SETTLEMENT OF $6,500 EXTRA FEES

The formula serving notice on the Russell, Townsend Company, of the termination of their contract with the city for the constrution of the Hunter tsreet bridge, which they have completed except for a few finishing touches, was pronounced by the Council at a special meeting last night.

Implementing the default clause in the contract, the Council instructed Frank Barber, the city's engineer in charge of the work, to notify the company that the bridge had not been completed within the time appointed, and that sufficient progress had not been made.

Copies of the resolution, which was moved by Ald. Hamilton, and seconded by Ald. Gordon, were given to Mr. H. L. Seymour, of Mr. Barber's staff, with instruction to have them delivered to-day to John E. Russell, C. J. Townsend and T. H. Navin.

Mr. Townsend Absent.

As a preliminary to the winding up proceedings the council eliminated from the report of the Committee of the Whole, the recommendation that a settlement be made with the Russell, Townsend Company at $6500, for their claim for extra fees on the extra work on the bridge provided the company furnished the Council a detailed statement of the extra work on which they based their claim, and also providing the detailed statement justified the payment.

Mr. Townsend has already disappointed us twice," remarked Ald. Hamilton. "This is the third time. He does not seem to be trying to work in harmony with us. The best thing we can do is to have the engineer notify Mr. Townsend that we want him to stop the work at once.

Adopted Unanimously.

"We want this unanimous," said the Mayor, calling for the vote on the resolution, which had been promptly introduced by Ald. Hamilton and Ald. Gordon. It passed with only a casual comment.

Ald. Gordon declared that the Council's action was justified by Mr. Townsend's failure to fulfil his promise to supply the council with the details of the extras his company claimed in connection with the work. "We have to take this action in order that money may not be frittered away as it has been all these weeks," he said. "It was thought best to ask Mr. Barber to give the requisite notice. If the Russell-Townsend Company have a claim for extras let them present it in the usual way. We can check it up

A. L. Bradford, staff correspondent of the United Press at Washington is the man who is keeping Examiner readers in touch with developments in connection with the coming conference of the five Great Powers on the limitation of armaments and the problems of the Pacific.

BRADFORD

He has been in the newspaper game since he was 18 years old, having served his "cub" days on the Post in his native city of Washington. From there he went to Philadelphia and on his return to Washington entered news agency work, coming to the United Press two years ago.

He has made an unusual record for himself in covering State Department news in the American capital.

Monday: Henry Wood, chief of the Rome Bureau of the United Press, whose work as a war correspondent during the Great War was signalized by some of the most outstanding features of newspaper work during that period, and who was decorted by the French, Serbian and Montenegrin Governments.

WOUNDED FASCISTI MURDERED BY HOSPITAL ORDERLIES CARRYING SURGEONS KNIVES NEAR SARZANA.

SITUATION THREATENS OVERTHROW CABINET

BY HENRY WOOD,
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ROME, July 23. — The Fascisti-Communist horrors in Sarzana today threatened the overthrow of the present Italian cabinet.

As a result of the State's position the Socialist groups have decided to vote against the Cabinet's programme. This leaves as its only faithful supporters the popular and reformist group, which will probably not give it the majority necessary to existence, it was believed.

Reports to-day from the fight area stated that twenty had been killed and at least thirty wounded. Despatches from Sarzana described the murders of wounded Fascisti by hospital orderlies carrying surgeon's knives. The despatches stated they knifed their victims as they lay painfully wounded on the ground where they had fallen fighting.

Just before the adjournment of the Chamber of Deputies early to-day, the "knifing" report was read. Senator Rupi, enraged at the horror of the report, leaped upon the platform and cried, "The murderers are worse than cannibals. Can we still talk peace. The government must act. God knows what will happen."

All Florence theatres were closed as a sign of mourning. Flags were at half mast.

The Fascisti, strongly opposed to the pacifism of the government, passed resolutions to exclude Premier Bonami from the peace negotiations and decided to continue direct negotiations with the Socialists.

MONTREAL BANK HAS A $20,000 FUND SHORTAGE

INSPECTORS AND DETECTIVES INVESTIGATE BUT ANNOUNCE THAT SHORTAGE IS DUE TO AN ERROR.

MONTREAL, July 23.—(Canadian Press).—Inspectors of the Bank of Hochelaga reported a shortage in funds of the branch at the corner of Mount Royal Avenue and St. Denis Street, amounting to around $20,000. Inspectors of the bank and of the insurance company protecting, together with operatives of the William J. Burns Detective Agency, Limited, are investigating.

It was stated last night by an official of the bank that the shortage had arisen through an error by one of the accountants or other employes of the bank, and that no one was under suspicion in connection with the affair.

RETAILERS START BIG BUYING BOOM

CONFIDENT BUSINESS DEPRESSION IS OVER—GARMENT DISTRIBUTORS GIVE BIG ORDERS.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The buying boom is on.

Retailers, throughout the country, stakin gthousands that business will take a big jump in the fall, are laying in big stocks for the first time in years.

"Business is bound to take a leap upward," Alfred Santl, buyer for large departmental stores from San Francisco to Boston, told the United Press to-day.

Heavy Demand.

"Garment retailers I represent, are placing huge orders. The demand has taken such a sudden upward trend in the last few weeks that we have been forced to double our staff.

"It is a different kind of buying from the pre-war days. The demand is for staple goods, not frills. People are going to buy stocks, underwearand shirts — not fancy vests, All they want are utilities and necessities.

"There is no doubt that the public will make a big demand for necessities in September and October. For the last few years many merchants have feared to lay in new stocks in huge quantities, and have been selling what they had on hand. But now there is evidences that they are convinced that we have traversed a few more miles on that road back to normal and are preparing for the rush.

'It's been a long time coming, but now it's here.

"There's going to be a business jubilation in the fall, and it's time the boys were getting on the band wagon."

FULL RANGE OF DOMINION HOME RULE OFFERED

SO IRISH CORRESPONDENT OF TIMES FORECASTS AS BRITISH PROPOSAL FOR AN IRISH SETTLEMENT.

LONDON, July 23. —(Canadian Press.)—It probably will be found, on publication of the Cabinet's offer to Ireland, the Parliamentary correspondent of the London Times decalres, that with a single exception, certain military safeguards are reserved for the Imperial parliament and that a full range of Dominion authority is to be offered alike to the parliament of the south and the parliament of the north.

'If the north were to decline new powers," the correspondent says, "the southren parliament would be able to exercise them in 26 counties under its jurisdiction. The powers include the control of taxation and customs and the control of police and apparently the establishment of a territorial force is not excluded."

FRENCH NAVAL CHIEF BELIEVES IN BATTLESHIP

VICE-ADMIRAL GRASSET HOLDS CONFLICT IS AIM OF SEA WARFARE AND FAVORS USE OF HEAVY TYPE VESSEL.

LONDON. — (By Mail). — The French have been setting their naval house in order, according to the naval correspondent of The Morning Post. Although very little new construction is being undertaken for the present, the French navy has received a very welcome and important reinforcement to the fleet in the shape of certain ex-German light cruisers —a class of vessel in which France is very deficient—and also destroyers.

The French Mediterranean squadron, the command of which will be taken in June by Vice-Admiral Salaun, will consist eventually of four battleships, three armored cruisers and twelve destroyers. All these vessels and eight ex-German destroyers, which will join the squadron later on, will be in full commission. As a reserve to the Mediterranean squadron three battleships, one armored cruiser and some destroyers will be kept in commission with reduced crews.

Reform in Personnel.

Drastic measures have been taken to rid the navy of the undesirable elements which were introduced under the pressure of the war. Certain of the arsenals and dockyards are known to be the headquarters of men with whom the undermining of order and discipline is the primary aim, and ships which have spent too large a proportion of their time in the vicinity have suffered accordingly. Hence the necessity of cruises, in order to restore the healthy sea-spirit.

The Ministry of Marine, together with the naval staff, has recently been reorganized, and with the addition of a historical section the naval lessons of the war are being studied with that thoroughness which is so typical of the French. The new chief of the naval staff—Vice-Admiral Grasset—is a gunnery specialist and a believer in battleships, or rather in the battle as the aim of naval warfare. France, like this country, has two schools of naval thought. Beyond the influence which a chief of staff can bring to bear, it is not yet possible to perceive any certain indication as to the future navy.

Wants Merchant Marine Reorganized.

Rear Admiral Daveluy, the well-known authority, has come to the conclusion that financial reasons and the strength of the late Allies render it necessary for France to be content with a second-class navy. Admiral Daveluy is impressed with the necessity of regarding the mercantile marine as part of the navy in peace as well as in war, and urges its reorganization with this object in view.

A contributor to Le Matin, believed to be Vice-Admiral Fournier, discussing the battleship versus submarine problem, comes to the conclusion that the former still holds primary place in the composition of a fleet, while the submarine is essential for home coast defense and may replace the battleship in controlling inclosed seas—the Mediterranean, for instance.

The French navy is also studying the functions of aircraft in naval warfare, but although the Mediterranean is an ideal locality for the operations of submarines and aircraft, there does not appear to be any tendency in official circles to jump to hasty conclusions. France suffered navaly for many years on account of an exaggerated view as to the potentialities of the torpedo boat. She is apparently taking precautions to ensure that her future naval policy will not be based on erroneous deductions.

FRENCH READY TO ORDER MEN INTO SILESIA

BRIAND ASKS GERMANY TO INSURE SAFE CONDUCT OF DIVISION WHICH IS EXPECTED TO BE ORDERED TO ADVANCE AT ONCE.

PARIS, July 23.— (Canadian Press.)—Premier Briand, following the meeting of the Council of Ministers at Rambouillet yesterday, has dispatched a telegram to Berlin requesting that the German government take all necessary steps to insure the safe conduct through Germany of the new division of troops which, it is said in official circles, will be ordered to Silesia within a few hours.

UNDESIRABLES WEEDED OUT

PROVINCIAL POLICE CLEANING UP DISTRICT ABOUT NIAGARA HYDRO ENTERPRISES.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 23. — (Canadian Press).—Provincial police on special duty here under Inspector Paxton continued yesterday their warfare upon undesirables who have been attracted to this area by reason of the thousands of men engaged on the Hydro-Electric enterprises. At least 25 more were yesterday added to the inspectors' "catch," and most of those whom officers escorted from the area were of a type of which the community may well be deprived. Gentlemen of the not essential gambling fraternity, bootleggers and brewers of powerful concoctions figured in yesterday afternoon's round up, and last night more of them are at a safe distance from the area covered by the inspector and his constables.

Iceland is planning to combine salt production with contemplatd electric power stations and with mining and smelting of iron.

IRISHMEN WOULD LOSE BIRTHRIGHT

LONDON, July 23.—(Canadian Press).—An interesting possible consequence to Irish-Canadians and Irish citizens of other Dominions in the event that an Irish Republic is ever establislhed, is pointed out by the Morning Post to-day. It is that Irishmen throughout the Dominions would automatically lose their birth right in the British Empire and would be faced by the necessity of choosing whether to adhere to the Empire or Ireland.

HUNGER STRIKE IN IRISH CAMP

MAL-TREATMENT OF PRISONERS IS ALLEGED.

CORK, July 23. — (Canadain Press.)—A hunger strike among persons interned in Bere Island internment camp in Bantry Bay, as a protest against their treatment, is reported by the chief Republican liason officer. He states that letters and parcels cannot be received in the camp and that the flour furnished is so bad bakers refuse to make bread of it.

GROWING PINES UNDER GLASS.

In the last few weeks tiems have been going the rounds of the Canadian press, doubtless clipped from United States papers advising farmers to stop erosion in the gullies on their farms and render these waste places productive by planting longleaf and shortleaf pines. The advice in regard to the gullies is good, but if the farmers want to grow longleaf and shortleaf pines they will have to put a glass roof over the gullies and apply artificial heat. The native home of these pines is "way down in Tennessee" and they do not grow satisfactorily north of Virginia. But Canadians need not be downhearted, because they can grow better trees than these southern pines. There is a large amount of information available in Canada as to what trees to grow. Provincial foresters are glad to give information and the Dominion Forestry branch has published two bulletins which may be had free upon application to the directory of forestry, Ottawa. They are No 1 "Thee-Planting on the Prairies" for the prairie provinces and No. 69 "Care of the Woodlot" for the other provinces.

INJURIES END M.P.P.'S LIFE

JOHN CALDER, NORTH OXFORD, DIES AFTER BEING STRUCK AND KNOCKED FROM BEAM BY PULLY OF HAY FORK.

WOODSTOCK, July 23.—(Canadian Press.)—John Calder, M.L.A. for North Oxford, died early this morning, following an accident sustained yesterday afternoon while assisting with the haying on his farm.

Mr. Calder was in the hay mow standing on a beam when a pulley carrying the hay fork snapped and struck Mr. Calder behind the head, knocking him to the floor below, a distance of some thirteen feet. He sustained a fracture of the skull, a broken nose and other severe injuries. He was carried into the house in an unconscious condition. Three doctors were soon on hand, but they were helpless, and Mr. Calder died without regaining consciousness.

John Calder was born in East Nissouri about 56 years ago and has lived there all his life. He is survived by his widow and four children.

THE FUTURE OF CHINA.

(Hong Kong News.)

Hong Kong is one of two main entrepots of a vast territory populated by over four hundred million people who are just awakening to the country's possibilities of industrial and commercial development. Who, then, can measure the future greatness of our port? If we have regard to passenger traffic alone, what great possibilities the future holds! The Chinese people have scarcely begun to travel yet. But twenty years ago the number of Japanese who traveled to Europe and America did not seriously count with the shipping companies. Now they represent a percentage of the traveling public which is by no means negligible. It is only twenty-five years ago that we saw the first Japanese steamer inaugurating a service to Europe that has grown to such large proportions. Japan, in that short period, has developed a magnificent mercantile fleet, which is now operating in all the oceans of the world. China is still in its very infancy in this respect, but we cannot doubt that the time will come when the growing ambition for national prestige among the Chinese people will find expression in the same direction.

ABOUT THE PUMPS.

Are the people of Peterborough helping to pay Germany's war indemnity?

That seems a strange question, and yet the discovery that the Swiss firm which secured the contract for the pumps for the filtration plant is practically controlled by German capital, according to R. G. Dun & Company, makes the query a pertinent one.

It is an unfortunate twist of events that Peterborough workmen, who might have been employed making the pumps required, are idle, while the contract goes to a firm whose list of directors has a pronounced Teutonic flavour.

THE BASEBALL SCANDAL.

The evidence that is being given in the trial of the former Chicago American League players charged with "throwing" games in the 1919 world's series with Cinrinnati, is, it must be admitted, startling. And yet the wonder is that in professional baseball, with the opportunities that present themselves for dishonest playing, there should have been so little scandal, and that cases like that being heard at Chicago are so rare. The gambling element—that is, the professional bettors who never take a chance if they can bet on a certainty—are to blame for the trouble of 1919, as they have been to blame for the ruin of many a fine athlete. These gentry, who resort to any length to arrange a wager that they cannot lose, are not courageous enough to depend upon their own judgment in selecting a winner—they prefer to leave nothing to luck, but rather to make sure that they cannot lose. Such men bespoil and sully every sport they lay their dirty hands upon, and if there is any way of reaching the culprits who planned the coup in the 1919 world series, every fair-minded sporting enthusiast will hope that the offenders receive the stiffest punishment that can be accorded them.

THE VETERANS' MOVEMENT.

The efforts that are being made to weld the different Veterans' Associations into one representative body comprising the vast majority of the returned men have been commenced to late to be effective. Two years ago there might have been some hope of accomplishing the organisation now aimed at, but the opportunity was lost, and will not present itself again. The companionship and spirit of brotherhood engendered by common sharing of danger and adventure and hardship have begun to fade, as it was inevitable they would fade when the khaki was exchanged for the garb of everyday life, and men drifted back into their old civilian habits and circles. They were all one in the great adventure overseas, but back at home they have found their former stations in life and picked up their careers where they left them. As the war moves further and further back into the past the ties binding returned men together become weaker and weaker until the amalgamation of all ex-service men into one great body appears to be a hopeless task. The framework of such an organisation might be arranged, but it would be little better than a shell. Only a comparative handful of the men who fought could be induced to throw themselves enthusiastically into such a movement.

THE OTONABEE.

It is often a mater for conjecture whether the people of Peterborough appreciate the asset they have in the beautiful river that flows through the city. Strangers come here and admire it, and envy the people who live on its banks, but the most of us take the Otonabee as a matter of course. We know that it supplies us with the water that comes through the mains, that it furnishes us with the power that runs our industries and our street railway system and our moving picture shows and that lights our homes, and that it affords us part of our ice supply.

Some Peterborough folks find pleasure swimming in its cool waters during the summer months. Others appreciate the boating and the fishing opportunities it provides, and below the city many people have discovered that a summer camp provides a pleasant and cheap outing. But as a community we don't get all the enjoyment we should out of the beautiful stream. We have failed to take advantage of our heritage. There should be lovely drive ways along each side of it; there should be more parks close to the water's edge; there should be proper bathing places. Canoe clubs and rowing clubs, with proper headquarters, should flourish here, and the Otonabee should have the place in the summer life of the community that ts beauty deserves.

WOMEN LEGISLATORS.

Two women, new to legislative halls, but well known in the political circles of their province and beyond its borders in all parts of Canada, have been elected members of the Alberta House. They are Mrs. Nellie MClung, of Edmonton, and Mrs. Walter Parlby, of Lacombe, who has been president of the United Farm Women of Alberta for a number of years.

Before the election there were four women members of Provincial Parliaments in Canada, and notwithstanding the addition of two, there are no more women members than there were. The reason is that one of the former members, Mrs. L. C. McKinney, of Claresholm, Alberta, was defeated; and the other, Mrs. J. H. Price—better known as Miss Roberta MacAdams — was without a constituency, she having been one of the two overseas representatives elected in 1917.

All six women were elected in the three Western Legislatures of British Columbia, Manitoba, and Alberta, the latter claiming four of them. Eight women ran in the Alberta elections, and the six defeated represented almost every political shade, one being a Government candidate, one a Conservative, one a Farmer, one an Independent, one a Labour, and one a Socialist. When Mrs. Arthur Rogers was elected in Winnipeg, three other women went down to defeat. Mrs. McKinney, a U. F. A. candidate, was defeated by an Independent Farmer, Thomas Milnes.

It is notable that Mrs. McKinney was the first woman in the British Empire to become a member of Parliament. She has been prominent in Women's Christian Temperance Union organisations, both Dominion and Provincial, for more than 25 years.

Hon. Mary Ellen Smith, of Vancouver, was the first woman to hold a portfolio. Now it is being suggested that Mrs. Parlby may receive a Cabinet post in Alberta because of her position in the farm women's organisation.

None of the women members is so well known as Mrs. McClung, who is a vivid personality to many in the most rural parts of Canada. For Mrs. McClung is one of the best sellers of any Canadian author, and her books are in almost every library. Like Mrs. McKinney, she is an ardent Prohibitionist, and has done some very successful stumping for the cause. She is at her best when fighting — a characteristic which should make her a powerful member of the Opposition.

Both the new members have high plaes among prominent Canadian women, and those who know them believe they will enliven proceedings at the coming session of the Alberta Legislature.—Ottawa Journal.

EIFFEL SAYS TOWER WILL LAST FOREVER

ITS ONLY ENEMY IS RUST SAYS BUILDER OF FRENCH ENGINEERING MARVEL.

PARIS, July 23.—"The Eiffel Tower will last forever. Its only enemy is rust, and we are taking all precautions against it," declares Gustav Eiffel, its builder, in an interview in which he gives a few hitherto unknown details regarding the great structure, which last week was the scene of a luncheon for American engineers.

M. Eiffel is now 89 years old, but in his small apartment on the highest platform of his tower he gets the freshest air in Paris and is confident that he has found the secret of long life.

"I feel strong enough to live more than a hundred years," he said, "but this tower will be good for a thousand years, and it will show perhaps hundreds of generations the details of nineteenth century engineering clearer than any text book. Think of it! For only a bare 8,000,000 francs in twenty-five months modern engineering put up a structure weighing 15,000,000 pounds."

M. Eiffel estimated that there are more than 15,000 separate pieces in the tower, held together by 2,500,000 rivets, and it is to these riveted joints that the greatest care must be directed to prevent a terrible catastrophe some day.

Besides anti-rust paint scores of preparations have been experimented with, all guaranteed to prevent corrosion, but the field is still open to some inventor to produce a real protection that will be unaffected by wind, water or summer heat.

LONDON PUBS OPEN LONGER

DECIDE TO REFORM CONDITIONS DUE TO INCREASE IN DRUNKENNESS.

LONDON, July 23.—While America is debating the results of applied prohibition, London is to be granted a nine-hour drinking day under a new bill introduced in the House of Commons. The new drinking hours will take the place of the six and a half hours in which drinking is permitted at present.

Under the new measure, London saloons will be allowed to dispense liquors between the hours of 11 a.m. and 11 p.m., but must remain closed for three hours during that period. Hotels and restaurants will be permitted, mainly for the benefit of tourists, to serve drinks until midnight provided that food is also served.

The hotel and restaurant feature is designed in order to remove the reproach of Americans that London is the dullest city in Europe. Under the present law after-theatre parties are impossible. Now while drinks must be ordered in restaurants before midnight patrons may have until 12.30 to consume their liquors.

Another important provision of the new law permits the sale of whiskey of pre-war strength. The restrictions, which it is now proposed to abolish, resulted in an increase of 65 per cent. in convictions for drunkenness in 1920.

Co-incident with the announcement that John Barleycorn is getting almost his pre-war footing in England, the House of Lords voted down an attempt by Lord Astor to establish state control of the liquor traffic. The measure was defeated mainly by a speech of the Lord Chancellor who contrasted the Statue of Liberty with the "shackles of prohibition thrown around the limbs of the American people."

Seven months ago Freddy Guest, the Chief Government Whip, wagered Lord Birkenhead $50,000 against $250 that the Chancellor would keep on the "water wagon" for twelve months. Lord Birkenhead has assured his friends that he survived the heat wave without liquor and is confident that he will win the big bet.

A Story of the Child Whose Appetite Ran to Ice Cream, Cake and Candy

The report by Dr. A. W. McPher... with regard to infection of ... schools, in which ... ded a large ... number of ... city suffer... from ... as alarming ... e like the ... der observ... ght be an ... thing which ... like those ...

Her ... father carried a stage ... which ... he jostled with care and presented to ... her. She bit a piece off, and immediately ... that it fell on the sawdust ... floor of the butcher shop.

"There, what did I tell you," cried the man triumphantly, "I knew that banana was no good when I bought it." The mother said, "I'll go and get her a decent one. Just wait a moment, dear." She went out. The father took the banana from the child and threw it out of the door. "She isn't feeling well," he explained to a bystander, "she won't eat anything. She wouldn't have a thing for supper but a cup of tea, and no milk in that either. She won't take milk at all." Here the mother reentered, and announced that there were no ripe bananas to be had. "She won't eat anything," she explained loudly. "Her father went out and got her some cakes for her supper and she ate most of them, and when we came up town, she said she would have an ice cream cone. She just finished the second one. We'll have to get her some more cakes, I guess. She hasn't eaten a thing all day but some ice cream and candy and popcorn." "Milk? Oh, she won't touch milk at all." And, full of pride in the originality of their offspring, they departed with the three-year-old who had decided she wouldn't drink milk, and therefore didn't drink it.

Swimming Pool at Y.W.C.A. Popular Resort in Hot Weather

The swimming pool at the Y.W.C.A. continues to be a popular resort in the warm weather. There is a good attendance at the various classes during the week. All and sundry may come in the afternoon, and everyone is welcome. On Monday evenings, there is a class for business girls at 7 o'clock, and club classes at eight. Tuesday evening is for advanced swimmers. Wednesday repeats Monday's programme, Thursday is open night for all and Friday has club classes at 7 o'clock. The pool is cleaned out thoroughly once a week, drained and washed, and the water is renewed during the week ...

Last year, the pool was opened in March, when a slight recurrence of influenza epidemic hurt the attendance to a certain extent. This year the opening took place in ..., and the pool will probably be open until the end of September or on into October. A short course of lessons may be inaugurated at the end of the term.

The Y.W.C.A. Camp at Burleigh is going full swing. From all reports, the girls are having a fine time. Any benevolent-minded person having too many vegetables in his garden for his own use might remember the Y.W.C.A. Camp. They guarantee to take care of any troublesome surplus of this sort.

LOOKING ON THE BRIGHTER SIDE.

Beneath the auto's wheels he lay.
A crushed and bleeding mass;
With awful speed it came that way
Ere he could dodge, alas!
But, being one who always tried
To look upon the brighter side,
He feebly smiled at those who sought
To set him free, and gave
Half-gasped expression to this thought
At once sublime and brave:
"No gallows shall be built for me,
And I will never die at sea."
—Quot.

Fall Fashions

Some of the garments illustrated in Women's Wear for fall use are extremely ineresting in material and style. They represent the ideas of Canadian designers and are made from Canadian-made materials. One is a novelty suit composed of black velvet in three-quarter length. It has a choker collar, belt and sleeve-bands of gray lamb. The next is a long coat of gloria cloth in a soft brown, lined with canton crepe. Collar and cuffs are kolinsky squirrel and the trimming around the bottom is of silk braid with chenille embroidery. An appliqued design on the skirt and straps over the breast are of silk duvetyn in an ochre shade. Another coat is of navy French broadcloth with collar and bands across the back panel of Australian opossum and black silk hand embroidery, and still another is of brown velour, in wrappy effect, with beaver collar and exquisite embroidery design on the back panel.

A suit with a long coat is of fine French tricotine with self-strapping on the seams. The back panel has open seams, a feature of some of the exclusive conservative models of the season.

An attractive little dress for autumn wear is made of black crepe de chine with rows of deep black fringe on bodice and skirt, beneath which are motifs of hand embroidery in gay colors. The sash is of black cire ribbon.

Building Shortage

According to the "Annalist," the building shortage in the United States now amounts to the number of houses erected in a year and a half of normal construction. To make good this deficit in a single year would require construction at two and one-half times the pre-war rate and it would necessitate the spending of $1,500,000,000.

It is esimated that the building done in 1917 left a shortage of 40 p.c., in 1918 of 69 p.c., 1919 of 25 p.c., and the first seven months of 1920 of 17 p.c.—making an accumulated production deficit of 151 p.c.

Gifts For Children's Aid Society

The Children's Aid Society was the recipient this year of gifts, including a football, a sand box and four swings. The latter were the donation of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E. and Mr. James Hamilton contributed a teeter-totter for the boys. This last useful article of amusement appears to be the only one of the gifts that has yet been made available for the kiddies. They can teeter and totter all they like, but the rest of the play equipment hasn't been installed. It may be siad quite truly to be still "in the air," and this is particularly true of the swing, for all that has been erected for the use of these so far is a gallows-like arrangement of two posts and a cross-piece. The children will have to take their swings in imagination for some time to come, evidently.

There are ten youngsters at the Shelter just now, five boys and five girls. They are a happy, healthy-looking little bunch, swarming all over the place, into the berry bushes, where the girls pick fruit in bright sun bonnets, and through the house where Mr. and Mrs. Rogers have been living in a sort of permanent atmosphere of houseclenaing time ever since the painters and paper-hangers started in to renovate the old building. The children sleep downstairs, in a sort of "pick-up" fashion, until the workmen have finished. The fresh paint and paper put on so far makes a decided improvement, and if completed in accord with the commencement of the work, will make a great improvement in the whole house.

Those busy housewives who are engaged in putting up fruit should not fail to set aside a jar for the Children's Shelter. Such gifts will be welcome in the long winter months.

Disquieting Figures

In his recent budget speech, Sir Henry Drayton gave some disquieting figures with regard to the amount of business which is diverted yearly to the United States. Canadian exports to that country amounted to $542,304,456 of domestic, and $8,379,342 of foreign produce while our imports amounted to $856,593,470, resulting in an unfavorable trade balance between the two countries of $295,909,672. This large unfavorable balance, coupled with the largely increased invisible payments which have to be made to American holders of Canadian securities and investments, of necessity creates a heavy demand for New York exchange, resulting in a premium on New York funds. The real balance against Canada is also increased by the aggregate of the discount on Canadian money in New York, as the trade figures do not include the resultant increased cost to the Canadian producer.

entitled "Women's Wear", which is course, that a very fair share of this amount of imported goods from across the border is bought and used by women, and it would seem like a very patriotic endeavor for Canadian women to band together and endeavor to make a change in these days. A very smart little publication Canadian made goods throughout. An published in Toronto, makes a specialty of boosting and advertising Canadian made goods. Everything about this fine publication is the product of Canadian industry; the photographs were made in Canada, the drawings were executed by Canadian artists, the illustrations are of Canadian made good throughout. An editorial in the June number says in part:

"When you spend your money in Canada for Canadian products, it circulates; it comes back to you in the form of employment or profits, depending on your occupation. When you buy foreign made goods your money moves away from you, you have taken the results of Canadian effort and employed it to cause descreased profits and decreased employment in Canada."

And, "if a better appreciation is to become general of the value of goods made in Canada, the initiative must be taken by those whose interest lie in having it so. It is true that it is to everyone's interest to foster Canadian industry, but it is difficult to convince most people that it is one of their prime interests It is useless to expect that the buying public will suddenly start to demand Canadian products and be satisfied with nothing else. It is also too much to expect that retail merchants will abstain from buying American made goods when they are offered goods at an attractive price or something they know their customers will buy quickly. The manufacturers of Canadian goods are the ones most interested and from them must come the impulse that will place domestic manufactures in their proper place."

"While Paris and New York may be supreme as the centres where styles are originated, these styles can be obtained from Canadian makers just as quickly and just as good as they can from makers across the border. Canadian goods are equal in style, in quality and in value to anything made in foreign countries."

TIME TO ACT.

Most of us, when young, took stock in the saying that "everything comes to him who waits." Later in life we learned the valuable truth that the best things come only to him who does not wait. This is an age of active voice, present tense, first person. He who sits passive, expecting things to drift his way, is invariably disappointed with what he gets; for little but wreckage drifts.

Act energetically, intelligently, persistently, with your eyes fixed on your goal. When you reach it, you may be battered, disillusioned, alone— but success soon draws a crowd. —Ambition.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentry, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BABY BYRNE.

Has Never Caused One Disturbed Night.

27, York Street,
Sacriston, Durham.

Dear Sir,

I am sending a photograph of my baby Alice, aged 12 months, who has had Virol since birth. Though very tiny at birth, and artificially fed since two weeks old, she has never required medical advice, nor given me one disturbed night. Her weight is now 22½ lbs., and she has nine teeth, which she has cut without trouble. She is a most lovable and happy baby, and I am very grateful for the great benefit she has derived from Virol.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) (Mrs.) M. BYRNE.

Virol is used in large quantities in more than 2,000 Hospitals and Infant Clinics. It is invaluable for the expectant and nursing mother herself, whilst for children it supplies those vital principles that are destroyed in the sterilization of milk; it is also a bone and tissue-building food of immense value. Virol babies have firm flesh, strong bones and good colour.

"E" is a Jonah

"The most unfortunate letter in the alphabet, some say, is the letter 'e,' because it is always out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger and in hell all the time. That's all true. Still it is never in war, always in peace, and always in something to eat. It is the beginning of existence, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no life, no heaven. It is the centre of honesty and is always in love. It is the beginning of encouragement and the end of failure."

The letter "e" may also be regarded as the hardest-worked letter in the alphabet. In a count of words aggregating 10,000 letters, "e" occurred 1,277 times, "t" 955 times, "o" 807 times, "a" 778 times, "n" 696 times, and "i" 667 times, etc. Next to the letter "e" the order of frequency is as follows: E, t, o, a, n, i, r, s, h, d, l, u, c, m, p, f, y, w, g, b, v, k, j, x, z, q.

"Guard within yourself that treasure, kindness. Know how to give without hesitation, how to lose without regret, how to acquire without meanness."

Naming Royalty

The real names of kings and queens are not exceptionally fancy. For instance, Queen Victoria's maiden name was Victoria Azon. The founder of the queen's family house of Azon was the Margrave of Este who died in 964. Victoria Azon married Albert Wettin; so George V. is really George Wettin. Wettin is also the name of the late King Leopold of Belgium, and of the former kings, Albert of Saxony and Ferdinald of Bulgaria. Wettin, who died in 1156, was a descendant of Wittekind, a contemporary of Charlemagne. The king of Denmark, the recent king of Greece, and the late czar of Russia claimed to be descended from Wittekind and may be, but their real name is Oldenburg. Alfonso of Spain's name is Capet. The late Francis Joseph of Austria was not a Hansburg, but plain Fleuss. Victor of Italy is Savoy. The king of Sweden is Bernadotte, the queen of the Netherlands is Mecklenburg, and the real name of the recent ruler of Germany is plain Zollern, first changed to Brandenburg and then to Hohenzollern.

Funeral Trappings

What is the psychological reason that lies behind all the money that is expended at a funeral? A man who lay for most of his life's nights on an imitation oak bedstead or a camp cot will go down to his last resting-place in a solid casket with a hundred-dollar outer box to enclose it. The face that reddened in wind and sun for many long years will suffer a cruel contrast from puffy silk frillings, and the limp body is weighed down by pounds of useless ornaments on lid and sides. Is it the excusable feeling that, after all, this is the final tribute of a sorrowing family, is it a sort of penitent repayment for living slights, or is it, truthfully, just a manifestation of pride? However, it is, the habit survives and many a lone widow is burdened for years with extra debts of her own contriving. The man who owns a car and not a cent of life insurance or the one who has just finished paying for a $400 phonograph, makes his exit from life in a sudden manner, and his wife and family spend several hundreds in his obsequies. Friends who never gave him a thought, perhaps, in lifetime, wil send a costly wreath of flowers, an epensive box is purcnased for will send a costly wreath of flowers, night, and all the trappings and gauds of a stylish funeral are indulged in. Suppose a plain pine box were purchasd, (pine will live in the earth when other words have crumbled away) suppose the money expended on flowers were gathered together and presented to the survivors, if needy, suppose most of the pomp and display of the ceremoney were omitted, would it make a deal of difference to the departed spirit? Would he not rest easier in mind with the knowledge that his passing had not added one more burden, and that a financial one, to the bitter grief of his taking away?

Good Dressing

Mdlle. Norka Rouskaya, the premiere danseuse now appearing at the Hippodrome in New York, is a recognized authority on good dressing. In her Spanish numbers she uses rich and rare old Spanish shawls and materials from that country in exact reproduction of national costumes. One of the recent acquisitions to her wardrobe was a gown of draped white satin drawn into soft folds at the back over which, falling from the waist line, was a wide panel of the same material, forming a train. The belt and shoulder straps were formed from a narrow single banding of curiously designed beads. A bodice of wide black satin ribbon was drawn through the shoulder straps at the back and tied in a huge bow, the bow ends falling to the floor in a fish tail train. The train was edged with a fine line of black ribbon. With this costume, Mdlle. Rouskaya wore white silk stockings and shoes and carried a large black feather fan. Brilliant touches were given to the costume by her gold tinted turban with a flaring black bird of Paradise.

Rinso

Rinso can be used with cold water as well as with warm. Rinso is as harmless as pure water itself. Try this easy way of washing next Monday.

At Night—Soak the clothes in the rich Rinso suds.

Morning—Rinse them in either warm or cold water—that's all! They're ready for the line—clean and fresh.

LEVER BROTHERS LIMITED, TORONTO

If you have a washing machine—Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean—even the most soiled spots.

Wedding Customs

In Norway, the bridal costumes are very beautiful, with ribbons of gold and silver, long neck-chains and a crown upon the head. In Germany, a special messenger is sent with investigations to those whose presence is desired at the ceremony, announcing his mission in a loud, sonorous voice. In Slav weddings, the bride is fetched by the groom, emblematic of the time when his forbears carried their mates away forcibly. At Albanian weddings, the bride weeps and shows great reluctanice at leaving home, and the groom presents his lady with her bridal costume. In Russia, the selection of the contracting parties is made by parents or guardians and it is not good form for the groom to see the bride more than once before the ceremony. As divorce is practically unknown in this country, the pair, in case of disagreement, simply agree to live apart, the husband taking the boys and the wife the girls, in case of a large family. In Roumania, out-dood weddings are popular. Both the bride and groom wear white, and crowds of peasants in gay attire, assemble in the square to witness the ceremony under the open sky.

PRACTICAL NOTES.

Save all cereal boxes, especially the round rolled oats boxes, also covers, and use as a receptacle for burnt matches and scrap paper and store with wood for use next winter.

When maple syrup is not available a very good syrup may be made by combining brown and granulated sugar. The granulated sugar may be caramelized before the brown sugar is added. This gives the syrup an entirely different taste, more like the maple flavor.

Melt 1 cup of granulated sugar in an aluminum sauce pan. Let the melted sugar become a pale amber color. Add 1 cup of brown sugar and one-half cup hot water. Boil till the syrup spins a thread when a spoon is dipped into the boiling mass.

To prevent icing from running off while being spread, lightly dust the cake with cornstarch.

If every traveller would set her trunk on boxes while packing the work would be done with half the labor and minus the backache.

A cloth wrung out of very hot water and applied often will remove discoloration from a bruise. Witch hazel or vinegar can be used in the water.

The charcoal may be scattered loosely through the shelves of the icebox or put in a little container of some sort and a jar placed in each compartment. It is so very porous that it absorbs and condenses gases rapidly.

MOTHERS!

WATCH YOUR TEETHING BABIES

THOUSANDS OF THEM DIE EVERY SUMMER

When the baby stars to cut teeth, then is the time the poor mother is under the stress of great anxiety. The child's bowels become loose and diarrhoea, dysentry, colic, cramps and many other bowel complaints manifest themselves; the gums become swollen, cankers form in the mouth, and in many cases the child wastes to a shadow, and very often the termination is fatal.

On the first indication of any looseness of the bowels, give a few doses of and thus, perhaps, save your baby's life.

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

For the past 76 years "Dr. Fowler's" has been used by mothers for teething babies so you do not experiment with a new and untried remedy which might be dangerous to your darling's health.

JAM AND MARMALADE HINT.

When making jam or marmalade always add a piece of butter about the size of an egg before removing it from the fire. You find this very good, as it makes the fruit lok clear without skimming it.

HOW TO CARE FOR MILK

If milk is allowed to stand in an open pitcher it very quickly absorbs the taste of any food near it. Either pour any milk or cream back into the bottle and replace the cover, or put a cover of some sort over the bowl before putting in the refrigerator. Milk and butter both require the most careful handling to keep them sweet and untainted.

ALD. HAMILTON REPLIES TO MAYOR; ANALYZES COSTS OF THE BRIDGE

SAYS MAYOR M'INTYRE CATERED TO THE WORKMEN AND THAT THE COUNCIL'S INTERFERENCE WAS CONTRIBUTORY CAUSE TO INEFFICIENCY.

During the discussion at last night's special meeting of the Council of the question of terminating the contract with the Russell Townsend Company for the construction of the Hunter Street Bridge, Ald. Hamilton took occasion to reply to Mayor McIntyre's letters published in The Examiner a few days ago, disputing Ald. Hamilton's reported statement as to labor's share in the expediture.

"I was rather surprised to note a letter in The Examiner a few days ago from Mayor McIntyre re the Hunter Street Bridge," said Ald. Hamilton, "in which he mentioned my name, complaining that I had made statements that the whole extra cost of the bridge was caused by the increased pay granted to the laborers, carpenters, etc., and that he, the Mayor, was responsible for the same. I didn't say that. What I did say, and still contend, is that a great deal of the extra cost of the bridge, that is, the difference between Russell-Townsend's original estimate and the actual cost, was caused not only by the increased rate of wages but also by the low efficiency that the contractors got out of the workmen, and I do claim that the low rate of efficiency was caused to some extent by the Council's attitude.

Shouldn't Have Interfered.

"The contractors should have had an absolutely free hand in dealing with their employees. The Council should not have interfered in this matter at all, but they did. They stipulated that only residents of the city should be employed. They set the rate of wages without consulting the contractors,and they dealt and tr treated with he men hemselves. This weakened the hand of the contractors. They did not have the control of the men which they should have had, and the result was that they did not get even a normal day's work from the men.

The Mayor's Policy.

"Your policy, Mr. Mayor, had been along those lines. That was your policy, and I am not criticizing you for it. You have a perfect right to your opinions and your policy. I say that your policy has always been catering to the men, but I didn't say that you were wholly responsible for all this.

"Everybody knows we did not get the efficiency from the men we should have got. Our experience is not unique. The same thing has applied to all works, whether public or private, that have been done in the last two years. The Hydro have a far worse experience on their hands in connection with the Chippewa power canal, and so have lots of others."

Details of Wage Amount.

Referring to the Mayor's letter, Ald. Hamilton said that there was a discrepancy in the amount of wages therein set out as having been paid to inspectors, overseers, etc. According to the statement of the Mayor, the total of the pay rolls was $245,000, and the total sum paid to carpenters and laborers was $166,214.59, leaving a balance of $78,785.41, which His Worship wrote was paid to overseers, inspectors, etc.

Ald. Hamilton said that the sum of $78,785.41 included the wages of the office staff, the draughting office, watchmen, the cost of wiring and light and teams amounting to some $20,000. The balance of more than $40,000 covered the wages of the foremen over the carpenters and laborers, wages of master mechanics, engineers, blacksmiths, granite finishers, machine hands, riggers and so on down to water boys and also the cost of loading the plant at Toronto.

Ald. Hamilton further stated that in the beginning he had not been in favor of awarding the contract to the Russell Townsend Company. His choice was the Canadian Engineering Company of Hamilton.

"When I saw there was a deadlock," he continued, "I changed my vote in order that we could go ahead with the work, and because I felt that the Russell Townsend Company was a reputable company."

The Mayor's Reply.

"I am sorry I had to defend myself in the paper," replied Mayor McIntyre. "When it appeared in print that you said I was responsible for the cost of the bridge I felt bad. I had not been in favor of letting the contract to the Russell Townsend Company, and I didn't want the statement that I was responsible for the cost to go out that way. I hope there will be no difference between you and me."

Ald. Hamilon—Oh, no, Mr. Mayor.

Mayor McIntyre—I want to go out of the Council a friend with all the members.

Ald. Gordon—I thought the Mayor was going to do a Tommy Church stunt.

Mayor McIntyre — No, I am through this year. Some one else can have the honor.

READJUSTMENT SEVENTY-FIVE PER CENT ACCOMPLISHED, SAYS BUSINESS LEADER

(By GEORGE M. VERITY, President of the American Rolling Mill Co., Middleton, Ohio.)

This is indeed a time for strengthening the morale of the workers of the nation.

Nothing can possibly be gained by undue pessimism or by magnifying the ills of the times.

There is no mystery about the present situation. The war carried us to extreme heights of inflation and then after a very brief respite, we went up again to greater costs and higher prices.

Going up is usually exhilarating, but the coming down is tedious and often distressing.

We have been making the return trip ever since last November, and we still have some distance to cover before we arrive at the foot of the mountain we were six years in climbing, where we can start up the next incline of full employment and more prosperous conditions.

There never was a time in the history of the world when there were so many important, complex and perplexing problems to be solved—but why be dismayed or even discouraged?

It requires large tasks to develop the full strength of men and of nations—nothing else can do it.

The men and the women of the civilized nations of the earth have just won a world war, so gigantic in its proportions, so horrible in its details, so tremendous in its cost, so tragic in its results, as to fairly stagger imagination.

The task that faced each nation as it entered the war was stupendous, but its men and its women bared their backs and one and all acclaimed, "They shall not pass."

If humanity can win in such a tragic ghastly enterprise, it is not going to be shackled or even checked in the solving of the problems of peace.

These are, however, times that require the same spirit of sacrifice and determination that was contributed so generously by all in the winning of the war. Each must see his or her part and do it promptly and resolutely, in order that we may get back to a period of profitable employment for all at the earliest possible date.

Labor is responding to the need of getting back to somewhere near pre-war levels, and as a result, costs of production are rapidly reaching bottom, where prices can be made that will bring a complete return of confidence on the part of the buyers of the country.

The railroad situation is improved, but still requires much of readjustment and of constructive upbuilding to meet the need of the nation.

Agriculture was stunned by the sudden and drastic reversal of conditions, but it has weathered the storm and bids fair to be the first to fully recuperate.

Our financial system has stood the strain splendidly. It is readjusting itself to meet the need of the present situation and it will see us through safely.

In my opinion, seventy-five per cent. of this most unpleasant "road of readjustment" has been traveled and seventy-five per cent. of the cost paid.

A strong steady "all pull together" can soon complete the job.

COAL SITUATION PUZZLES BRITISH

CAN ONLY GUESS AS TO OUTPUT AND TRADE RECOVERY.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Estimating England's coal outputs and her ability to regain her export trade within a given time can be only guesswork, according to P. A. Paddock, of Dexter & Carpenter, who has just returned from a visit to the United Kingdom where he made a study of conditions.

"The English coal producer himself is entirely at sea in regard to what his output will be and the cost of production under the strike settlement terms," says Mr. Paddock, "and the American exporter cannot be expected to have a knowledge which the producer has not.

"Several weeks will be necessary before any accurate estimate can be made on the new cost of producing English coal and perhaps even a longer time will be necessary before England's probable future production will be known.

"There are many factors entering into the case, the least of which is not how many of the mines will be able to compete under the new terms. No one has any accurate knowledge of the aggregate of mines which will never be producers again, and whether or not England will be forced to use some of her low volatile fuel, if there is not produced enough of the former for her domestic use, is another problem awaiting solution."

There is a very strong possibility that England may buy some of her contract coal in the United States in order to regain the hold she formerly held on the export trade as a temporary measure while awaiting the production from her own mines, say several members of the local trade.

A private dispatch to a New York exporter, dated July 8, says that, although production was to begin on the preceding Monday, coal digging in a number of the mines was held up by local disputes, the result of different interpretations of the terms, and the breakdown of electrical equipment. Other advices show many of the mines in a deplorable condition.

Entering into the possibility of England's regaining the foreign market is the question of depression abroad. While all of England's manufacturing plants were closed during the strike, it is problematical how many would have been producing had there not been a strike.

The general depression throughout Europe makes easier England's task, for it gives her a period of time to increase a surplus before the demand gets back anywhere near normal.

RANDOLPH JAILED.

Plotted to Tap His Father For $500,000.

SHARON, Pa., July 23.—Thomas Randolph, alleged "self-abductor," was offered a chance to-day to deny in court that he plotted to obtain a ransom of $50,000 from his father.

With the entire surrounding country excited over the sensational "kidnapping," the ensuing demand for a $50,000 ransom, the "victim's" pleas that the money be sent to save his life, and finally Randolph's sensational flight and surrender late yesterday, Randolph himself lay listless and exhausted on a jail cot.

Special guards watched the prisoner. It was feared that if Randolph's mind were affected, as it appeared to be, he might attempt suicide.

Randolph was exhausted after a long flight by automobile yesterday, during which he drove at hair-raising speed to elude officers who had been informed that the kidnapping did not seem to be the real thing. When the officers took him he almost collapsed.

DAY'S OUTING.

About one hundred and twenty members and friends of the Orpington Road Mission spent an enjoyable day at Hale's Bridge on Wednesday, July 20.

The day was spent in games and singing, and in the various amusements provided at the "Bridge." The usual races were run off successfully to the delight of all.

The boat reached Crawford's Grove, on its return journey, about 8 p.m., where many of its passengers were let off.

KENT CONFESSES

CHAPTER 19. .....

As Kent came over and dropped down on the stool at my knees, burying his head in my lap, I leaned over and turned down the table lamp. It would be easier for him to talk when the light was low. Then I patted his shoulder a little and waited for him to speak.

He was silent a long time—a very long time, it seemed to me.

"Let me take hold of your hand, Babs", he pleaded softly. "It makes it easier to tell you."

I gripped his hand firmly.

'Don't mind telling me, dearest," I answered, reassuringly. "There is no one that can understand any better than I."

"But you don't know yet—oh, Babs!" he cried.

I felt the sickening sensation of dread rush over me again. But I tried to press his hand encouragingly.

'If I should lose your love, Babs," he stopped, and then went on again —"That's why it's so hard to tell. I've tried to tell you each day, and it's been hell living with my thoughts and fears!"

"Yes?" I breathed, trying to steady myself.

"Don't hate me. Don't turn from me when I tell you?" He raised his head and looked yearingly into my face. "It's the—the diamond. It was so easy, and—and—"

A sudden repulsion swept through every nerve and atom of my being. The hand that held mine seemed now to belong to a stranger. I could not bear the slightest contact with it, but Kent gripped my hand fiercely and I could not take it from him.

I dared not speak to him. I only knew that I wanted to get away. My idol had fallen.

After a while I heard Kent's voice again, but it seemed to be part of the terrible ringing in my ears, and I hardly knew what he was saying.

"Business has been so poor, Babs —and, and it was so easy—they have so many things, so many, and I wanted to be able to get things for you."

"For me? Oh, Kent—how could you? I managed to gasp, a shudder creeping down my spine.

Kent turned his head away, still clutching my hand. He was hurting it dreadfully, but I did not mind. I seemed to have lost all sense of feeling.

"Please, Barbara, wait! I've got to tell you now—everything," he cried desperately. "I went up to the Walkers—I accepted their invitation, because some terrible force seemed to compel me to. I don't know what I thought—I sort of expected to find jewels lying around loose in the place. Mrs. Walker did nothing but talk diamonds to me that night at the Biltmore dance. Maybe that is the way a person is tempted.'

He stopped a minute, and his head sagged despondently. It was terrible to see him like that—the man whom I had believed so strong and good.

"And then—Victor Lachman's diamond. We were sitting on the divan talking. He wanted to show me a map—something about South America, and as he took it out of his vest pocket something glittered and fell to the divan between us, almost into my hand—"

He jumped up suddenly as though the recital of the hideous tale had maddened him. I watched him pace back and forth across the room with his hands pressed against the sides of his head. I seemed to be watching him as in a dream.

"Yes," I said, desperately, "go on! I must hear all of it."

"—and then I realized that he did not know he had dropped it. I waited a moment and then slipped it into my pocket."

As Kent stood on I watched him through half doubtful eyes, as though I were trying to decide if he were really my husband, the same Kent Armour whom I have loved so dearly.

"After I had picked it up—and put it in my pocket, I didn't dare say anything. I didn't dare give it back. I just had to keep it," he finished.

Value Of Elastic Viewpoint

Someone has said that an elastic viewpoint is a possession to be desired. In many cases it would seem to be a priceless asset. Take the case of that 20-year-old girl in Baltimore who tried to commit suicide by swallowing poison after her fiance had slighted her for a prettier girl. Instead of indulging in heroics and immediately purchasing some prussic acid or like damaging fluids, suppose she had taken the position that she would rather realize her lover's fickleness before instead of after marriage? Or she might have just set her teeth grimly and resolved to go the other girl one better. Prettiness isn't so much a matter of regular- classical features big eyes and flawless complexion, after all, as it is a general effect. Mae Murray, in "The Gilded Lily," is a ravishing success when she wears a problematical costume of glittering scales and peacock feathers in her hair, but she isn't much at all when she does her hair up in a bun and wears prim, "covering" dresses, in an effort to live the simple life. According to advertisements, the secret of beauty lies in the use of a certain brand of face cream and powder, in the regular nightly wrapping of one's hair around a certain brand of curlers, and in the daily use of a certain brand of hair net. There is no use in denying that attractiveness for women depends to a great extent on outer aids. There are henna washes, wavers, creams and face powders without number, in all sorts of entrancing shades, eyebrow darkeners, artificial eyelashes, lip-sticks, perfumes, depilatories, corsets that are guaranteed to produce any type of figure desired, etc., etc. And there is always for the homely girl that indefinable something which may cause her to be called "cute" if not "pretty," if she can only capitalize it. It may be only a twist to the eyebrow, or a habit of holding the head at a certain angle, a trick with the eyes, something that will redeem her from absolute nonentity, if she will only take the trouble to discover and use it. There was a girl who came to our town recently who had a slight cast in both eyes. She gave one the vague impression of looking off to the right with one eye and to the left with the other. This might be a liability to some girls, but not to this one. She made it an asset. She had a very pretty voice, and nice hair, and could keep one guessing for any length of time as to whether she was really paying attention to the conversation she seemed to be listening to, or was engaged in flirting with somebody across the room. She was "cute," just like any girl can be cut who wants to take the trouble to be attractive to men.

HOT WEATHER RECIPES

Blackberry Fritters.

Mix together one cupful of flour, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one rounding tablespoonful of sugar and half a teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat the yolks of three eggs until lemon-colored, add two-thirds of a cupful of water and gradually mix with the dry ingredients. Beat the batter hard and add one cupful of blackberries, one teaspoonful of melted oleo and the stiffly whipped egg whites. Fry by the large spoonful in deep, hot fat, drain on brown paper and roll while warm in powdered sugar and ground cinnamon. Serve with a stirred hard sauce.

Currant Sherbet.

Stem and wash one quart of red currants, add two cupfuls of hot water and boil gently until the fruit is soft. Strain, add two cupfuls of sugar and a teaspoonful of gelatine softened in two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Stir until the gelatine is dissolved, freeze slowly, and when the mixture begins to congeal add the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs.

Spiced Plums.

Remove the pits from damson plums, allow half a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit and half a cupful each of water and vinegar. Place the water, vinegar and sugar in a saucepan and add a spice bag containing one broken stick of cinnamon, eight whole cloves, an inch piece of root ginger and six blades of mace. Boil for ten minutes, then put in the plums and cook until very tender; drain out the fruit, cook down the syrup until quite thick, and after removing the spice bag pour over the fruit. Seal as for canned fruit.

Gooseberry Whip.

To a pint of strained cooked gooseberry pulp add powdered sugar to taste and fold in the stiffly whipped white of one egg and a quarter pint of chilled double cream whipped solid. Taste to see if it is sweet enough, color with a few drops of green coloring matter and fill into parfait glasses lined with halved ladyfingers. Chill on ice before serving.

Raspberry Bread Pudding.

Crumble into a buttered baking dish two cupfuls of bread crumbs and pour over one pint of raspberries that have been stewed with half a cupful of sugar. Let stand until cold, fold in the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs and bake in a moderate oven until well risen and browned. Serve immediately with sweetened whipped cream.

Steamed Blueberry Pudding.

Cream one and a half tablespoonfuls of oleo with one cupful of granulated sugar and add one lightly beaten egg, one cupful of milk, half a teaspoonful of orange flavoring, and the grated yellow rind of half an orange and three cupfuls of flour, sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat the batter hard, stir in one cupful of blueberries and pour into a greased pudding mold. Steam for three hours and serve with a lemon sauce.

Blackberry Jam.

Use three-quarters of a pound of sugar to one pound of fruit. Put the fruit over the fire and for two quarts add the juice of one lemon. Cook until the fruit bursts open, and mash meanwhile. Add the desired amount of sugar, set aside over night and cook down the next morning until quite thick and of the desired consistency.

PALE AND NERVOUS SCHOOL CHILDREN

NEEDS RICH, RED BLOOD TO REGAIN HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

Many children start school in excellent health, but after a short time home work, examinations, hurried meals and crowded school rooms, cause their blood to become weak, their nerves over wrought and their color and spirits one. It is a mistake to let matters drift when the boys and girls show symptoms of nervousness or weak blood. They are almost sure to fall victims of St. Vitus dance or drift into debility that leads to other troubles. Regular meals, out door exercise and plenty of sleep are necessary to combat the nervous wear of school life. But it is still more important that parents should pay attention to the school child's blood supply. Keep this rich and red by giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the boy or girl will be sturdy and fit for school. The value of Dr. Wiliams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. Watson, of Grand Falls, N. B., who says: "In the spring of 1919, my daughter Thistle, then 12 years of age, began to show symptoms of nervousness, which developed into St. Vitus dance. She seemed to lose control of her limbs and at times every muscle in her body seemed to be twitching and jerking and the trouble seemed to be growing worse. We finally decided to give Dr. Williams Pink Pills and the result was better even than we had hoped for, and she is now enjoying the best of health."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Praying Machine

A praying machine is a cylindrical apparatus, around which are rolled papers inscribed with formulas of prayer. The natives of India believe that turning these formulas of prayer has the same value as uttering them with the lips. Sometimes the cylinder is turned by hand, but this requires the actual presence of the devotee, so the wealthier natives place the machine in a bed of running water, which, running past, turns the wheel; or, again, it is placed on a framework above the ground and the wind sweeps down and helps to grind out the prayers.

Art Courses

An Arts and Literature school, the object of which is to make art the property of the average person without the use of technical language, is to be opened at the Central Y.M.C.A. in Toronto on October 1st. Men and women will be enrolled.

A course of sixteen lectures in English literature, the story of modern English men of letters, a series of non-technical lectures on music, illustrated on the piano and by orchestra parts, and instruction in pictorial art, including a history of many paintings and how they may be appreciated, are included in the curriculum, these lectures to be given by experts in the various subjects.

PRACTICAL NOTES.

To clean a comb put two tablespoonfuls of ammonia in a basin of warm water, and let the comb remain in this solution for half an hour. Remove and wipe dry. The comb will be spotlessly clean.

When you make ice cream pack newspapers tightly over the top of the freezer. It will keep the ice from melting too rapidly.

Winter or summer, put several thicknesses of newspaper in the bottom of the garbage pail.

In the winter the paper prevents the contents of the pail from freezing to the bottom and forming a coating half an inch thick that remains on the metal all winter.

In summer the protection for the pail is just as necessary. The summer heat causes decomposition of the refuse and the action of the acid on the metal is disastrous. A newspaper lining in the container makes it possible for the garbage collector to empty the pail easily and entirely.

WOMAN, UNARMED, CAPTURES BURGLAR

Miss Marguerite McDonald, a Singer Holds Him in Conversation Till Police Come.

NEW YORK, July 22.—In fiction the heroine picks up a buttonhook and cows the burglar, who labors under a conviction that a revolver is aimed at him. Early yesterday morning Miss Marguerite McDonald, a singer, saw a burglar ransacking her apartment and held him in conversation for twenty minutes until the police came. But she did not use even a buttonhook. The intruder was a Finn, 18 years old, who apparently was too frightened to try to escape, although he stood almost beside the window by which he had entered.

The dialogue between the singer and the intruder ran true to fiction. The young man told what the police called the "out-of-work, hungry-and won't-give-me-another-chance" story. Neither the singer nor her mother, who occupy an apartment on the first floor of 316 West Eighty-eighth street, just off West End Avenue, was dissuaded from calling the police, so the story of Miss McDonald's adventure was told in the West Side Court. The prisoner, accused of burglary, said he was John Bjorkman and that he had been sleeping along the waterfront.

Canadian Made Goods

The Canadian Reconstruction Association, with offices in Toronto, has just issued a pamphlet giving in detail results of its special investigation, just concluded, into the relative values of Canadian-made kitchen utensils of aluminum, as compared with corresponding articles of United States manufacture. A member of the staff of the association went to Buffalo on April 20th last and purchased a number of aluminum cooking utensils, including articles made by five of the leading aluminum manufacturers in the United States. He then purchased similar articles in Toronto, obtaining in each case signed statements that such was the regular selling price. The investigation of current retail prices, as proved by actual purchases in stores of comparable standing in the two cities, was supplemented by a comparison of standard re-sale price lists and otherwise.

The comparison in prices for a few representative utensils are as follows:

3-quart lipped sauce pan—Canada, $2.05; U. S., $2.20.

4-quart straight sauce pan—Difference in our favor was 30 cents.

10-quart preserving kettle—Difference in our favor was 30 cents.

4-quart Windsor kettle—Difference in our favor was 30 cents.

3-quart sheet tea kettle—Difference in our favor was 60 cents.

Lipped frying pan—Difference in our favor was 15 cents.

2-quart double boiler—Difference in our favor was 30 cents.

Straight steamer—Difference in our favor was 30 cents.

Pudding pan—Difference in our favor was 30 cents.

Jelly cake pan—Difference in our favor was 10 cents.

And no account is taken for exchange in these prices.

The investigation by the Canadian Reconstruction Association proves conclusively that:

1.—Canadian-made kitchen utensils of aluminum, grade for grade, are unsurpassed by the products of the United States.

2.—Canadian retail prices are as low as, and in most cases considerably lower than, the United States prices for corresponding utensils of the same grade, even without taking into account the depreciation of Canadian money which, of course, should be considered in comparing purchasing power.

3.—The keen competition between Canadian manufacturers of aluminum ware is so regulating prices in this country as to ensure to Canadian users cooking utensils of the best quality, at the lowest possible prices based on actual cost of manufacture, with the manufacturer's profit reduced to an exceedingly narrow margin.

4.—Canadian companies making aluminum kitchen utensils are not basing their prices on the United States prices, with duty and exchange added, as is sometimes charged against Canadian manufacturers.

5.—The tariff does not increase the price of aluminum utensils to Canadian buyers. On the other hand, the tariff has stimulated keen competition within Canada among eight manufacturing companies which employ Canadian labor, use Canadian materials and pay taxes in Canada. Maintenance of the tariff is needed, not to give a price differential to the Canadian companies, but in order to reserve the Canadian market largely for Canadian companies, against destructive, spasmodic competition from United States manufactories and the "dumping" into the Canadian market of over production of the United States companies.

6.—The only United States cooking utensils imported in any important quantities are certain cast aluminum utensils, aluminum articles to limited demand which are not yet manufactured in Canada, or very thin, spun aluminum utensils of a quality inferior to even the cheapest grade that is made in this country.

Portable Comfort

Throwing some light on the vexed question of "how to hold them," which has superseded the ancient problem of "how to get them," one woman spends a great deal of time in figuring our "elbow conveniences" for her husband's gratification. She keeps everything right at his elbow, and thereby pleases him mightily. All he has to do is to reach out and pick up his paper or the new magazine, or knock the ashes from his cigar. The matches he requires and the book he was reading the night before are always handy, and she follows out the same idea with her sewing things, so that she won't be jumping up and down every few minutes. Things wanted are always "right there."

The secret of this art of convenience was what might be called a portable comfort. She had a number of light wicker articles which followed the user around the house without his knowing it. A small tobouret which could be put away in a cabinet in the day time, was equipped with a lacquer tray on which were placed his lordship's smoking materials. The magazines and books were put within reach at the corner of the living room table or in a little movable book rack which suddenly appeared unobtrusively at the other side of the chair. Her own sewing trotted around with her in a charming basket on a light standard and sat at her elbow while the children's school books, thrown down in the hall after school, were gathered up and placed in a small wicker trough at the side of the table where they studied their evening lessons.

Strange Sentence

Three small boys who recently broke into a hardware store in Tampa were sentenced by the judge to buy with their own earnings enough jack knives to supply each boy in the Children's Home with one, the purchases to be made at the burglarized store. This looks like one of those preevntive sentences which will probably carry with it a desire on the part of the young offenders to refrain from such depredations in future. A fine, to be paid from the pockets of protesting parents, would mean nothing to them, and a jail term would probably send them forth again better equipped than ever before for a continuance of such petty thievery, but a constant recurrence of visits to the store where they are known and recognized at once as thieves working out a sentence will probably have a most salutary effect on the young minds.

WHY PASTEURIZATION?

IT MAKES MILK ABSOLUTELY SAFE

Pasteurization is the one big thing that makes it possible to distribute the milk for our larger cities with absolute assurance of safety. Safe, healthful milk can be produced in great quantities in no other way. And, just as the old-fashioned methods of dipping up the milk have been abandoned for the more modern sanitary bottle, so Pasteurization safeguards the old-fashioned method of peddling raw milk round the streets in tin cans.

Milk will sustain. It will support. It will repair. It is made safe by Pasteurization.

In these days of sanitary laws and wrapped bread and inspected meat, fortunately most of our foods are safe, but none of them are given the uniform, careful treatment that Pasteurized milk gets just before it goes into the sterile bottle and starts for the pantry. Modern methods of handling milk have made it an ideal food and modern methods of producing it and transporting it and Clarifying and Pasteurizing and delivering it make it possible to keep its price down to a point where it is one of the cheapest foods.

Are you sure of the milk you use? If not, give your name and address to one of our milkmen and have no more trouble.

SHE WAS SURPRISED.

Mr. Atkinson was an artist, and when Mrs. Atkinson developed a pain in her shoulder and asked him to paint it with iodine he did so, painting a little landscape with an old tree and with clouds half hiding the sun. The pain continued, however, and Mrs. Atkinson went to the old family physician who had attended her all her life. An examination of the shoulder revealed the landscape, and the doctor chuckled and said: "What a beautiful little scene."

Mrs. Atkinson, who was unaware of the way the iodine had been applied, turned on him indignantly.

"I'm surprised at you, Doctor!" she cried. "I never should have expected such a thing—and from a man of your age, too."

WITHOUT MILK AND DAIRYING CANADIAN RACE WOULD PERISH

INTERESTS OF URBAN CENTRES AND AGRARIAN DISTRICTS ARE ANALOGOUS ON MILK QUESTION—STORY OF "REAL" DAIRY FARMING TO SUPPLY ONE OF THE CHIEF DAILY DIETS OF GROWING MILLIONS.

(By Paterfamilias.)

Incredible though it may seem, still there are city boys and girls who have never seen a cow, and when asked where milk comes from some answered, like a New York youngster did, "from the store." One little girl in another metropolis thought a cow grew to four inches high. But children in big city schools in the United States where milk campaigns were being conducted quickly learned to appreciate cows and milk at their true value to themselves, as evidenced when one little kiddie was quite positive that "milk makes one strong, healthy and wise," while another hopeful of tender years said that "the four glasses of milk in a bottle made him just four times better than he had been before taking it."

And there are farmers also around Peterborough, and in Canada generally, who, comparatively speaking, are as ignorant of the great possibilities of milk as city youngsters who never saw a farm, and treat the dairying question from the little girl's "four-inch" high cow measurement. Dairy herds, dairying, milk and its products are all large broad subjects in which too many Canadian farmers need educating, even as city children, aye, and adults, too, require educating in a knowledge of the real importance of milk as both meat and drink for the undernourished body and turbid brain. To be a successful dairy farmer the application of business principles and systematic methods are as imperative as they are in big manufacturing concerns where the maximum of efficiency is at all times sought and tested for with the patience of Job.

Return to Nature.

Scientists also have irrefutably demonstrated of late that to uplift the physical and mental standard of the present human race and man's progeny it is necessary that we return to nature—in other words, to fall back on milk, butter, cheese, for these three generate bodily vigor and brain efficiency. Hence, the two interests are analogous—that of the dairy farmer and that of urban populations; therefore, miles of white paper and tons of ink are being used these days to foster the dairy industry and create an ever-growing demand for its products. What with milk campaigns in American towns and cities, backed by professional endorsation, and a general increasing community appreciation of milk—domestically as a food, and even as a beverage—the consumption of milk and its products has reached heretofore undreamt of proportions, to which the U. S. dairying industry is also responding proportionately. In Canada also this experience is being repeated, although on a smaller scale, and the response in urban centres to timely propaganda, in national weal, that both old folk and young folk, father, mother and children, should "use more milk," justifies the Canadian farmer in rising to the occasion by resorting to dairy farming on an extensive plan.

Real Dairying.

But, as pointed out before, success in dairying is only attained by keeping at all times in view the objective of getting from the cows their best efforts in both quantity and quality. As an object lesson of what this implies, let me quote C. C. James, C.M.G., LL.D., one-time commissioner, Department of Agriculture of Canada, who says:

"One of our leading live stock professors gave a most interesting account of a Canadian dairy farm that he had visited. This farm, run on strictly business principles, was making good profits. The herd had been built up on the best dairy lines. The cows were regularly tested and the "incompetents" eliminated. Gradually a model herd of 200 milkers had been obtained, averaging 10,000 pounds of milk a year. But the goal has not yet been reached, for the Professor said that the manager aims to have in a few years a herd of 600 cows of the same high average.

"Happening to follow the Professor, I ventured to remark that he was somewhat astray in his story, that he had failed to count the cows, for the dairyman already had 500 cows in his herd—he had missed 300 in his count. And how was this explained? Why, easy enough. There was in reality stabling for only 200, and hired help for this number; but the 200 cows were producing as much milk as 500 average Canadian cows.

"That is real dairying; that is the kind of dairying that has made money for Danish and Dutch dairymen on the poor sandy soils of the North Sea Coast, and in some of the central counties of England. When this progressive Canadian dairyman gets his 10,000 pound herd of 600 cows will he be satisfied? Not at all; he will be aiming at 12,000 pounds or better. And why not? There are in Canada some producers of 20,000 pounds and better. Why should he not aim at having the largest herd of big producers? He can do it by selection, breeding, feeding, and care.

"If the dairy herd is not rising about the 4,000 pound line there is something wrong, it is inefficient—either through incompetence or lack of patriotism. If the average 4,000 pound level is raised to the 5,000 pound level what will it mean to Canada? Over $35,000,000 a year in the value of the milk products. Is that not worth working for from the national standpoint?

"Sometimes we read in the press the story of the building up of a new business in the town or city. A discarded by-product or an overlooked resource is discovered and a process applied whereby it is made useful. There is the picture of the modest little building in which work was started a few years ago, and also one of the modern massive factory. Then, of course, there is an insert of the man who has created something and has acquired a fortune. How this attracts attention and perhaps puts it into the head of the farm boy that this is the way to "do things": especially if the story says, as it often does, that Mr. So-and-So was born on a farm in the Township of Red-Deer, but after a few years at school he came to town to make a fortune and a name for himself. Alas and alack! What problems more interesting and fuller of real life he left back on the old farm! It all depends on the viewpoint, the insight, and the inspiration.

"Let us do a little figuring and put some imagination into it. Suppose we could direct the inclination and work of ten thousand boys on the farms of Canada. Give each of them a herd of ten average Canadian cows—the 4,000 pound breed. That will mean a production of 40,000,000 pounds of milk a year. Now we set them to work and year by year the average rises to 5,000 pounds, to 6,000 pounds, to 7,000 pounds and finally to 10,000 pounds. The yearly product will now be 100,000,000 pounds. And see what all is involved—the evolution of the living machines, the gradual increase in the product, the improvement of the buildings, the development of a real home! Why, that suggests that this must be a partnership affair—a company. What will the farmer's wife be doing all these years? Is there any city manufacturing business where the manager and his wife co-operate as closely as do the dairyman and his wife? This puts a new phase on it, adds a new interest, and enlarges the world in which the business is being carried on. No, there is nothing in town or city just like it. It is a growing business full of life and thought, a home cooperation, and an increasing of national production all in one. Such a thing is possible. How could it best be brought about? That is something worth thinking over. Do your own thinking on it. Discuss it with some of your neighbors. Ask the editor of your agricultural paper for his views. Consult the government instructors. Give it real serious consideration and then start in to raise the 4,000 pound record to 5,000, or the 5,000 to 6,000, or the 9,000 to 10,000. Success in agriculture lies largely in "getting above the average line," whether it is with a dairy cow, a field of wheat, or a laying hen.

"Some six or seven years ago Mr. Morkeburg, the Live Stock Commissioner of Denmark, sent me a photograph of a fine Danish cow with a record of 11,000 pounds of milk. She was a beautiful dairy animal according to her photo. Her form and appearance were impressed upon my memory. Two years later I visited Denmark and spent the day with Mr. Morkeborg on Niels Hansen's farm, "Calle-Calle." Mr. Hansen took us out to show us his dairy cattle tethered in their feeding line. Whenever a question was asked as to any animal, out came his little book to tell us her record.

"At last, at the end of the line, we came to a beautiful cow that called forth from him his best recommendation. This was his pride and the record in his book confirmed his opinions. "Yes," I said, "I know that cow. I have her picture in my office in Canada. Have I not Mr. Morkeborg?" No one could have mistaken her. The pride of her owner was amply justified. No city manufacturer ever showed us over his city plant with more pleasure than did Niels Hansen. He was a manufacturer in the highest sense, for he was himself evolving his own improved machinery from year to year, increasing his output, and continually adding to the prosperity of his country. Niels Hansen was succeeding because he was year by year working higher and higher "above the line."

"The "dead line" in Canada is 4,000 pounds; the possible line is 20,000 pounds; the profitable line is 6,000 pounds, and over. Mr. Canadian Dairyman, what is your herd line? If you are not well "above the line" you are not doing your duty to your country, to your family, or to yourself."

Proper Methods.

In treating of the care of milk and cream on the farm, F. M. Logan, B.S.A., of Regina, writes that in order to make No. 1 butter or to sell high grade milk and cream, it is necessary that the dairy utensils, as well as the products themselves receive proper attention. In caring for milk and cream, the two important factors are cleanliness and cold. Cleanliness is possible for every farmer. Cold for the large majority. Bacteria or germ life are responsible for the sourness and bad flavours found in milk and cream. These germs develop rapidly in a medium temperature, but grow slowly in temperatures below forty degrees Fahr. Boiling water for cleaning the utensils and ice for cooling the cream then, are two of the essentials in successful dairying. Boiling water is possible on every farm, and there are few farmers who could not store a supply of ice at a comparatively small cost.

While boiling water and ice can do much, they alone will not insure good milk or cream. In addition to their use it is the duty of every dairyman—

(1) To milk the cows in the open air, or in a clean, well ventilated stable;

(2) To milk with clean hands or clean milkers and wear clean clothes and to wash or brush each cow's udder before milking;

(3) To separate the milk immediately after each milking, and wash the separator after each operation;

(4) To cool the cream to a temperature of 50 degrees or lower within two hours after it has been separated;

(5) To use a thermometer so that he may be sure of temperatures—guess work is not good enough;

(6) To keep cream just separated in a can by itself until cooled, and avoid mixing fresh cream with older lots without first cooling to as low, or a lower temperature.

If these methods are followed carefully, and all utensils coming in contact with the milk are washed, first in cold water, then in water warm enough to melt all the cream or butter-fat which may adhere to their surface, and finally immersed in boiling water, cream can easily be shipped in a sweet condition at all seasons of the year and the highest price for it obtained.

Race Would Perish.

It has been truthfully said that without milk the race would perish. Therefore, compared with other industries, while the dairy industry is not the largest, still it is one of the most important. On this continent today increasing millions in urban communities find in butter one of the most healthful and energy-stimulating food products in their daily diet; and all efforts of the dairy industry would have proven nowhere equal to meeting the demands upon it had not the mechanical separation of cream from milk been accomplished.

Had the cream separator not been invented the creamery would have been impossible.

Until Dr. De Laval invented the cream separator, the only method of securing cream was to set the milk in crocks or pans, and after letting it stand twenty-four hours or more, skim off the cream. This work invariably fell to the womenfolk on the farm and the daily task of cleaning and washing these milk vessels meant toil and drudgery.

Not only did the cream separator make possible the performance of a task in a few minutes that formerly took a great deal of time, but it had three other very great advantages over the old gravity method; namely, a greater amount of cream, a better quality of cream, and warm, sweet skim-milk to feed to calves and stock.

The saving effected in the quantity of cream produced with a cream separator in comparison with the old gravity method of skimming, when its influence on the cream industry the world over is considered, mounts up into millions of dollars annually.

Under ordinary conditions of gravity skimming there is a loss of 15 to 25 per cent of butter-fat, while there is practically no loss at all with a high-grade separator like the modern De Laval.

And when to this we give the cream separator the credit which is justly its due for the production of a much better quality of cream than was ever possible under the old crock and pan method, and compare the feeding value of warm, sweet separator skim-milk with the stale, tainted and often sour skim-milk which was the result of gravity skimming, we begin to see in Dr. De Laval's invention a mechanical device which takes its place in importance beside the reaper of McCormick, the sewing machine of Howe, the steam engine of Watt, and the lamp of Edison.

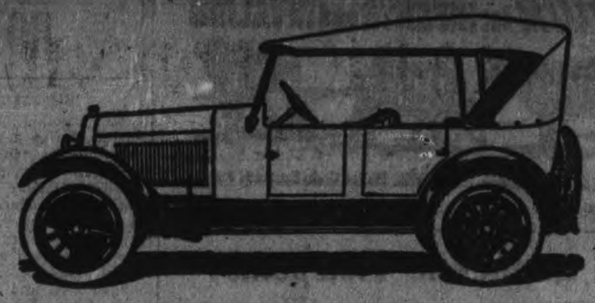
It was been rightly said that the invention of the cream separator marked the beginning of a new era in dairying. At first its use was confined almost entirely to large machines, and instead of skimming cream by the crock and pan method and churning it on the farm, farmers hauled their whole milk to the local creamery and hauled the skim-milk back again. This saved so much work, and the butter produced in these creameries was so much more desirable in quality, that a tremendous demand was created for creamery butter made from centrifugally separated cream, and all over the country creameries sprang up as if by magic.

Great Organization.

Here it might be fitting to briefly refer to the coincidence in connection with these articles on milk that Peterborough may be characterized as a "dairy town," inasmuch as it is the Canadian manufacturing centre of the De Laval Company, Limited, who have for the distribution of their dairying machinery and supplies, 50,000 branches and local agencies the world over. To say nothing of the milkers and other appliances made here in Peterborough, this mammoth concern, which furnishes dairy farmers and creameries with the means for producing a maximum of products at a minimum expenditure in time, labor and capital, points with pardonable pride to the fact that nearly 2,500,000 De Laval cream separators are in daily use. They have played no inconsiderable part in developing the dairy industry, aside from the development and perfection of the original centrifugal cream separating machine; have set the pace in perfecting the art of such cream separation, and in the De Laval Company both Canada and the United States find leaders in every movement to advance and benefit dairying in all its many phases.

WHIPPED CREAM PIE

Make a crust, line a dep dish with it, prick thoroughly and bake; be careful and not get too brown; when done spread with a layer of nice jelly or jam; whip a cup of sweet cream; sweeten and flavor with vanilla, spread it over the jelly or jam; set on ice or where it will keep cool.



Not the Motor Alone Makes the Chalmers a Great Car

The Chalmers motor is a good motor. But it is not the motor alone that makes the Chalmers the wonderful car it is. Rather, it is the fundamental soundness and goodness of the entire construction. Without doubt, the thing that gives Chalmers' owners their greatest satisfaction is the smallness of the repair and replacement bills.

Long Periods of Continuous Service

Their cars run for long periods without shop attention. They save money. They miss the inconvenience of having the car laid up.

Much of this is naturally due to the general mechanical excellence of the Chalmers. Much again to the principle of the Chalmers motor.

Pre-Heated Fuel Improves Performance

Pre-heating the fuel, as the Chalmers does by means of the hot-spot, accomplishes complete combustion in the cylinders. This results in more power from less gasoline. Smoothness of running is increased. Acceleration is quicker. Ordinary engine troubles are avoided.

There is no doubt in our minds that the Chalmers is a wonderful car. Nor in the minds of Chalmers' owners.

We suggest that you check Chalmers' upkeep and performance records.

BEAR SEEN IN OPS TOWNSHIP

Considerable excitement prevailed in Ops township about two and a half miles northeast of town on Thursday when a bear made its appearance on the farm of Mr. S. Oliver. Attention was first attracted by a disturbance among the sheep. The flock beat a hasty retreat to the barn and seemed to be greatly excited. Bruin then wandered to the next farm, the owner of which was greatly surprised when he saw the animal among his cattle. Several of the farmers in the locality secured guns and gave chase but the bear made a getaway.—Lindsay Post.

MACHINERY FOR ELECTION READY

MEIGHEN'S HOMECOMING MAY BE DELAYED—MANY PROBLEM AWAITING HIS ARRIVAL.

OTTAWA, July 23.—If the political powers should decide that a general election this year is desirable and proceed to throw their hats into the ring, the electoral machinery will be found completely adjusted and ready. Ordinarily, general elections are the signal for feverish activity in preparing with the printing bureau working day and night. Now it is different. As soon as the Franchise Act was consolidated last year the Chief Electoral Officer began the preparation and printing of election papers, and they are all ready. The new Act is a voluminous and rather abstruse affair, but it is made clear in the code of instructions and interpretations, in the preparation of which organizers for all the political parties were consulted for suggestions of points to be elucidated.

Heavy Demand.

The demand for this publication is so heavy as to indicate a lot of preparation for the elections, whether they are held this year or not.

May Be Delayed.

The intimation that the Prime Minister's home-coming may be delayed is no twholly welcome news to Ottawa, as so many matters are held up pending his arrival. The necessity of his remaining in London if a preliminary conference on the Pacific problem is held is recognized. It is known that Mr. Meighen is very anxious to get back and he will delay his departure only for urgent reasons.

During the interim pending the arrival of Lord Byng, the new Governor-General, Mr. Justice Idington, as Senior Judge of the Supreme Court, is acting as administrator of the Government. Sis Louis Davies is in England attending the sitting of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

M.P.P. SERIOUSLY HURT IN HAYING

JOHN CALDER, NORTH OXFORD, SUFFERS FRACTURED SKULL.

WOODSTOCK, July 23.—(Canadian Press.)—John Calder, M.P.P. for North Oxford, was seriously, if not fatally injured yesterday afternoon, and last night was unconscious at his home, at Kintore, suffering from a fracture of the skull

Mr. Calder was in the barn helping to take in hay. He was standing in the hay mow when the pulley on the hay fork broke and the iron part struck Mr. Calder a terrific blow on the back of the head. He was knocked to the barn floor below and was picked up in an unconscious condition. The doctor pronounced the injuries a severe fracture of the skull. Just what chances of recovery are, the attending physician was unable to state last night.

TAKING THE CENSUS

Collecting statistics for Canada's census, 1921, in the far off outposts of the Empire was a very different thing from gathering them in the crowded cities. If there could be a convention of census enumerators—if, for instance, they ever formed a union and celebrated it with an inaugural banquet those present could a tale unfold that would be as interesting as the liveliest meeting of the liveliest City Council. But would they? No; they would let the golden opportunity pass and merely talk of the iniquity of an "open shop" for decennial enumerators and go on record as vowing that they would work only forty-four hours a week for four weeks every ten years!

* * * *

Out of the mass and maze of dry statistics, hoever, there have come a few glimpses into the life of the "censused." The Christian Science Monitor prints an interesting story of the taking of the census of the long line of rocky, tree-covered islands which stretch along the coast of British Columbia for a distance of 500 miles, and which form a barrier against the open sea, making what is known as the "Inland Passage," a maze of channels between myriad islands, the waters for the most part quiet, which is a paradise for travel, particularly for small gas boats. These islands, closely hugging the main land, some removed by many miles, range in size from a fraction of one mile long to ninety miles, and in area one acre to a thousand. All are rocky, most of them heavily treed ith fir, spruce, hemlock, cedar, alder, and arbutus. From them comes one of British Columbia's chief sources of wealth, so the greater portion of the inhabitants are transient loggers. Yet, far removed from civilization, with little in the way of good farming land on the most of them, and this only obtained after much clearing, these islands have drawn to them settlers. Far scattered, lonely are the pre-emptions.

The enumerating of the inhabitants of these regions was not only the most difficult, but the most expensive kind of census taking, as high-powered gas boats were necessary to convey each enumerator, which, of course, also required the services of an engineer. In addition to using a gas boat, the enumerator often had to row long miles up rivers too shallow for the larger craft, or walk over difficult mountain trails to some inland settler, one more fortunate than the rest who had found some open upland stretch. In the city the enumerators were paid five cents for each person. In the wilderness a straight salary of $10 per day was given, and, rest assured, the latter earned every cent of it.

It as the good fortune of the correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor to otain permission to accompany one of the census takers, whose district was half a dozen of the islands, and two or the narrowest and longest of the inlets penetrating the mainland of the British Columbia coast, a territory necessitating the covering of some six hundred miles of the wildest of all this magnificent coastline, where frowning peaks, miles of island and inlet shores, for long stretches perpendicularly, or dense with forest, cry defiance to the settler. The correspondent at the end of the cruise figured roughly that it cost the Dominion $2.00 per head for every person enumerated in the section covered.

The particular enumerator travelled with was well chosen for the task. He was a Scot, six feet three inches, a returned soldier, and also a man vrsed in the woods, having followed very kind of logging previous to going to war. His size and evident strength were a visible detriment to any saucy answer or refusal of information. The gas boat engineer, also a returned soldier, Joe Dick by name, was a pilot by long experience in these northern waters, wise to all the hidden treacherous channls, rapids, and hidden rocks of the region. In the 30-foot cruiser-cabined launch, late on the afternoon of 1st June, we landed in a little bay on one of the largest of the islands to be circumnavigated. Here a shingle mill, a logging camp, and a salmon cannery gave us the biggest population returns of the entire trip, and incidentally brought to light queer things and interesting.

* * * *

Like most shingle mills, this one visited employed many Chinese, quite a number of whom spoke no English. But in the lumber camp we found a wonderful Irishman, one of your typical soldiers of fortune, who had been everywhere, done everything. He spoke seven languages, his chief linguistic accomplishment being a thorough mastery of the Chinese of the Canton dialect, an ability rare among white men. By his aid the enumerator found easy a task which otherwise might have been most difficult.

The first Chinese enumerated spoke English. H was at once suspicious and on guard when the enumerator put the question, "How much money did you earn in the last year?" He refused at first to answer, then, on being warned of the penalty, gave his earnings as $40.00. This so ridiculously small sum, the enumerator refused to accept, and took him severely to task. Finally, the man answered naively, 'I tellee you truth, govellment, he taxee me."

On being assured that he would not be taxed he admitted to earning $600.00 last year. Most of his companions volunteered sums of from $400.00 to $600.00, and it is questionable if they all told the truth, still fearing no doubt "taxee" in spite of the white man's word.

Byv way of comparison, the yellow men earned more than the casual labouring white men as far as I could learn. One thing is certain, the sixth census returns will show an increase in the Chinese population, and the increase of the Japanese is greater than the Chinese.

LOG CABIN CAMPS

ALGONQUIN PARK, ONTARIO.

In Nominigan Camp and Camp Minessing, the Grand Trunk has created log cabin camps similar to those of Maine of world-wide fame. There is the large central lodge or meeting place, and in close proximity to it there is a series of log cabins, all built of cedar logs with the bark on, chinked with cement and moss and thoroughly in keeping with the natural beauty of their location. The central lodge and the cabins are simply comfortably furnished and have modern conveniences, with bathrooms and hot and cold water. In the Ojibway language Nominigan Camp means "the camp amid the balsams," and it is a very appropriate description, for the region is rich in this aromatic growth. Nominigan Camp is situated on the easterly shore of Smoke Lake, seven miles by stage from the Highland Inn, one of the largest and most attractive of the Park lakes. Camp Minessing in the Ojibway language means "Island Camp," and is situated on Island Lake, 10 miles north of the Highland Inn. Illustrated descriptive literature telling you all about these camps can be had on application to any Grand Trunk Agent, or C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont. 3d-16-23-28

COAL SITUATION BETTER THAN YEAR AGO, BUT PRICES ARE TO REMAIN UP

LOCAL DEALERS SAY DELIVERIES ABOUT EQUAL TO LAST YEAR, BUT PEOPLE WHO STOCK SMALLER SIZES HAVE NOT THE PRICE TO PURCHASE SUPPLY.

Householders who are postponing the purchase of their next winter's supplies of anthracite coal, anticipating lower prices, are going to be very badly disappointed, local dealers say. While the outlook for the coming winter is by no means as unfavorable as it was last summer, there seems to be little chance of cheaper coal for several months, unless freight rates are reduced considerably, and there has been no talk of such a reduction being contemplated.

The local deliveries are about equal to those made last summer, except in respect to the smaller sizes of hard coal, one dealer stated. The people who use chestnut and pea coal are not able to stock the fuel because, in the majority of cases, they lack the price.

On the other hand, many persons who are financially able to buy their supplies for next winter are holding off, thinking the price will come down. This is what is going to cause a shortage, if there is one, the dealers declare. The coal users who could have bought their coal this summer and those who would have bought had they possessed the ready money are going to be calling for coal at the same time next winter and consequently the demand is likelf to be greater than the supply and prices may rise instead of drop.

The deliveries from the operators and wholesale dealers in the United States have been coming fairly well durin gthe past month or more, the local dealers report, particularly the deliveries of small sizes. Since the first of the year, coal prices have been advancing at the rate of ten cents per ton each month, and there has been an increase in exchange rates, so that anthracite coal is really costing the local dealers more than it did last spring, but is selling for approximately the same price. No guarantees of deliveries or prices are being made by wholesale dealers and local retailers expect to be forced to the open market again next winter.

So far as bitumnous coal is concerned, there need be no worry, the dealers state. The supply is almost unlimited.

For the first time in four years there will be no Fuel Controller in charge of the local distribution this coming winter, the municipal offices as well as the Provincial having been dispensed with.

NOBLEMEN MADE WHILE YOU WAIT

Titles Arranged for Gentlemen Needing Wives of Wealth.

BERLIN, July 22. — In Dresden, the little word "von," an aristocratic name, and a "marriage on notice" could be purchased from a "business concern" headed by a woman painter, Anna von Hohendorf, until the police thought fit to interfere recently. Not that this little traffic in itself was very illicit—any nobleman who is broke can marry a rich heiress and go his own way with her money or with part of it, leaving her the nice little title.

But Frau Anna von Hobsendorf's noblemen were no real noblemen — their titles were forged. She said that she had so many customers who were eager to pay high prices for the title "von" that the prices for authentic titles went up terribly and so her partners forged the necessary documents. On the wedding day one of their employees would take the forged papers and play the part of bridegroom before the officials. Before the ceremony the bride received a contract guaranteeing her the right to keep title after the decree of divorce and in her turn she signed a contract promising to apply for a divorce within three months after the wedding. All the documents and proofs needed for this divorce were handed to her on the same day.

The police found this questionable and Anna von Hohendorf and her associates will have to face a serious charge. Twenty cases will be brought before the court in which will figure some very well known names of Berlin post-war society.

WOMAN PEARL DIVER LACKS BEAUTY BUT SUPPORTS FAMILY

JAUANESE HUSBAND, FATHER AND BROTHER LIVE ON HER EARNINGS.

A Japanese woman pearl diver is not beautiful, writes J. O. Yorston in The London Daily Mail. She is no Venus, is Shika, the pearl diver of Toba, for much contact with the sea water has turned her hair a repulsive rusty brown, like that of the Somali boys who dive for coins at Aden.

The smiling sea of Happy Japan, too, has been cruelly unkind to her complexion, giving her skin a coarse and happy texture unpleasantly reminiscent of sandpaper.

Shika, in short, is a repulsive looking lady when she puts out to sea for a pearl-diving expedition to the famous Mikimoto Pearl Culture Farm—a beautiful and sequestered stretch of sheltered sea, where the new widely discussed Japanese culture pearls hail from.

Her diving kit is of the simplest, minus the smallest scrap of scientifically designed gear. It consists of white knickerbockers, a short skirt, and a blouse, and her hair is screwed up into a tight little "charwoman's bun" on top of her head. Hideous big glass goggles keep the salt water from entering her eyes.

But you must not think that because Shika is plain her little Japanese husband does not care for her. On the contrary, he feels most enthusiastic about her, for does she not earn from fifty sen to two yen a day (roughly 1s. 1d. to 4s. 3d.), working so hard that it would be madness for him to interfere in the upkeep of the home? Therefore, he spends halcyon days with the other pearl divers' husbands, sons and brothers, playing pleasant games and dozing the day away so that he shall be fresh and gay to welcome Shika home after her outing.

Shika started her curious profession when she was about fourteen years old, and she spends the greater part of each year (from March to December) in the water. Very little work is done in January or February, because of the cold.

For some reason the women divers possess the ability to remain submerged longer than men; they get over the side of the boat that takes them to the farm, sink to the bottom of the sea and remain there for two or three minutes each time, a very expert woman often bringing up a hundred oysters from a depth of ten fathoms (sixty feet) in sirty seconds. As they gather the oysters from the beds they throw them with lightning speed into a little tub suspended from their waists.

Shika and her kind are most agile at their work between their twenty-fifth and thirty-fifth years; after that they earn less, and the average day's work of six or seven hours begins to tell upon them.

It is a curious sight to see the women when they dive and splash about in the water, uttering hoarse, whistling sounds as they go under and when they come up.

$50 FINE FOR KISSING AFTER BOBBING HAIR

Barber, barber, bob my hair;
What do you charge a miss?
Fifty cents if I cut it plain;
Forty, with a kiss.

Which seems fair enough, provided the schedule of rates is explained in advance.

The trouble with Dan Pritzel, who barbers and kisses at 6507 Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago, is that he sometimes kisses first and explains afterward.

According to Miss Clara Barkman, the osculatory barber told her nothing of the bargains he was offering. She asked him to bob her hair. He did the trimming and then smacked her.

Judge Hayes, sitting in the Englewood Court, smacked back with a fifty-smacker fine on Monday.

GERMAN TOURISTS SCARCE IN BELGIUM

MISS FLORENCE RISLEY, OF THE Y.W.C.A., FOUND THEM OVERRUNNING ITALY, HOWEVER.

NEW YORK, July 23.—German tourists who are overrunning Italy this summer are avoiding Belgium, according to Miss Florence Risley, Associate Executive of the Young Women's Christian Association, now on leave of absence in this city.

"German tourists are not to be seen in Belgium," said Miss Risley at the National Board headquarters of the association, 600 Lexington avenue, yesterday, shortly after her return on the S. S. Finland. "The bitterness of Belgium is neither noisy nor revengeful and little is said, but Germans are not well received, and their absence is significant."

That German tourists are overrunning Italy and are to be encountered everywhere in cafes, hotels and thoroughfares was touched upon by way of contrast, Miss Risley having recently visited there.

"Nevertheless Belgium is rapidly putting the past behind her and looking to the future in everything," she continued. "It is due to this that the present remarkable achievements and rehabilitation of Belgium are so rapidly going forward. This is true of individuals as well as the nation."

Among the significant changes in Belgium politics that Miss Risley touched upon was the recent enfranchisement of women, who voted in municipalities for the first time last April. Despite the lack of demand from the Belgian women themselves, this was due to the conflicting party politics.

"Belgian women now not only vote in the municipal elections and are eligible as candidates, but they are subject to a heavy fine for failure to appear at the polls," explained Miss Risley. "Voting is obligatory in Belgium. Party feeling runs so high there that members of opposing political parties rarely intermarry or meet socially save on state occasions. A woman who votes outside of the party of her family and friends is apt to feel ostracised or cut off. Despite this handicap, women are taking an active interest in politics, joining the existing parties and already organizing for Provincial representation in the Senate and the House of Deputies. In Brussels there are already several women Town Councillors. As yet there has been nothing radical recorded from the woman's vote.

"No comment on Belgium today would be complete without touching upon the national enthusiasm for all things American and eagerness to learn American methods and organization. The heartfelt gratitude of Belgium to this country for our part during the war is expressed to all American visitors in a loyalty and a courtesy deeper than the spoken word. Mr. Hoover's name is still idolized. I don't believe there is anything politically in the country that Mr. Hoover could not have."

This feeling of cordiality and readiness to learn American methods is well illustrated in the Belgian's attitude toward the work of the Young Women's Christian Association. Although introduced there less than two years ago, a drive for funds for the support of the three centres, two in Brussels and one in Antwerp, which now serve 3,000 Belgian girls was oversubscribed more than 100 per cent. So enthusiastic was their endorsement of the work in their behalf that although the appeal for 80,000 francs was quietly conducted, it resulted in 194,000 francs.

An Englishman has invented a collapsible lifeboat with a rubber skin that automatically closes punctures.

VOYAGE OF THE "QUEST"

Sir Ernest Shackleton is about to undertake a new voyage of Antarctic exploration. It will take him 30,000 miles in the Atlantic and Pacific and those uncharted seas that guard the Pole. His staff will include men who were with him in the Nimrod and the Endurance; and his object is to solve some of the problems of geography as they affect little-known islands of the great oceans and the long mysterious line of the Antarctic region.

The expedition, which will start about the end of August, has been made possible by the generosity of Mr. John Quiller Rowett, of Ely Place, Frant, Sussex, who endowed the Rowett Institute for Agricultural Research, and made provision for research at the Middlesex Hospital. A large donation has been given also by Mr. Frederick Becker, the paper manufacturer. Thanks to them, the expedition will be equipped for every branch of scientific research with the most modern instruments and methods.

Little But Good.

The ship is called the Quest, and is a little vessel of hardly more than 300 tons net. She belongs to the Royal Yacht Squadron. It must not be inferred that sh is a frail craft. On the contrary, with her sides 2 ft. thick, of oak, pine, and fir, and her bows shod with steel, she is well fitted for the erratic bergs and deceptive Antarctic flows. Her length is only 111 ft., beam 23 ft., depth 12 ft. As she lies at Southampton, near the dock which accommodates the Aquitania, his dimensions seem diminished by contrast; and indeed, without masts and funnel, she could be stowed away in one of the funnels of the great liner. Built in Norway four years ago, she has had her quality tried in the ice of the north. Her steaming radius is 9,000 miles; with her original sail she could do eight knots. The sail area is now being increased; she is being rigged as a brigantine; and other extensive alterations are being carried out by Messrs. Thornycroft, of Southampton. Above and below decks there will be laboratories and general scientific provision; platforms are in course of erection for sounding machines, by which the ocean depths can be tested down to 30,000 ft.; together with winders for winding in captive balloons for examining wind currents, and a home for the specially-constructed seaplane from which Sir Ernest Shackleton hopes great things. A powerful wireless set will be added.

A Crew of Scientists.

A remarkable feature of the Quest will be her lack of a crew—a crew, that is, distinct from the scientific workers. The staff of the expedition will manage the ship themselves. As they are men of large experience, there is no reason to suppose the Quest will suffer at their hands.

The long voyage will begin from the Port of London. With her head turned south, and making as she goes a full hydrographical survey as well as charting of the air currents, the Quest will explore islands of the ocean which lie in "silent oblivion," partial, or complete. The zoologist and biologist will investigate the bird, animal, and marine life of these islands; and while the geologist looks into their structure, the magneticias wil take his observations, and the camera and cinema men will record what goes on.

From the Salvages, near Madeira, the Quest will make for St. Paul's Rocks, an island on the Equator of which little is known. Thence she will sail to South Trinidad, where Sir Ernest Shackleton, on landing from Captain Scott's Discovery in 1901, saw a petrified forest, now to be explored. A visit will be paid to Tristan da Cunha, the Atlantic islet which gets its letters once in three years, and to Gough Island, which rises 4,000 ft. to the length of eight miles in mid-ocean. Only one scientific expedition is known to have put into Gough Island; members of the Bruce Expedition, who went ashore for a few hours in 1904, found in the short time at their disposal four new species of birds. On the ocean plateau about Gough Island soundings will be taken to prove how far true are surmises as to an underwater continental connection of Africa with America.

A Hugh Problem.

Turning eastward, the Quest will then make for the Cape of Good Hope, where, at Cape Town, she will prepare for the most risky part of her voyage—that which will lead her to the Antarctic south of South Africa. Some 90 years have passed since a ship has been in these particular waters. Captain Scott, Sir Douglas Mawson, and Sir Ernest Shackleton himself have increased our knowledge of the Antarctic Continent south of New Zealand and south of South America; but all we know of the land in this other portion is one rocky cliff, Cape Anne in Enderby Land, and we do not know whether that is part of the Antarctic Continent or an island. For over 3,000 miles the region is a huge problem. The Quest may discover new seas; she may find new gulfs indenting an unexplored coast. An ice-bound coast may prevent her from reaching a very high latitude; or there may be open waters for her after the combat with the pack-ice. Great volcannoes, peeping above the skyline, may greet the eyes of the explorers as the Quest works ever farther south. They will be almost in the condition of 'stout Cortez," and many a moment of "wild surmise" may be theirs.

It is expected that the Quest will emerge from the Antarctic near the Weddell Sea. She will then move north to the South Sandwich Islands and South Georgia, surveying and searching for suitable harbors for whaling stations. At South Georgia she will refit, and afterwards will turn east once more. In this direction sub-Antarctic islands, like Bouvet Island and Heard Island, will be encountered. Landings will be made on their rarely seen shores. The southern fur seal may be discovered hereabouts. From the better-known islands it has disappeared, owing to the wanton slaughter of a century ago.

The peculiar propriety of the Quest's name is now fully apparent. She will surely have earned it by the time she reaches New Zealand. But, as she voyages from that country into the Pacific, romance will still cling to her errand. By dredging and sounding she is to search for the lost Pacific island or Tunski mentioned in missionary history and native legend, but never seen. Dougherty Island may be found farther south. Its very existence, however, is doubtful. If it can be located, and offers a suitable landing-place, it may make an oceanic station for wireless relay between New Zealand and South America, and serve in addition as a station for reporting on ice conditions by ships voyaging on this route. By Cape Horn and the Atlantic the Quest will return home.

Thus, the program before the expedition is varied and full of interest. In the course of the voyage, work in every branch of science affecting the sea will be carried out. The temperatures range from the torrid to the frigid zones.

THERE ARE FEWER OLD-FASHIONED HOMES

The small cities are gradually abandoning the old-fashioned American home for the modern apartment house. This fact was revealed in a report on building operations in 1920 issued by the Civic Development Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The building figures show that, in 1920, per cent. of the families provided for got one-family dwellings; 11 per cent. two-family dwellings, and 19 per cent. apartments in multi-family dwelling. The report indicates that the proportion of muiti-famil dwellings provided last year in the small cities which have not had so much experience with this type of habitation as the larger cities. At the same time the report shows that there were more hoouses building in proportion to population in the smaller than in the larger cities. The new accommodations—house or apartment—provided in cities of 25,000 to 100,000 population was one for every 258 inhabitants, while in cities of more than a million population it was one for every 501 of inhabitants. The average for all the cities listed was one for every 350 inhabitants.

It is shown that 1920 was the record year for sale of bath-room equipment, despite the smaller amount of new dwelling construction. Much of this equipment was used in the conversion of one-family dwellings into tenement houses.

A blank soliciting the required building information was sent out to the 288 cities in the country having a population of 25,000 or more. Their total population was nearly 38,000,000. Of these, 121 cities, with a population of 81.5 per cent. of the total, reported.

LARAMIE HOLDS THE RANGE

By Frank H. SPEARMAN.

The two women were sitting on the porch watching the shower. McAlpin, on his way uptown from the barn, had stopped at Belle's a moment for shelter.

"I'll tell you, Kate," said Belle, after listening as patiently as she could to what Kate had to say about the Falling Wall fight and its consequences, "I like you. I can't help liking you. But the only reason you talk the way you do is because you haven't lived in this country long. You don't know this country—you don't know the people."

McAlpin nodded strongly: "That's so; that's true."

"I at least know common honesty, I hope,"

"But you don't know anything at all of what you are talking about," insisted Belle, "and if you think I'm ever going to agree with you that it was right for Van Horn and your father and their friends to take a bunch of Texas men up into the Falling Wall and shoot and burn men because they're rustlers you're very much mistaken. And I can tell you the people of this country won't agree with you either, no matter what some folks in this town may say to tickle your ears."

"Do you mean to say you stand up for thieves, too?" asked Kate, hotly.

McAlpin looked apprehensively out at the clouds. Belle twitched her shoulders. "You needn't be so high and mighty about it," she retorted. "No, I don't. And I don't stand up for burning men alive because they brand mavericks. You talk very fierce—like everybody up your way. But if Abe Hawk or you wouldn't agree to have them shot down. And don't you forget it, Jim Laramie doesn't claim a hoof of anybody's cattle but his own."

Kate would not back down. "Why do they call him king of the rustlers?" she demanded.

"King of the rustlers, nothing," echoed Belle in disgust. "That's barroom talk. No decent man ever accused him of branding so much as a horse hair that didn't belong to him."

"Bring over my pony, Mr. McAlpin, will you?" asked Kate, very much irritated.

McAlpin looked surprised: "You wouldn't be ridin' home tonight?"

"Yes," replie Kate, sharply, "I would."

As McAlpin started on his way she turned on Belle: "And you mustn't forget, Belle, that vigilantes, no matter whether they do make mistakes or go too far, have built this country up and made it safe to live in."

Belle's face took on a weariness:

"O, no—not always safe to live in—sometimes safe to make money in. There's nothing I'm so sick of hearing as this vigilante stuff. The vigilante crowd are mostly big thieves—the rustlers, little thieves; that's about all the difference I can see."

"Well, is there any difference between being a rustler and protecting and being the friend of one?"

Belle's restraint broke: "You'd better get your own house in order before you criticize me or Jim Laramie. He's never yet tried to assassinate anybody."

"Neither has my father, nor the men that raided the Falling Wall."

"Don't you know," demanded Belle, indignantly, "that the men who raided the Falling Wall are the men that tried to murder Laramie?"

"I don't believe it," said Kate, flatly. "Father doesn't believe anybody tried to murder him."

Belle's wrath bubbled over: "Your father's as deep in it as anybody."

Kate sprang to her feet. Even Belle, used to schoks and encounters, was silenced by the look that met her. For a moment the angry girl did not utter a word, but if her eyes were daggers Belle would have been transfixed. Kate's breast rose sharply and she spoke low and fast: "How dare you accuse my father of such a thing?"

Belle, though cowed, was defiant: "I dare say just what I believe to be true."

"What proof have you?"

"I don't need proof for what every one knows."

"You say what is absolutely false." Kate's tranquil eyes were aflame; she stood child, indeed, of her old father. Belle had more than once doubted whether Kate could be the daughter of such a man—she never doubted it after that scene on the day of the rain. Barb himself would have waited on his daughter's words.

"You're glad to listen to the stories of our enemies," she almost panted, "because they're you're friends; you're welcome to them. But my father's enemies are my enemies and I know now where to place you."

White with anger as she was herself, Belle, older and more controlled, tried to allay the storm she had raised. "I didn't mean to hurt you, Kate," she protested; "you drove me too far."

"I'm glad I did," returned Kate wickedly, as she stepped back into the living room, pinned on her hat, and made ready as fast as possible to go. "I know you in your true colors."

"Well, whether I'm right or wrong, you'll find my colors don't fade and don't change."

A boy stood at the gate with Kate's pony.

The two women were again on the porch. Belle looked at the sky. The rain had abated, but the mountains were black. "Now, Kate, what are you going to do?"

Kate had walked out and was indignantly throwing the lines over her horse's neck. "I'm going home," she answered, as sharply as the words could be spoken.

Belle crossed the sidewalk to her side. "This is a poo time of day for a long ride. We've quarreled, I know, but don't try a mountain trail a night like this. The rain isn't over yet."

"I'll be home before it starts again," returned Kate, springing into the saddle. "I'm sick of this town and everybody in it."

So saying, she struck her horse with the lines and headed for the mountains.

For John Lefever the rainy night promised to be a busy one; darkness and the storm would, he felt, give Laramie a chance to get Hawk safely into town; but to do this successfully would call for precaution.

The rain had hardly begun to fall that afternoon—to the discomfiture of Kate and her undoing with Belle—before Lefever began to cher up in speculating on what might be done. He found Laramie at the hotel and set out to round up Sawdy. The rendezvous was set at Kitchen's barn, and half an hour later the three men were shut up in the old harness room back of the office to talk the venture over.

Laramie made no effort to discourage John concerning the project; it had become a pet one with the big fellow; but he did not give the idea strong indorsement. "You're too blamed pessimistic, Jim," growled Lefever.

"No, John," protested Laramie evenly, "I'm only trying to see things as they stand. Don't figure we are going to pull this thing without trouble. Harry Van Horn's got a good guess that Hawk is pretty well shot up, and that he's hiding out. He knows a man can't hide out without friends."

"I grant you that," interrupted John. "But if you can get him across the Crazy Woman, Jim, it's a cinch to run him into town."

"Don't figure that every mile of that road isn't watched, for it is. I ride it oftener than you and I see pelnty of sign. And Harry knows what a rainy night means just as well as we do. He'll be on the job with his men—that's all I'm saying. Now, go ahead. You want Hawk brought in—that's your business. I'm here to bring him in—that's my business. hoot."

Laramie ordered his horse, got into oil-skins, and, riding out the back way of the stable, started for the Falling Wall. The day was spent and the rain had turned soft and misty. He rode fast and with a little watchfulness, exercised before reaching the Crazy Woman, satisfied himself that he had not been followed out of town.

What had actually happened was that he rode north not long after Kate herself started for home. But Laramie followed old trails out of town—even at the price of rounding fences and at times dodging through wire gates for short cuts. Night was upon him when he reached the bluffs of the creek. Between showers the sky had lightened, but the north was overcast, and Laramie knew what to look forward to. When he had got up the long hill and reached the northern bluffs it was raining steadily again and night had spread over mountain and valley.

Abating something of his usual precaution in riding to reach Hawk's hiding place, Laramie went slowly into the bad lands by a route less dangerous than that he usually followed. As the night deepened, the wind rising brought a heavier rain. The trail became increasingly difficult to follow; rough at best, it was now almost impassable. Sheets of water trickled over stretches of rock, causing the horse to slip and flounder. In other places rivulets shooting out of crevices cut the loose earth from under the horse's feet. Leg-tired, the horse finally resen ed being headed into the driving rain and went forward slipping, hesitating, and groping like a man on hands and knees.

When Laramie got him to the old bridge the pony was all in. Laramie found shelter for him under a ledge and, rifle in hand, clambered along the side of the canyon toward the abutment. Close to the entrance he set his rifle against the rock, listened carefully, as always, felt down at his feet for the few chips of rock he had so placed that they would be disturbed if trodden by an enemy, listened again carefully, and, with his revolver cocked in his right hand and the muzzle lying across his left forearm, Laramie slowly sigzagged his way to the inside. Once there, he stood perfectly still in the darkness and called a greeting to Hawk. He failed to receive the usual gruff answer. This never before had happened, and, without trying for a light, Laramie moved slowly and with much caution over to the recess within which Hawk lay. There he could hear the cowboy's labored but regular breathing as he slept. The storm, waking the water crevices of the mountains into a noisy chorus, had lulled the hunted man into an untroubled sleep.

Laramie shook his oilskins in a heap on the floor, cautiously lighted a candle, and set it on the board that served as a table. In spite of his slickers he was wet through. He hung his hat on the end of a broken timber and laid his revolver beside the candle. Bethinking himself, however, of his rifle, he picked up the six-shooter again, stepped outside the entrance, brought in his rifle, wiped it, stood it in a convenient corner, and turned toward Hawk.

An Unexpected Guest.

The candle, burning at moments steadily and at moments flickering, threw its uncertain rays into the recess where the wounded rustler lay. They lighted the sallow pallor of the sleeping man's face, fell across his sunken eyes and drew the black of his long beard out of the gloom below it. Laramie seated himself an a projecting ledge and looked thoughtfully at his charge. He was failing; of that there could be no doubt. Steel-willed and hard-sinewed though he was, the wounds that would long ago have put an ordinary man out of action were undermining his great vitality, and Laramie, in a study, felt it.

Yet such was the younger man's natural stubbornness that, left to his own devices, he would have fought out the battle against death right where the failing man lay; only the judgment of Lefever and Carpy swayed him in the circumstances.

Believing sleep was the best preparative for the ordeal of the ride to town, Laramie hesitated about waking Hawk—yet the hours were precious, for the trip would be long and slow. Fortunately he had not long to wait before Hawk woke.

Laramie was sitting a few feet away and silently looking at him when Hawk opened his eyes. They wandered from one object to another in the dim candle gloom, until they rested on Laramie's face; there they stopped.

Laramie's features relaxed into as near a smile as he permitted himself on duty: "How you coming, Abe?"

Hawk eyed him steadily: "What are you doing here tonight?"

Laramie answered with a question: "How about trying the gauntlet?"

"That what you want?"

"It's what Lefever and Carpy want."

"They think you'd get well full as quick at a hospital."

"What do you think?"

"I guess you would."

"Tired taking care of me?"

"Not yet, Abe."

"Raining?"

"Hell bent."

"What's the other noise?"

"Thunder; and the river's up."

The roar of the waters was not new to the ears of the two men who listened, however much it might have disturbed others unused to their tearing fury.

Hawk listened thoughtfully. "Why didn't you pick a wet night?" he asked.

"We had to pick a dark one, Abe."

"Where's the horses?"

"Over at my place—what's that?"

The last words broke from Laramie's lips like the crack of a pistol. He sprang to his feet. Hawk's hand shot out for his gun. Only practised ears could have detected, under the steady downpour of rain, the deep roar of the canyon and the reverberation of the thunder, the hoofbeats of a stumbling horse. The next instant they heard the horse directly over their heads. Laramie, whipping out his revolver, looked up. As he did so a deafening crash blotted out the roar of the storm—the roof overhead gave way and, amid an avalanche of rock and timbers, a horse plunged headlong into the refuge.

In the narrow quarters so amazingly invaded darkness added to an instant of frantic confusion. Laramie was knocked flat. In the midst of the fallen timbers, the horse, mad with terror, struggled to get to his feet. A suppressed groan betrayed the rider under him.

Laramie, where he ay, gun in hand, and Hawk, had but one thought: their retreat had been discovered and attacked. It was no part of their defense to reveal their presence by wild shooting. The enemy who had plunged in on top of them was at their mercy, even though unseen. He was caught under the horse, and to clap a revolver to his head and blow the top off was simple; it could be done at any moment. Of much greater import it was carefully to await his companions when they rode up above and pick them off as chance offered. Escape, if the raiding party were properly organized, both men knew was for them impossible—and they knew that Harry Van Horn organized well. The alternative was to sell their lives as dearly as possible.

This was by no means a terrifying conclusion to men used to affray. And for the moment at least the situation was in their hands, not in the enemies'.

A deluge of wind and rain swept through the broken roof. Laramie, stretching one arm through the debris, felt the shoulder of the rider, flung in the violence of the fall close to him.

The prostrate horse renewed his struggles to get to his feet.

Laramie, exposed to the pouring rain, covered with mud, bruised by broken rock still rolling down the open crater, and caught among rotten timbers, struggled to right himself before his enemy should do so. He raised himself by a violent effort to his elbow, freed his pistol arm and, reaching over, pushed his cocked revolver into the side of the fallen horseman.

A bolt of lightning shot across the crater, leaving behind it an inky blackness of rain and wind. The sudden onslaught from overhead might well have confused his senses; but he had seen the lightning sweep across a white, drawn face turned toward the angry sky—and in the flash he had caught the features of Kate Doubleday.

Stunned though he was by the revelation, he knew his senses had not tricked him. There was in his memory but one such riding cap as that which shaded her closed eyes; for him, but one such coil of woman's hair as that falling now in disarray on her neck. Completely unnerved, he carefully drew away his revolver, averted the muzzle, and spoke agrily through the dark: "Who's here with you?"

There was no answer. He asked the question sternly again, listening keenly the while for sounds of other riders above. Had she discovered the retreat and led to it his enemies? Could it be possible that even they would allow her with them on such an errand and on such a night?

He called her name. The roar of the canyon answered above the storm; there was no sound else. Once more he stretched out his arm. His hand rested on her breast and he was doubly sure his senses had not tricked him. But she might be dying or dead. The fear struck home that she was dead. Then her bosom rose in a hardly perceptible respiration.

A storm of emotion swept Laramie. He squirmed under the debris that pinned him and got nearer to her. He listened still for sounds of an enemy, of those who must be with her—where could they be? The delicate breathing under his heavy hand came more regularly. Then a moan of pain checked and, again, released it.

Feeling slowly in the stormy dark for obstructions that might have caught her, Laramie freed one of her feet caught in the stirrup, and by pushing and lifting at the shoulder of the horse succeeded, after much exertion, in freeing her other foot, caught under it. He felt his way back to Kate's head and, getting on his feet, placed his hands under her shoulders to draw her toward him.

As he did so a sharp question of fear and confusion was flung at him: "Where am I? Who are you?"

"Who are you?" echoed Laramie, pulling her away from the horse, which had begun to struggle again. "Who's here with you?" he demanded. There was no answer.

"Who's here with you?" he repeated sternly. "Tell me the truth."

"I've lost my way. Where am I? Who are you?"

The truth in her manner was plain. Incredible as it seemed that she could have strayed so far, all apprehension of an attack vanished with her questions.

"You're a long way from home," he said, shortly.

She made no reply.

"Your horse took a header. You fainted, I suppose"—he hardly hesitated in his words—"you know who is talking to you?"

In her silence he heard his answer.

"Can you stand on your feet?" he asked.

Supporting her as she made the trial, he felt his way from where the horse had plunged through to where he found a partial seat for her. "Are you much hurt?" he asked again.

She could not, if she would, have told in how many places she was broken and bruised. All she was sharply conscious of was a pain in one foot so intense as to deaden all other pain. It was the foot that had been caught under the horse. "I think I'm all right," she murmured, in a constrained tone and, in her manner, briefly. "How did you find me here?" she asked, almost resentfully. "Where am I?"

He knew from her words she had neither headed nor followed any expedition against him, but he did not answer her question: "I'll see whether I can get the horse up."

While he worked with the horse—and once during the long, hard effort she heard between thunder claps a sharp expletive—Kate tried to collect in some degree her scattered and reeling senses. What quieted her most was that her long and fear-stricken groping for hours in the storm and darkness seemed done now. Without realizing it, she was willingly turning her fears and troubles over to another—and to one who, though she stubbornly refused to regard him as a friend she well knew was able to shoulder them. She heard the kicking and pawing of the horse; then, with new dismay, the low voices of two men; and next, in the terrifying darkness, more kicking, more suppressed expletives, more heaving and pulling, and, between lightning flashes, quieting words to the horse. The two men had gotten the frightened beast to his feet.

Laramie groped back to Kate. He had to touch her with his hand to be sure he had found her: "I'm taking you at your word," he said, above the confusion of the storm.

"What do you mean?"

"That you're alone and don't know where you are."

"I am alone. I wish I might know where I am."

Both spoke under constraint: "It's most important to know how to get home," he replied, ignoring the request in her words. "Your horse is here for the night—that's pretty certain," he declared, as a sheet of rain swept over the crater. "I've got a horse near by and we'll start for where we can get more horses."

There was nothing Kate could say or do. She already had made up her mind to submit in silence to what Laramie might suggest or impose. One thing only she was resolved on; that whatever happened there should be no appeal on her part.

His first thought was to get her out of the pit by the way she had plunged in. A moment's reflection convinced him that such a precaution was unnecessary. When he asked her to follow him he had her wet gloved hand in his hand. "Look out for your footing till we get to the horse," was his warning. "The way we're going, we should never make but one slip. Take your time," he added, as she stepped cautiously after him out into the drive of wind and rain. "It's only about twenty steps."

In obeying orders she gave him nothing to complain of, but there was little relaxing of the tension between the two. Every step she took on her injured foot was torture, made keener by the uncertain footing. More than once, even despite the dangers of her situation, she thought she must cry out or faint in agony. The twenty steps along the steep face of the canyon, belted by rain, were like two hundred. Kate made them without a whimper. Thence she followed him slowly between rocky walls guarding the nearly level floor of the widening ledge till they reached the horse. She stumbled at times with pain; but if it were to kill her she would not speak.

Hawk had followed the two from the abutment. He joined them now. Kate was only aware that a second man had come up and was moving silently near them. Laramie spoke to him—she could not catch what he said—then helped her into the saddle. "I'm going to the house again," he said; "this man will stay with you. I'll be back in a moment."

Little as she liked being left with another, she could not object. The rocky wall saved her partly from the storm, and as to the other man she was only vaguely conscious at intervals of a shapeless form outlined beside the horse.

Laramie was gone more than a moment, but under Kate's shelter nothing happened. The horse, subdued by storm and weariness, stood like a statue. Uneasy with pain, Kate was very nervous. New sounds were borne on the wind from the darkness; then she heard Laramie's voice; and then a rough question from another voice: "How the hell did you get him out?"

"Walked him out," was the response. Laramie had brought back her own horse. "Get on him," added Laramie, speaking to the other man. "I'll lead my horse—he's sure-footed for her. You know the way down."

Kate made only one effort, as the man she knew must be Laramie came to the head of the horse she was on, patted his wet neck and took hold of the bridle. She leaned forward in the saddle: "I'll try again to get home if you'll help me get out of here."

"I'm helping you get out," was the reply. "If you knew where you were, you wouldn't talk yet about trying for home." He stepped closer to the saddle, tested the cinches, and spoke to Kate: "It's a hard ride. You can make it by letting the horse strictly alone. I'll lead him, but he won't stand two bosses in this kind of a mess over the only trail that leads from here. How you ever got in, God only knows, and He won't tell—leastways, not tonight. Sit tight. Don't get scared, no matter what happens. If the horse should break a leg all we can do is to shoot him, and you can try your own horse; but your horse is all in now."

To ride at night a mile in the chilling blackness of a mountain storm is to ride five. To face a buffeting wind and a sweep of heavy rain mile after mile, and keep a saddle while a horse pauses, halts, starts and staggers, rights himself, gropes painfully for an uncertain foothold among rocks where a big-horn must pick his way, is to test the endurance of even a man.

Laramie, moving unseen and almost unheard in the inky blackness, piloted the nervous beast with an uncanny instinct past the dangers on every hand. He guided himself with his feet and by his hands, halting on the edge of crevices and heading there with the horse at his shoulder, feeling his way around slopes of fallen rock and clambering across them when they could not be escaped, holding the lines at their length ahead of the horse, and speaking low and reassuringly to urge him on—waiting sometimes for a considerable period for a flash of lightning to give him his bearings anew.

Kate could see in each of these blinding intervals his figure. Each flash outlined it sharply on her retina—always the same—patient, resourcerful, silent and unwearied. The man who had been directed to ride her own horse she never caught sight of. When they reached open country and better going her guide did not break the silence. He spoke only when at last he stopped the horse and stood in the darkness close to her knee:

"This brings us to the end of our trail—for awhile. We're in front of my cabin. Of course, it's small. And I've been thinking what I ought to say to you about things as you'll find them here. The man that rode behind us and passed us on your horse is Abe Hawk. You know what they call him over at your place; you know what they call me for taking his part—you know what you called me."

She repressed an exclamation. When she tried to speak he spoke on, ignoring her. "Never mind," he said, in the same low, even tone that silenced her protest; "I'm not starting any argument, but it's time for plain speaking, and I'm going to tell you just what has happened tonight, so, for once, anyway, we'll understand each other—I'm going to show my cards."

The chilling sheets of that rain swept their faces did not hasten his utterance. "When you get home and tell your story your men will know it was Abe Hawk you ran into, whether you know it or not. They'll ask you all about this hiding place, and you'll tell them all you know—which won't be much. I don't complain of all that—it's war and part of the game. All I'll ask you not to say is that I brought Abe Hawk with you to my cabin. Abe won't be here when they come—it isn't that. We can take care of ourselves. I'm speaking only because I don't want my place burned. It isn't much, but I think a good deal of it. Burning it won't help get rid of me. It will only make things in this country worse than they are now—and they're bad enough. I wouldn't have brought you here if there'd been any other place to take you. There wasn't; and for awhile you'll have to make partners with the two men your father and his friends are trying to get killed."

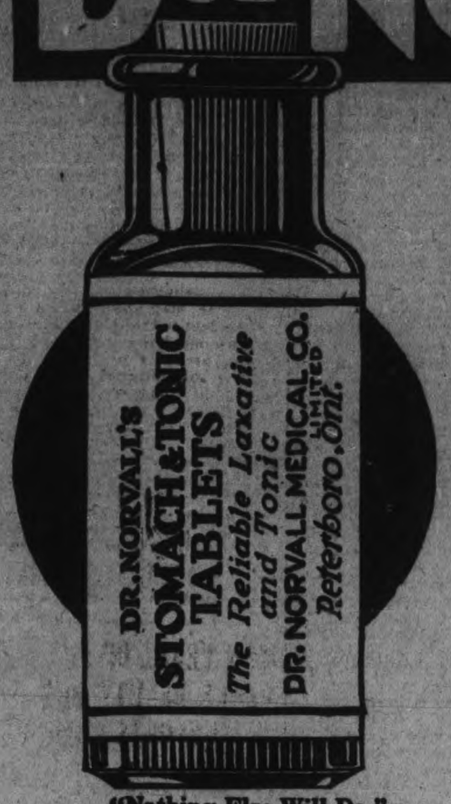
DR NORVALL'S



"Nothing Else Will Do," Says Famous Actress.

A famous Canadian actress whose professional headquarters is in New York, sending an order for Dr. Norvall's Tablets, writes: "I am leaving on my trip to the Pacific Coast. Wherever I go, I always carry with me Dr. Norvall's Tablets. They are wonderful! A tablet occasionally when I need it keeps me fit and alert, as nothing else will, for my long tiring journeys, and exacting work on the stage."

"—and six months ago I was tortured by blinding headaches—bilious, nervous, half alive."

This man's letter tells us the same story that hundreds of others tell. He is today in buoyant health and spirits; eats with relish; sleeps well and tackles his work with vim.

He really began to enjoy life when a friend said: "Your trouble begins in a disordered stomach and liver—you're poisoning yourself. Stop it today with Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets!"

In the same way thousands of other Canadians have rescued themselves from the same tortures. Auto-intoxication (or self-poisoning) is a condition common in these days of nervous strain, rush, anxiety. Few escape it. A disordered digestive system is unable to perform its work healthily. Poisonous waste accumulating in the intestinal tract becomes a source of dangerous ailments. Such troubles may come in one or several of these forms: Indigestion, fermentation in the stomach, biliousness, headaches, dizziness, spotty or sallow complexion, sleeplessness, or general debility and lack of energy. In such cases the remedy is simple and easy:

The Mild Laxative and General Tonic, Dr. Norvall's Tablets

These tablets give gentle assistance to nature, in ridding the system of its poisonous waste. With ordinary care in diet, the stomach, liver and intestines are quickly cleansed, toned up and restored to a state of healthy functioning.

REPLY TO EVANGELIST KENNEDY

(By J. H. BURNHAM)

The eminent evangelist, the Rev. H. D. Kennedy, has evidently joined the ranks of those amongst the clergy who are teaching that the Bible is not, bluntly speaking, the Word of God. or surely no man believing that the Bible is the revealed Word of God would undertake to intepret or debate it, since, apart from every other consideration, he might not interpret it as God intended, and so might make the Creator out, perhaps, a writer of foolish things. If perplexed, why go to Moody? Do we not believe in going to God? What is the matter with those people who persist in going to colleges for the interpretation of the mind and message of the infinite God, whose ideas they can no more justify by their fallible human reasoning than they can grasp and interpret the infinitude of space. It is plain that laymen must go straight to God or we shall be waylaid by a thousand pitfalls. Surely religion is an act of Faith—faith in what? In the assurance by God that in response to prayer He will guide us. What then becomes of all this stu fically called theology and learning? We must graduate in the college of which God Himself is the Head and Christ the Teacher. That some will think differently from others, and some not at all, has nothing whatever to do with the question. It is not they, but God, who watches over each one of us, and leads us, if we will consent to be led. The hideousness that is being made of things human in the world, is not the work of God! Surely no one will contend that ti is. Why, then, not drop the human at tempt to take the moral and religious governance of the world out of God's hands? The Almighty has left our spiritual life here and hereafter in our own hands. That is to say we are allowed to choose. Serious and terrifying as it all is, he uses no coercion of any kind. To do so would, of course, defeat His whole object. Then, when doubts and perplexities arise do we not go to God, for let us be well assured that if He cannot explain it to us, and comfortus us, no one else can. The message that men give to the world, after much study, is not on that account the message that God sent, is it? Where did God say to Protestants, at any rate, that the clergy or anybody else for that matter, would explain what He meant if we found difficulty in understanding it? Is not the whole principle and theory of Christianity absolute dependence upon God, and upon Him and His Godhead alone?

EXCESS GAS SUPPLY IS ONLY TEMPORARY

THE FUEL PROBLEM OF THE MOTOR NOT YET SOLVED—NEW MATERIAL NEEDED.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., July 23.—At present petroleum is being produced faster than it is used, and stocks of gasoline are increasing. Crude oil produced in Oklahoma has dropped in price from $3.50 to $1.00 per barrel, and the price of gasoline has been lowered several cents per gallon. But one should not be misled by the present situation, which is only a part of the business cycle through which we are passing. It is a peculiarity of the oil producing business that the drilling of new wells reaches a maximum at the crest, or even after the crest, of the wave of prosperity. The result is an over-production of crude oil in the time of depression. Prices drop, profits vanish, and now drilling stops. But within a year or two the pendulum swings the other way, and again there is a scarcity of oil due to the interruption of drilling in the time of depression. This cycle of events would take place even if there were an endless supply of crude oil underground.

The real motor fuel problem is not concerned with the swings of the business pendulum, although the present abundance of fuel is pointed to by superficial critics as showing how wrong have been the predictions of the scientists that have warned us of a future shortage.

The Underground Reserve.

The problem arises in part through the fact that the underground reserve of petroleum is limited. At present the unmined reserve of the United States is only about 5,800,000,000 barrels. Were this oil to be extracted from the ground at a rate equal to that of the year 1920, a feat that is quite out of the question from a practical standpoint, the reserve would last only thirteen years. It is thus evident, however, that after a few years we must expect a decline in the domestic production of petroleum.

On the other hand, the use of automobiles, tractors, trucks, and gasoline engines is becoming more general. Only 25 years ago there were but four automobiles in the country. One was in a circus, another was used for exhibition purposes, and two were regarded as mechanical freaks. Today the total number of registered motor vehicles is over nine million, an almost unbelievable increase in the short period of 25 years. What is more, the number is still growing, and will probably exceed 13,000,000 within a few years.

Getting More From the Oil

Where are we to get the fuel to run this vast number of cars? So far there has been little difficulty as we have depended largely on greater drafts upon natural deposits. True enough, we have changed the nature of the commodity we know as gasoline. Its boiling range, that is, the range of temperature over which it distills, has been broadened, with the result that the amount of gasoline obtainable from a barrel of crude oil has been increased 50 to 75 per cent. Also, gasoline has been extracted from natural gas by processes involving either compression and cooling or oil-washing and cooling. And, too, we have produced "synthetic gasoline," or "cracked gasoline," on a moderate scale. The processes for the production of these last named fuels involve the heating of the oil in liquid or vapor form. At the present time these gasolines comprise 15 to 20 per cent. of the total quantity of gasoline marketed. The development and more extensive use of these processes may be expected. It is probable that their use will be the most important means of bridging the gap between present and future sources of motor fuel.

The quality of market gasoline will not change greatly in the next few years, at least not until the automotive engineers perfect devices that will handle heavier and less volatile gasoline satisfactorily.

In spite of the fact that for several years the United States has produced two-thirds of the world's oil, we have recently been dependent upon foreign sources of supply of crude oil. Eighty per cent. of the world's oil is consumed in this country. In 1920 our imports were 110,000,000 barrels, or 25 per cent. of our domestic production. This oil came largely from Mexico. As the years pass, the United States will become more and more dependent upon imports of petroleum. This will mean higher prices and therefore necessitate more efficient utilization once the oil is in this country.

Shale Oil and Alcohol.

What other possible sources of fuel are there? Much has been heard of shale oil and of alcohol. Neither of these commodities will be important as motor fuel until many far-reaching developments have taken place. The development of a shale oil industry on a scale sufficient to furnish large quantities of motor fuel is an undertaking comparable to the creation of the whole coal mining industry of today. And to produce alcohol we must first have available suitable raw material. It is quite out of the question to make large quantities of fuel alcohol from food materials such as grain and potatoes. Possibly wood may be the future source of alcohol, and reforestation of waste areas the means of supplying the wood.

HARTE SLOWS UP; DID YOU NOTICE IT?

The earth is putting on brakes—that is, it is slowing up in its speed of rotation. This is no cause for alarm, however, accordng to H. Gernsback, editor or Science and Invention. This authority says that even with the present-day instruments of precision, the difference in time can hardly be noticed over a period extending through a decade. The calculated figure amounts to only 1-80th of a second in 1,000 years!

But what is the cause of this slowing up of the earth's rotation. Sir George Darwin pointed out years ago that it can be due solely to the friction produced by tides. The earth is a body in motion; it is subject to the same laws of mechanics as other bodies in motion. Friction means production of heat and friction will slow up a moving body no matter what its size. Sir George thus calculated very correctly that tidal friction would cause the earth to slow up.

At the same time these tidal forces drive the moon further out in its orbit (7½ feet per century), with the result that the length of the lunar month, now approximately 28 days, increases gradually.

Sir George's theory has been confirmed recently by actual data collected painstakingly over a period of many years by three English scientists, Dr. Fotheringham, Dr. Taylor and Dr. Jeffreys. These scientists not only reckoned backward many historical eclipses of the sun and the moon, but they found by calculation that the friction produced by tidal action would perfectly account for the slowing up of the earth.

"Although this 'braking' action of the tidal friction upon the earth seems almost microscopic," says Mr. Gernsback, "the power required to produce this result is gigantic.

"Consider the earth, which is a globe almost 8,000 miles in diameter, spinning at the rate of over 1,000 miles an hour at the Equator. Then figure out how many horsepower it takes to slow up this globe at the rate of only 1-80th of a second in a hundred years.

"The startling answer is 2½ billion horsepower acting continuously for the entire hundred years. Such figures overwhelm the imagination, but they are readily proved. Although absolutely accurate figures as to tidal pressure on the earth are not available, a rough estimate can be made readily. Tidal forces out in the ocean are not very great and the friction there amounts to only a small fraction compared to that set up along our shores. You have only to calculate the amount of horsepower developed along our shores for a mile and then multiply this by the total shore mileage throughout the world. You will then find that two and a half billion horsepower is a rather conservative figure."

DELIGHTFUL DAY FOR MOUNTAIN CLIMB

ALGONQUIN HOTEL, N. B., July 22.—To-day has been one of the most pleasant days this summer. The sun has been bright but the air has been deliciously cool. It does not seem possible that it can be so warm in the cities, but the reports show temperatures of 79 for London, 82 in Ottawa, 90 in Toronto, and 85 in Montreal. In St. Andrews it is only sixty-nine.

This has been a delightful days to climb Chamcook Mountain. After passing through the avenue at Rossmount, the charming summer home of the Rev. H. P. Ross, the climber follows the winding path through the woods until after a sharp scramble he emerges on the summit. The view is superb. There is the glorious sweep over Passamaquoddy Bay, over Deer Island and Campobello, across the Bay of Fundy to Grand Mana. If the day is especially clear, Nova Scotia might be seen. Looking west there is the Saint Croix river, showing distinctly its cross made where Oak Bay and Waweig river meet. At the foot of the mountain nestle the Chamcook Lakes from which the town water supply is derived. On three sides as a back ground are the blue hills rolling into mystic distance.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Edtior of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The party or parties who have been sending fake messages over the telephone to an address on Sherbrooke street, leaving no name, had better come out in the open and make themselves known. I hate deceit, and this only shows the mean, contemptible nature of the sender. The motive is evidently malice and one that would do this would do worse. I can guess who it is and with a recurrence of same I intend to notify the Chief of Police and ask him to investigate. This is about the fourth time this has happened.

Many thanks for the space.

Yours truly,
SUBSCRIBER.

FEARED BABY BOY WOULD BECOME A "KURT EISNER"

BERLIN, July 23.—Fearing that he might become a Communist because he was born in Vienna, the police of Munich have refused to permit a chubby little baby boy, ten weeks aold, to enter Germany. The little fellow was adopted by a childless couple, resident of Munich, after they had searched for several months in Berlin and many other cities of continental Europe, for a baby that fulfilled their requirements. Arriving at Munich with their new found treasure, the couple were told that the police regarded him as "a dangerous and burdensome foreigner, who, in twenty years might become another Kurt Eisner."

ONTARIO MINISTERS DISAPPOINT CROWD

Do Not Appear at Meeting to Explain Road Costs.

LONDON, Ont., July 23.—Hundreds of farmers who left their harvest fields to attend a meeting at Ailsa Craig, at which Hon. F. C. Biggs and Hon. Peter Smith were scheduled to speak, were disappointed at the failure of the Government speakers to put in an appearance. A telegram was received from Mr. Biggs to the effect he had been detained in Toronto by an important meeting of the Ontario Cabinet.

"They should have kept their promise, especially when the meeting was advertised a week ahead," was the statement heard everywhere. Addresses were made at the meeting by the three U. F. O. members for Middlesex, James C. Brown, John W. Freeborn, and John G. Lethbridge.

BRITISH SKIPPER MUST EXPLAIN WHY HE VIOLATED RULE OF SEA

DISCHARGES HIS CREW AT SEA AND TRANSFERS THEM TO ANOTHER VESSEL—WAS CARRYING 1,000 CASES LIQUOR FOR QUEBEC.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 23.—The master of the British schooner Pocomoke, which came into Atlantic City in distress, and without her cargo of 1,000 cases of intoxicating liquors, will have some explaining to do to the British authorities in this jurisdiction, according to Charles R. Kurtz, surveyor of the port.

"There is no question the Pocomoke is the mysterious vessel reported off the New Jersey coast," Mr. Kurtz said. "All the vessel's papers were taken by Navigation Inspetcor Marstellar, who boarded the Docomoke at Atlantic City and turned the mover to the British consul for inquiry.

Mr. Kurtz said the Pocomoke came into Atlantc City under distress signals. Captain J. A. Roy, according to Mr. Kurtz, said he left Nassau, Bahama Islands, with 1,000 cases of liquor for ueQbec. Off the Delaware Capes, he said, he encountered a storm which caused hi mto transfer part of the cago to a schooner and to throw the remainder overboard, because the vessel sprung a leak. According to Mr. Kurtz, Captain Roy said his crew was discharged and transferred to another vessel at sea, which is said to be a violation of maritme law.

"While we cannot do anything about what he did with his cargo outside the three-mile limit, the British Government can certainly make him give a more defintie explanation of the actions of the Pocomoke at sea," said Mr. Kurtz.

COUNCIL APPLIES FOR RELIEF FUND RAISED IN 1914

SUM OF $9000 HELD IN TRUST DURING THE WAR—BILL FOR $725 FROM THE PROVINCIAL TREASURER.

An account from the Provincial Treasurer's Department, claiming the sum of $725 which had been collected through fines in the local Police Court, was referred to the Finance Committee by the Council last night. This communication inspired Ald. Gordon's resolution that the clerk write to the other municipalities in Ontario, asking them to make efforts in obtaining an amendment to the Criminal Code, whereby such fines may be paid to the municipalities in which the offences for which they were penalties were committed.

Want Relief Fund.

Ald. Hamilton moved, seconded by Ald. Gordon, that the trustees of the Peterborough Relief Association be asked to transfer to the City Treasurer the money held by them to be expended in contingent relief "for those of the civilian population who are in need owing to the late war." This money was raised early during the war in anticipation of demands from the public before the war boom in wages and profits had got under way. So quickly did business adjust itself to the abnormal and new conditions that there was no call upon this fund, which has been held since then by the trustees. Special legislation passed at the last session of the Provincial Government sanctioned the transfer now applied for by the Council.

Dig His Own Sewer.

Richard Foster, Wolfe Street, asked for permission to make a sewer connection to his house. He explained that the sewer laid on that street was put in by Mrs. Stewart, who had owned the adjoining property. It had since passed from her hands. The sewer ended within 16 feet of the Foster lot. Once before Mr. Foster had dug a trench for a connection, but the owner of the house next to his had threatened action.

"You shouldn't have paid any attention to him," said Ald. Hamilton. "Why didn't you appeal to the Council? The city owns the streets, and the Council only has the right to say whether these things should be done or not."

Mr. Foster was given permission to dig the trench in the street for the purpose of making a connection to this sewer, the work to be done under the supervision of the City Engineer.

OIL FIELDS FIRE IS NOW REDUCED

TWO WELLS BURNING FIERCELY BUT NOT EXPECTED TO SPREAD.

MEXICO CITY, July 23.—(Canadian Press).—Fire in the Amatlan oil fields, which broke out Wednesday and caused property damage estimated at several million dollars, has been reduced to two wells, which are still burning fiercely. Reports from Tampico say the conflagration is unlikely to spread further.

SHORT OF REAPERS.

Greater Demand in West For Harvesting Machinery.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 23.—Indications are that there will be a rush for harvesting machinery in two or three weeks, greater than has been experienced in the West for six years, the manager of a farm implement firm said yesterday. 'At the present there is no large stock of machinery from which to draw in the West. Carloads are coming in daily from eastern shops, but a shortage is not impossible," the manager said.

THE TRAIL OF THE RUBBER PORTERS

NATIVES SING AS THEY MARCH UNDER THEIR HEAVY LOADS.

On a hunting trip in the great African forest, where the rubber is gathered, says a writer in The Cleveland Plain Dealer, I heard a weird chanting coming from over the river as we approached Makala. The wild voices came across the water in a monotonous chant mixed with discordant notes blown on antelope horns. It was the natives I knew, but why they sang I did not know. The chief of my carriers told me.

It was not a special festival to the sowing of crop, nor an invocation of the natives to the supreme spirit. It was only a rubber caravan returning from a forest trip, happy at the thought of coming home.

Louder and louder grew the chant, and at last, from among the great trees, the caravan wound into sight. We of our party stepped back to the side of the trail and watched the rubber carriers file past.

At the head walked a chief, resplendent in gala dress, following him came the gatherers. One by one they strode past, chanting their song as they marched. On their backs they bore the rubber. The men were big, black fellows, strong and stalwart, and the women fit mates in brawn and muscle.

It will ever be an open question in my mind whether the women were not even stronger than the men. Many a woman, in addition to the heavy basket of rubber on her back, carried her little black baby strapped on her hip.

We followed the caravan into the town of Makala. There the rubber was being weighed and the cares of the trail forgotten in the time of payment. The women were all standing around the scales with glistening eyes, looking at the treasures they coveted spread out for their choice.

Cloth, salt, soap, beads are among the greatest treasures, but even more precious to these dusky women are the little bells that the white men give them to lie on the baby's tiny wrists and ankles. For like all good mothers the world over, these black workers idolize their children.

At work in the forest camps, gathering rubber, or on the hard marches carrying the precious rubber to market, the African woman will not be separated from her baby. No matter how heavy her burden or work may be, her little black child is strapped to her hip and she croons to it as she works.

NEGRO BITES GUARDS ON WAY TO DEATH CELL.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 23.—John I. Bulgo, negro, who murdered an aged couple in a Brooklyn apartment on July 4, 1920, was put to death last night in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison.

The condemned man battled fiercely with four guards when he was removed to the new death house early yesterday. Two guards were bitten before they overpowered him, and a special detail of prison attaches was assigned to watch him throughout the day.

Bulgo killed Edward Johnson and his wife when they resisted his attempts to rob their apartments.

RAILWAYS WILL ISSUE PASSAGE INSURANCE RATES

Canadian National-Grand Trunk System Announces New Facilities For Travellers.

The Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways are arranging another new feature of service: that is the issue at their various city and larger station ticket offices of insurance policies covering the personal baggage of travellers while journeying by land or sea also while staying at hotels, etc. The policies will cover fire, theft, pilferage and water damage and will issued at small cost. The issuance of these policies will, it is believed, be of considerable convenience to travellers, particularly to those proceeding on vacations or on ocean voyages. The passenger may now, wtihout any undue formality, and for a small sum, protect his baggage from loss or damage from the time he leaves his home until he returns on the completion of his trip. Personal accident policies have been issued by railway agents in the past, but the traveller has hitherto been obliged to make special arrangements when desiring to insure his baggage. The White Star-Dominion Line is co-opertaing with the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways in providing these increased facilities for issuing rail and watre baggage insurance policies.

The Little Miracle of the Marionettes

How the Unique Hobby of Tony Sarg, the Famous Illustrator, Has Induced Him to Become Impresario to a Company of Wooden-Headed Actors Specially Engaged to Revive an Almost Forgotten Art.

By Richard Silvester

TO Tony Sarg, illustrator of international reputation, has fallen the distinguished honor of reviving the ancient art of the marionette. He has done it in such a way, moreover, that the art of the marionette play has been raised to a plane where it threatens to compete with the drama and even the high class "movie."

There was a time when the marionette was a most popular form of amusement. It languished and almost died, Tony Sarg says, because its devotees were artisans rather than artists.

Archaeologists tell us that the marionette is a direct descendant of the wood and stone images of ancient temples. Crude prototypes have been found in the ruins of ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome. Marionettes were also popular in the Orient and many curious examples of old Chinese and Indian puppets are in existence today.

Among the learned marionettes have also been exceedingly popular from the earliest times. They fascinated many literary men. Goethe played with puppets and it is said that they inspired him to write "Faust." Among those who also wrote plays for marionettes are Lessing, Ben Jonson, Swift, Stevenson, La Sage, George Sand and Voltaire. Joseph Haydn delighted in composing music for marionettes and Louis XIV. had a puppet theatre installed at his court.

Within recent years marionette theatres have flourished in many European countries, particularly in Italy. In America, however, this form of entertainment was almost unknown until very recently when Tony Sarg resuscitated it.

Originally he created his miniature actors simply for his own amusement and as a diversion from his regular work with pen and brush. He studied and gradually developed a type of puppet whose versatility and mechanical perfection had never before been approached.

Some two or three years ago Tony Sarg's Marionettes made their first public appearance in New York at the Neighborhood Playhouse. Nothing so genuinely artistic and perfect had ever before been seen in America. The little people quickly wound their heartstrings about the public's affections and made their creator famous from coast to coast. The press heralded Mr. Sarg's marionettes as an epoch-making revival, and many people prominent in the theatre, in art, and in literature lent the young American artist their active support. Among those who have acknowledged Tony Sarg's unique genius and gave him every encouragement are David Belasco, Winthrop Ames and Charles Hopkins.

A few months later saw Tony Sarg's Marionettes firmly established in New York and actually on Broadway at the Punch and Judy Theatre. Today this unique company is something of an institution in the metropolis. They have also had successful engagements in many other large cities, and have played on the estate of Frank A. Vanderlip and in the homes of other well known people. The puppets have earned money for the endowment funds of such colleges as Radcliffe, Simmons, Smith and Mt. Holyoke.

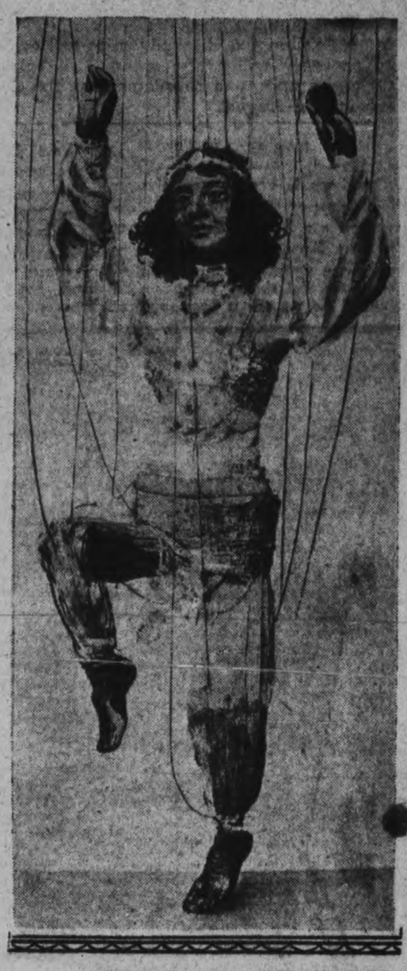
Highly Trained Puppeteers Manipulate the Control Wires and Make the Puppets Perform Like Human Beings.

Mr. Sarg's puppets are about two-and-a-half feet high, perfectly proportioned, and so skilfully jointed and weighted that they are able to make virtually all the movements of the living person. They can wink their eyes, move their lips, dance, play the piano, smoke, juggle balls, ride prancing chargers and do a host of other things, despite their seeming resemblance to blockheads. They appear on a tiny stage all their own, amidst miniature furniture and other stage props all constructed to scale. From the moment the curtains part the spectator is carried away by the illusion that the dolls are living people. The settings for the tiny stage are all designed by Mr. Sarg and exhibit the same daring color combinations that have made his work in poster composition noteworthy. Music is provided on a miniature piano and other instruments especially constructed for the purpose.

The marionette stage which Tony Sarg has developed is a surprisingly complicated thing. A marionette performance viewed from the audience is, indeed, remarkable. From the wings it is even more interesting and wonderful. And the members of Mr. Sarg's company are very sophisticated creatures. They are controlled by from twenty to thirty strings each, as compared to the six or eight of the old-fashioned puppet. Seven highly-trained puppeteers are necessary to give any one performance. These puppeteers, stationed on bridges above the little stage, manipulate the puppets, speak the lines, change the scenery, and work the elaborate lighting equipment. The strings—almost invisible from the front—of each puppet are attached to a "controller" held in the hands of the person working the figure. On this controller are keys corresponding to different movements of the puppet. Weeks of intensive practice are required to learn to operate a puppet and sometimes two, or even three people are required to manipulate one figure. Each puppet represents a vast amount of skill and work in design, execution and manipulation.

Spotlights, Incidental Music and Other Up-to-Date Theatrical Effects Are Now Being Introduced Into the Marionette Play, as This "Behind the Scenes" Photograph Shows.

Each Puppet Is Controlled by from Twenty to Thirty Wires and Can Be Made to Perform Much Like a Real Flesh and Blood Actor.



The Tiny Stage Upon Which the Marionettes Perform Is Constructed to Scale and the Scenic Effects Have Been Pronounced True to Life.

HER SUPERMAN DEFEATED, FRANCE IS NOW SENDING A LADY IN SEARCH OF GAME

(By Henry L. Farrel, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 23. — France lost her superman when Georges Carpentier went down. She is now pinning her national pride on her superwoman, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the queen of the tennis courts.

Uncle Sam, to meet the invasion of one as supreme in her lines as Carpentier was supposed to be in his, has called back to the courts two of his greatest, Mrs. May Sutton Bundy and Miss Mary K. Browne.

The two great California women are here now practising daily to get in form to defend American honour against an invader that records prove to be almost invincible.

Both Mrs. Bundy and Miss Browne contradict the popular theory that a woman must talk. Neither will say a word on what they are going to do in the national championsnip at Forest Hills, starting 15th August, when they are to meet the French girl wizard.

"I really dont' know," Mrs. Bundy said to-day. "I have never seen Mlle. Lenglen play. I do know, however, that she must be a great player. Her record shows that. We all know, however, that change in climatic condition often throws one's game off."

Several officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association and many tennis fans watched Mrs. Bundy play at Forest Hills. They agree with the reports coming from the coast that she seemed close to the game of old, that ranked her as one of the greatest women players ever produced.

"I can't say much about my game. I shouldn't," she said. "I feel good, physically, but I need a lot of practice. I haven't been playing as much in the last three years as I should have. To keep up one's tennis game it is necessary to get a great deal of practice."

Miss Browne was less committal. "I don't care to express any opinion about our chances of beating Mlle. Lenglen. I shall leave that for someone else to say," she said.

Mrs. Bundy and Miss Browne are both to continue practice at Forest Hills this week. Next week they will compete in the New York State championships in Brooklyn, and will engage in other tournaments around the East until the time for the national championships.

Mlle. Lenglen is scheduled to sail on Saturday from France, and probably will arrive about 30th July. She will make her first appearance in a tournament at the Greenwich, Conn., Field Club on 3rd August.

THE BASEBALL REPORTER.

The baseball reporter, after herding nightmares all night, handed in this: The game opened with Molasses at the stick, and Smallpox catching. Cigars was in the box with plenty of smoke. Horn on first base and Fiddle on second, backed by Corn in the field, made it hot for Umpire Apple, who was rotten. Ax came to bat and chopped. Cigar let Brick walk and Sawdust filled the bases. Song made a hit and Twenty made a score. Cigar went out and Balloon tried to pitch, but went straight up. Then Cherry tried it but was wild. Old Ice kept cool in the game until he was cracked by a pitched ball; then you ought to have heard Ice sCream. Cabbage had a good head and kept quiet. Grass covered lots of ground in the field, and the crowd cheered when Spider caught a fly. Bread loafed on third and pumped Organ, who played fast and put Light out. In the fifth inning Wind began to blow about what he could do. When Hammer began to knock. Trees began to leave. The way they roasted Peanut was a fright. Knife was out for cutting first base. Lightning finished pitching the game and struck out six men. In the ninth, Apple told Fiddle to take his base. Corn was shocked. Then Song made another hit. Skate made a gallant slide for home. Meat reached the plate, and was followed by Soap, who cleaned up. The score stood 1 to 0. After the game was over Door said if he had pitched he would have shut them all out.

BASEBALL

Peterboro is greatly peeved over their defeat at Port Hope on Saturday and can blame no persons but the Port Hope crowd and the umpire. How about blaming the playing of the Peterboro team for a change? As we see it base umpires in Port Hope are no worse than in Peterboro, or Oshawa. Oshawa well remembers their game in Peterboro when Umpire Phalen called a raw one on Walter Fair at second base. And needless to say Lindsay well recollects the raw deal the Greybirds got at Oshawa.—Lindsay Warder.

SPORT COMMENT

Henry Hoobin has passed. What memories tnese lines will recall to many who played against him. He was the kingpin of one of the greatest lacrosse teams of all time. There were few who could handle a stick and shoot like the great Harp, who dominated the famous home of Shamrocks, Currie, Hogan, the Brennans, Hoobin, Robinson, and Smith. What an attack that was! They are gradually passing out of the picture, those dominating sport figures of yesteryear. While lacrosse survives the name and exploits of "Henry" Hoobin will always be recalled.

TORONTO, July 22.—"Laddie" Cassels, coach of last year's all-conquering University of Toronto senior football team, has relinquished the reins of control, and for one year at least will not be able to lend valuable assistance to the Blue and White. Pressure of business is the sole reason that caused Cassels to decline the position he so capably filled last fall. The University authorities, if reports are true, did not have to look around long for a successor. Dr. Jack Maynard, famous U. of T. backfield of pre-war days, is the man they have requested to fill Cassel's shoes.

Abe Mitchell, the brilliant British golfer, is the Babe Ruth of the ancient sport when it comes to heavy artillery. The Babe flicks a 52-ounce bat, while Abe yields a 17-ounce driver, the heaviest weapon carried by any star. Mitchell gets terrific distances without any straining effort, his great strength taking care of the club's unusual weight. He has carried as far as 318 yards, the record so far as any one may recall the details. Babe and Abe together are the ruling monarchs in the kingdoms of slug.

Red Faber, the sensation of the pitching world this season, has them all guessing. To make the record he has established while pitching for a broken and disrupted ball club is seemingly impossible, and to do it in a season when practically every pitcher in the two leagues is taking his bumps regularly is more remarkable, writes Hugh Fullerton.

Faber's success is another instance of Comiskey's system of making pitchers, which differs from that of any one else in baseball. Comiskey never loses faith in his own judgment. He picks pitchers who have the strength, the build, all the natural requisites, and he keeps them. He believes firmly that, sooner or later, they will become great pitchers. He developed Ed. Walsh that way, kept him three years practically useless to the team, but all the time developing and learning. He kept Faber after every manager he had wanted to cut the big fellow loose.

The only failure of the system I ever have known was in th case of Louis Feine, who should have been the greatest pitcher the game ever knew, but who never came through. He had everything, but he never could pitch. He might have stuck and eventually become a star of the Walsh or Faber variety, but he had the tough luck to hit Billy Purtell on the head with a pitched ball in practice and wrecked his career, and Comiskey permitted him to go rather than risk having more players injured.

Bevil Rudd, captain of the Oxford-Cambridge track team, which is now in the United States, smokes a pipe almost incessantly, and American coaches are puzzled as to how he can do it and keep in condition. It is nothing new for an English athlete—for Bobby Kerr got the surprise of his life the first time he competed against Morton, the English sprinter, when Morton walked to the starting line with a pipe in his mouth. It almost made a nicotine fiend out of Bob.

WAS STUNNED BY LIGHTNING BOLT

W. B. Nott Had Miraculous Escape —Two Trees Torn.

To have two large willow trees badly torn to pieces in front of his cottage by a severe bolt of lightning and to get knocked over and stunned as a result of the shock that followed, was the experiences of W. B. Nott at Oshawa-on-the-Lake. Mr. Nett, who had ben fixing the windows in the cottage, was standing at the door facing the verandah on the south side towards the lake when lightning struck both trees which are side by side about fifteen fet from the cottage. One tree was split from top to bottom while the bark was nearly all stripped from it. The other was also split badly and a strip of bark was removed from it. One piece of wod was thrown through the wire screen which encloses the verandah and the eave trough was also broken. Other pieces were thrown for some distance. The shock that Mr. Nott received was so great that partially stunned him and caused him to fall on the floor. He was not injured at all which was certainly miraculous and he was able to be around as usual in a very short time.

CHARGE $1,000,000 TIRE STOCK FRAUD

Syracuse Manager for Durell, Gregory & Co. Arrested in Connection With Promotion.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., July 22.—William C. Metz, local manager of the office of Durrell, Gregory & Co., stock brokers, New York, indicted in on charges of conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, was arrested here to-day, arraigned before United States Commissioner L. Earl Higbee and held in $2,000 bail to await removal to New York to plead to the chargesof fraud. Local investors in the American Tire Corporation stock are believed to have lost thousands of dollars in the promotion, which the postal officials say involves $1,000,000.

Edmund Honvery, postal inspector, who came here to make the arrest, revealed the details of what he called a gigantic swindle. At the height of the stock sales a boy, he said, made between $12,000 and $14,000 commissions in three months.

The American Tire Corporation of Niles, Ohio, is a bona fide concern, with a factory which operated up to a short time ago. Development of a new process of tire manufacture necessitated increased capitdl, so the company officails went to New York to float a stock issue of $1,000,000. According to the indictment, which contains eleven counts against each of the sixty-eight indicted, the brokers agreed to return the tire corporation $2 for every share sold. Stock was sold, it is charged, at up to $10 per share.

The brokerage firm of Durell, Gregory & Co., and the members of the concern, Rhode R., John M. and Harvey N. Gregory, were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury on May 6 on a charge of having used the mails to defraud investors in the stock of the American Tire Corporation. The indictment also included about seventy alleged representatives of the company in Buffalo, Syracuse and Brooklyn; Boston and Springfield, Mass.; New Haven, Conn., and Providence, R.I. No charge was made against the American Tire Corporation, which is a Delaware concern, capitalized at $5,500,000.

"WHAT'S A WIFE WORTH?" NEW CABANNE FILM.

Robertson - Cole Super - Special Is Strong Comedy-Drama. At Capitol Theatre on Monday.

"What's a Wife Worth?" the new Robertson-Cole super-special comedy-drama, will begin a run of three days at the Capitol Theatre on Monday. This photoplay has been hailed as a masterpiece wherever shown throughout the country. William Christy Cabanne, whose wonderful picture, "The Stealers," was so enthusiastically received by movie fans, wrote and directed "What's a Wife Worth?" and he is pleased to agree with critics who characterize it as his best work.

Characters and scenes of both rural and city life are introduced in the story of "What's a Wife Worth?" Morally the theme is an excellent one of the wholesome type without being a preachment. Bruce Morrison, son of a wealthy man, who has quarrelled with his father and seeks to make his own way in a small town falls in love with Rose Kendall, the village belle. Rose returns his affection and confesses her love to her maiden aunt, with whom she lives. After a short courtship Bruce and Rose are married.

The day following the wedding Henry Burton, attorney for the father of Bruce, arrives in the village and informs Bruce that his father is ill, regrets their quarrel and wants him to return home. Bruce decides to go and takes his wife with him. On arrival at the Morrison home, Burton advises Bruce not to break the news of his marriage until later because of the grave condition of Morrison, Sr. Bruce explains to Rose and greets his father alone. The father informs Bruce that he has arranged a bright future for him. The future includes a wife.

Rose remains in seclusion in the Morrison home and Jane Penfield, the girl of his father's choice, is introduced to Bruce. Murrey Penfield, brother of Jane, discovers the presence of Rose in the Morrison home. He demands moneyl as the price of silence. Later he poisons Rose's mind against Bruce. Rose returns to her aunt and young Penfield and Burton, the attorney, engineer a divorce. Jane and Bruce are married.

The birth of a son to Rose complicates matters. Jane also becomes a mother, but her baby dies. The family physician substitutes Rose's baby for the dead child, Rose finding herself in poverty agreeing that the physician might care for her infant son. Later the substitution is discovered, and Bruce and Rose are brought together. But this is the punch of the picture and should not be told.

"What's a Wife Worth?" has an excellent cast, including Ruth Renick, Casson Ferguson, Alex. Francis, Howard Gaye, Lillian Langdon, Virginia Caldwell and Cora Drew.

ONE HIT OFF KEENE TWIRLER AND TWELVE FOUND BY ZION PITCHER

EAST PETERBORO LEAGUE TEAMS PERFORM AT RIVERSIDE AND KEENE WINS.

Keene secured a stranglehold on Eddie Wright's silverware by defeating Zion at Riverside Park last evening by the score of 7 to 3. Keene won the first half of the East Peterborough League schedule, and have two wins and no losses in the second half. They won last evening because Zion batters were helpless before George O'Dette's pitching, Manager Lancashire's crew getting only one safe waft. George Close did all the hitting for the team, losing the ball in the left field hay, in the third frame. It went for a home run. Zion scored all three innings in this innings, M. Renwick at short paving the way by booting two consecutive grounders by Rice and H. Crowley. A bad peg by the pitcher scored one and Close's smash did the rest.

That rally by Zion tied the score, Keene having led off in the first with a brace of runs, both of them charities on loose fielding behind Hutchison. They added another in the second. It made Keene's contingent of rooters feel uncomfortable. Hutchinson a big southpaw, serving them up for Zion, was twirling in fine style. But while he improved as the game progressed, his team mates' play deteriorated, and, in addition, they could not hit O'Dette safely.

Keene scored a brace of runs in th efourth and scored again in the sixth and in the seventh. Zion threw away a chance to break up the game in thier half of the seventh. H. Crowley was hit and Close got n through Fletcher's error. Crowy, trying to stretch it into a run, s out at the plate, after which 'Dette fanned Hutchison and F. 'Connor.

Hutchison Fanned Twelve.

The pitching of Hutchison attract- the attention of the criitcs along e "bleachers." He is a big fellow, th nice speed, good control and ows how to mix them. He started t by fanning his fellow-heaver. l at the end of the game he had piled up a dozen strike-outs. His actions in the box indicated inexperience on the hurling heap, and Keene base-runners had a field night romping along the runways. Coughlin gave him good support at first base by accepting nine chances.

O'Dette, besides twirling a steady game, fielded well, taking eight out of nine chances, and starting a double play to Nelson, the only one of the contest. M. Renwick got the only extra base wallop off Hutchison. Reid did well at the first corner, but was an easy victim for the Zion pitcer, who struck him out three times.

The attendance went over the two hundred mark, beating the 'crowds' at the games put on by the local city leagues. Practically every motor car in Keene was commissioned to bring the Keene supporters here, and the Zion team also had its supporters.

The box score:

Keene	AB	R	H	PO	A	E
G. O'Dette, p.	4	1	1	2	6	1

ENRY TURNER ELECTED PRESIDENT PETERBORO' FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION

ANNUAL MEETING HELD LAST EVENING—CONSTITUTION ADOPTED

That the outlook for a successful otball season is bright if all teams are animated by a love of the game and refuse to allow bitter feelings to develop was the statement of the etiring president, W. Cooke and the etiring secretary, Fred Sutcliffe, at e annual meeting of the Peterborugh and District Football Association held in the G.W.V.A. hall last ight. Mr. Cooke pleaded with the eams for a better feeling between ue another and he urged them to rget all the trifling differences hen the new season opens. In re- ing, the President thanked the embers for the assistance given m. "I hope," he said, "that to whoer you elect to this chair you will ve the best support you can."

Prospects Bright.

Prospects weer bright for a good ason, the secretary said, after he d read the financial statement of e revenue and disbursements for e year. Total revenues received as $783.79 and payments totalled 730.16, leaving a balance in the ank now of $53.63. Mr. Sutcliffe ointed out that the association was estabilshed, there was between 130 nd 135 registered players, two cups, he Gordon and Phelan Charity had been donated for annual competition and the Clarke Shield given for city league competition. The footballers had many assets when they took tab he said, and the outlook, if differences among the team were forgotten, is most rosy and he said they should go hard after the Plenty Cup.

Henry Turner Elected President.

There were about 65 players and fans at the meeting which was quite enough except when the proposed constitution was being censored. Arument and discussion over this rule and that clause was particularly heated but not vituperative. The election fo new officers was the most important article of business. The etiring officers were as follows: resident, W. Cooke; Vice-President, S. Whatley; Second Vice-President, J. L. Howarth; Secretary-Treasurer, Fred Sutcliffe. The new officers are: President, Henry Turner; Vice-President, Alex. Dick; Second Vice-President, W. Cooke; Secretary-Treasurer, J. Abrahams; Directors, J. W. Worth, S. Whatley, F. Sutcliffe, W. H. Barry and J. E. Sullivan

There were five in the running for president: Henry Turner, W Cooke, J. E. Sullivan, S. Whatley and A. Dick. Dick and Turner both received 20 votes. On the second vote the two were tied again for the presidency with 34 each. Here was a quandry, but it was finally decided, after Mr. Peter McArthur had registered a strong protest against demanding that the president vote to llow the retiring president to draw om a hat a ballot that would de- de the vote. The ballot drawn was rked "Turner" and so Turner was ected president. Alex. Dick was unanimously chosen first vice-presi- t and W. Cook, on motion of Mr. k, became second vice. "He ows the ropes," said Mr. Dick in advancing his name. Out of five nominees, J. Abrahams was elected secretary-treasurer. S. Whatley, F. Sutcliffe, J. E. Sullivan and Mr. McFeat were the others nominated. Five directors were elected from the following nine nominated: Harry Payne, W. R. Thompson, W. Willis, C. Wiggins, S. Whatley, F. Sutcliffe, J. W. Worth, W H. Barry and J. E. Sullivan. J. W. Worth received 41 votes, S. Whatley 37 F. Sutcliffe and W. H. Barry 34 and J. E. Sullivan 33.

Such Men Are Wanted.

J. E. Sullivan in a letter to the Associated last night, offered to do all he could to help the football association and regretted his inability to attend the annual meeting. The spirit of the letter resulted in his being nominated for President and elected a director. More men of such a type, independent of any team, but interested in the game for its own sake, were needed, speakers last night said.

Vote of Thanks to Secretary.

The secretary's performance of his duties during the year was commended by the President, and on motion of Mr. Worth a vote of thanks extended to Fred Sutcliffe.

Constitution Adopted.

The constitution as drawn up and ready for adoption was read over by Fred Sutcliffe and changed in several rules. It was decided that members of the executive should not be members of any football club, that the secretary have the right to enter into discussion at the meetings of the executive but have no vote, that there be only one representative from each team on the executive, that membership fee for each club be raised from $10 to $15 and that the rule requiring the secretary to be bonded be deleted. With the changes made it was moved by Alex. Dick, seconded by S. Whatley, and carried, that the constitution be adopted.

Thank G.W.V.A.

J. Kearns moved a vote of thanks to be sent the G.W.V.A. by the secretary for the use of their hall as a meeting place for the associtaion, and in this he was heartily endorsed.

At the annual meeting of the Football Association last night it was decided that the selection committee of the executive, will continue to act with regard to sending a representative Peterboro team to Brantford on July 30th for the Plenty Cup competition. To give this committee another opportunity of viewing the players in action a decision was reached to have a practise game between the two teams as heretofore at the Nicholls' Oval to-night at 6:15, J. IMPLEMENTING DEFAULT CLAUSE and settle, if we think it is a proper case for settlement."

It was stated that Mr. Fred Christie had a record of the extra excavation and material used.

Ald. Gordon—Is that in Mr. Barber's possession?

Mr. Seymour—I think so, but I have not seen it.

Ald. Hamilton—That is in regard to the foundations?

Mr. Seymour—Yes.

Ald Phelan—Whose work is it?—Townsend's or Christie's?

Ald. Hamilton—They worked it out between them.

Ald. Crowe recalled that both Mr. Townsend and Mr. Russell had told him that their commission of $29,000 would cover all expenses.

Mr. Christie said that he didn't hear much about extras until lately. The Council had paid for the extra work on the foundations. The only thing the company could base a claim on was for their time and the use of their plant.

Pleased with the Work.

Mr. Seymour remarked that he hadn't seen the bridge for a considerable time until Friday and he was delighted with it personally. It was a wonderful work. The chipping of the granite appealed to him as a big improvement, and he urged that this work on the south side of the bridge be completed in order that it would be homogeneous.

"Mr. Christie told me another week would finish that side, and the railing would be done in a day or so. That would bring us to the end of the month. I think you will be sorry if the whole surface is not brought out, but at least the south side should be done now that it is well on the way. I think it is essential that Mr. Christie be here in the winding up process. The expense will be trifling. I can't see how you can dispense with his services at this particular time," Mr. Seymour concluded.

When the contract passes back to the city it is the council's intention to complete the remaining details under the supervision of City Engineer Parsons.

DEATH SWEEPING THROUGH RUSSIA

MAXIM GORKY DECLARES 300,000 RUSSIANS ARE DYING DAILY

PARIS, July 23.—The worst epidemic of typhus and cholera in history is sweeping westward with terrible speed.

Europe to-day awoke to a realization that unless Russia's starving millions are immediately relieved, the whole eastern hemisphere stands in danger of falling in a few months in the grip of the grim plague.

According to an authentic appeal from Maxim Gorky, cabled to Anatole, France, Gerhard Kauptmann and Belasco Ibanez, the situation in Russia is beyond belief. Gorky declares that 300,000 Russians are dying daily from starvation and disease. From one end of Russia to the other crops are complete failures.

Suicides by wholesale are reported from the Caucasus, while in Moscow and Petrograd mothers are slaying their babies rather than see them die from hunger.

Transportation is paralysed and practically all industries are closed down owing to the feebleness of the workers.

According to Vladimir Drabowitch, the famous author, now in Paris, 25,000,000 persons in the Volga district alone are likely to die of famine before the winter is over, the failure of the crop being blamed on the prolonged drought.

Tower in Training.

Mrs. Blank entering her kitchen one morning saw a plate and knife and fork that had recently been used. Suspecting that Norah had been treating the good-looking ashman, she said, "Norah, what became of the cold chicken that was left over from dinner last night?"

"Shure, mum, I didn't think ye wanted it, so I gave it to the dog."

"Does the dog use a knife and fork, then?" inquired her mistress, sarcastically.

"Not very well, yet, mum, but I'm teaching him to," was Norah's ready reply.—Boston Transcript.

AMERICAN LEGION NEWS LETTER

The Flirey Monument.

Two hundred and fifty members of the American Legion, headed by Franklin D'Olier, former National Commander, and representing every State and every branch of service, will sail for France August 3 on a pilgrimage to the former battle zone of the World War.

The pilgrimage is at the instance of President Millerand, who, on behalf of the French Government, invited the American Legion to send a representative delegation of former service men to attend the unveiling of the Flirey monument and to participate in a series of events planned especially for the Americans.

The Flirey monument at Flirey, France, is a tribute of the citizens of that town and Lorraine to the valor of the American troops who delivered their soil from German occupation. Flirey is in the old Toul sector and once was the regimental headquarters of several American divisions.

A replica of the Flirey monument was presented recently to President Harding by Ambassador Jusserand, who at the same time transmitted President Millerand's invitation to the American Legion through its National Commander, John G. Emery. Because of stress of legion matters in this country, Mr. Emery will not go to France with the pilgrimage, having selected Mr. D'Olier for the leadership.

Two Days' Trip.

A trial trip of the "American Legion," the new 21,000-ton twin-screw passenger-cargo liner of the Munson Lines, was the occasion for a gathering of American Legion officials from eastern states. The trip lasted two days. It started from Camden, N. J., and ended in New York. The ship was built for the United States Shipping Board by the New York Ship-building Corporation. It was allocated to the Munson Line for service between New York and South America.

Guests of Government.

The 250 members of the American Legion, who tour France this summer as guests of the French Government will visit the battle-scarred town of St. Die, well known to Americans who served on the old Luneville front. Not many of the defenders of St. Die knew at the time that they were defending the house in which America got its name. In St. Die lived the Alsatian monk, Waldsee Muller, whose suggestion it was that the western continent take the name of the navigator, Amerigo Vespucci.

Memorial Tablet.

Marshal Foch, who is coming to the United States this fall to attend the national convention of the American Legion at Kansas City, will meet the American Legion delegation in France this summer. If possible he will receive the legionaires in the old house in which he was born. The house is in the Pyrenlls and the legion men will mark it with a memorial tablet.

Relief Measures.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, with more than a million members, has joined hands with the American Legion in obtaining legislation for the relief of disabled soldiers of the World War. More than 1,800 bureaus of the federation have endorsed the legislature program of the legion.

Honor Roosevelt.

One of the many impressive ceremonies in which the American Legion delegation will participate on their trip to France this summer will be the laying of a corner-stone of the new bridge to span the Marne at Chateau-Thierry. The new structure will be known as "Pont Roosevelt" in honor of the late Theodore Roosevelt and his son Quentin., The latter fell in combat near Chateau-Thierry.

The Old "Tin Hat."

Life-size replicas of the old "tin hat" of A. E. F. days will bear the names and service records of Illinois soldiers on trees of memorial highways of the State, according to a recent decision of the Illinois Department of the American Legion.

Legion Posts.

The F. W. Galbraith, Jr., Post of the American Legion of New York City, is the first Post named for the late National Commander of the legion, to receive its charter. It is composed chiefly of legionaires attached to the American Legion weekly headquarters. Two other legion Posts have organized in honor of the late Commander, one at Cincinnati, O., and the other at Rock Island, Ill.

Reduced Rates.

The first railroad to announce reduced rates for delegates to the annual convention of the American Legion at Kansas City this fall is the Frisco. A one-cent-a-mile rate will be extended to all American Legion men, their wives and others who are members of the Women's Auxiliary.

AIRPLANES SINK BIG GERMAN BATTLESHIP

PROVES EFFECTIVENESS OF AIRCRAFT IN NAVAL WARFARE.

On Board the Destroyer Leary en route to Norfolk, Va., July 23.—The ability of the airplane to destroy the capital ship was demonstrated here off the Virginia Capes.

United States army bombers, launching projectiles weighing one ton, sank the former German battleship Ostriesland, a 23,000 ton heavily armoured ship, in exactly twenty-five minutes after they opened their attack at 12.15 p.m., from an altitude of approximately 1700 feet. Two bombs which landed overboard within a few yards of the port quarter gave the ship her death blows.

Thus the end came to a once great ship of the German navy which took an important part with the German first battle squadron in the battle of Jutland, and reached home safely after having struck a mine laid by the attacking British grand fleet. Naval men and many others of the thousands assembled on half a score of war craft, viewed the end of the big ship almost in awe, but the army men, and particularly the aviators, were highly elated. Many of them regarded this as proof of the claim of Brig. Gen. Mitchell, assistant chief of the United States army air service, that the airship was making the battleship obsolete.

Major General Charles P. Menoher, chief of the army air service, declared in a statement that he did not think the sinking of the Ostfriesland showed that the battleship was doomed, but that it did show that the aerial bomb constituted a real menace to capital ship which must be met.

Naval officers and most of the members of congress present were understood to have taken the same view. Naval experts said the science of naval construction had not progressed to the point where a ship could be built which would withstand such explosions as occurred almost directly alongside the Ostfriesland. They said the problem of protecting the battleship would have to be attacked just as was that of protecting them against torpedo boats and later against submarines.

The sinking of the Ostfriesland was the concluding incident in a month's joint bombing test by United States army and navy aviators.

CHEMONG PARK DANCE

WAIVERS OF IMMUNITY AND ALLEGED SIGNED CONFESSIONS OF WHITE SOX PLAYERS ARE FOUND TO BE MISSING

ASSISTANT-STATE'S ATTORNEY, DURING GRAND JURY INVESTIGATION OF ALLEGED THROWING OF WORLD'S SERIES, TESTIFIES STATEMENTS WERE SIGNED BUT STATE IS UNABLE TO FIND THEM.

BY CARL VICTOR LITTLE,
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CICAGO, July 23.—State authorities were making every effort today to locate the waivers of immunity signed by the three "Black Sox" players when they made their alleged confessions of playing a part in the "fixing" of the 1919 world series.

The last witness on the stand against the seven former White Sox stars, and four alleged gamblers were Hartley Replogle, who was assistant States Attorney during the grand jury investigation of the base ball scandal. Replogle testified that Cicotte, Jackson and Williams signed statements admitting their guilt and signed immunity waivers.

It was discovered that waivers were missing following Repogle's testimony. The alleged signed statements by the three defendants also are missing.

The "Black Sox" trial which was not in session to-day, will be resumed Monday.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 23 (Canadian Press). — Rails were firm features at the hesitant opening of to-day's stock market. Shorts covered moderately in those issues on news that the Federal Government had virtually agreed upon a plan for the funding of obligations of transportation companies. Steels and equipments registered slight gains and losses, and oils manifested irregular tendencies. Suagr, rubber and paper issues were among the steady specialties.

Preliminary exchanges on London were reactionary.

To-day's short session of the stock market was devoted mainly to the usual week-end settlement of contracts. Shorts covered first in rails where fractional gains prevailed and later in oils. Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, and Royal Dutch rising 1 to 1 1-2 points.

Other firm to strong issues included Bethlehem and Crucible Steels, Westinghouse, Studebaker, Sugars, Tobaccos, and Textiles.

The closin gwas firm, with approximate sales of approximately 175,000 shares.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW CORK, July 23 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange steady. Demand $3.58; Canadian dollars, 11 1-4 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 23 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices to-day touched the lowest level of the week.

Huge arrivals at all the winter crop terminals acted as a weight on values. Besides, weather conditions in the spring crop region continued favourable.

Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 1 3-4 cents lower with September $1.23 3-4 to $1.25, and December 126 1-2 to 127 1-4 were followed by declines all around.

Corn descended with wheat. After opening 1-8 to 3-8 cents lower, including September at 61 1-2 to 62 5-8, the market underwent a further sag.

Oats were governed by the action of other cereals. Opening unchanged to 1-4 off September 40 3-4 to 40 7-8, and then showing increased weakness.

Provisions lacked any aggressive support.

"BOSTON" IRWIN ENGAGES LAWYER

WILL FOLLOW MONIES DUE IN EQUITY TO MOTHER.

BOSTON, July 23. — (Canadian Press).—On the eve of his departure for New York, Arthur Herbert Irwin, son of the Boston wife of Arthur A. Irwin, the baseball manager, who committed suicide, asserted that he intended to fight for the possession of any money or property that ought to go to his mother. He declared his intention of visiting the New York "Mrs. Irwin" and her son.

The Boston son was particularly bitter in speaking of the advantages which his father's money is reported to have given the New York son and which were denied to him. Young Irwin said he would investigate his father's insurance, said to be a substantial sum, and the whereabouts of money which he says he knows his father received a short time before his death. He has engaged an attorney.

"Bear Ye One Another's Burdens

THE Aged and Invalided Blind of Canada are carrying their Burdens with lighter hearts, since the Social Relief Committee of the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian National Institution for the Blind, commenced their Work of mercy.

¶ Thanks to their splendid efforts, an ever-growing number of the Blind have found happiness and a new interest in life.

¶ They have been taught in their homes to make all manner of articles of reed, wicker and willow work, mats, netting, garments, etc. From the Institute they buy at cost the materials needed. The finished article is then bought from the Blind home-worker and sold to the public at the same price.

¶ Once, not long ago, they sat in their tragic darkness, pathetically idle and plunged in self pity.

¶ Would you like to help in this heaven-born work of mercy?

¶ Funds are much needed to provide teachers. YOUR generous assistance will be a benediction.

'KIDNAPPED' MAN NOW FACES CHARGES

Prosecutor Holds Randolph For His Plea to Family to Pay A $50,000 Ransom.

SHARON, Pa., July 22.—Thomas D. Randolph, the local business man who was believed to have been kidnapped last Monday night, and held for $50,000 ransom, arrived at his home here at 7 last night. Randolph drove his big car from Stoneboro to the city after he is alleged to have learned that police had located him at a hotel in that town.

Randolph's return to this city followed startling information obtained by the police as to the whereabouts of the missing man. A telephone conversation between a Stoneboro hotel and the Randolph home here in which the person speaking from the hotel declared there were sixteen kidnappers holding him, is reported to have given the police their first real clue to his whereabouts.

A report which later reached the police that Randolph had been seen in Stoneboro with a woman, who had left there on an afternoon train, brought quick action, and several men were at once dispatched to Stoneboro.

Soon after the police left this city information was received that Randolph had left Stoneboro and was driving to his home here at a high speed.

After Randolph reached his home the police entered and were closeted with him.

District Attorney Rickard, who has charge of the case, stated at a late hour that it was doubtful if any statement made by Randolph would be given out to-night, but that, in any event, he would be held by the authorities on charges to be preferred later.

Members of Randolph's family refused absolutely to comment on his return, declaring that any information given out must either come through Randolph himself or the police.

First information that Randolph was in Stoneboro came to the local authorities from District Attorney Rickard this afternoon when he stated that a man answering the description of Randolph had registered at the Homer Hotel in Stoneboro with a woman about 10:30 o'clock on Monday night, the two giving the names of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hutchinson.

Since disappearing from here, two letters in which Randolph implored his family to accede to the demands of the kidnappers and pay $50,000 ransom ave been received by the family. He is also stated to have talked with members of the family on two occasions over the long distance telepho—

Just before leaving town, Randolph left an order at the office of The Herald, a local newspaper, for a daily copy to be sent to J. R. Hutchinson at Sardy Lake. This is the name he registered under at the Homer Hotel in Stoneboro.

BUTTER TAKES ANOTHER RISE

TOUCHED 45 AND 48 CENTS ON THIS MORNING'S MARKET, DUE TO LOW SUPPLY, INDUCED BY DROUGHT AFFECTING PASTURAGE.

Butter has taken a sensational rise in price. Such an upward gallop has this been that marketeers protested loudly against paying 45 and 48 cents on to-day's market. Butter was as scarce as old spirits, however, and the farmer's wives, who had any were captains of the day. So limited was the supply they could say "take it or leave it." It is stated the poor pasturage due to the dry weather is responsible for this unexpected fluctuation. The increase is practically 10 cents over last week's high mark. Eggs sold at 35 cents and lower to-day. They were plentiful. One lady offered to sell for 28. Spring chickens growing in size each passing week, were up to two pounds to-day and were going at 70 cents for one that size. Some sold 40 cents a pound, however. Year old hens were 25 and 30 cents a pound.

CORN ON MARKET
New potatoes were plentiful at 40 and 55 cents. Cobblers were at one waggon 50 if taken or 60 C. O. D. There were quite a lot of tomatoes at 20 and 25 cents a pound. Cucumbers were on for the first time, in any quantity and good-sized ones were going at 10 cents. One grower had corn, but it did not seem to be of a very high grade and the cobs were small. It was nigh priced, however, 40 cents a dozen. Small pickling cucumbers sold at 75 cents a 6 quart basket. Cabbage were 15 and 25, onions, beets, carrots, and lettuce five cents.

BERRIES, 23 CENTS.
Berries, the last of the crop, were selling at 23 cents a box or two foe 46. Dealers did a steady business and refused to sell at 20 cents. Green cooking apples were selling at 40 cents a peck. Rhubarb about the only thing else in the line of fruit was five a bunch.

MEMBERS OF GOVERNMENT MEET TOBACCO GROWERS

Doherty and Nixon to Assist in Securing Market in British Isles.

RIDGETOWN, Ont., July 23. —(Special to the Examiner).—A market in England is the goal toward which Hon. Manning W. Doherty, Minister of Agriculture, is now working, assisted by W. C. Nixon, Ontario's new Agent - General in Britain.

Hon. Mr. Doherty and Mr. Nixon met the tobacco growers here last evening, and with them went into the whole question of export business. The Minister expressed the opinion that Ontario-grown tobacco could be marketed to distinct advantage in England, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and possibly France. The opportunity, he thought was particularly good in England, although the Scandinavian countries should also offer a market for a considerable quantity. He urged upon the growers the necessity of considering the advisability of making a bid for the trade, and discussed ways and means with them. The Minister suggested that one way in which the tobacco growers could overcome the problems which now face them in marketing of the crop was by the establishment of a factory of their own, where their crop could be prepared and then marketed through the various farmers' clubs.

While normally a low tariff man the minister said he could see nothing wrong with the suggestion that there should be a duty of $1 a pound on American leaf tobacco. If this had been done last year the $14,000,000 paid by Canadians to American tobacco manufacturers would have been spent at home and he did not believe the consumer would have been called upon to pay more for his tobacco.

Mr. Nixon, who sails shortly for England, said he would give his special attention to the requirements of the tobacco market there.

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER OTONABEE RIVER.

Mr. F. Bull, president of the Williams Piano Company, of Oshawa, passed through the city last evening on his return from a trip up the Trent Waterways as far as Buckhorn in his motor launch. Mr. Bull describes the trip as a very enjoyable one, and was very enthusiastic over the charms of the Otonabee River, which, he said, was one of the most beautiful he had ever travelled, and declared his intention of returning soon with a larger party, being accompanied this time only by Mr. Leith, buyer for the Williams Piano Factory, and a friend.

To prevent stone buildings absorbing dampness from the ground a European practice is to cut slots in the walls and insert asphalt coated lead plates.

Last Monday's storm was one of the worst, if not the worst storm ever known on Stoney Lake. Two storms met and the result was startling, the lightning was unusually bad and several trees were struck in different locality. The cottage of Mrs. S. B. Curry of Port Hope was struck by lightning which played about the cottage like a naughty and destructive child tearing off a hinge from a door here and ripping casings from a window there. The floor was torn up in the living room near the fire place.

Torrents of rain which continued through the night accompanied the storm.

Every boat carried its load of passengers to the cottages and resorts this week and the lake is in midsummer trim, nearly every cottage is open and gaily trimmed with flags and bunting and has the appearance of holiday making. The resorts are all busy and report excellent prospects for August. There are few changes among the personnel of these places. Juniper is under new management this year, also "Viamede", both places retain the inviting appearance which has been their's for many years.

A new resort "Kawanna" has been opened this year and it is meeting wtih success which will grow great as time passes. Boats are to be had there and meals which is very convenient in this part of the lake, which has a good many cottages, but no resort till now near by.

SHORT MILLION BANKER FLEES WITH FAMILY

YOUNG MAN ENGAGED TO SPURGIN'S DAUGHTER TELLS HOW FINANCIER CONFESSED TO FAMILY AND THEN FLED.

PARTY IS BELIEVED TO HAVE ENTERED CANADA

CHICAGO, Ill., July 25.—(United Press).—How Warren C. Spurgin, President of the defunct Michigan Avenue Trust Co., confessed to his family that he was $1,000,000 short in his accounts and then fled was revealed today by Herman Byler.

Byler, a dapper youth employed by the American Discount Co., was engaged to Vivian Spurgin, the banker's 21-year-old daughter. In an exclusive interview with the United Press, he told of the scenes that preceded the financier's escape, of the wild ride of Mrs. Spurgin and her daughters in their flight, and gave the first clue to the probable whereabouts of the missing man for whom the police of the whole country are searching.

Byler said he was unexpectedly called to the Spurgin mansion on July 16. "The home was in confusion," Byler said, "everyone was flying around, packing trunks and covering the furniture and pictures. I was asked to take Mrs. Spurgin's car to the garage and have it prepared for a long trip." Byler said that Vivian told him the previous night her father had come home and made a clean breast of the entire affair to his family. It was the first intimation that they had of the financial difficulties in which Spurgin had been enmeshed for many months. Immediately after making confession, Spurgin started his flight. He had $50,000 in cash when he fled.

"Packing was completed Saturday and Sunday," Byler continued. "The home was arranged for a long absence. Monday morning Mrs. Spurgin drew $301 from the bank, all the money she had, and she and Vivian started their flight." Byler accompanied them as far as Gary, Ind., when he returned to Chicago. He heard from Vivian frequently during the week. She told how tired she and her mother were becoming of the constant drive over hot, dusty roads, of being forced to skimp on meals because their finances were running low on the high cost of hotel bills and gasoline. Byler had two letters from Detroit, where the automobile which Mrs. Spurgin had driven was located in a garage. Vivian said she and her mother were going to have a look for work. She told of staying at a rooming house, but when the authorities went to the place they found that the two women had again fled.

Detectives were of the opinion that Vivian and her mother had crossed the Canadian line to join Spurgin and that the whole family might make a try for Europe. Wireless flashes were sent to all vessels to watch for the missing banker. Another trail of Spurgin which was followed led to French Lick, Indiana. A man answering Spurgin's description was seen at the famous watering place Saturday.

All Europe Burning in Drought With Shortage of Crops and Big Fires

FOREST FIRES RAVAGE BRITAIN, HOLLAND AND ITALY, CROPS WILT IN FIELDS AND PLAGUES ARE THREATENED.

FAMOUS OLD ESTATES IN PERIL IN BRITAIN

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

LONDON, July 25. — All Europe burned to-day in a drought which brought with it forest fires, crop shortage, and the threat of plagues.

Huge fires swept through the forests in Northern Britain, cutting a ten-mile swath.

One great fire in Aberdeenshire not only destroyed the woods, but threatened many famous estates.

There was fear that the harvest this year would fall far below the average. Wheat suffered especially.

In only a few sections there were light rains, not sufficient to have any effect on the general situation.

Holland also suffered from forest fires breaking out almost daily in her woods. Conflagrations raged today in the Provinces of Drentz and Limburg. In Amersfoort, hundreds of men were called to fight a fire covering 2,000 acres. All the crops were threatened.

German scientists were experimenting with dry farming, but with little hope of benefiting the present crop.

Sweden suffered with Germany.

Russia was regarded as a danger spot, her great fields were blistered, epidemics of cholera and typhus were breaking out.

Spain's crops wilted in the fields.

Italy also was a victim of forest fires brought on by drought. One such fire started near Trieste, when a powder house blew up, scattering the flames into the dry underbrush.

INTER-PROVINCIAL DIFFICULTIES OVER COMPENSATION FUND

EMPLOYEES OF OTTAWA COMPANY RESIDING IN QUEBEC LEADS TO COMPLICATIONS.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

QUEBEC, July 25.—Difficulties having arisen between the J. R. Booth Co., Ottawa, and the Ontario Government in connection with the payment of indemnities under the Ontario Workingmen's Compensation Act, due to the fact that hundreds of the employees of the company reside in the Province of Quebec, a conference with the Minister of Labor of Ontario and Messrs. Augusta Lemieux, K.C., representing the Booth interests, and Mr. Louis Guyon, Deputy Minister of Labor of the Province, has been arranged so as to come to an understanding of the subject.

Mr. J. R. Booth contends that though the sum of $60,000 is paid annually to the Ontario Compensation Bureau for risks guarantees the fact that 90 per cent. of the employees reside in Quebec creates difficulties. The right of adoption of Quebec legislation on the matter may be asked.

CIVIL SERVICE WILL FIGHT FOR THE BONUS

A meeting of the executive has been called at 4.30 this afternoon, when arrangements will be made for another session with the Cabinet. In the meantime, according to an official of the association, no correspondence will be made public nor will any comment be made, as it is not wished to antagonize the government.

THE MEN WHO WRITE THE NEWS YOU READ

WOOD

Henry Wood, chief of the Rome Bureau of the United Press, is credited with some of the most outstanding features of newspaper work during the Great War, and has been decorated by French, Serbian, and Montenegrin Governments. He has been with the United Press for eleven years, and has travelled in nearly every country in Europe during that period.

His first United Press assignment was the managership of the Cleveland Bureau, but his knowledge of the Italian tongue resulted in his transfer to the Rome Bureau. The outbreak of the Great War found him still in Rome, but he was given a roving assignment in the Near East, and wrote a series of situation stories from Bulgaria, Serbia, and Turkey.

Meanwhile Wood had mastered French, and was transferred to France, where he served as Paris manager and as staff correspondent at the French front until the Versailles Treaty was signed. His work at the French Front was signalised by a series of stories of the strategy of Marshal Foch's campaign.

After the Armistice Wood returned to Rome, where he is now chief of the Bureau. He has specialised on the problems of the Latin countries growing out of the war, and is an expert on the League of Nations.

His home is in Omaha, Nebraska.

To-morrow — Henry L. Farrell, sports editor of the United Press, whose analysis of the Dempsey-Carpentier heavyweight championship bout at Jersey City was a feature of The Examiner's story of the big fight.

Withers, R. Dale, M. J. Carroll, and also John Mervin's where garbage is not used. Mr. Cavan found conditions generally satisfactory, and gave orders and instructions at several places for improvements that will be carried out. The Government requires garbage to be steamed as a preventive measure against cholera.

BRITISH HAVE BUT ONE VOTE ON DISARMING

DOMINIONS TO BE REPRESENTED AT WASHINGTON CONFERENCE BUT EMPIRE MUST VOTE AS A UNIT.

MEIGHEN DELEGATE OF IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT?

BY A. L. BRADFORD.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, July 25.— The British Empire officially will have only one voice in the Washington disarmament conference, the United Press was informed to-day. Representatives of Britain's self-governing Dominions will be included in the delegation, but Secretary Hughes, it is understood, will inform Britain that it is the attitude of his Government that the Empire have but one vote.

The personnel of the British delegation and the Dominion representation is arousing speculation. It is expected that all of the Pacific Dominions—Canada, Australia and New Zealand—will want to be represented, and it is thought that at least two of the British delegates will be chosen from Premier Meighen of Canada, Premier Hughes of Australia and Premier Massey of New Zealand. It is also believed that Jan C. Smuts of South Africa, will be a delegate, but whether he will come as a strictly British delegate or as a representative of South Africa is not certain.

Officials here now think that it is a certainty that Secretary of State Hughes will head the American delegation. Former Secretary of State Elihu Root is now considered also a certainty. Some obesrvers here think that President Harding will appoint a public man identified with the Democratic party as a delegate in order to make the American delegation non-partisan. In this connection they pick John W. Davis, American Ambassador to Britain in the Wilson Cabinet.

Hughes and Massey Ask Preliminary Conference

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

LONDON, July 25.—The British Imperila Conference beginning the last week of its session here to-day, devoted its attention to President Harding's invitation to a disarmament conference. Premiers Hughes and Massey of Australia and New Zealand pressed their demand for a preliminary conference in London to consider Pacific questions.

GOVERNMENT IN NO HURRY TO CONTEST N. OXFORD VACANCY

MORRISON SAYS QUESTION OF U. F. O. ENTRY LEFT TO PEOPLE.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, July 25.—The Drury government is bidding its time on the question of contesting the seat in North Oxford, made vacant by the recent death of John Calder. No conversations have taken place yet as to the probable government action. Attorney-General Raney said he had heard nothing about the situation in North Oxford.

Mr. J. J. Morrison said the U.F.O. had now a very strong organization in North Oxford, but the question as to whether they would contest the seat would be left entirely to the judgment of the people up there. If they decide to do so the central organization would give them all the help they wanted.

CHARGED WITH MISUSE OF STATE'S MONEY, GOVERNOR PLANS TO CALL OUT MILITIA TO RESIST ARREST

GOVERNOR SMALL OF ILLINOIS INCREASES PERSONAL BODY GUARD AND IT IS EXPECTED MARTIAL LAW WILL BE DECLARED IF AN ATTEMPT IS MADE TO ARREST HIM FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.

SPRINGFIELD, July 25 (United Press). — Governor Len Small, of Illinois, anticipating a decision by Judge E. S. Smith, ordering his arrest on charges of misuse of millions of dollars of State money, arranged to-day for armed resistance.

On the return of the indicted Governor from a trip to Chicago to his home at Kankakee over the week-end, his personal bodyguard was heavily increased. A dozen guards patrolled the vicinity of the Governor's home, and his office at the Capitol.

The Governor and his advisors to-day completed all arrangements for calling out the State Militia to be on hand in case deputies attempt to arrest the executive.

Martial law was expected to be declared as soon as an effort was made to arrest the Governor.

FRANCE WAVERS ON STAND OVER SILESIA ISSUE

BRITAIN AND FRANCE ARE ATTEMPTING TO PREVENT A BREACH OVER SENDING MORE TROOPS THERE.

BOTH SHOW A DESIRE TO RECONCILE OPINION

BY WEBB MILLER,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, July 25. — France and Great Britain to-day made a strenuous effort to prevent a breach threatening to grow out of the Silesian situation. Communications passing between the two countries showed the desire of both to reconcile their opinions on the garrisoning and partitioning of Upper Silesia. France was believed to be wavering in her announced determination to send a division into Silesia despite Britain's refusal to join in such action immediately.

No British Note Sent.

LONDON, July 25.— (Canadian Press.)—Great Britain has not, as has been reported, sent a note to France, with reservations, to the dispatch of French troops to Upper Silesia, it was stated in official circles here to-day. The British Government continues to maintain that with an immediate decision concerning the disputed Silesian questions, there would be no need for more troops in that region, it was stated.

FRANTIC SEARCH FOR STATEMENTS CONTINUES

CHICAGO, July 25.—(Canadian Press).—A new baseball scandal was brewing to-day as the agent of the State Attorney continued a frantic search for the immunity waivers and confessions signed before the Grand Jury last fall by Eddie Cicotte, Claude Williams and Joe Jackson. Information in the hands of George Gorman, Assistant State's Attorney, indicates a New York gambler paid ten thousand dollars for the papers soon after they were stolen from the State's Attirney's files, Gorman said.

REDS MAY ACCEPT TERMS OF HOOVER

OFFER FOR RUSSIAN RELIEF FORWARDED TO MOSCOW.

RIGA, Latvia, July 25.—(Canadian Press.)—The telegram snt by Hoover as head of the American Relief Administration with regard to aid for the straving and sick of Soviet Russia was handed to M. Ganetsky, Societ Minister at Latvia, and forwarded by him to Moscow this morning. Though the decision rests with Moscow, the opinion is expressed in Soviet circles that Mr. Hoover's terms will probably be accepted.

Mr. Hoover's condition, to which objection might be taken, was that the Soviet must release all Americans held prisoners.

MASKED MEN HOLD UP TRAIN SUCCESSFULLY

SHOOT TWO AND OBTAIN QUANITY OF BOOTY, ESCAPING EASILY.

CHAGNY, France, July 25. — (Canadian Press.)— Three masked men held up and robbed the first class passenger Paris-Marseilles express train near here early to-day. The bandits shot dead one man who refused to raise his hands and wounded another. After securing a quantity of booty the bandits pulled the signal cord and jumped off as the train was slowing down a mile outside of Chagny, making their escape before the train crew became alarmed.

HILL TRIAL SOME TIME NEXT WEEK

The date for the trial of William and Davis Hill of Dummer township, who were committed to trial by Magistrate Dumble last week on the charge of on June 3 wounding, maiming or poisoning eleven head of cattle, the property of William Davis, their neighbor, will probably be set some time next week, Crown Attorney Hatton said to-day. Mr. Hatton said that he had received a letter from the Department that the analysis of the stomachs of the cows sent to Toronto will be completed by Saturday, and with this information, for which the Crown has been waiting, a date can be set by His Honor Judge Huycke that will be satisfactory to both Crown and defence.

WILL RELEASE DAIL EIREANN MEMBERS HELD

QUESTION OF GENERAL AMNESTY IN IRELAND MOOTED, BUT NOT REGARDED AS FEASIBLE AT PRESENT.

TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS ARE TO BE REMOVED

LONDON, July 25. (Canadian Press). — If DeValera decides to summon the Dail Eireann, a full attendance will be possible, as the British Government will release the members of that body who are still in prison, in accordance with the request of the Republican leader already made, says the Daily Mail.

It is understood that those detained number between thirty and forty, while about ninety are at liberty.

The question of a general amnesty in Ireland has been mooted, but according to the Daily Mail, the Government regards this as not feasible for the present.

It is proposed, however, the paper adds, soon to remove restrictions on travel in Ireland in order to induce British and United States visitors to go there.

Ireland is officially stated to be more peaceful and free of crime than for many years.

EXPECTED STATEMENT NOT FORTHCOMING.

LONDON, July 25.—(Canadian Press).—The statement with regard to the Irish peace negotiations which it was hoped Mr. Lloyd George would make in the House of Commons to-day was not forthcoming, the Prime Minister saying in reply to questions that he hoped to be in a position to make a statement shortly.

The Prime Minister's inability to make a statement to-day was due to the fact that Eamonn De Valera and his colleagues were still considering them and have not indicated the Sinn Fein's attitude towards the proposals.

DUBLIN "CABINET" CONSIDERS TERMS.

DUBLIN, July 25. — (Canadian Press).—The Irish peace proposals made by Premier Lloyd George to Eamonn De Valera in London last week were taken up by the Republican leader and his Cabinet to-day. The Cabinet, which began its session during the forenoon, met at the Mansion House.

Countess Markievica, who was released from Mount Joy Prison Sunday, sat with the Cabinet and took part in the discussion over the proposed peace terms. The Countess, who was sentenced last December to two years' imprisonment at hard labor on a charge of having conspired to organize a seditious society is elected a member of the Southern Irish Parliament, and is Minister of Labor in the Republican Cabinet.

AMBROSE BROWN DROWNED AT FERGUS.

FERGUS, July 25.—A drowning accident occurred here early on Saturday evening, when Ambrose Brown, C.P.R. telegrapher, met his death while swimming in the Grand River below Monkland's Dam. Neither Brown nor his companion was a good swimmer, and it is thought that Brown got caught in a strong current.

Help was on the scene immediately, when it was found that he had gone down, but efforts to save him proved futile, and his body was not recovered for an hour and twenty minutes, in water twelve feet deep.

Brown was twenty-three years of age, the only son of John Brown of this town.

FIRE DAMAGES CHURCH.

NEWMARKET, July 25. — The interior of the Nemarket Methodist Church was badly damaged by a spectacular fire which was discovered at three o'clock on Saturday morning.

The fire raged for over an hour and a half before the local Brigade had it under control, being much handicapped by dense smoke from 30 tons of coal which was stored in the cellar. The damage is estimated at between ten and twelve thousand dollars. It is fully covered by insurance, and an immediate start will be made to rebuild the church.

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS—

Many a garden has been improved by the use of lime. This applies to flower gardens as well as to vegetable gardens. It is customary to put on powdered lime in the spring, but in the flower garden at least you can get good results by using lime water now. Put 25 gallons of water in a barrel with 12 or 15 pounds of unslacked lime. Let it stand for ten days or two weeks and then draw it off as you need it. Put in more water from time to time. Lime water helps flowers to keep their colour as well as warding off blights and other troubles.

BRITISH COMMONS PLANNING TO PIERCE VEIL OF SECRECY WHICH ENSHROUDS IRISH PEACE PARLEY

SEVERAL PROMINENT UNIONISTS HAVE WITHDRAWN IN PROTEST AGAINST NEGOTIATIONS AND CONSERVATIVE PAPER THREATENS REVOLT.

BY LLOYD ALLEN.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, July 25.— The secretary of the Irish peace negotiations was threatened to-day.

Influential members of the House of Commons planned to force Premier Lloyd George to give them details of the offer which "President" De Valera is now submitting to Sinn Fein leaders in Dublin.

The Commons was actuated by several motives. The chief of these was a nervousness over the nature of the guarantees to Ulster. Another strong motive was the Common's desire to take an active part in the history making conferences. The House has played a leading role in the coal strike negotiations and other important matters and desires to continue to show its strength. Instigators of the movement found sufficient support to make it almost certain that the Premier will be forced to make some sort of explanation even if he does not reveal the whole secret.

The Premier was believed also to face the necessity of some action to offset a revolt being fomented by the Conservative Morning Post, which has continued bitterly to denounce Lloyd George's conferences with Sinn Feiners as "a surrender to the murder gang."

Several prominent Unionists already have withdrawn from the Premier's coalition in protest against the negotiations.

The profundity of the Premier's secret was amazing. Details of the proffer to the Sinn Fein undoubtedly are known to more than half a hundred persons. These include the most reliable sources that the main Eireann and the Ulster Cabinet.

Many newspapers, some of them believed to be quite close to officials who knew the terms, have printed what purported to be the proffer, but none of them agreed. Men known to be acquainted with them refuse to confirm or deny these printed terms.

However, it was learned from the most reliable sources that the main points of the proposed agreement include Dominion home rule along the lines of the South African Federation, with complete fiscal autonomy, but with foreign affairs, the army and navy under the control of the Imperial Government.

The fact that Ulster has remained quiet the last week was accepted here to mean that the northern counties have been safeguarded in the proposals.

In the meantime Dublin's chief worry was as to whether the truce will be continued if the Sinn Fein rejects the present offer. Dublin is finding peace to her liking.

GENERAL AND STAFF SUICIDES FOLLOWING DEFEAT OF SPANISH

OFFICERS SHOT THEMSELVES AFTER SURVIVING TROOPS HAD MADE THEIR ESCAPE.

LONDON, July 25.—The Sapnish forces in Morocco sustained severe losses when attacked by superior numbers of native rebels on Thursday in the Meililla district. The Spanish troops were attacked by tribesmen to the number of ten thousand, according to Daily Express despatches from Madrid. The despatches state that General Silvestre and his staff, waiting until their surviving troops made a safe rereat, commited suicide by shooting themselves.

The 14th centeuary of the death of St. Columbia was celebrated at Keil, near the Mull of Kyntyre, where the saint first set foot on Scottish soil in crossing from Ireland.

ASBESTOS SHIELD PROTECTS MEN IN OIL FIELD FIRE

MEXICO CITY, July 25.— (Canadian Press.)—Guarded by an asbestos shield, fire fighters yesterday were making an attempt to reach one of the burning oil wells at Amatlan and shut off the valve regulating the flow of oil.

If this effort fails tunneling will be tried in an attempt to check flows. Two hundred men are fighting the fires and oil men believed the flames will have been extinguished within three weeks. All nearby wells have been covered with earth as a precaution against conflagration.

BRITISH SHIP IS SEIZED BY U.S. OFFICERS

SUSPECTED OF HAVING LIQUOR ABOARD BUT NONE FOUND —CANADIAN SKIPPER SAYS HE THREW LIQUOR OVERBOARD IN STORM.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. July 25.— Federal officers Saturday seized the British two masted schooner Pocomokie moored in Gardners baisn inlet district here. Copt. J.A. Roy French-Canadian skipper of the craft took the seizure with the same degree of good humor which has characterized his conduct since word was received here several days ago to hold the vesel under surveilance as she was suspected of having a cargo of liquor aboard.

A search of the vessel was made but no liquor was found aboard. I'm going to sail to Nassua when I get and ready" said Coptain Roy. I am not going to Quebec altough that is my home city "he said." I own the vessel having paid $212,000 for her Captain Roy insists that his vessel sprang a leak during a storm off the coast here and that as consequence he threw overboard one thousand cases of liquor which he had aboard.

While Federal guards were seizing the schooner Federal prohibition officers were combing the city for a trace of Captain Roy's cargo. They obtained a search warrant from United States Commissioner Steelman early in the day and searched an Atlantic Avenue restraunt but failed to find any liquor.

QUEEN OF THE BEGGARS.

(London Express.)

The liveliest inhabitant of Shaftesbury avenue is decidedly Fifi, a brown mongrel terrier. The greatest philosopher is unodubtedly her master, Mr. Alfred Sullivan, who is now a bootblack at the corner of Rupert street and Shaftesbury avenue, but who has also been a soldier, a sailor, a gold miner, and a coal miner, who knocked about the world until he found his French wife—and Fifi.

Seated with her head cocked on one side, and an expectant look in her soft brown eyes, Fifi, by a periodical bark, reminds her master's customers of their duty towards an orphan's home. Then, catching the penny in her mouth as it is tossed to her, she places it on the collecting box and worries the donor until she sees him slip it through the slot.

If the coin is pitched down Rupert street, Fifi will case it even as far as Coventry street, carefully avoiding the traffic, but never returning empty mouthed. The Sullivans need no nursemaid at home, for Fifi rocks the cradle of their ten months' old daughter.

Fifi recently handed over 25s—one day's takings—to the home.

A Wicked Village

SUCKS MORE SOULS TO HELL THAN BROADWAY'S PRIMROSE PAVEMENT

By PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Correspondent

MONTICELLO, N.Y., July 25.— It's the sneaky, low down, back-door-gossipy, lonely-country-road wickdness of the village that sucks more souls to hell than Broadway's primrose pavement, Mrs. Lucy Ostrom, mother-in-law in the Monticello martial tangle told the United Press to-day.

"Earl was a good boy until he got to scooting around the country roads in a flivver," she said, referring to her son-in-law, Earl Van Noy who eloped with Mrs. Clark Durea, wife of the Holiness preacher.

"The villages are not what they used to be in my day—what with automobiles, home-brew and even cabarets, It is enough to ruin any young man.

"They gilded up the walls of the second floor over Morrison's butcher shop and imported a couple of singers from New York with a jazz band. They danced there until 11.30 some nights keeping all the people in the neighborhoood up.

"People go out in machines and then stop there to dance. If that was all it wouldn't be so bad, but they drive along those moonlit count-ry roads to coool of after dancing.

"In the city, a man has to work to keep going, but in the small town he's got plenty of the time to figure out some devilment And if he's got a car he can usually figure it out.

"If I ever have a son, I'm going to raise him in the city where it costs $100 for the same wickedness you can get in a small town for a gallon of gasoline."

CITY FOREMAN'S TROUBLES ENDED

TORONTO MAN SAYS HE'S BRIMFUL OF NEW LIFE AND ENERGY SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"What it takes to build a man up and make him feel like living, Tanlac certainly has it," said William Oke, of 216 Margueretta Street, Toronto, Ont., well-known city foreman of the Bridge Dept. City of oTronto.

"For nine years I suffered so much pain and nausea from the gas on my stomach that I actually dreaded to eat. These attacks came more by spells and were not of long duration, but while they lasted the pain certainly was terrible. Mornings I was as tired as when I retired the night before and I just felt sluggish and run-down nearly all the time.

"But Tanlac helped me from the very start, and I actually feel like a different man now. My appetite is ravenous, and my digestion was never better. That tired feeling is gone and I am just brimful of new life and energy. Tanlac certainly built me up in fine shape, and I am glad of the opportunity to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading drugigsts everywhere.

SAVING WORN AND OLD MACHINERY BY NICKEL

The high cost of iron and steel has stimulated engineers to develop efficient means of restoring parts which have become so worn that they are fit only for the scrap heap. A typical example is an engine crank shaft, which after a certain degree of wear, gets out of line to such an extent that it is useless. Welding has been largely used in the work of restoration, fresh iron or steel being welded on to the worn parts, and the whole then made true in a lathe. There are objctions to this process in certain cases, and in order to overcome these objections a British engineer has developed a method of depositing nickel on the worn parts. The piece of machinery to be treated is first made free from grease and dipped bodily into a bath of molten wax. After the wax has cooled it is removed from the parts which have to be restored and is left on the others as a protective covering. Cleaning in a bath of acid is followed by immersion in an electro-plating bath, which deposits nickel on the exposed surfaces. The coating of nickel is extremely hard, and when the process is properly carried out the nickel adheres with remarkable tenacity to the metal on which it has been deposited. Crank shafts, spindles, axles, pistons and similar objects can be made quite serviceable again by the nickel layer at a cost below that of replacing the whole part. Deposits up to one-eighth of an inch can be applied successfully. It is expected that this process will be developed alongside the welding processes, which British engineers have brought to so high a pitch of usefulness in many repairs, such as the mending of cracked or broken castings, which could not be handled by the deposition of nickel.

BIG BANK RING TRIES TO KEEP WAR, SAYS FORD

AUTO MAKER WOULD FOCUS PUBLIC OPINION ON INTERNATIONAL RING WHICH IS TRYING TO HOLD ITS WAR BUSINESS.

WASHINGTON, July 25 (United Press). — Henry Ford is solidly behind President Harding's disarmament programme.

The automobile manufacturer plans to assist the President in removing the causes of war with every resource at his command.

This developed as a result of a frank, informal talk between the two during the week-end camping expedition in the Maryland hills.

Ford outlined his disarmament views in an exclusive interview given to the United Press during a quiet hour at the camp.

Munition makers and international bankers, Ford believes, are trying to keep the war game alive. His plan is to turn the spotlight of publicity upon them and bring the force of public opinion to bear down on anyone who atempts to obstruct the disarmament programme.

"The munition makers were responsible for Germany's arming to the teeth," Ford said. "Now they are trying to do the same thing with Japan. With Germany gone, they are trying to find another reason for keeping up the war business, and at present they are trying to use Japan as an excuse."

Ford was sitting on the edge of an old broken-down bed in a deserted log cabin on the camping enclosure. He had thrown off his coat, revealing a stout pair of old-fashioned suspenders. His lean figure became tense as he talked.

"If we get anywhere with this disarmament business, every man has got to put his soul into it," Ford said.

"Put that as strong as you can. I think the President is taking exactly the right course. I'm for him absolutely in this."

Ford showed plainly that he has learned much since the fiasco of his peace ship. Oscar III. He realises now that the world was not in the proper state of mind to receive his effort sympathetically.

"I think I can do more to help this matter by trying to focus the spotlight of public opinion on the people who are trying to keep the war business going," he declared.

"The only way we can make it go is to find out these people who are trying to keep it going, and show them up and force them to come into line. They don't want to see armaments limited, and if we can bring the tremedous power of public opinion to bear on anybody who is opposing that, we can get somewhere."

Ford discussed the alleged "banking ring," but declined to mention names for publication.

"But there is a ring of bankers—a world ring—that is causing all the trouble," he said. "They work in Washington, in London, and all around the world. It was that kind of a ring around the Kaiser that got Germany into trouble. They put up the money. Munition makers make the guns and powder, and the people get killed and maimed."

Ford took the opportunity to indicate that he felt his views regarding the Jewish race had been misstated.

"I have hundreds of Jews working in my plant at Detroit," he said. "I'm not talking about those kind of people. It's those who are in the international banking ring that I'm fighting."

SERBIA PLANS ACTION AGAINST THE TERRORISTS

BELGRADE, July 25.—(Canadian Press.)—The Government has decided to convene the National Assembly in special session on July 30. This is for the purpose of taking action to suppress terrorist organizations.

TERM REFUSAL OF NATIONAL AND G.T. RAILWAYS TO SUBMIT WAGES TO ARBITRATION AS "LOCKOUT"

BROTHERHOOD OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES CLAIMS FAILURE TO CONCILIATE IS ILLEGAL AND RENDERS ROADS LIABLE TO FINE.

OTTAWA, July 25.— (Canadian Press.)— The management of the Canadian National and Grand Trunk Railways have refused to submit the question of wage reductions to a Board of Arbitration, according to a statement last night by A. R. Mosher, Grand President ot the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

Mr. Mosher is in Ottawa presiding over a conference of representatives of the employes in stationary trades. The workers claim that they are entitled to a Board of Arbitration under the Industrial Disputes Act.

Brotherhood officials claim that the failure of the railways to reply to the offer of employes to conciliate, raises a legal point. It is maintained that this action constitutes a lockout and renders the management liable to a fine of a thousand dollars a day until the matter is adjusted.

THREE ARE KILLED WHEN HEAT CAUSES ICE GROTTO FALL

LONDON, July 25.— (Canadian Press.)—Three school boys were killed and several injured in the collapse of an ice slide in the Swiss Alps, according to a despatch to the Daily Express from Geneva. The party of school boys with masters, left Zurich to climb Jacs Pass. Just as they entered an ice grotto in a glacier singing patriotic songs, the heat caused the roof of the grotto to fall, burying them.

CALDER DENIES SENATE REPORT

DECLARES EMPHATICALLY HE IS NOT SLATED FOR UPPER HOUSE—SKEPTICAL OF WESTERN ELECTIONS.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

QUEBEC., July 25.—Hon. J. A. Calder, Minister of Immigration and Colonisation, flatly denied the report that he is slated for a seat in the Senate, when interviewed here prior to his departure for Ottawa.

"I'm not going to the Senate," he declared emphatically, "and I don't know how the rumour started. You may state that positively."

Commenting upon the agrarian landslide in Alberta, Mr. Calder took the view that it was merely the case of a perfect organisation which was able to carry the election on sentimental ground, despite the lack of criticism of the Liberal administration. The Saskatchewan Government merely saved itself a similar fate by linking up with the Farmers immediately prior to the Provincial contest.

The Premier upon his return, said Mr. Calder, will consider the question of the general election, but the decision will remain entirely with him whether or not one will be held. Mr. Meighen will also deal with the question of re-opening or finally disposing of the Western grain dispute and the question of unifying and amalgamating the Government railways.

PROMINENT MONTREAL SURGEON DIES WHILE STOPPING HIS MOTOR

MONTREAL, July 25.— (Canadian Press.)—Stricken by an attack of angina pectoris Saturday afternoon, Dr. Walter Henry Philip Hill, one of the best known surgeons in this city, died almost at once at the wheel of his car which he had just pulled up opposite the police station on St. Catharine street. It was noticed by passers-by that his attitude at the wheel was not normal and upon investigation it was found that he was dead.

Dr. Hills' death was probably hastened by a too strenuous professional career. He had that very morning performed an operation at the Royal Victoria Hospital where he was associate surgeon, and on Friday he had been down to Plattsburg, N.Y., to perform another.

FINISH OF SHORT SKIRT PREDICTED.

N. Y. Society Woman Says Long Garment Due Before Autumn.

(By Dale Van Every, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 25.—The day of the short skirt is finished. Before autumn it will be replaced by the long skirt, a really long one reaching clear to the ankles.

This alarming, or comforting, prediction—depending on the viewpoint—was made to-day to the United Press by Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, famed as the most beautiful woman in New York society, who has just returned from Paris.

"The short skirt has already disappeared in Paris among the really smart," said Mrs. Hoyt. "They're wearing them full ankle length.

"The new skirts are not especially full, though I believe there will be more of a flare to them by fall; at present the only decided change is in the length.

"I expect that the short skirt will disappear in the United States very soon, too — before the end of the summer, even. After all, Paris still sets the styles for those who take great interest and care with their clothing. And, you know, every one else copies such people."

LADDER BREAKS, THROWING A. EVERETT TO THE GROUND

Mr. Arnold Everett, 406 Bethune Street, of the staff of W. R. Turner, tinsmith, Simcoe Street, sustained serious injury in an accident this morning about 9 o'clock. Mr. Everett was engaged in putting conductor pipes on the roof of Mr. A. Moore's house, King Stret, when the ladder on which he was standing broke under him, and precipitated him to the ground, a distance of about twenty-two feet. One leg was fractured and both were severely cut. He was taken to Dr. McPherson's office by motor, and from there home. It will be some time before he is able to be around again.

MONDAY, JULY 25TH, 1921.

A WARNING.

A correspondent writing to the Examiner on Saturday, issued a warning to an individual who has been sending bogus messages over the telephone to a local family. Unfortunately, Peterborough seems to have a number of individuals of low mentality, to whom the action complained of would appear as most amusing. A short time ago the Examiner had occasion to call attention to the malicious conduct of some unscrupulous person who sent in for publication a false announcement of the engagement of a local girl. Evidently the instigator of the foundationless telephone messages is of the same calibre, and it is hoped that the guilty parties can be located and made to understand that their offence is a serious one. A harmless practical joke is one thing, but conduct such as referred to here is quite a different affair, causing needless distress and anxiety and embarrassment for those who are involuntarily involved in the matter.

THE MOTOR LEAGUE.

The local branch of the Motor League is devoting special attention to the tourists who are motoring to Peterborough in large numbers and who are being invited to make use of the information available at the Peterborough headquarters as to roads, summer resorts and other matters of interest to visitors. The accomodation provided by the Motor League is appreciated by tourists, and the service is a splendid advertisement for Peterborough, as it stamps this city as not only progressive but hospitable. The advent of an ever increasing number of tourists in an effective stimulus to business during months that would otherwise be dull, and in placing its services at the disposal of visitors, the Motor League is proving itself a community asset as well as a boon to its own members. Every car owner in Peterborough should help the good work along by joining the local branch of the League.

THE RELIEF FUND.

The City Council has decided to apply to the Peterborough Relief Association for a transfer of the $9,000 held in trust by them to the city treasurer, as sanctioned by special legislation passed at the last session of the Provincial Legislature. The money will be of assistance in dealing with cases of hardship and distress during the coming winter. It will be remembered that when the first Patriotic Fund campaign was held at the end of 1914 it was decided to set aside one quarter of the amount collected as a special fund to be devoted to the relief of those who might be in distress on account conditions arising out of the war, the other three-quarters to be used in assisting the dependents of the men who enlisted. The expected call upon the Relief Fund never materialized, for the unexpected boom caused by war orders created a period of financial prosperity and there was no necessity for disbursing relief. There should be no objection on the part of the original subscribers to this fund to the money being used now by the city for emergency purposes.

A QUESTION OF MOVIES AND PRESTIGE.

In every clime the position of the movie censor is one of peculiar difficulty. The human mind reacts to suggestion in such diverse and subtle ways that he would indeed be a keen psychologist who could rightly estimate the effect of all that passes before him on the screen. But in India the task is apparently even more delicate than elsewhere, as may be judged from a report just made by the Calcutta board of censors.

The difficulty they find is this: The films, or 90 per cent. of them, portray characters who are white. These characters include villains of the male sex and vampires of the female. "In most films," says the report, "the villain and evil woman are shown carrying on successfully through the greater part of the film. This does not tend to uplift the prestige of the British race in India." And while the censors cannot reject all the pictures which show, so to speak, the white race at its blackest, they have at times banned certain films on this account. Curiously enough, these have included propaganda pictures which were intended to show the ruin and degradation caused by drink. "The American producer," says these censors, "in endeavouring to make his point invariably shows white men and women in an exaggerated state of drunkenness. Such scenes, shown to an illiterate Indian audience, can have no other effect than to lower the prestige of the white woman and the white races in general."

If this is true of films, it is, of course, true of human beings as well. The prestige of the white races in India is affected by the actions of the white people who live or visit there. That is the case in any country, black or brown. It is not from the missionaries alone that the "natives" imbibe their ideas of the Western peoples. And the law, at its best, is such a poor censor of human conduct that the "poor benighted Hindu" must often shake his head in despair over the doings of the so-much-superior white man.

Coming closer home, however, how many Canadians would like to have their "prestige" as individuals subjected to the acid test which a continuous film of their daily lives would constitute?—Star Weekly.

A WARLESS WORLD.

The Christian Endeavour convention in New York has adopted a slogan: "A warless world in 1923." This expresses an ideal toward which the whole world gropes, but which is elusive, points out the Sunday World. President Wilson correctly interpreted the longing of humanity for an end of war, but unfortunately his methods of seeking the triumph of the great principle of universal peace were faulty. The League of Nations was matured only in part. But what it lacked may be made up and supplemented, by the new international conference on armament limitation to be held in Washington—a conference which will enable the United States to join the great movement without being involved in the objectionable features of the League of Nations covenant.

Only a few months ago, a score of wars were counted among the smaller nations of the world. These outbreaks may be inevitable, because human nature will always find things to quarrel about; but if the large nations of the world have a system of settling disputes peacefully, and are in harmony on general issues, local quarrels cannot affect the world in general. Leading nations are spending up to three-fourths of their national income on military or naval objects. The statistics on armament expenditures now, when the Great War is nearly three years behind us, are appallingly large. No let up is promised, unless there is some measure of concerted limitation and some general agreement. The world wants peace, but the statesmen who have in their keeping national safety also want the means of security. Public sentiment operating on each Government is the force that will drive them into seeking agreement and abandoning the overstocked armoury that costs so much bitter toil.

The world knows now that the horrors of war exist far beyond the confines of a battlefield. For decades after, humble toilers pay the heavy penalties for the waste and bloodshed. Public sentiment has crystalised as never before in favour of a genuine era of peace and understanding, and if modern democracies are able to carry out their will, the warless world should, in time, become a reality. The cynical may revile the assertion that the late struggle was a "war to end war," but at least it has provided a great inentive to seek the foundations of a lasting and durable peace.

MONTMARTRE MOURNS.

Montmartre and the Latin quarter are grieving for a personality, and an original one at that, who filled a large part in the cabaret world, for Yno-Lug, the bearded chansonnier, the modern Diogenes, as he was called, the incorrigible Bohemian, who lived in the nebulous shadow of Paul Verlaine, is dead. Yon-Lug had a great reputation, built up on some half a dozen songs he wrote and never wearied of singing. He was, in fact, a prince in the world of Bohemia, a 'draw" at the artistic cabarets, and loved by his fellow chansonniers and patrons and probably by the policemen of Paris most of all. For did he not immortalize the "agents" by his ballad—"Les agents sont de bray's gents, qui s'baladent tout le temps"—(The cops they are a bully crowd, nothing to do but walk about), which had a five years' vogue, almost as long as "Tipperary" and "Madelon." As poor as he was popular, Yon-Lug, whose real name was Constant Jacquet, was a cynical philosopher, who had no other ambition except to sing his way through life. He only knew one period of sadness, and that was during the war, when the scarcity of tobacco threatened to become a national calamity. Yon-Lug divided himself between Montmartre and the Latin-quarters. Sometimes, with his hands in his trousers pockets, sometimes leaning on a piano, he would sing one song after another, and frequently did not leave the stage until he had gone through the whole of his repertoire. Latterly his voice had become cracked, and it was felt that the end of his career had been reached. He died peacefully at the hospie at Brevannes.

BARBARA FIGHTS IT OUT ALONE.

Chapter 20

Kent had stolen the Lachman diamond.

I sat staring into space, stunned and heartbroken. Everything seemed to be a dream, a terrible nightmare. I heard him pacing back and forth across the living room floor and yet I felt so much alone, so far off from him now.

He came slowly toward me and hesitated a minute. Then I felt his hand touch my shoulder. A shudder seemed to pass through every nerve in my body.

"Barbara? Barbara?" he pleaded passionately.

"No—don't touch me!" I cried. "I want to be alone." I struggled to my feet and staggered blindly from the room.

I sought my own room and threw myself across the bed. I lay there for hours, numb, and lifeless. I was only conscious of the terrible, sickening, hopeless pain that seemed to be tearing my very heart out.

And then bye and bye the realization of it all rushed over me. Thoughts started forming themselves in my deadened brain.

I had to face the truth. The man in the other room who had done this dreadful thing, was my husband. He still belonged to me and I to him. I could not dismiss him so suddenly from my life and heart.

"Oh, Kent—Kent," I sobbed, digging my fingers into the softness of the bed covering.

"If I could only get away — get away and forget," I thought. But I could not forget. I would always be living in the memory of a terrible tragedy and there would always be the thought that I had run away from it. Life seemed so cruel.

And Kent, there in the other room, what was he thinking? What would this thing mean to him? If I should go away and leave him, what would he do then?

I sat up on the side of the bed and stared into space.

Could he undo this thing which he had been tempted of. Could he in some way make reparations? Thoughts and solutions were forming themselves rapidly in my mind.

Maybe it was my help that he needed. Because Kent's act would have been impossible with me, should I judge him or refuse to help him now when he needed my strength? Kent's bringing up had probably been very different from mine. I wondered a great deal about his boyhood—he had never told me about it—it was such a formative time in a child's existence.

"If there was only some way of getting the diamond back again to Victor Lachman," I mused. "But we could not give it to him and let him know what had happened. There would be no telling what he might do. We could not take a chance on that," I thought.

But I had made up my mind that we must think up some way out of it, some way to repair a little this terrible damage.

I got up from the bed and turned on the electric light. It was 2 o'clock. I had not thought of time.

I felt my way back into the living room. The table lamp was turned down low as I had left it. Through the dim light I saw Kent's form stretched, face downward, on the couch.

I went to him and, leaning over, smoothed the back of his head with my hand.

"Kent, Kent dear," I called softly.

After a minute he raised his head. I sat down beside him.

"Kent—I have been thinking. I want to help you," I said compassionately. "We must try to think up some way to straighten this mistake out. We can't undo it, but together perhaps we can plan some way to get the diamond back. We must do it, Kent. We can never be happy again unless we do," I entreated.

"My God, Barbara! I can't—I can't," he cried hopelessly, turning toward me. "I haven't it—I haven't it."

tract, whether in respect of the premium to be paid, or otherwise other than is plainly expressed in the policy issued," and it further declares, "nor shall any such company or any officer, agent, solicitor or representative thereof, pay, allow or give, or offer to pay allow or give, directly or indirectly as an inducement to ensure any rebate or premium payable on the policy."

Intention to Give Commission

"There are no special provisions in the policy with regard to transactions of the character in question in this action. The policy provides that it shall not come into force until the premium to be signed by designated officer and provides for payment at head office unless specified otherwise.

"The plaintiff, an insurance agent, induced the defendant to make application for insurance in the Confederation Life Insurance Co. on the promise that he would share his commission with the defendant. I quote the plaintiff's own words:—Q. Did you give him any other valuable thing, no matter how slight value, in connection with the transaction other than this policy you have mentioned.

A. "Yes. I told him I would give him a commission off some of my commission.

"The defendant confirms this and says the plaintiff agreed to a rebate of $40 or $50 if he (defendant) would accept the policy. Some time after the policy was delivered, promissionary notes were taken by the plaintiff for 3 sums of $35 each totalling in all $105, but none was taken for the difference between this sum and the premium which was $150. The plaintiff in his evidence says that, that sum was to have been paid in cash, but it never was paid and on the evidence referred to I find that it was not to be paid plaintiff. The plaintiff cannot get on without revoking the contract which was that the premium should be $105 instead of $150.

DIVISION OF INSURANCE COMMISSION.

Provision of Insurance Act Against Rebating Is Enforced by British Columbia Court.

It is illegal under section 83 of the insurance Act (1917 Can) for an insurance agent to induce a person to make application for insurance by promising that he will share his commission with him and where the premium sued for forms part of such forbidden transaction it cannot be recovered.

In the case of Bernstein v. Erickson, Chief Justice MacDonald is reported as follows: "By section 83 of the Insurance Act (7-8 Geo. V. ch. 29) discrimination and rebating are forbidden. The statute (Sec. 83) forbids any insurance agent "to assume to make any contract of insurance or agrement as to such con-

NERVOUS FAINTING SPELLS

Mrs. Werner tells how they Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Camden, N. J.—"Before my baby was born I was run down and weak, had pains in my back and stomach, was very nervous and would have fainting spells. I certainly suffered awfully with those nervous fainting spells. I did not know anyone at times and used to scream. A doctor treated me but did not seem to do much good. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt a change and could do my work without pain and was relieved of those nervous spells. Now I have a nice baby girl and had an easy time at birth, thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. William C. Werner, 1216 Van Hook St., Camden, N. J.

When a wife finds her energies are flagging, she is weak, nervous, suffers from backache, the "blues" she should build her system up at once by taking that standard woman's medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as did Mrs. Werner.

If there is anything about your condition you do not understand write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., about your health.

AN EASY WAY OF STARTING OIL ENGINES

To every user of engines driven by crude oil the process of starting is a nightmare. The blow lamp by means of which the fuel spray is usually given its initial heat, is a device with an almost satanic cussedness of behaviour. Moreover, its use involves a considerable amount of time as well as trouble. Consequently there ought to be a wide welcome for an ingenious electric hater developed by a leading British firm of oil engine makers. The device is extremely simple. It consists essentially of an electric heating element of high resistance wire placed in the line of action of the oil spray. A small amount of current suffices to make this wire white hot, in which condition it brings the spray rapidly to the temperature required for starting. After the engine has gone ahead the element is withdrawn, so that it is not exposed for more than a minute or so to the high temperature of the combustion chamber—an arrangement which gives it long life and great reliability. The electric current required for operating the heater is supplied by a 4-volt or a 6-volt battery charged from a tiny electric generator, driven through a belt from the engine. By means of this device the the engine can be quickly started up from cold without the slightest trouble. Twelve months' trial of the apparatus has shown it to be thoroughly satisfactory.

Knew a Whole Lot.

The prosecuting attorney had encountered a rather difficult witness. At length, exasperated, he asked the man if he was acquainted with any of the jury.

"Yes, sir," announced the witness; "more than half of them."

"Are you willing to swear that you know more than half of them?" demanded the lawyer.

"Why, if it comes to that," replied the witness easily, "I'm willing to swear that I know more than all of them put together."

SWIMMING URGED FOR WAR CRIPPLES

It Will Afford All the Exercise Needed for Health, Says a Physician.

It is now suggested as a practical expedient that war cripples turn to swimming in order to get the exercise needed to maintain health. The problem is still urgent all over the world of how to provide suitable exercise for the incapacitated. One of the great difficulties which surgeons have always had to face is the exercise of those patients who have suffered the loss or crippling of a limb. These men cannot play games. Many of them cannot walk without great pain and inconvenience.

Yet if they do not get exercise they degenerate in health, says the medical correspondent of The London Times. Every physician knows that many cases of chronic illness date from a crippling accident. Very often the patient desribes his declension in health to the accident. But this is always, or nearly always, a mistake, according to the physician. It is the change in the habit of life which has brought about the disaster.

The same thing may be seen any day in the case of a countryman who, for some reason, has been forced to come to town to live. He begins to feel ill, to grow stout, to lose his strength. This misfortune he ascribes usually to the town "atmosphere," the smoke or the noise. In fact, it will be found that he is obtaining much less exercise than he was accustomed to.

He is, in short, slowly poisoning to death. Exercise has many benefits to bestow the most important of which is the elimination of waste products. If this elimination falls below the rate of production disaster is certain sooner or later, the physician says.

Nor must it be supposed that the getting rid of waste products concerns only the muscles; it concerns also the individual cells of which the body is built. These require a constant stream of fresh blood containing oxygen. Exercise enables them to obtain this stream, both by its effects in increasing the depth of the breathing and in quickening the circulation.

If, therefore, health is to be maintained, and such diseases as "rheumatism," gout, arterio-sclerosis and kidney mischief are to be prevented, exercise must be maintained at the level to which the body has grown accustomed. At this level production and output of waste material are equal. Below this level output is less than production.

Look Younger

Care-worn, nerve-exhausted women need Bitro-Phosphate, a pure organic phosphate dispensed by McDermid & Jury that New York and Paris physicians prescribe to increase weight and strength and to revive youthful looks and feelings.

AN ALL-OIL NAVY.

Naval experts and shipbuilders in all parts of the world have been much impressed by the decision of the British Admiralty to build only oil-burning ships in future. Many reasons have combined to bring about this decision. Among them are convenience of transporting oil and storing it at strategic points, the small space which it occupies on board ship, the ease with which oil may be taken on board ship from tanks or tank steamers, the simplification of stoking, and the high efficiency of the fuel. It is calculated that even at present prices oil is cheaper than coal as a fuel, apart from the other economies enumerated. This official decision is likely to give a fillip to the movement, already taking place rapidly, for the conversion of large liners and other merchant vessels flying the British flag from coal-firing to oil-firing. One benefit of the change will be to do away with the terrible conditions to which stokers on coal-fired ships are subjected, especially on tropical seas. On humanitarian grounds alone the example of British enterprise in this direction is worthy of world-wide adoption.

His Idea of Marriage.

He was crusty and rude, but as a celebrity he was entitled to in indulgence in these matters. And his pretty hostess, was not one to shirk any conversational encounter with him.

"Tell me, Mr. Highbrow," she inquired, "what is your idea of marriage?"

The celebrity frowned.

"Madam," he replied, "my idea of marriage is very much the same kind of vague but inarticulate protest as a dog's conception of a tin can that is tied to his tail!"

Your Best Investment

Life Insurance offers the best form for saving money. It is an investment for small sums, and affords "protection" for many times the annual deposit or premium. It is the only method of combining savings and protection.

It is also the sure way of leaving an estate. Fifty per cent. of all estates at death consist of life insurance—many persons are unable to leave anything else to their families.

For these reasons the people of Canada are buying twice as much life insurance in these days of retrenchment as they did even two years ago.

Life Insurance is your best investment.

The Greeks captured forty guns and took a great number of prisoners.

FACTS ABOUT EGGS.

Be sure and buy clean eggs. Eggs should never be washed when they are received, as when eggs are washed they are robbed of something in the shell that helps to keep them fresh. Wash the egg just before using.

Eggs should be kept in a cool place, but do not need to be kept in the coolest part of the refrigerator.

If you make a dessert or cake that calls for few eggs remember that your cake will be just that much poorer in the nourishment that eggs contribute. The custard made from one egg and much cornstarch does not fill the bill in the diet that a custard made from more eggs does.

The yolk of egg contains the fat soluble vitamine, the absence, of which causes rickets and sore eyes, especially in children. For this reason eggs are desirable in children's diet and the yolk should not be omitted.

The yolk of a very hard boiled egg is often regarded as suitable for very small children. It is sometimes given to children before soft boiled or coddled eggs. It should be so thoroughly boiled that it is crumbly and flaky and should be well crumbled.

England is believed to have the largest electrical hatching plant in the world, having an average output of 8,000 chickens a weep.

DUSTLESS STREETS AND THE DISPOSAL OF GARBAGE.

Aime Cousineau, sanitary engineer of Montreal's City Health Department, has prepared an interesting paper called "Street Hygiene," which is a report on street cleaning and the removal and disposal of garbage.

Mr. Cousineau in the report discusses the different methods of keeping the streets free from dust and mud employed in Montreal, and points out that in the near future new methods of getting rid of garbage will have to be used as the system now in use of filling up old holes and quarries with the refuse cannot continue, when houses are built on the edge of the dumps.

To prevent the formation of obnoxious or dangerous dust, Mr. Cousineau says, is an important factor, when choosing the materials for covering or paving the roadways, as dust will spread microbes and will have a mechanical action on the surface. The use of motor sprinklers to suppress dust without creating mud, as against the method of oiling or tarring the roads are discussed in the report, and the opinion of well-known engineers quoted.

The sprinkling of water on the roads is the cause for much of the repairs that have to be made in the city and the method of oiling or tarring the roads, which has been used on a hundred miles or about 25 per cent. of the city's roads will be used more and more in the future, claims Mr. Cousineau. He also mentions that there are 836 miles of roads, and out of this mileage 373.7 miles are paved.

INDECISION

Lose this day loitering—'twill be the same story
Tomorrow—and the next more dilatory;
Then indecision brings its own delays,
And days are lost lamenting o'er lost days,
Are you in earnest? Seize this very minute—
What you can do or dream you can begin it,
Courage has genius, power and magic in it
Only engage, and then the mind grows heated—
Begin it, and the work will be completed.

CHURCH SERVICES AT MARK STREET

The pastor occupied the pulpit both morning and evening. The congregations were good, and the music by the choir was much enjoyed.

The subject of the morning sermon was "A Guest at the King's Banquet," and was founded on Matt. XII, 12 "And he saith unto him, friend, how comest thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless." The following is an outline of the sermon.

The Marriage of Christ is the Mystery of the Church.

God is the King who makes the marriage feast, for his son Jesus Christ. The great banqueting hall is heaven, and the guests are all who have accepted an invitation, doned the wedding garment, and have met the requirements of the Mighty Master of the feast. Jesus, is the bridegroom, who has gathered his church out of all nations, paid her debts, educated her, loved her, died for her, and brought her home to his Father's House on high. God honours his Son by this great feast, at which Christ and his bride, the Church, are the central figures.

The Invitation Given to Jews First

You will notice that the invitation to this great feast was a double one. The King first gives a general invitation. Then he sends out his servants to all those that were bidden. What annoying condension God manifests in his dealings with the Jews. Through Abraham He calls the whole Hebrew nation. Then all down through the ages He proclaims the coming banquet by the lips of his prophets. John the Baptist, later, takes up the call; but those who were bidden would not come.

The Gentiles Then Receive the Invitation.

First the guests had been bidden Then supper had been announced. Now all is foollowed by the refusal to come, which was a burning insult to the King. Was he angry? Yes, and justly so; He was filled with a holy indignation. Let us lay that to heart from the worst of us to the best if us. here is holy anger and indignation in God. An awful thought we are either under God's anger or his approval. We cannot get away from his presence. We either accept his invitation to the great banquet, or we shut ourselves out forever. The Jews flung in God's face his kindness and his love. Now the King in his wroth turns to the highways and hedges. His servants are instructed to go and call the poor, the halt, the lame, the blind, the outcast, the most wretched in the land. What a tramp's jubilee? Yes, an awful rap on the knuckles for society. Well it is really wonderful what God can do with a bunch like that anyway.

Let us Look in at the Banquet.

First, the Prince and His Bride, are there. Glorious to behold is the Church at the table with her Lord. Look at the poor, and sin-cursed, and vile. What a surging mass of human wreckage is there. The theif, the murderer, the adulterer, the Sabbath-breaker, and all the off-scouring of the earth, all along the ages. Wait a minute! You have missed your guess. There is not a singie man in all that mighty multitude but one, who is not dressed just like the Prince himself. There is, not a woman at that banquet who is not dressed just like the bride. Neither sin nor sorrow, pain nor poverty, anger nor anguish, woe nor worry, shows in a single countenance in that vast throng. Why?

In the King's Wardrobe a Garment for each Guest

Now every guest who entered that hall was provided with two essentials; a bath and a wedding garment. First the bath, yes a clea up. This cleansing was absolutely necessary. The bath was the River of God, whose source is underneath the throne of the Eternal. "There is a river, the streams whereof, make gald the city of our God, the holy pjlace of the tabernacle of the Most High." This river, bearing the sins of all the human family, rolls onward to the mighty sea of God's forgetfulness. Now, every guest in that banqueting hall had cleansed his guilty soul in that healing stream.

Every Guest Received a Garment E'er he Entered.

You see the guest was at no personal expense. The wedding garment was providd by the king. And if we are found at last in our wretched rags of self-righteousness, it will not be the fault of the king; he has made ample provision for every soul. Nor will we ever be able to drop the robe of Christ's righteousness down over a filthy and unregenerated character. There are no rags underneath this wedding garmnt. We might as well try to cover up a double life by a cloak of church membership, as to cover up our old nature by the wedding garment.

At the Feast Without the Wedding Attire.

When the King came in to see his guests he found one man dressed in his own outfit. This man, evidently, had refused the wedding garment. Perhaps he thought his own quite proper. The King calls him friends. No anger. He has not conformed to the requirements of the King, that is all. Take him away from the feast, that is all. And somewhere near the gate of heaven was a door that led to hell. Wash in the River of God; put on the wedding garment.

"Yet there is room, the Lamb's bright hall of song.
With its fair glare beacons thee along,
Room, room; still room, oh enter, enter now."

G.W.V.A. BAND PLEASED COTTAGERS AT CHEMONG

ARE ENGAGED FOR STONEY LAKE REGATTA AND ALSO FOR LATER CONCERTS AT THE LAKES.

The G.W.V.A. band gave two attractive concerts at Chemong park on Sunday. Bandmaster Peryer had about forty instruments under his baton, and both in balance and volume the band was in excellent form. So favorable was the impression they made on their audience that they have been invited to return soon. Man requests for their services have been received from the cottagers at Stoney Lake and Juniper Island, and arrangements have been made for the G.W.V.A. band to play at the Stoney Lake regatta on Monday, August 1. They will be at Kawartha Park and Juniper on August 6, 7 and 8. The band will give another concert on the lawn at their club next Sunday night. Seating accommodation will be provided and the band will ppresent one of their best programmes. Children without their parents will not be admitted. The programme will be published later in the week. Bandmaster Peryer and his musicians were warmly congratulated by the Chemong cottagers yesterday, but the pleasure of the afternoon was diminished by the heavy rain that interrupted the open air programme and chased the band and their audience to the pavilion.

MURDEROUS APE KILLS FEMALES OF HIS TRIBE.

One of the most interesting sights of Gibraltar is the famous colony of monkeys living in their native freedom. These "Barbary apes" have so declined that it is believed only eight of them survive. A strange outbreak of crime is responsible for the reduction of the famous colony. The oldest male monkey on the Rock recently developed a passion for murdering the females of his race.

When decreases in their numbers was traced to this simian Landru, he was captured, and all his teeth taken out. It was hoped that this would make him harmless, but an irresistible craving for slaughter led him to use guile. Employing all the powers and attractions which old age and villainy still left him, he proceeded to lure the female monkeys to the highest point of the Rock, where, suddenly seizing them, he would hurl them over the cliff, at the foot of which the mangled bodies of the confiding creatures were afterwards found.

With scores of crimes to his charge, the monkey slayer was at last caught and again exiled to the zoo, but the monkey tribe of Gibraltar has never recovered from the havoc he wrought, and visitors seldom catch sight of them.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Palmerston, Ont July 22,

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—I saw your article on Sunday bathing copied in which you said that closing bathing houses on Sunday was denying your citizens a privilege.

Sunday bathing is just one more diversion at which people gather and carry on just the same as on a week day, spoiling their chances of learning of God and his great salvation, things which concern all of the present life and an unending life after. I know that people are inclined to sit about at home or go other places beside church, but it is certainly a step in the wrong direction to open one more gathering place where there is certainly no religious influence. It would take still more from the church. Hence I think that in your artice you were not working for the good of your citizens but to their harm. Do you think that your city would be any better off if everybody went bathing or boating or anywhere at all and the churches were done away with? Just after reading your article I read Christ's own words describing the punishment of those who keep clear of God and the things of God in this life. "Where their worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched."

Yours sincerely,
F. H. PASMORE.

STORAGE BATTERIES.

One of the most common ailments of the motor car storage battery seems to be undercharging.

The symptom of this is lack of vitality. The battery will not turn the starter over quickly. It lags and works with effort. With automobiles carrying generators, the trouble probably will be found there. The generator's adjustments may not be correct or there may be derangement of the generator system, in the wiring, or in other units. To say the least, an occasional check of the generator can do no harm.

At the other extreme is overcharging. The symptoms of this are overheating of the battery liquid. If this continues long enough the plates will disintegrate and the battery will be ruined. The electrolyte in the battery of a motor carrying a generator should be tested frequently with a thermometer. Should the temperature be over 110 degrees F., the battery is being charged too rapidly, and the generator should be regulated.

DREAM OF THE FUTURE.

(Minneapolis Journal.)

With hard roads connecting all points on which roll rubber-shod vehicles; with industry gone out into the country and cities becoming veritable garden towns; with air transportation a commonplace; with the abundant water-powers penetrating our dwellings and operating our railways — what a new state of things will be here by 1945, say, a state as different from our present one as this is from that of 30 years ago. The United States, virtually a continental area, has become a physical as well as a political integer. Because through this vast area no lines of separation marked by custom-houses or other restrictions run, it has developed unobstructedly along the lines of kinetic possibilities. And the least part of the possibilities has been realised as yet. Our area may be made the garden of the world, the super-factory, and this not in a way to diminish human happiness, as the nineteenth century economic development largely did, but to promote human contentment.

THE MOON

(Percy Bysshe Shelley)

And like a dying lady, lean and pale
Who toters forth, wrapped in a gauzy veil,
Out of the chamber, led by the insane
And feeble wanderings of her fading brain,
The moon arose up in the murky east
A white, a shapeless mass.

Are thou pale for weariness
Of climbing heaves and gazing on the earth,
Wandering companionless,
Amnog the stars thaat have a different birth,
And ever changing, like a joyless eye
That finds no object worth its constancy?

EXPECT TO PRODUCE NEWSPRINT AT $60.00 A TON.

To produce newsprint of excellent quality at less than $60.00 a ton is the confident expectation of a group of newspaper owners in Australia.

The Weekly Bulletin of the Department of Trade and Commerce states that as a result of experimnts with a model paper making plant, it is claimed that newsprint can be produced from Karri waste, obtained from the timber mills, where enormous quantities are now being burned.

The karri is a very hard timber, the inner portion of which is a mahogany colour, but no difficulty has been found in bleaching it.

The breaking strength of the paper is stated to be 1.2 per cent. greater than Scandinavian paper, and the karri waste can be obtained at merely nominal cost.

BLOOD MONEY WAS ONCE PAID FOR BLOODSHED

"Blood money" was the name applied in the Middle Ages and well into the more modern period to the money paid for bloodshed. It might be either the compensation paid by a man-slayer to the nearest relatives of the victim, to secure himself and his kin from vengeance, or the money paid as a reward for bringing about the death of another, directly or through evidence.

It was once common among the Scandinavian and Teutonic peoples, who called this money payment wergild. The price varied with the nature of the crime and the rank of the victim. Certain crimes, such as the slaying of a sleeping person, could not be compensated by a money payment; such criminals were declared outlaws and could be slain with impunity.

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is a difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and cause no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

CAMPBELLFORD LOST A GAME

HASTINGS GRABBED THE BIG END OF 10-3 SCORE.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 25.—The Hastings Junior Lacrosse team visited Campbellford on Friday afternoon and defeated them by a ten to three score. The reason for the Hastings boys running up such a score was plainly visible to anyone on the sides. The visiting team had the benefit of Coach Phelan's training ability and in some cases, age, which, altogether served to give them excellent teamwork and complete confidence in each other.

The Campbellford boys played good lacrosse but they lacked the vim, certainty and confidence which arises from steady practise together Campbellford often had the best of the play but would lose by a wild pass, whereas their opponents seldomb, if ever, missed on a pass.

The Players

Campbellford — T. Stuart, Goal; Wm. Sanders, Point; Copperwaite, Cover Point; T. Reynolds, 1st defence; White, 2nd defence; Cowell, centre; Hankinson, 1st Home; Dunk 2nd Home; Labrash, Inside; Clarke, Outside Home.

Hastings—C. Whitred, Goal; O. Scriver, Point; Wm. Whitred, Cover Point; Wm. Tait, 1st Defence; H. Rogers, 2nd Defence; B. Clarke, Centre; T. Scriver, 1st Home; B. Richardson, 2nd Home; J. Gould, Inside; P. Stevenson, Outside Home

Subs: — Campbellford — Lynch; Hastings— K. Kennedy, P. Walsh, O. Cruikshats. Referee P. J. Kelly.

From the first Hastings had the best of the play and if Tom Stuart had not been an "Eight Wonder" in goal it would have have taken an adding machine to add up the goals. As it was, although a few did get by Tom stopped dozens of wicked shots with anything.

Joe Gould opened things up by doing some pretty work and scoring the first goal. The next goal was one which counted for Campbellford although it was really scored by the Hastings goal keeper himself by an accident and Joe promptly scored another for Hastings.

Stevenson then showed some pretty work and scored again. Copperwaite and Labrash started a little combination which might have ended successfully had it not gone away high and as a result Fred Scriver scored agin. Wm. Tait then showed his mettle which was tested by Copperwaite. Rogers demonstrated the kind of speed which he was to use all through the game and it certainly was some speed, but it came to naught as time was called.

Second Period.

The second period opened by Harold Dunk scoring for Campbellford, which was returned by a fierce counter atack upon the Stuart goal, but Tom shed the steady shots like water off a duck, until Gould got one past. Richardson did some wonderful work and scored again. Sanders did some clever dodging, but made a hurried pass which allowed Tait to get the ball, but he also made a miss shot, but Richardson shot in a grounder which passed unhampered through the melee of legs in front of the goal and even got by 'Stonewall Tom.' F. Scriver made a clever pass to Richardson, which meant another goal, followed by another made possible by a very neat pass from Scriver to Gould, and Scriver scored again.

Score at end of second, 9-2.

Third Period.

The third period showed that both teams had tightened, with the result that not a goal was scored, although Tom turned away a number as undeesirable. Lynch was put on in place of Cowell for this period. Copperwaite made a wonderful check and Hankinson's passes to Dunk were very neat, and Copperwaite made an especially good pass through the men and passed, but lost out, as some one kicked the ball. Richardson came to life again, grabbed the ball and slid through four players, but as per usual, it was useless, as Tommy wouldn't let 'em in.

Fourth Period.

The fourth commenced with Cowell on in place of Labrash, and Lynch stepped out and scored. Tait met with a slight accident when he ran into his stick, but he was soon O.K., but Scriver had to score again, after which both goal keepers were bombarded without results. Near the last Scriver ran the entire length of the field and then failed to get it by Stuart.

The visiting team did beautiful work, and the game was exceptionally clean, as there were but three penalties for minor offences.

To keep doors closed a spring has been invented that can be attached to almost any hinge without tools.

LOST LOVE.

(Andrew Lang.)

Who wins his love shall lose her,
Who loses her shall gain;
For still the spirit woos her—
A soul without a stain,
And memory still pursues her
With longings not in vain!

He loses her who gains her,
Who watches day by day
The dust of time that stains her,
The griefs that leave her grey,
The flesh that still enchains her,
Whose grace hath passed away!

Oh, happier he who gains not
The Love some seem to gain;
The joy that custom stains not
Shall still with him remain
The loveliness that wanes not,
The Love that nev'er can wane.

In dreams she grows not older,
The lands of Dream among;
Though all the world wax colder,
Though all the songs be sung;
In dreams doth he behold her,
Still fair and kind and young.

ISN'T IT?

Love is mightier than pain—
There's no sweeter thought than this is;
Anguish plucks Love's robe in vain;
Love is mightier than pain!
Are the scars of sorrow plain?
Love can heal them with his kisses.
Love is mightier than pain—
There's no sweeter thought than this is!

FLAG PRESENTED TO PHOTOGRAPHERS

MR. FRED ROY RETURNS FROM BUFFALO CONVENTION.

Mr. Fred L. Roy, of The Roy Studio, has retured from Buffalo, where he was in attendance at the 19th Annual Convention of the Photographers' Association of America.

Mr. Roy states that there were between 1,100 and 1,200 professional photographers in attendance at this meeting, representatives being there from all over the United States, Canada, and the British Isles.

The picture exhibit was the finest ever brought together in America.

Demonstrations of all the new photographic equipment and appliances were conducted daily by the leading workers of the profession.

A particularly pleasing incident was the presentation of a Union Jack by the president of the British Photographers' Association to the Photographers' Association of America. In return the Stars and Stripes is to be presented to the British Association.

Mr. Roy says that on all sides he heard nothing but praise and admiration for Canada and the Canadians.

BYNG FAMILY IS TRAGIC.

Lord Byng seems to be the most fortunate scion of a house that has quite a number of tragedies to its record, and it may be hoped that his proverbial good luck will not desert him during his term of office as Governor-General of the Dominion. One of the members of the Byng family was smothered in the Black Hole of Calcutta. Another one, Admiral John Byng, was court-martialed, most unjustly, for purely technical, but not real cowardice, and executed, in spite of the strong recommendation of his judges for clemency, on board his own flagship at Portsmouth. The fourth Earl's eldest son, who bore the title of Viscount Enfield, mysteriously disappeared from the liner in which he was voyaging home with his father from the Cape of Good Hope, the presumption being that he either threw himself overboard or else in some way fell into the sea, which was perfectly calm at the time.

MILK DRINKS THAT CANNOT BE EQUALLED

Law-abiding citizens of Ontario, having at last entered the promised land of bone-dry Prohibition, wherein it is unlawful to even import for private consumption alcoholic beverages, must now turn to mixed drinks which neither carry a kick nor inebriate. And for the benefit of those who scorn the idea of calling for a "soda pop" of this, that, or the other flavour, attention is here drawn to the fact that some of the most delicious mixed drinks in the world are made with milk as the principal ingredient. People who dislike, or have not acquired the taste for, milk, will find in the following recipes drinks highly palatable and invigorating. These beverages can scarcely be equalled, and the "thirst parlour" which carried them on its list of refreshments would soon build up a thriving trade:

A HOODLUM'S ACT.

Threw Apple at Woman in Passing Car and Broke Her Glasses

While a man and his wife were motoring on the river road past Crawford's grove a week ago Sunday someone of a group of youths on the bridge outside the grove threw a lighted cigarette into the car burning the woman's dress before she discovered it. Yesterday apparently the same gang were in the same place when same car passed them. This time someone threw a green apple striking the woman on the face damaging her glasses. Fortunately she was not seriously injured, according to the report to the police, although she might have ben blinded. The police are investigating and a serious charge will be laid if the hoodlum culprit is apprehended.

THE MARKET CLOCK.

The painters working on the Market Clock were neatly finishing up their job to-day. The scroll work and trimmings of Big Ben's face are a pale brown, that looked very pleasing with the cream background. Favorable comments were being heard from citizens on the clock's fine appearance this morning, and these ratepayers seemed eminently satisfied with the freshening-up process.

FRENCHWOMAN LOVES HOME AND GUARDS ITS PRIVACY

Doors Seldom Open to Any But Members of Family —Hospitality as Understood by English Is Unknown.

LONDON. — (By Mail). — The homekeeping French woman is much more common than the average foreigner is apt to think after a casual visit to Paris, writes M. F. Clarke in The London Daily Mail. The impression of out-of-door life is given by the much-frequented cafes and the strollers on the boulevards. One imagines that all Paris leaves its homes and spends its life sitting on the pavement before little tables drinking coffee, lemonade or beer. In reality very few women go regularly to the cafe, and they are not of the better classes when they do.

The French woman loves her home. She is jealous of her privacy and opens her doors but rarely to any but her own family. The stranger within her gates is always a stranger, however courteously treated. It is almost as difficult to get into a French home as it is for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle. One may dine there, lunch there, have tea there frequently; but that does not mean that one has seen the French woman at home.

The only people who know French women in their own homes, apart from their immediate relatives or old family friends, are their servants and their governesses. There is no hospitality as English women know it. The home life literally means the home life.

Families foregather in large numbers and they do not like to mix friends and family in the daily life. The strong conservative element in French women inclines them to exclusiveness, no matter what their social rank. The claim of relationship is strong and they recognize it even when they grumble about it.

When a woman marries she accepts and is accepted by her husband's family. The husband does the same thing with her family. The power of family ties is evident in so many ways that any one who knows France even a little must realize how difficult it is for the foreigner to get beyond a bowing acquaintance unless he or she can claim some sort of relationship. Even a distant cousin is treated with respect and addressed by the title, and there is something awe inspiring in an aunt or an uncle.

Such customs necessarily make the home a very intimate place, and as a further barrier to intimacy from the passing visitor the very arrangement of the house is such as to emphasize the dividing line between.

The salon is never a common sitting-room. There is no tidy litter of work and books in it. It is a place where one receives, makes music, drinks coffee after luncheon, and talks politely.

The bed-room is the place where one sews, reads, writes one's letters, and does one's housekeeping books, and upon which is stamped the individuality of the inhabitant. The rich woman may have her boudoir, but the middle-class woman is generally limited for space in a Paris flat.

This want of space accounts for there being no nursery or schoolroom in a French home. A bedroom takes the place of both. Only in the house of a quite wealthy woman is there a place for either.

When there is such a thing, however, it is well done, and there is now a fashion of having the schoolroom decorated specially for the purpose of study by a recognized artist.

ORGAN-GRINDER OF LONDON REPLACED BY TALKING MACHINE.

West-End Section, However, Often Visited by Musicians of Talent — Troupe of Ballet Dancers in Street.

LONDON.—(By Mail).—A new variety of street musician has arisen to replace the organ-grinder, remarks The London Daily News. No fewer than six gramophones were perched on the curbstones of Oxford street one day recently, ranging in repertory from "Lead, Kindly Light," to harmonize with the mournful countenance of the decrepit vender in charge of it, to "Keep 'Em Jazzin' Around," played to the accompaniment of an orchestra of cymbals, kettledrum and squeaker, all fixed on one big drum, and played by one man.

With a plentiful supply of records, purchased third and twenty-third hand, quite a nice little living can be earned. One of the "conductors" told me that he had received 25s 3d up to then—and that was only 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

There is, however, another side of the picture. "We in the West End," writes a correspondent, "are becoming accustomed to visits from an increasing number of street performers—'buskers,' I think, was the term by which we used to know them in my early days. The surprising thing about these performers is not so much their numbers as their quality. This morning, for example, there appeared in our square a woman with a rich soprano voice, accompanied by a violinist. Both were well dressed and performed with skill and understanding.

"A few days ago we had the pleasure of the presence of a man whose fiddle revealed the touch of a brilliant executant, and only a little while earlier a troupe of clever ballet dancers in flaming costume reminiscent of a revue entertained us. What is the reason for it all? Are the music halls and the concert platforms so crowded that ability must perforce find expression in the streets?"

FUND FOR BLIND CLOSED SATURDAY

THE KINDNESS OF THE CITIZENS IS MUCH APPRECIATED—TOTAL OF FUND $612.50.

The sum asked for in the Examiner on Saturday to bring the fund up to $600.00 was more than forth coming. The total received and remitted to the Canadian Institute for the blind is $612.50.

One of the most pleasing contributions was that of five little girls in quarters and dimes and pennies.

The people of Peterborough have done well by the fund when it is considered no personal canvass has been made.

Mr. John Brownlee one of the blind of the city, a young man, who has received training at the Institute helped very considerably with his exhibition and demonstration of work for a week in Turnbull's Store window.

A formal acknowledgement will be made by Toronto in these columns in the course of a few days.

The sums received Saturday afternoon and evening were:—

JOE MURPHY WINS GRAND PRIX RACE

LEMANS, France, July 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Joe Murphy, United States, won the Grand Prix automobile race, run here to-day. Ralph De Pama, United States, was second. Goux, of France, was third.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Peterborough, July 21, 1921.

Mr. Robert Hicks.

Dear Sir,—At the regular meeting of the Peterborough District Trades and Labor Council last week, it was unanimously decided to censure you for a statement you made to them by saying that the Escher, Wyss and Co., Zurich, Switzerland, of which the Public Utilities Commission purchased the pumps for the filtration plant had English capital invested in it. Now this stock company, duly registered in the commercial dictionary, has been in existence since 1890. However, the business itself was founded in 1805, and for a century was one of the most important and best known concerns of Swiss origin.

It is said that when competition between similar enterprises became very lively, this concern formed with some powerful German plants, such as the Siemens-Schuckert Werke, La Norddentsche Armaturenfabrik (Norddeutscher Lloyd) at Bremen, and Krupps at Essen, a syndicate for working of a turbine, Zoelly system. This syndicate ended in 1906, when Escher, Wyss and Co. joined Felten-Guilleaume Lahmeyer Works at Frankfort, which last had taken up almost all of the capital stock of Escher, Wyss & Co., which amounted at the time to 5,000,000 francs. The capital stock later was increased to 10,000,000 francs, but this was reduced in 1912 to its present figure of 6,500,000 francs, divided into 13,000 shares of 500 francs each. There are also debentures to the amount of 6,000,000 francs at 4½ per cent. The board of directors, according to the last official documents received, is composed of the following: Dr. Ing. H. C. H. Zoelly, president; J. Muller-Staub, vice-president; D. Gauchat, C. Von Der Herberg, Th. Kach, A. Morell-Vischer, H. Mon. Schullhessbodmer, Colonel E. Usteri-Pestalozai, Dr. L. Wigmann, C. Zander, and M. Zullig. The management is reported in the hands of Dr. J. Weishaupl, L. Mousson, K. Pfepperle, A. Huguenin, and Dr. H. Korrodi and B. Beck, assistant managers.

Now the ratepayers and delegates of this body protest most bitterly against the public's money being sent out of the country to help pay Germany's war debt, when so many people, both skilled and unskilled labor, are out of work. It certainly does not look very patriotic on the part of the Public Utilities Commission. If you wish to defend yourself in this matter you can be given a hearing by calling up Mr. Fred. Mesley, President of the Trades and Labor Council.

Signed for the Trades Council,
Thos. Darrah,
Rec. Sec. Trades and Labor Council.

PENNSYLVANIA BANK ROBBED.

CHOICE RECIPES

By A. L. WYMAN, M. C. A.

The Coffee Cocktail is the latest in refined restaurants and is served before the meal at one of the largest hotels. It is a small cup of coffee served before the guest orders his meal and no charge is made for the service. The originator claims that it gives an appetizing zest to the meal and puts the guest in a pleasant frame of mind.

New York during the hot months is not a pleasant place to live and the ones that have to stay here consume enormous amounts of drinks called California orange drinks, and if they were all made from California oranges I am sure that you would have to plant more orchards and build more boats to supply the demand.

All cafes feature cold dishes, salads, cold cuts, iced fruits and all kinds of frozen desserts.

Novelty Salad.

An odd salad was served with a dish of cold meats at one of the big hotel cafes and was made by boiling four large celery roots in salted water until tender. When thoroughly chilled, slice in thin slices, season with pepper, salt and a little fine sugar. Add half a cup of stewed raisins and six tablespoons of vinegar. Mix well and serve on chilled lettuce leaves. Garnish with ripe olives.

Another salad was made by covering chilled Romaine lettuce leaves with slices of hard boiled eggs and sliced boiled beets and sprinkled with finely chopped onion, mix with a lemon French dressing.

I notice in my note book two recipes for serving oysters and will give them before I lose them.

Panned Oysters.

Cook four cups of oysters in their liquid and when done remove the oysters and reduce the liquid to one-third. Add to the reduced liquid the juice of a lemon, four tablespoons of butter, two teaspoons of chopped parsley, and pepper and salt. Return the oysters to the liquid and heat thoroughly. Serve in shirred egg dishes.

Fried Oysters Gratin.

For fried oysters as served by one of the largest hotel cafes, wash and dry the oysters gently; dip them in beaten egg diluted with two tablespoons of milk and then roll them in freshly grated cheese. Let stand for a few minutes and dip again in the egg mixture and then roll them in fine soft bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat, drain and serve with celery crisps and bread sticks.

French crullers and Venetian cakes are a specialty of a small tea room near Broadway and are well worth going out of one's way for.

French Crullers.

Bring to a boil half a cup of water and four tablespoons of butter. Stir in half a cup of sifted flour and stir constantly until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan. Place the mixture in a bowl and beat in two eggs, one at a time, beating until the mixture is thick and smooth. Drop by spoonfuls into hot fat and cook until well puffed and golden brown. Drain and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Venetian Cakes.

Beat to a cream half a cup of butter and half a cup of powdered sugar until light. Beat in three egg yolks, one teaspoon of vanilla extract, half a cup of seedless raisins and one and a half cups of sifted flour. Work to a smooth soft dough and break off small pieces and shape into small balls about an inch in diameter and roll in powdered sugar. Place a blanched almond or pistachio nut on the top of each ball and bake on a greased baking sheet in a moderate oven fifteen minutes.

Last week I received a letter from a reader asking for a recipe for potato flour muffins like those served at one of the large department store cafes in Chicago. As we are well acquainted with the lady manager of this cafe I wrote and asked for the recipe, which have just received.

Potato Flour Muffins.

Beat the yolks of six eggs until thick and lemon colored, add three-quarters of a teaspoon of salt, and one and a half tablespoons of sugar, beat well and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the six eggs and three-quarters of a cup of potato flour sifted three times, with three-quarters of a teaspoon of baking powder. Then fold in three tablespoons of ice cold water. Bake in hot iron muffin moulds that have been well greased, twenty-five minutes.

As cold drinks are very much in demand, whenever I find a good one I try to find out how to make it so that I can pass it along. One of the best chocolate drinks served here follows.

Chocolate Parfait Amour.

Scald two cups of rich milk in a double boiler and when nearly boiling add three-quarters of a cup of grated chocolate mixed smooth with a little cold milk and five tablespoons of granulated sugar. Boil until thick. Remove from the fire and while warm beat in three well beaten eggs and one teaspoon of vanilla extract. Place on the ice until thoroughly chilled and then stir in two cups of whipped cream and two cups of shaved ice. Serve in tall glasses.

TEAMS SELECTED

A team has been picked which will represented Peterborough in Brantford on Saturday, the 30th inst., in competition for the Plenty Cup. An opportunity will be given the public to-morrow (Tuesday) evening to see this team in action, when they will play against a combination of Caledonian and C. G. E. players at Nicholls Oval, kick off at 6.15.

The selection committee have had a difficult task, and no doubt a few individuals (as is usual) may criticize the committee's choice. However, the proper spirit will be the spirit of co-operation, and it is up to the public, and players not chosen, to refrain from harsh criticism and help foster in the minds of the players of the picked team that feeling of mutual confidence and understanding which is necessary to produce a winning combination.

Caledonian and C. G. E. players kindly report at Oval Tuesday evening for game against Plenty Cup team. Players bring boots and pants.

PREDICTS A GYNOCRACY.

Million More Women From 20 to 40 in France Than Men of Same Age.

Can there be such a social state as a gynocracy? The word is etymologically as sound as democracy, rule by the people, aristocracy rule by the aristoi, plutocracy, rule by the wealthy. This "reign of women" has been predicted in France as a direct result of the post-war preponderence of women over men. The writer whose article in the Paris Temps is here translated sees a feminized social state as a possible result of the loss of sexual equilibrium:

A wise and mysterious biological law assures an almost constant equilibrium of sexes in the universe. The lists of male and female citizens on the registry of the French civil State before the war had a reassuring symmetry. Female births were in the ratio of fifty to fifty-one per hundred, and the male forty-nine or fifty, according to the year. Nature was evidently preparing her self-defense by facilitating in advance the establishment of the matrimonial equation and the foundation of families. It was a good example of pre-established harmony—Liebnitz could have found no better.

We have, naturally, overturned this perfect balance. It is estimated that for five million men of twenty to forty years old, there are now six million women of the same ages. The two columns of the inventory have become distressingly unequal, and the existence of this million of bereft human beings, of young women deprived of families, suggests a number of serious problems. M. Girault, professor political economy at the University of Poitiers, after studying the social and moral effects of this lack of equilibrium, tells us that European society will for a long period be feminized. Our civilization, that is, will be not effeminate but "gynocratic."

Superiority in numbers will not of itself assure predominance to the feminine mentality. By some sort of potential attraction of its influence, the female will be called upon to exercise moral sovereignty. In most cases, she will be led to marry a man that she would not otherwise of her free will have chosen. Formerly, she might thus have chosen a master, a chief to whom she would have dedicated her fervent obedience. Today she must accept a companion "on the road" whom she will quickly dominate, because he is too old or of a class inferior to her own, a stranger to the country, or less well armed for the battle, or, alas, because the war has made him an invalid who asks only an affectionate protection. In any case, the moral and social direction of the family will pass into the hands of the wife.

It should be observed that most of these women will have the sensation of being sacrificed in marrying inferiors, and that these marriages will leave a rankling bitterness. Society which is of feminine mentality will, perhaps, be neither very indulgent nor very lovable. Essentially feminine, they will not shine with intellectual courage nor firm logic nor initiative. Besides, the existence of the million women who will have to renounce marriage and who will perhaps console themselves for this disgrace by entering politics as they formerly entered religion, makes us fear that the society of feminine mentality may become above all a society of old maids.

But the feminists calm our fears by recalling that the refinement of customs in the sixteenth century came only through the sovereignty of women. Maupassant affirmed that "it is women who have given its spirit to French literature," and Comte rejoiced in the coming of the affectionate sex, which would be, according to him, the aesthetic sex" by its nature and by its consolidated and developed situation in the positivistic regime." And Durkheim foresaw the same evolution, thanks to the development of feminine labor. Under these conditions, who would have the bad taste to fear the social triumph of the victorious Eve?

SANTO DOMINGO IS A CITY RICH IN HISTORY

Santo Domingo is rich in historic interest. It is the oldest of all the permanent settlements on American soil. Here Columbus founded various colonies, and Santo Domingo City became his favorite of all the New World. It was here that he spent some of the happiest times of his life, and here that he was reduced to prison by his political enemies, and from here he was sent in chains and disgrace to Spain. The old tower where he was imprisoned still remains, and his bones lie in the great cathedral of Santo Domingo City.

In this oldest city of the New World one still sees the remains of the first church built in America. Its foundations were laid in 1502. Here is the house where Cortez kept the court records before he had ever heard of Mexico. From here Ponce de Leon set out in his search for the Fountain of Youth. Here lived Pizzaro before he went to Panama, and sailed down the west coast to conquer the Inca empire. Everywhere one turns he encounters old landmarks where the famous Conquistadores had their first experiences in the New World.

Padre le las Casas entered the priesthood here, and in his indignation because of the abuse of the Indians by the Spaniards began to import slaves from Africa to make lighter the work of the Indian laborers. Here was founded the first university of the New World when in 1538 a royal charter was granted for the establishment of the University of St. Thomas.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 25 (Canadian Press). — Stocks were firm at the opening of to-day's session, last Saturday's rally making further progress.

American Locomotive, Baldwin Locomotive, Crucible, and United States Steels, Utah Copper, General Asphalt, Sumatra Tobacco, United States Rubber, and Kelly-Springfield Tire were active at gains running from large fractions to almost two points. Royal Dutch lost one point, and Mexican Petroleum eased slightly with Cuba Cane Sugar.

Rails showed no material changes, but shippings were steady.

Foreign exchange developed a more reactionary trend, the rate falling to $3.57.

Steels and Equipments made in regular extensions to early gains but fell back on the increased heaviness of Oils and the sluggish movement of Rails. Some of last week's bullish activity was noted in the specialties of the food division, particularly Sugars, Corn Products, Coco Cola and United Fruit. Miscellaneous specialties were inclined to re-act, especially Chemicals and Textiles, but Motor Accessories, including Rubber Tire issues, held firm. Call money was abundantly supplied at 5½ per cent. A slight rally occurred in the British exchange.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 25.—(Canadian Press).—Bears had the advantage in the wheat market to-day owing chiefly to the outlook that primary receipts this week might be the largest on record. On the other hand, bulls put emphasis on Secretary Hoover's prediction of the European demand for United States surplus grain. Opening quotations, which ranged from ½ to 1½ cents lower, with September 120 3-4 to 122 and December 124 to 124 3-4, were followed by a moderate rally but another sag.

Rains tended to ease the corn market. After opening 1-8 to 3-8 cents lower, including September at 60 7-8 to 61, the market rallied a little and then declined lower than before.

Oats had a downward slant with other cereals, starting a shade to ½c off, September 40 to 40 1-8, and later undergoing a general set-back.

Provisions receded with hogs and grain.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, July 25.—(Canadian Press).—Brazilian opened fairly strong at 22 1-8 in the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, moved up to 22½, and then weakened at 22, at which the market closed. Riordon held steady at 6¼. Among the mines, Nipissing, McIntyre and Hollinger all made slight gains. Bank stocks were neglected. There was considerable activity in war bonds, the largest sale being a fourteen thousand lot of War Loan 31's unchanged at 93.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, July 25.— (Canadian Press.)— The feature of this morning's session on the stock exchange was the registration by Riordon of a new low at six. The weakness of this issue was traced to rumors circulated that a re-financing scheme being attempted to pull the company out of its difficulties had failed. Brazilian was also weaker, going down three-quarters of a point from its opening quotation to 21 3-4. Laurentide closed a 1-4 stronger at 67 3-4, but National Breweries lost 1-2 of its early advance, closing at 52. Spanish River remained unchanged at 49.

CHANDLER BROS. FAILS.

NEW YORK, July 25.—(Canadian Press.)—The failure of the firm of Chandler Bros. and Company was announced from the rostrum of the stock exchange to-day.

OSHAWA BEAT LINDSAY AFTER A THIRTEEN INNINGS FIGHT

GAME ON SATURDAY WENT FOUR EXTRA FRAMES—OSHAWA ARE NOW WINNERS OF THE FIRST HALF OF LEAGUE RACE.

Forcing Oshawa to travel another thirteen innings before yielding the decision to the motor town outfit, Lindsay finally weakened in the fourth extra frame of Saturday's game at Lindsay, and Oshawa won by 9 runs to 5, winning the first section of the Central Ontario League race.

It was the most sensational series in the history of the Central League. On Wednesday the two teams played thirteen innings to a 6-6 tie, and on Saturday thirteen more frames had to be played, a total of twenty-six innings before the winner could be nominated.

As on Wednesday, Oshawa used both Patten and Dainty on the rubber, starting the right hander and sending Dainty in in the tenth to finish the game, while Oulette went the whole route for Lindsay. All three twirlers did great work.

The utter failure of Lindsay to do anything to drive home a run in the extra innings cost them the game. They had two soft chances, having the bases filled twice, the first with one out and on the second occasion with no one out and yet could not score. A bunt, a slow tap to short or second, a long fly to the outfield, to say nothing of a hit would have meant victory, but on the first chance a double play, Dainty to Belding to Jacobi extinguished their hopes, and in the twelfth two easy flies and a strike-out were the best they could produce. It was heart breaking for the Lindsay fans.

Finally, after holding the enemy for twenty-five innings, Oulette weakened in the thirteenth and Oshawa came through with four runs and walked off the field champions of the first half of the League race.

Many Peterborough fans saw the game.

WORLD OF MIRTH SHOWS ARRIVED IN CITY TO-DAY

SHOW WILL OPEN TO-NIGHT WITH SOME OF FINEST ATTRACTIONS ON ROAD.

Scheluded as special extra trains Nos. 204 and 206 running in two sections the Great Woorld of Mirth Shows, which will exhibit here under the auspices of the Peterboro Exhibition Board at Exhibition Park, arrived Sunday afternoon at four o'clock over the Grand Trunk and all this morning have been busy ercarried by this company.

ecting the numerous tents which will house the many different attractions

There is always something mysterious about the unlaoding of a big circus train that acts as a magnet to the youngster as well as the old r folks, that delightful uncertainty contained in the big red and yellow wagons as they roll down the runaway never fails to draw its clientele, and the arrival of the World of Mirth shows no exception.

This is conceded to be one of the biggest orginizations of its kind on the road requiring twenty five double length circus cars, including three pullman and two private cars to transport and employs over 300 people. In fact it might be termed an exposition on wheels.

Managers Wright and Linderman sole owners, being showman of vast experience realize that nowadays it is necessary to cater to the amusement loving public with attractions that are not only new, but novel and unique as well, and as a consequence they are presenting a line of amusement equalled by no other exhibition of its kind headed by four super features including the famous Lt Rose Electric Fountain a spectacular fire and water production. The worlds greatest female wild animal subjugator Madame Aurora and her horse back riding lion, O. K. Rogers Autodrome or wall of death and Ted Met's World of Wonders and novelties featuring Prnce Radium the living half man these in conjuction with many other shows of out ordinary merit go to make up an afternoon or evenings enjoyment to the most critical.

Four big rides are caried whip, seaplanes, ferris wheel and carrousel which are constantly in operation, while for the loers of good music Prof. S. Colasonti and his Liberty Concert band will render daily concerts to which the public is cordially invited.

The World of Mirth shows played Kingston last week under the auspices of the Army and Vetrans and the press of that city were loudd in their praise of the exceptional merit of the attractions and especially ocmmented upon the exlmplary conduct of the shows employees, Wright and Linderman believe that good clean amusement legatimately presented will do no one harm, nor will they tolerate anything that savors of rawdyism or disrespect ta there patrons and this is the system you will see in force when you visit the Exhibition grounds this week. All of the attractions will be in readiness for the opening tonight.

WHITEWASH FOR ST. PETER'S NINE

LAKEVIEWS WIN CITY JUVENILE LEAGUE FIXTURE AT RIVERSIDE BY 5 TO 0.

In the City Juvenile League game, which comprised the first half of the double header at Riverside Park Saturday, Lakeviews administered a coat of whitewash to the St. Peter's team, the final score being 5 to 0.

The winners got the jump on the school team by bunching five hits for three runs in the first innings, but after that McPherson pitched nice ball for St. Peter's and the game was a good exhibition. The St. Peter team could do little with the offerings of Shaughnessy and Moore who twirled for the Lakeviews, "Shag" holding them hitless in the three innings he worked, while Moore allowed only three singles.

In the first innings for Lakeviews, Rogers led off with a single and Shaughnessy beat out a bunt. Lebarr's single to left scored the pair. Moore also hit safely. Lebarr was out at the plate on Halliday's throw home. Rody hit to McPherson, who nailed Moore at the plate. Whitlow tripled between left and centre, scoring Rody. Pethick made the third out.

In the second, with two out, Rogers singled and stole second, to score on Shaughnessy's single to centre.

The last run of the game was hung up in the sixth on Koster's miss of Whitlow's fly, an infield out and Halliday's error.

OSHAWA WIN FIRST SECTION

WINNING OUT THEIR HOME GAMES GAVE MOTOR TOWN BOYS BIG EDGE IN FIRST HALF.

Thanks to their victory in Lindsay Saturday, the Oshawa team are winners of the first half of the Central Ontario League race, with a percentage of .800, while the Belleville team are second with .700 and Peterborough and Lindsay tied for third with .600.

The motor town team have played consistent ball all through the first half of the race, and have earned their laurels. The good pitching of Dainty, their crack southpaw, in the early stages of the race, and the return to form of Patten, their veteran right hander in the last few weeks, have been the biggest fatcors in the capture of the first half honours. Different from the other first division clubs, the Oshawa team won all their home games, while Belleville and Peterborough lost two games at home and Lindsay made an even worse showing by dropping three on their own diamond. On the other hand Lindsay and Belleville made a better record than Oshawa on the road, each winning four out of the five, while Peterborough equalled Oshawa's travelling mark by grabbing three out of five on foreign fields.

The League standing for the first half is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Oshawa	8	2	.800
Belleville	7	3	.700
Peterborough	6	4	.600
Lindsay	6	4	.600
Cobourg	2	8	.200
Port Hope	1	9	.100

Oshawa's Record.

At Oshawa—Oshawa 7, Peterborough 0. At Peterborough—Oshawa 1, Peterborough 3.

SAID GOOD-BYE TO BALL PLAYER

PETERBORO CLUB BANQUET ARM-AND PINNETTE ON EVE OF HIS DEPARTURE FROM CITY.

The members of the Peterborough Central Ontario League Ball Club gathered at the Class Cafe on Saturday evening to say farewell to Outfielder Armand Pinnette, who left on the midnight C.P.R. train last night for Nashua, New Hampshire. A very enjoyable banquet was held, attended not by the players and officers of the Peterborough Ball Club alone, but by a number of Mr. Pinnette's fellow employees in the local plant of the Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper Company and by Mayor McIntyre and Ald. Nagle Phelan and by Mr. Frank Convery, representing the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association. Another guest of honour was Mr. M. Cookson, also of the Nashua Company, who left this morning with Mr. Pinnette. Both young men, since coming to Peterborough last year have made many friends here, who will regret their departure and wish them every success.

After an excellent supper had been done justice to, Mr. Ward Patterson, on behalf of the ball club, expressed the regret of players and officials at the loss of Mr. Pinnette, and after congratulating him upon his promotion, presented the Petes' centre fielder with a very handsome monogrammed cigarette case, and a silver cigarette holder as souvenirs of his association with the Peterborough baseball club. The presentation was accompanied by the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and after Mr. Pinnette had expressed his thanks the event was brought to a close with "Auld Lang Syne."

LACROSSE PRACTICE

Both lacrosse teams will practice at the Oval at 6.30 to-night. A full attendance is requested.

CENTRAL LEAGUE TEAM WIN FROM CITY LEAGUE CHAMPS

SOLOMON OUTFIT BEAT C.G.E. 7 TO 1 IN EXHIBITION FIXTURE—CITY LEAGUERS HOLD PETES IN CHECK EXCEPT FOR ONE BAD INNINGS.

The Peterborough Central League team and the C.G.E. club, champions of the City League, both got some excellent practice in their exhibition game at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon, which the Petes won by 7 to 1. Outside of one innings, in which the Solomon crew got five runs, the City League title holders held them well in check, and on the form shown should make a good record for themselves in the O.B.A.A. intermediate series. Neither Chris. McCarney, who pitched the first five innings, or Eddie Foley, who finished the game, were hit hard by the Central Leaguers.

Kirn pitched the first seven innings for the Petes, holding the Electricians to three scattered singles and no runs. Max Swanston pitched the eighth and the City League crew managed to combine three hits and a walk for a run. Bob Ross was on the rubber in the ninth and got by without being scored upon. Several of the Petes' regulars were absent and Pete Travers had to be called upon to play third base. He handled his only two chances without a skip.

The Central Leaguers got one in the first. Lorne Rose led off with a single. Ray Rose bunted for a sacrifice and was safe when Corrin dropped McCarney's throw. Swanston singled through short, scoring Lornie Rose. Ross fanned. Ray Rose was out at the plate on Jackson's bunt to McCarney, and Pinnette missed three.

There was no more scoring until the fifth. Withone gone, Kirn reached second on Foley's high throw, Lornie Rose walked and Ray Rose was hit, filling the bases. A wild pitch scored Kirn and Swanston singled to left, sending the Rose brothers across. Swanston stole second and registered on Ross's double to left centre. Jackson was hit. Pinnette struck out, and when Helson dropped the ball and needlessly threw to first, Ross broke for third and completed the circuit on Corrin's high throw to Foley. Holyman missed three, retiring the side.

With Swanston on the rubber, C. G.E. scored their only run in the eighth. Dugan singled to start with, in their half. Solomon was hit and Kirn. Primeau walked and McCarney singled through short, filling the bases. Rutherford fanned, but with 3 and 2 on him, Barrie singled to left, socring Dugan. Primeau also tried to score on the blow, but Lornie Rose threw him out at the plate.

The Petes scored a final marker in their half. Eolomon was hit and managed to reach second on Pinnette's long single to left. The Petes' pilot went to third on Foley's wide throw to second and came home on Holyman's single through short. The next three went out in order.

PETES OPEN WITH COBOURG

JOURNEY TO LAKE SHORE TOWN FOR GAME ON WEDNESDAY—PLAY IN OSHAWA SATURDAY.

The second half of the Central Ontario League race will get under way at once, or rather is already under way, for Port Hope and Cobourg, inaugurated the second section with a game at Port Sope Saturday, the Ontarios winning from Manager Tyson's outfit by 6 runs to 5.

For the Petes, the second half opens on Wednesday, when the Solomon crew journey to Cobourg. On Saturday they invade Oshawa, which means two games away from home as a starter in the second heat. Next week they have two games at home, Port Hope visiting here on Wednesday, while Freddy Goyer and Company from Belleville will be the visitors a week from Saturday.

"WHAT'S A WIFE WORTH?" A PERFECT PHOTOPLAY

Christy Cabanne's New Robertson-Cole Super-Special Film Has Strong Cast and Story

William Christy Cabanne's new Robertson-Cole super-special production "What's a Wife Worth?" will be the leading attraction at the Capitol Theatre beginning to-night for a run of 3 days. Mr. Cabanne, who was the author and director of "The Stealers", has given the screen one of the most wholesome comedy dramas in his latest picture. Critics agree that the photoplay, judged from all angles, is as near perfect ion as possible.

The story tells of the marriage of a wealthy man's son and a village belle. Of the early disruption of the union by malicious acquaintances. How, following the divorce, a son is born and how the mother sees in him the image of his father and is devoted to him. The wealthy man's son marries again and a baby is born to his second wife, but dies. The substitution, by the family physician, of the son by his first wife for the dead baby, finally brings about a reconciliation between mother and father.

Mr. Cabanne selected an excellent cast to tell his story. Included are: Ruth Renick, Casson Ferguson, Alex. B. Francis Cora Drew, Howard Gaye and Virginia Caldwell.

Besides this splendid special feature production —Two good comedies, Topics of the Day, 12th Episode of the Avenging Arrow and other good reels.

FAN! FAN!

A BRITISH DISCOVERY IS RE-DISCOVERED

Great interest was caused recently in London by a demonstration given before the Institution of Electrical Engineers of a strange phenonomen alleged to be absolutely new to science. When an electric current is passed through a half-conducting material, such as lithographic stone in close contact with a metal, the metal and the stone stick together with a force which is out of proportion to the strength of the current passing from one to the other. The demonstrators, who came from Scandinavia, showed how this phenonomen could be applied in making a loud-speaking telephone. By its help they made a violin reproduce music played in a distant room and "speak" words spoken into a distant telephone transmitter. This demonstration was, however, followed very soon by proof that the phenonomen had been discovered many years before in Great Britain and its application to telephony had actually been described before learned societies and in a popular encyclopedia. The discovery in Scandinavia was therefore a re-discovery, and the incident suggests that the past records of British research and invention may contain more hidden items capable of practical development in the light of the fuller knowledge now available.

MINERAL OIL
FOR CHRONIC CONSTIPATION

By buying this produce from us, you can get the Highest in Quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE.

There are many thin Oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other Oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is Guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be constantly increased as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for Children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative and the second or after-effect, which is Constipating.

LEAGUE NOTES FROM OSHAWA

Telegram: Drop a tear for Peterborough and make it a salt tear if you like. The Petes have made a real noise in the first series, and may come back in the second. Any game they play is worth watching.

It would have been a double laugh all around the circuit if Oshawa had fallen before Cobourg at the same time Port Hope trimmed Peterborough, but Oshawa had better luck than the Petes, also played better ball.

The fact that Oshawa will play about two games per week from now until September will mean that a great deal will depend on the pitchers keeping in condition. Patton will come in handy, in supporting Dainty. Even two pitchers are hardly enough for the work cut out for them, and both will have to be at their best.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The practice football game, scheduled to be played at Nicholls Oval at 6.15 p.m. Saturday, was reported to-day to have been what is commonly described as a "fizzle." Out of a long list of players, only about half turned up, and the President and Vice-President teams, when they went on the field one hour and 15 minutes behind time, were sadly lacking in numbers. Thirty minutes were played one way and 30 another with no intermission.

James Abrahams, who was elected secretary-treasurer of the Association at the annual meeting Friday night, has resigned through inability to give the required time, and his resignation will be taken up at the first meeting of the new executive in the G.W.V.A. hall at 8 p.m. to-night.

IMPROVEMENTS AT MARKET SCALES

NEW CONCRETE PLATFORM PUT IN—IRON RAILWAY.

With the replacing of the former wooden platform around the market clerk's office with a modern concrete one, and concrete entrance ways made to the scales, a decided improvement to the appearance and completeness of the office has been effected.

The concreting is complete and the Works Department, who made the improvements, were to-day putting up the iron railing off the old Hunter street bridge flanking the west entrance to the scales, after placing it along the south side of the east entrance way. The rail is, of course, placed to keep the cattle and other animals being weighed, within bounds. Citizens noticing the rail this morning easily recognized its former position and fond recollections of the creaky, shaky, faithful old rust structure that spanned the Otonabee, could not have failed arising in many minds. Strongly imbedded in cement, for many years the rail will serve a useful purpose and memorial-like, will remind old friends of the things that were.

BRITTANY GIRLS WHO ONCE WAITED TO BE MARRIED NOW WORK.

Dire Post-War Poverty in Once Prosperous Section Force Women of Middle Class to Earl Own Living

LONDON.—(By Mail).—Before the war the Brittany folks were as famed as the Scots for their hospitable manners, writes Viviane Le Grand in The London Daily Express. Whenever you entered a tumbledown, hovel-like farm where an old dame sat often at the spinning wheel and welcomed you in Celtic language, you were sure to be invited to partake of the lard aux choux (pork, cabbage and potatoes) simmering in the large caldron hanging over a wood fire. And if the farm wife happened to be making crepes de ble noir (buckwheat pancakes) you must eat some, smothered with butter and smeared with yolk of egg.

In villages and small towns innkeepers gave you a delicious meal of soup, fish, or omelet meat, vegetables, salad, cheese, and butter for un franc cinquante, or two francs. Brittany was then the land of plenty.

Today it is a land of high prices and dire poverty. In that agricultural country the staple foods of the people are incredibly dear. Milk is 7d. a pint (pre-war rate of exchange) as against 1½d. in 1914. Butter sold at 8 francs 75 a pound is thus five or six times dearer than it was. Pork, which I used to buy at 5d. a pound, is worth fourteen times as much; mutton and veal are equally dear; and beef, the cheapest of all meats, is yet 5 francs a pound.

Eggs are worth 7s. and 8s. a dozen as against 1s. in pre-war times. Vegetables are as expensive as jewels. A cabbage is worth, according to size, from 4d. to 10d.; a carrot sells at 1d. So does an apple, in that country dotted all over with apple trees! Cider, the drink of workman and pensant, is now 7d. a pint instead of 1d. Groceries are to be had at prohibitive prices. Paraffin oil is 1s. 5d. a pint—a great hardship in a country where electricity is almost unknown and gas light a luxury.

Of course, salaries have been raised, but not enough to cope with the cost of living. The plight of petits bourgeois, retired officers and clerks is truly pitiful. The servants they once hired for 10 francs a month now exact £3, the charwoman wants and gets 1 shilling an hour, the gardener's wages have jumped from 3 to 8 and 10 francs a day, plus his drink of cider.

So middle-class mothers pinch and starve in order to make both ends meet, and the girls, instead of waiting for the husband at home, must work, take up painting, acting, dressmaking, even become shop girls.

But in the big towns of Brittany most shops have reduced their staffs and many have closed completely, for there is nobody to buy. Besides, a shop girl who earns £6 to £8 a month must feed and clothe herself. Therefore, any well-educated girl tries to get into military or railway offices, where she can earn from £12 to £20 a month.

A self-feeding attachment supplies the oil in whatver quantity desired to a spreader that has been invented for oiling floors.

W. Warner, of Ripley, returning from work near Ockam, saw a big dog badger, which attacked him as he approached, but he finally killed it with an axe. It weighed 24 lbs.

YOUNG MAN LED A DOUBLE LIFE

He was an earnest-looking young man with serious brown eyes and a refined manner. He taught the junior class in the Sunday School, and everyone spoke well of him. And no one ever suspected for a moment that he led a double life. He would come in late at night and tell his mother how very tired he was, and she would smooth back his hair and make him some cocoa and sympathize with him, never realizing, poor woman, how he acted when away from home. For the truth was, that he spent most of his time with painted ladies, wonderful creatures with Parisian coiffeurs and gowns that people raved over, and complexions like peaches and cream. And the way he treated them. It was awful! He would push them around, and twist them into all sorts of shapes, turn their heads with great violence and even stick pins into them. They were absolutely at his mercy. If he didn't like their gowns, they had to dress all over again to suit his slightest whim. One night he swore at Minnie, a lovely blonde with a sweet smile and the cutest habit of holding her head on one side. And another time, he broke Anna's arm with handling her so roughly. But his crowning cruelty was when he would get them all sitting down and looking so sweet and pretty in lovely costumes, he would go away and leave them, and there they would sit in the window all night long and all day until he, the window-dresser, took a notion to change them all round again.

GERMAN RAILROADS TO PUT TYPEWRITER SECTIONS ON TRAINS

Special Compartments Will Be for Use of Business Men Who Wish to Write Letters While Travelling.

LONDON, — (By Mail). — The German railway administration, reports the Berlin correspondent of The London Morning Post, is considering the introduction of special compartments for passengers wishing to use the time spent in traveling to discharge their business correspondence.

It is assumed that such passengers will use typewriters, and the Colonge railway authorities have addressed an inquiry to the local Chamber of Commerce asking whether the commercial world would appreciate facilities of this nature. The Chamber of Commerce replied that business men generally would welcome them, as so many of them have continually to make long journeys which compel them to leave undone work which they would otherwise have accomplished in their offices.

As at present planned, typewriting carriages would be first-class half-compartments, consisting on one side of the usual cushioned seat accommodating three passengers, while on the other would be the bare wall provided with three folding tables corresponding to the passengers' seats. The traveler who wanted to write would pull the table opposite to him down, install his machine upon it and start upon his work.

The proposal to introduce compartments of this kind was made by the Commercial Travelers' Association before the war, but was rejected by the railway administration of the day.

X-RAYS FOR FITTING BOOTS.

Judging by the number of peonle who suffer from corns, bunions, flat feet and kindred troubles, the art of fitting boots is largely in need of scientific assistance. This assistance is now being given in Great Britain by means of X-rays. A simple self-contained X-ray apparatus has been produced by which the customer and the shop assistant can see, on a forescent screen, the bones of the foot. The picture thus given shows exactly the real structure of the foot, from which an intelligent shop man can gauge the type of shoe which will give the customer the support and comfort he, or she, desires. The electric power required is so small and the exposure of such brief duration that there is absolutely no fear of any burning or ill-effects from the use of this appliance.

Reforestation experiments by the British experts in China have led to the establishment of a forestry course in a Chinese university.

Mounted on the handle of a new typewriter cleaning brush is an oil can from which oil can be forced directly into the bristles.

GREAT FAMINE LEAVES DEATH TRAIL BEHIND

RUSSIA BEING DEPOPULATED BY THOUSANDS DAILY AND VOLGA DISTRICT IS ONE HUGE CEMETERY.

CARAVANS WANDER IN VAIN FOR FOOD

(By Edward Hullinger
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, July 26.—Faming is depopulating Russia by Thousands daily according to Paul Miliakoff, leader of the Russian Constitutionalist Democrats here.

Miliukoff told the United Press today that private information showed one portion of Russia, larger than France and Germany combined, was being converted into a huge cemetery. In that one section lying along the Volga, 25,000,000 persons are starving. He declared only quick action by relief commissions can prevent the totals from reaching staggering figures.

Miliukoff pictured thousands, weakened by hunger, lying in filthy huts awaiting death. Most of the animals have been killed and used for food, he asserted. Fields have been combed for the last grain. A merciless sun is beating down, taking away even the hope of fair crops this fall. The vast Russian steppes, once swarming with Asiatic invaders, are again covered with moving hordes, he said. These are Russians immigrating in the hope of finding food. Waggons and carts, some covered by dingy canopies of sacking to protect the starving ones within, creak along hot and dusty roads in Caravans. The plodding figures which lead the bony horses being led on by the mirage of food.

Conflicting reports travel like lightning through the weary bands Word comes that food is being distributed in India and long lines swing off toward the southeast. Another rumor comes that great supplies of food now are available in Moscow and the drivers turn their rickety animals to the north and west. Hundreds daily cross the frontiers into countries scarcely able to care for their own people. Death is an hourly occurrence in these caravans of misery. Those who fall are buried by the roadside. Even the mothers, worn by fatigue and hunger, look on with apathy as their children are laid in shallow graves Miliukoff's reports, said that only one fifth of the usual wheat acreage was planted this year and most of that was ruined by the great drought.

NEW CONCERN IS ORGANIZED

WILL MANUFACTURE CANS IN TORONTO—MANAGING DIRECTOR IS OLD PETERBORO BOY.

Among the new industrial issues now being offered to the public is one of the Canadian Sanitary Can Co., Ltd., which presents some very attractive features. The company is capitalized at $400,000, divided into $175,000 8 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the par value of $10.00 and $225,000 of common stock at $10.00 par value. The company is to manufacture sanitary food, paint, oil, cocoa and other various styles of tin or metal cans and containers. Excellent factory accommodation has been secured, which will insure at the outset a daily capacity of 75,000 cans, made on the latest of automatic machinery.

The company points out that the supply of cans has not always been adequate in Canada and that there have been seasons when the shortage has caused a big loss in perishable fruits. For the paint and oil trade of Canada they intend to place on the market a non-leakable friction top can which is a big improvement over the old type of paint and oil cans.

Large orders at long terms are at present on hand for a large part of the company's output. The Board of Directors is made up of well-known Canadian business men as follows:

President—James Dixon, Hamilton, Ont.

Vice-President—Henry S. Gooderham, Toronto, Ont.

Managing Director—Geo. H. Babcock, Toronto, Ont.

Secretary-Treasurer — Brian N. Barrett, Toronto, Ont.

W. H. Millman, Toronto; W. M. Trumley Toronto; J. Gault Kingsmill, Toronto.

EXTREMISTS CALL STRIKE-PROTEST AGAINST RIOTING

ROME, July 26.— (Canadian Press.)—General strike was called by the Extremist parties here last night in protest against the recent disorders in Grosseto and Monterotondo, in which several Communists and Fascisti, or Extreme Nationalists, were killed. The Government has placed machine guns and armored cars in strategical points throughout the city to cope with any disorders.

RAIL WORKERS ASK BOARD OF CONCILIATION

STATIONARY TRADES EMPLOYED BY NATIONAL LINES TAKE FIRST STEP TO OPPOSE WAGE REDUCTION.

FOLLOWS CONFERENCE OF MEN IN OTTAWA

OTTAWA, July 26.— (Canadian Press.)— Formal application for a Board of Conciliation to mediate in the matter of wage reduction proposals affecting the Canadian National Railways was received by the Department of Labor this morning.

The application was the result of a conference in Ottawa yesterday and to-day of representatives of the employes in stationary trades on the National lines, including clerks, freight handlers, station, round house and other employes, also parlor, sleeping and dining car employes. This constituted the first step taken by the employes of any branch of the railway service in Canada to prevent the railroads putting into effect the wage reduction based on the reductions suggested by the United States Railroad Labor Board for the railways of that country.

ALBERTA FARMERS TO SELECT NEW PREMIER

HAVE GREAT CONFIDENCE IN WOOD, THEIR PRESIDENT

CALGARY, July 26.—(Canadian Press).—Every member-elect of the United Farmers will be in attendance at the conference of U. F. A. members when the meeting is called to order to-day. U. F. A. members will make no statements except to express confidence in H. W. Wood, their president, should be decide to accept the Premiership. Not a single member, when interviewed, would name his preference if Mr. Wood declines.

THE HOUSING COMPANY EXPLAINS

The local representative of the Dominion Housing Co., Limited, which has just opened a branch on George street, wishes to impress upon those citizens seeking their co-operation in securing homes for themselves, that this company is in no way connected with the Government. It is purely a business concern, composed of men of enterprising house building experience. This company take on bona fide propositions for building houses on the co-operative plan, either for cash, or on the basis of monthly rentals. Already much interest is being taken in the company's propositions, and enquiries are coming in every day looking to results of a practical business nature being forthcoming.

BANKS OF BUFFALO ARE WELL PROTECTED.

Armed Guards Are on Duty in Pill-Box.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 26.—Due to the number of increasing bank robberies throughout the United States, Buffalo banking institutions have installed many safety devices to insure against robbery.

Sharpshooters armed with automatic rifles, barricaded in an armor plate sage above the corridor of the Federal Reserve Bank, are on guard to frustrate possible attacks by armed bandits.

The "pill-box" contains seven loop holes and looks like a world war fortification. Any point in the bank is a target for the man in the cage.

Additional night guards have been placed in banks and they are now armed with sawed-off shot guns.

Besides visible means of warding off attacks, the banks have installed secret appliances that would bring police instantly to the bank where an attack was made, and other appliances that would trap the robbers.

There are more motorcycles in use in London and all England than automobiles or other motor vehicles.

WAR DEBTS MAY BE CONSIDERED AT WASHINGTON

REPORTED BRITAIN WILL BRING QUESTION TO DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE, ARMED WITH DEBT-FUNDING PROPOSALS.

SUGGEST CONFERENCE IN PACIFIC COAST CENTRE

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

LONDON, July 26.—The Pacific Coast of America may be the scene of a momentous meeting of Powers to discuss Pacific questions. Dominion Premiers, according to information here, intend to recommend that the gathering proposed by President Harding, be held in a coast city.

Another suggestion understood to be incoporated in a note which will be submitted to Washington, is that the meeting be moved up from November to late September or early in October.

The note will answer Secretary Hughes' message in which he disapproved the suggestion that a preliminary conference on the Pacific problem be held in London.

It was reported to-day that the British will attempt to bring the question of war debts into the disarmament conference. Premier Lloyd George will take a corps of financial experts with him to Washington. The experts will be armed with information and proposals for the handling of Britain's debt to the United States.

Expect Jap Acceptance.

TOKIO, July 26.—(Canadian Press).—Official circles are disposed to forecast definite action by the Japanese Cabinet today in acceptance of President Harding's suggestion for a far eastern conference. Apparently talks between Ambassador Shidshara and Secretary Hughes in Washington have gone far towards clarifying the situation.

HEAVY RAINFALLS IN GRAIN AREAS

WEEK-END RAINS, AND COOLER WEATHER CONTINUE TO-DAY.

WINNIPEG, July 26.—(Canadian Press.) — Rain is falling over the greater part of Manitoba and Saskatchewan. In Alberta the weather is clear and cooler, but that province had some splendid showers during the week end.

Heavy rains during the week end and continuing to-day are reported from most districts of agricultural Manitoba and in Saskatchewan is falling from south of Moose Jaw to north of Saskatoon and west to the vicinity of the Alberta border.

HARDING SUGGESTS PLAN FOR RELIEF OF U.S. RAILWAYS

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(Canadian Press).—President Harding, in a special message to Congress today, asked it to extend the authority of the War Finance Corporation to purchase securities, probably up to $500,000,000, now in the hands of the railroad administration, so that the proceeds may be used for settlements with the railways

This, the President told Congress, would open the way to an early adjustment and relief of railroad problems.

ADJOURNMENT IN BASEBALL TRIAL

CHICAGO, July 26.—(Canadian Press.)—When Walter J. 2-5-3 New Ford Cars Sold in Peterboro Since January Last.

Peterborough stands well up in the front rank with those cities and towns in Canada conspicuous for selling the largest number of Ford Cars. According to a recent official return compiled by the Ford Motor Company, it is learned that the actual number of new Ford cars sold by the Duffus Motor Sales of this city since January is two hundred and fifty-three. This constitutes not only an increase over any other similar period, but is a sales record to be proud of, and an evidence of the untiring efforts of this live local Ford service station.

It has generally been conceded that the heads of the Ford service dealers are largely "hand-picked" men. The phenomenal sales record of the Duffus Motor Sales has undoubtedly come as the result of efficient salesmanship, for no service can be more successful or efficient than the men who render it.

It is well known that the Ford dealer in every instance has been selected by the Ford organisation only after careful investigation and consideration of his business ability and general standing in his community and as a practical automobile man.

It is unquestionable that the success of the Duffus Motor Sales is the product of the accumulated experience of years of energetic service to Ford owners.

Several reasons have been cited for this piling up of Ford car orders in Peterborough, apart from the personal work of the Duffus Motor Sales organisation:

1—The Ford Motor Co. was the last to raise its prices during the war.

2—The Ford Motor Co. was the first to reduce prices after the war.

3—The Ford is now selling at less than pre-war prices.

4—Were Ford cars sold in no greater number than other cars, it would be necessary to add many dollars to the price. So large is the Ford output that manufacturing costs are reduced to a minimum.

5—The Ford car is a Canadian product; with few exceptions every part of the car you buy is made in Canada.

6—No car has a better starting and lighting system than that now available to purchasers of Ford cars. A positive starter as reliable as the motor itself—a powerful lighting system, uniform under all engine speeds.

7—Genuine Ford parts are supplied by the Duffus Motor Sales to all reputable repair stations and garages—thus enabling Ford owners to get quick service at standard prices at any time and anywhere you travel.

8—The Ford car is so simple, so compact, so reliable, that almost anyone—man, woman, or child—can drive it without fear of trouble or breakdown.

9—The Ford car costs less per mile to run. It requires but few repairs. It is always ready for service. From all efficiency standpoints the Ford is well named the "Universal" car.

AWARD IS MADE IN WATERPOWER CONTROVERSY

JUDGE HUYCKE ALLOWS APPEAL OF BRECKENRIDGE OF ASPHODEL AND VACATES AWARD OF WILKINS.

LITIGATION HAS BEEN IN PROGRESS SOME TIME

A decision in favour of the appellants, J. J. Breckenridge and Matthew Brackenridge of Asphodel is given by Judge Huycke in the following judgment delivered to-day as follows:—

Mr. F. D. Kerr for Appellant Breckenridges; Mr. B. D. Hall for Morris.

Appeal from an award of F. W. Wilkins P. L. S. made under the Ditches and Watercourses Act. The respondent Township of Asphodel refused to uphold the award, or to appear in Court in its support; therefore Mr. Morris, on behalf of himself and any others wishing to uphold the award, was allowed by special order to appear in upholding and the maintaining award, Mr. Hall appearing for him. Mr. Morris is the owner of a house and lot near by, having obtained the same by purchase in 1919. Some objections were taken to the preliminary proceedings in the appeal which objections I over-rule.

The water in question is a mill pond at Westwood, the mills thereon being owned by the Breckenridges. The said mills and pond have been in existence and operation for a very long time, owned and operated by the Breckenridge family and their predecessors in title. Some years ago there was very extensive, and I doubt not, expensive litigation regarding this pond and the questions in issue herein. In this litigation Mr. Wilkins was an expert witness against the Breckenridge interest. For this reason objection seems to have been taken, both in and out of the Township Council, to his appointment as engineer in this matter. The Council at first declined to appoint him for this reason but without looking very far for another, he was finally duly appointed. Strong objection was made in argument to his appointment, to his conduct during the proceedings, and to his award, on the ground of his being partial and baised, and his award therefore invalid. I hesitate to go so far as to make such a finding against him, but will venture the opinion that under existing circumstances it was most unwise for the Council to appoint him, and imprudent in Mr. Wilkins to accept such appointment. No matter what he did or how, it was almost certain to invite and evoke severe criticism.

Question of Water Level

The award is based upon an alleged agrement as to the level of water to be maintained. Such agreement, if ever made, was not reduced to writing, and therefore void under Section 9 of te Act. Apart from this I find such an agreement was never made or assented to by the Breckenridge appellants. There was some discussion as to it but the three parties, chief participators in the discussion, Mr. J. J. Breckenridge, Clerk of the Township, Mr. Matthew Breckenridge representing the mill owners, appellants, and Mr. Cardwell have all more or less defective hearing, which was amply shown to me during the hearing of the appeal and I do not think they undertood each other fully in the discussion. I do not find there was bad faith on the part of any of them regarding it. At all events whatever may have been said or done, in the end Mr. Breckenridge told them all he would have nothing more to do with it, and would agree to nothing without consulting his solicitor, and getting proper legal advice. The whole question of mutual agreement as the basis of the award therefore falls to the ground.

Award Was Wrong.

Notwithstanding all this Mr. Wilkins then proceeded to make his award with this particular point and level as his basis. Apart from the foregoing, this was wrong because, as I find, it was in injury to the prescriptive rights of the mill owners, and also in opposition to and contravention of a judgment of the High Court of Ontario as pronounced by the judgment of Hodgins, J. A. The award must therefore be set aside and the appellants succeed in their appeal.

The work so far as already done, is I think ineffective and comparatively useless as a drainage scheme but Mr. Wilkins says such work was not done with his knowledge or under his directions also that it is not in harmony with his plan and award.

Suggestion Unheeded.

I do not think I could or should make a substitutional award or alter or amend the present one. I suggested at the hearing a plan by way of settlement, which I thought and still think would be fairly satisfactory. The parties interested could not or would not agree to this, or in-

MAURETANIA FIRE IS EXTINGUISHED

(Special and C. P. Despatches.)

SOUTHAMPTON, July 26.—Fire, which broke out yesterday on the steamer Mauretania while she was lying at her dock here, was extinguished at four o'clock this morning.

It was stated here this morning that it will be necessary to keep the liner in port for several months as a result of the damage by fire.

GREENFIELD TO BE PREMIER

WOOD REFUSES TO ACCEPT LEADERSHIP OF ALBERTA GOVERNMENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT OF U.F.A. LIKELY MAN.

CALGARY, Alta., July 26.—(Canadian Press).—It is practically certain that N. Greenfield will be the new Premier of Alberta. H. W. Wood, president of the U. F. A., at a secret session of U. F. A. members-elect this morning, refused to accept the Premiership.

Mr. Greenfield is vice-president of the United Farmers of Alberta, and has been associated closely with the political work of that organization. He was not a candidate at the recent election, but the death of P. Baker, Farmer member-elect for Potoka, has left a vacancy where undoubtedly he could secure election. Mr. Greenfield is a farmer at Westlock.

M'FADDEN AND HOTRUM HANG?

ALTHOUGH OFFICIALS REFUSE TO MAKE STATEMENT, IMPRESSION IS THAT LAW WILL TAKE ITS COURSE.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, July 26. — The Cabinet Council held a brief session this morning to consider the recommendation of the Minister of Justice in the case of McFadden and Hotrum, condemned Toronto murderers, on whose behalf applications have been made for clemency.

While it is believed that the fate of the condemned men has finally been decided, Sir George Foster, acting Prime Minister, declared at the conclusion of the council that the Government was not yet prepared to give out a statement on the matter.

The Minister of Justice was closeted with the clemency officers of his department at the conclusion of the meeting.

While no official intimation of the final decision is yet forthcoming, the impression here is that the law will be allowed to take its course.

BASS WEIGHED OVER THREE POUNDS

To Al. Whicklund, of St. Catharines, formerly of Peterborough, must be given the credit for drawing from Rice Lake the largest black bass caught near Hiawatha this year. While casting with an artificial minnow from a punt manipulated by his 10-year-old son Carl at 7 o'clock last night, Mr. Whicklund, after 15 minutes' fishing, caught a small-mouthed black bass weighing 3 lbs. 10 oz., measuring 18½ inches long and 14 inches in girth. The fish put up a splendid struggle and maintained the reputation of the black bass for fighting qualities, it was said.

Mr. Whicklund, with his family, has been visiting at Robert Wolstenholme's cottage, Hattrick's Point, and it was immediately off the point the fish was secured. Chief Paudash of Hiawatha weighed and measured the big bass, and it was stated today by Mrs. G. F. Smith, 535 Bolivar Street, that the fish will be entered in the Toronto Star black bass competition.

LIGHTNING HIT BARNS; DAMAGE ABOUT $10,000

JOHN ARMSTRONG, OF OTONABEE, LOSES BUILDINGS, CROPS AND CALVES IN EARLY MORNING FIRE.

$6,000 OF THE LOSS COVERED BY INSURANCE

In a fire caused by lightning at 5.30 a.m. to-day, William Barrie, of Otonabee, living on the old John Armstrong farm, through which the Indian River meanders, three miles south-west of the station, lost his fine barns and outbuildings, most of this year's crops, and 10 calves, a loss in all estimated at $10,000, of which $6,000 is covered by insurance. It was stated that there were only two flashes of lightning, and one of these stray bolts hit the barn with a resounding crash that caused Mr. Barrie, who had just arisen, to rush outside, only to see his splendid barns spring into flame. Neighbors poured to the scene from all around, but could do nothing to save the barns.

This was Mr. Barrie's first crop. Last spring he moved on the farm, and had just completed getting in his wheat, barley, alsace and hay. The barn, which is said to have been almost the best in that district, was 200 feet long, and was crammed with crops. There were no cattle or horses in the barn, but 10 calves were lost. The first was one of the most disastrous farm fires in Otonabee in some years, and the loss is made the greater when this was his first crop. At a late hour this morning the ruins of the buildings were still smouldering, and the smell of burnt straw hung heavy over the entire countryside. The house, which is some distance from the barns, was not threatened, as there was comparatively no wind.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday's highest temperature was 86 degrees in the shade, and today is still warmer. Thunderstorms have prevailed in all sections around the city but have missed us. Those who took in the trip to Lindsay by water yesterday can bear witness to the severity of two thunderstorms en route, the one near Bobcaygeon being of the No. 1 order. Severe thunderstorms with hail also followed down the chain of lakes on Sunday afternoon. From the appearance of the country the section northwest of us has had generous rainfalls all the season.—W. TRADE SLUMP HITS SWEDEN.

Skilled and Unskilled Labor Feels Effect of German Competition.

German competition is again becoming such an important factor in Scandinavia that skilled and unskilled workmen all over Sweden are beginning to suffer from the slump that has hit industry there, according to John Nordin, manager of the Swedish Turbine Works at Finspong, Sweden, one of the largest plants in the country, where this is an important industry. He says that the shipping industry has been the hardest hit and that the golden harvest, which for the last five years has been plentiful, is over.

Mr. Nordin says that while Swedish workmen received such large compensation little of it went into the savings banks, and that, in contrast to the American workers, there was little change in the standards of living. In view of this, he says, it will not be so difficult for the people to adjust themselves to the new condition, but, of course, there will be a trying period of readjustment.

"The German competition is really pressing us hard now," said Mr. Nordin. 'Our exchange rate is high, which has its reaction, but the main thing is the difference in the standards of living, and therefore of wage costs. hTe living standards of Germany since the cessation of the war are low, and workmen are receiving almost starvation wages. The world is sending into Germany plenty of raw material but little food. Consequently the German workers are toiling as no people in the world are working in order to earn money enough to provide themselves with food. I should say that the Germans can undersell almost any one else in the machinery industry by almost 50 per cent.

"We have found it necessary in our own plants to cut wages considerably and our workers have received the decrease in fine spirit. We explained frankly the situation and they have accepted it. We feel that for the past years our workers have been more than compensated for their labor, and that the rise in wages in Sweden, at any rate, quite outstripped the rise in the cost of living. The social distinction between skilled and unskilled labor in this country is very interesting to me. In talking with workmen in the turbine shops in this country, many of them either of Swedish birth or extraction, I found the distinction clearly made. This distinction does not exist in Sweden.

"Sweden makes the machnery for ships and then sends it to Norway, where the ships are built. While there was much shipbuilding in Sweden during the war, and while there are still many shipyards in that country, Norway is the great shipbuilding nation and Sweden builds the machinery for them."

Visited Camp..

About twenty parents and friends of St. John's Parish Scouts visited the camp on visitors' day (Monday) and found things extremely pleasant. A happy, hearty lot of boys greeted their friends cheerily and displayed the delights of camp life. The scout master, Rev. Frank Vipond, made the visitors feel at home and it was with regret that good-byes were said. Owing to the almost unheard of lateness of the morning train, the time was shorter than was anticipated. The list of sports will be published later.

Dance at Juniper.

A very large crowd was present at the dance on Saturday evening at Juniper, from all over the lake in canoes, skiffs, and motor boats of all descriptions they came. Every resort and most cottages contributed its quota. A new floor has been put in the pavilion which is a great improvement.

The scene was most attractive as numbers of pretty girls in dainty summer gowns of various colors, and young men in outing attire tripped the light fantastic to the strains of the newest dance music. The latter is enjoyed always by more than the dancers, as many people float in their boats on the lake and enjoy it. On a clear night the sounds will carry a mile or even two miles.

NO APPOINTMENT YET TO MEET WORKMEN ON THE CHIPPEWA CANAL

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, July 26.—No appointment has been made by Sir Adam Beck to receive any deputation of the labor organizations representing the men working on the Chippawa Canal, regarding a reduction of wages, The Examiner was told this morning.

"We have not heard from the men yet," Sir Adam said at noon. "We haven't done anything yet about the wages. We simply told the men that the Hydro would have to conform with the standard rates of wages prevailing in the Niagara Peninsula at the present time, but we promised not to do anything before we should confer with their representatives."

ULSTER WILL NEGOTIATE WITH SINN FEIN IF DUBLIN EXTENDS TO IT A "PROPER INVITATION"

HUGH POLLOCK, ULSTER FINANCE MINISTER, DECLARES NORTH WILL NEVER CONSENT TO SUBORDINATION TO SOUTH.

WANTS CO-OPERATION WITH INDEPENDENCE

(BY CHAS. McCANN.)

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BELFAST, July 26. — Ulster will negotiate with the Sinn Fein if a "proper invitation" comes from Dublin, Hugh Pollock, Ulster's Finance Minister, declared to-day in an exclusive interview with the United Press.

Polock, virtual head of the Ulster Government during the absence of Premier Craig on vacation, declared that the northern section of Ireland will under no circumstances be subordinated to the South.

"We have our own Government; we intend to keep it," declared he. "We consider that the London peace conferences do not affect us. They are too nebulous thus far."

"If Sinn Fein shows signs of returning sanity and friendliness toward us, then there will be time to talk of a united Ireland."

Pollock appeared to be correct in his statement that the north is not worrying over the negotiations. The city is quiely pusuing its business, and paying no attention to politics.

Pollock declared that a united Ireland will result only from equal rights for the two sections. That Ulster will confer with the Sinn Fein leaders, if the proper sort of invitation is extended, that Ulster would rather have a customs barrier between it and the south than between it and England.

"We don't care whether Ireland becomes a province, dominion or a republic," Pollock declared. "In any event we will do our utmost to insure peaceful cooepration which is necessary for Ireland's welfare.

"But the settlement must not impair Ulster's connection with the Empire in favor of a group of men who have shown great destructive but not constructive ability.

"Ulster cannot counteance the South's campaign of red Indian warfare. We realize the two sections must cooperate if Ireland ever progresses, but we will not permit ourselves to be subordinated to a Dublin government founded on such warfare.

"Sinn Fein has the machinery to operate a government; machinery also will be available to form a central government for the north and south.

"The south talks of proportional representation in a central government which means that Ulster would be brought under southern rule. With Ulster given equal representation I don't doubt a scheme can be evolved to let the two sections live as they must in peace and goodwill.

"Premier Craig's aceptance of an invitation to a conference in Dublin or elsewhere in Ireland, depends entirely on the manner in which the invitation is presented. We now have home rule with a link to London, which suits us. We even fear being granted too much power.

"Fiscal autonomy seems to be an important point in the present negotiations between Sinn Fein and England. That means an inevitable customs barrier between Ireland and England.

ORGAN OF DAIL EIREANN SAYS IRELAND WILL ACCEPT NOTHING WHICH IS A NEGATION OF HER RIGHTS.

DUBLIN, July 26.—Canadian Press. The Irish Bulletin, the official organ of the Daily Eireann, dealing yesterday, with the comments in the British Press on the Irish negotiations, expresses resentment at hints that refusal to accept reasonable terms will result in a renewal of terror, and declares that Ireland has its own views and will accept anything which is a negation of the rights of self determination. On the contrary, she will return to the wilderness rather than accept anything compromising national honor and independence.

FIVE MEMORIAL WINDOWS UNVEILED

At Christ Church, Bobcaygeon, there was held a beautiful and most impressive service, when His Lordship, Bishop Reeve, dedicated five memorial windows, one to the memory of an old and respected resident, Mr. Thomas Devitt, aged 94 years; his wife, Margaret, and two daughters, erected by the family. Mr. Devitt lived for many years near Bobcaygeon, coming originally with his two brothers from Ireland. The other four are in memory of Mrs. W. T. C. Boyd and her three sons—Thornton Bridgeman, B.Sc., McGill, P.P.C.L.I., wounded at Sanctuary Wood, June 3, 1916, and died two days later, aged 26 years; Eric Mostom, Burnside Scholar, Trinity College, Toronto, drowned in Pigeon Lake, October 13, 1917, aged 21 years; Lieut. Herbert Cust, 4th King's Own Yorkshire L. I., died February 17, 1918, in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, from an operation and effects of poison gas on Flanders front, aged 20 years. The service was taken by the Rector, Rev. T. R. Haughton, assisted by the lay reader, K. L. Wilson. The Rev. T. A. Nind and Rev. W. J. Creighton, two former Rectors of the parish, also took part, the Rev. W. J. Creighton giving the memorial address, he having for many years known all the members of both families intimately. Rev. T. A. Nind unveiled the windows as Bishop Reeve dedicated them in turn, the clergy, wardens and ex-wardens following in procession through the church. The windows are beautifully chosen and lovely in design. The church, which was filled to its utmost capacity with people from far and near, looked very nice, having lately been renovated and freshly decorated, this made possible owing to an endowment being given by Mr. W. T. C. Boyd to Christ Church.—Canadian Churchman.

MONSTER BRITISH CASTING.

One of the largest, if not quite the largest, steel ingot mould ever made was recently cast in Great Britain. It is over 15 feet long and its diameter is over 9 feet. This mould, which will be used for the casting of steel, was so huge that it was almost too large to be conveyed on the railway, and great ingenuity was exercised in arranging it for transport. It was carried on a huge steel girder, which rested on two 8-wheeled trucks, between which the mould hung. The weight of this record casting was 87½ tons.

RAILWAY WAGES.

Employees of the Canadian National and Grand Trunk Railways in arguing for the submission of the wage reductions to arbitration, urge as one of their principal reasons that the proposals for a cut in wages were based upon the findings of the United States' Railway Labour Board and that the conditions here are not the same, so that the question should not be settled until after a survey of Canadian conditions. This argument loses a good deal of any strength it might have had by reason of the fact that the increases paid Canadian railway men were based upon the wage awards made upon the American lines, the contention at that time being that the conditions on both sides of the border being similar, it was not fair to ask Canadian employees to accept less than railway men in the United States. Now the American scale has been cut down, the employeees of Canadian railways no longer are anxious to accept the United States as an example. The chief interest of the general public in the matter is confined to the hope that a strike may be averted and that speedily the conditions on the railways will be restored to a basis more nearly normal than at present.

NO BROADENING OUT.

Premier Drury's ideas about the broadening out of the agrarian movement so as to include other citizens in sympathy with the aims and ideals of the United Farmers appear to be meeting with a cool reception from U.F.O. members as a whole who seem more inclined to applaud Secretary J. J. Morrison's campaign based upon the development of class consciousness. The tone of the speeches delivered at many of the U.F.O. gatherings is against the inclusion into the farmers' political movement of persons who are not tillers of the soil, no matter how sympathetic they may be to the cause of the agrarian party. At the North Perth U.F.O. picnic on Saturday one of the speakers urged that the nominations for the coming elections take place farmers should be given the preference over professional men, manufacturers and any other aspirants not connected with the farming industry. "If farmers want to prevent themselves from going down as serfs and slaves of the big interests it is absolutely imperative that they unite and vote together as one body," he told the audience. There is little hope for the Premier's broadening out policy in the face of such appeals as these, based purely on class selfishness, even though the majority of the people not connected with the U.F.O. will agree that Hon. Mr. Drury's logic is sound and that eventually his judgment will be vindicated.

THE TRAFFIC REGULATIONS.

The amended traffic by-law, passed recently by the City Council, and which comes into effect on September 1st, seems to cover the ground thoroughly, and if its provisions are effectively carried out the measure should go a long way towards establishing safer conditions upon the streets of Peterborough. The police are given absolute control of the vehicular and pedestrian traffic, and the responsibility for the enforcement of the various sections of the by-law rests squarely upon the police department, although it is hoped that the general public will co-operate with the officials in making the regulations effective. The rapid development of motor traffic has made closer control necessary and the new rules, which should be studied closely by every motorist, have been drawn up with a view to minimizing the risk of accidents and to make conditions better for all who use the streets. Incidentally it will be noticed that certain sections of the by-law deal with pedestrians who are specifically instructed to pass to the right and not race or run upon the streets. The instructions, judging by the confusion on the downtown streets on Saturday, would seem to be highly necessary, for it is obvious that many citizens pay little attention to the rules of the road in making their way along a crowded sidewalk. The maximum penalty for a breach of any section of the by-lay is a fine of $50.00, so that it will be found cheaper to study the regulations and to carry them out.

MR. RANEY'S ATTITUDE.

The public is growing tired of the Hon. W. E. Raney's attempts to regulate the morals of the Province. The Attorney-General's bitter attacks on certain gentlemen who happen to be interested—along with tens of thousands of others—in the game of racing, are wearying to say the least. As a private individual, Mr. Raney is entitled to his own opinion of racing. It is not as a private citizen, though, but as Attorney-General that his views on the subject are being scattered broadcast.

Racing is an old and honoured institution in the field of sport. It flourishes in many countries and receives the patronage of the classes and the masses. In Great Britain the sport has no more enthusiastic follower than His Majesty King George. And so in this country. Canadians, from the Governor-General down, have not considered racing and betting the disgraceful sports that Mr. Raney would have us believe them to be.

If Mr. Raney does not approve of racing, no one contemplates dragging him to the tracks. No one compels him to read the racing news in the newspapers. But the Attorney-Geineral should remember that others have some right to their opinions and to the selection of their entertainment. If they enjoy racing and desire to place a wager today or to-morrow or any other day, that is their affair, not Mr. Raney's.

Some of these days the Attorney-General may realise that his views are not shared by the people of this Province, and that he is distinctly unpopular.—Border Cities Star.

DIPLOMACY BY CONFERENCE

The summoning of a disarmament conference at Washington marks the beginning of a new era in the conduct of international affairs. Diplomacy has ceased to be an art; it has become a business. This does not imply that all the old weapons of the diplomat are to be discarded as useless. The suave manner, the courteous address, the sympathy that is born of culture and the tact that is the lubricant of human relations, will still be valuable assets in stock-in-trade of the international negotiator. The human factor in diplomacy does not disappear just because the rules of the game are altered. Yet the baser elements of the art which flourished in the courts of Europe for centuries will gradually fall into abeyance. The day has passed when the embassies of the world's great capitals are the centres of international intrigue, with each ambassador moving as warily as a chess player, intent only on the winning of the game.

The skill with which the old diplomats played the game and the romance which novelists and the light historians have woven around the royal courts, the solemn dinners and the salons of the "grand dames" of fashion, have hidden much of the pettiness, the jealousies, the spite, and the intrigues, or transmuted them into virtues. There has been a glamour about the envoys, the secretaries and the King's messengers, the bearers of the despatch boxes that contained the seeds of peace or the germs that blossomed out into the thorny briars of war.

The Great War has changed all this. Diplomacy has evolved into a plain business consultation at which the craft of a Machiavelli would be wastd on gentlemen who demand guarantees for every proposition made. The cards will not be all laid on the conference table, but every card that is uncovered will be subjected to the scrutiny of the entire conference, explanations will be demanded and objections raised. The contest of wits will not be the pitting of one master brain against another, in secret, for the high stakes of a nation's destiny, but it will be for the finding of the line of least resistance to ensure the peace and the advantage of the gteatest number, and the protection of the weak.

* * * *

The Treaty and other conferences that were held previous to the outbreak of the Great War would fill many columns. Some of them, like the Congress of Vienna in 1815, the Congress of Versailles in 1871, and the Congress of Berlin in 1878 are landmarks in the world's history. These were the conference of the gilt oak leaves and the decorations, the cocked hat and the tin sword. The conferences of the future, which are ushered in by Mr. Harding's initiative, are the conferences of the tweed coat and the typewriter.

Diplomacy by conference has come to stay. It will be successful if its procedure is elastic, its meetings informal, while its scope of usefulness will be increased by mutual acquaintance and personal friendship among the principals. It will have to maintain a proper balance between secrecy in deliberation and publicity in results and the more delicate the subjects discussed the more essential will these conditions be. There are insuperable barriers to a return to the old system—the shrinkage of the world by new means of communication and the enormous increase in the volume and complexity of international affairs. Modern developments in international communications, the increased dependence of nations upon each other's products, the growing interest taken by Labour in international politics, the new spirit in the colonies and lands hitherto under protection—all these tend to produce international problems of the greatest difficulty. Nowadays when Governments are really responsible to Parliaments elected on the widest franchise it is no longer advisable to rely too much on intermediaries. —Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Easier money pleases London," reads a newspaper heading. But why only London.

A skipper of a Canadian schooner threw overboard 1,000 cases of liquor in order to save his craft. Sea bathing is bound to increase in popularity if this practice is continued.

The United States humorists must be running short of material. Ring Lardner devotes a column and a half to a discussion of George Ade and Irwin Cobb, talks about himself and his diet at great length in his latest articles.

It is announced that the Federal road grant will last three years more, Peterborough county should get a portion of what is left.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The proposed disarmament conference has aroused considerable discussion as to who was the original proponent of disarming.—Judging by her statues, Venus was.

NO OPEN COLLAR FOR ARMY.

War Department Denies Officers the New Navy Style.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Army officers will not be so lucky as their brothers of the Navy when it comes to the comfort of an open-collar coat. They will have to continue wearing the present style with a stiff, high collar, so the War Department has decided. An official statement issued at the Department reads:

"From time to time since the war there has been considerable discussion in the press and among officials of the army as to the desirability and probability of adopting the roll collar for the uniform coat. The War Department announces that there is no change contemplated in the style of uniform coat, in so far as adopting the roll collar is concerned."

Some time ago a plebiscite was taken in the Navy to determine whether high-collar or open-collar coats should be adopted. The naval officers decided by a large majority that they preferred the open-collar style and now that coat is the official uniform.

CHAPTER 21

Some Mysteries Explained.

"What do you mean?" I asked, gripping Kent by the shoulders, and fairly shaking him. "You haven't the diamond? What have you done with it? Where is it? Tell me!"

Kent looked wildly at me and shook his head hopelessly.

"Oh, Babs, Babs," was all that he could say.

I tried to calm myself, realizing that my agitation was not helping things any. I tried to think.

"Go on—tell me," I said softly.

"I sold it," he said.

"Where?" I demanded.

"In Philadelphia? Is that why you made that sudden trip over there a few weeks ago? Is that why you could not tell me? That is why Mr. Blake did not know—oh, Kent!" I exclaimed, hearbroken.

Suddenly a new fear rushed into my heart.

"Does Tom Barney know anything about this—about the diamond?" I asked breathlessly.

"Tom Barney? No!" he answered.

"You are sure, Kent?" I urged.

"Yes, of course. You don't suppose I'd let anybody know do you?" he said, almost angrily.

But I was not so sure. Some past occurences loomed up significently before me now.

And then suddenly a strange feeling came over me. I did not sanction this terrible thing which my husband had done, but I was overwhelmed by the realization that he needed my protection. Though his sense had been perverted, indirectly he had done this thing for me. He had thought at the time that it would help me. And now if he were to lose me, if I turned against him, it would be cruel—it would ruin him.

Perhaps I felt that unexplainable thrill, that touch of romance which we all quicken to at the sight of danger. Then, too, the mother in me reached out and drew sheltering arms around the one I loved.

But my heart was sore—so very, very sore.

"How much money did you get for it?" I asked, thinking of the $500 Kent had given me to put in the bank.

"Five thousands," he told me. "I put some in the bank. I have the rest of it except for the part I gave you. I was afraid to deposit too much."

"Have you spent any of it, Kent?" I asked, plans formulating quickly in my mind.

"No, not a cent of it," he told me. "I thought I wanted the money, but I've been so miserable I could not use it."

"Of course you would be," I said, "with a thing like that on your conscience. How did you ever do it—didn't you realize?" I cried, unable to understand it all.

"But don't you see,—Babs?" Kent caught me fiercely by the arms "Why should they have so much more than you and me? It's the great injustice of things—I—I—couldn't stand it.

"Listen, Kent," I pleaded, putting my arm around him. "In this world there are certain things that are forbidden, certain laws that are made to protect us. This would be a terrible world to live in if we did not respect each others rights, and honor each other's property."

But Kent did not answer. After a while he turned toward me again.

"I wonder if you are ever going to be able to trust, and love me again, Barbara?" he asked desperately. "Without your love nothing matters!"

"You have nearly broken my heart dear," I told him honestly. "Perhaps I can someday—we must wait and see."

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK AND BEAUTIFUL

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everyobdy uses this preparation now ,because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gary hair disappears, and after another application or two, you hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

KU KLUX KLAN IS RE-ESTABLISHED

TERRORISM OF PERIOD FOLLOWING CIVIL WAR AGAIN HOLDS SWAY IN SOUTH.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 26.—The Ku Klux Klan has been re-established in Texas in full vigor of the terrorism that made it so terribly feared in re-construction days following the Civil War. Events of the last few weeks show that such an organization is in wide-spread operation in this State, although no one outside its pale can say who belongs to it. It moves secretly.

Whipping, usually followed by a coat of tar and feathers, seems to be the officially prescribed punishment for the evildoers who fall under the ban of the Ku Klux Klan. These have been performed by the score since the first appearance of the masked and uniformed men at Dallas on the night of April 1. Not a day passes that not one or more reports of affairs of this kind are made.

For the most part of the victims are men of bad repute, perhaps they are wife beaters, bigamists, gamblers and offenders against the moral law. Advance warnings are sometimes given, but not always. Many more white men have been whipped, tarred and feathered than negroes. No discrimination as to race, color or nationality is shown.

Long List of Tarrings.

At Goose Creek two oil field workers, B. L. Bloomworth and Clan Jones, were seized, given a drumhead trial by a band of masked men, found guilty of being undesirable citizens, tarred and feathered, carried to Houston in an automobile and turned loose.

K. Cummings of Waco was taken by masked men into the country and tarred and feathered.

At Fort Worth Benny Pinto was seized by masked men, taken into the country and tarred and feathered and then brought back to town and dropped into the street.

In the same city a man was given similar treatment because he had mistreated his wife.

At Goos Creek, Will Stewart, a jitney driver, fell into the hands of the Ku Klux Klan and was treated to a coat of tar and feathers.

At Belton a negro named Jim Collins, who had been charged before the Grand Jury with making an insulting remark to a white woman, was whipped and tarred and feathered by masked men, brought back to town and told to walk the streets until midnight and then leave town. He wore a placard on his back, "Whipped by the Ku Klux Klan."

Ed. Engers, who operated an oil filling station at Dallas, was seized by masked men, whipped for alleged cruelty to his wife, handed a five dollar bill by his tormentors and told to leave town.

One Man Defies Clan.

Dr. Paul, a physician of Beaumont, was taken into the country and tarred and feathered. He was told to leave town, but has remained. Yesterday he received a second warning to leave or a worse fate would befall him. Dr. Paul says he will not go.

In Houston a lawyer was tarred and feathered by masked men and ordered to leave town.

W. H. Hooplinggarner, former cashier of a bank at Bay City, was seized by a band of masked men and tarred and feathered.

At Lufkin Wherwood Vinson and Ben. Wiley received similar treatment at the hands of masked and ghostly uniformed men.

J. W. Knight, a plumber of Timpson, was tarred and feathered and ordered to leave town. He did not leave, and five days later he was given another and heavier coat.

R. F. Scott, a former service man who was in the battle of Chateau Thierry, was driving along a country road near his home at Deweyville, when he was overhauled by masked men in automobiles. He was whipped and tarred and feathered, and then taken to Beaumont, where he was dumped out into the street.

Harry Adams was seized by masked mn at Glidden and beaten, but before the tar and feathers were applied the discovery was made that he was the wrong man and he was given his liberty with apologies.

Andrew Johnson, a negro bellboy in a Dallas hotel, was taken into the country by masked men and the letters "K K K" were branded upon his forehead.

Earl H. Peters of Tyler was in Chandler on insurance business when he was assaulted by masked men who claimed to be Knights of the Klan and robbed of $250. He is still unconscious from the wound he received upon the head and his death is expected.

The only woman who has so far received the attention of the Klan was Mrs. Beulah Johnson, who was employed in a hotel at Teneha. Masked men grabbed her as she was sitting on the porch of the hotel, conveyed her in an automobile into the country, where they stripped the upper part of her body of clothing, applied a coat of tar and feathers and then cut off her hair. It was alleged that she is a bigamist.

In Dallas and many of the other cities and towns of the State there have been parades of masked men who claim to belong to the Klu Klux Klan. More than four hundred men were in the parade in Dallas. Many public warnings to law violators and moral lepers have been posted in public places over the State. These warnings are signed by the Ku Klux Klan.

The local and State authorities have as yet done nothing toward exposing the organization. Members of the Legislature have been discussing the subject, but no bill or resolution relating to the Ku Klux Klan has been introduced.

CHANGE OF WATER WAS THE CAUSE OF DIARRHOEA

People moving from place to place are very much subject to diarrhoea on account of the change of water, climate, diet, etc. Prompt treament with in such cases relieves the pain, checks the diarrhoea, and thus does away with the suffering, the weakness and oftentimes collapse associated with an attack of this kind. It does this by checking the too frequent and irritating stools, settling the stomach and bracing up the weakened system, thsu rendering it without a peer for the treatment of all bowel complaints of both old and young.

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

Mrs. Ernest S. Beaton, Grayburn, Sask., writes:—"Coming out here from the East, my two little girls took very sick, the change of water, etc., giving them diarrhoea. They were so pale, and used to vomit everything they would take, so I finally got a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I must say it certainly helped them. I have also used it when my children were teething and it is all you claim for it."

76 years reputation stands behind this remedy. Price, 50c. a bottle. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FALL FASHIONS

In millinery, the very smartest shapes are of felt; small crush styles with trimmings of brilliant yarns or leather flowers or pheasant brim feathers. Lavender, henna, tans, greys, and white predominate. Grey and white with black trimmings is a population combination.

Black and white prevails also in wraps and dresses, with appliques of white kid flowers, with trimming of self-tone or metal braids and embroidery in brocade ecect. Monkey fur and silk fringe are both good as trimmings.

Harem nose veils of Chantilly lace are worn on small hats, with large chiffon veils in brilliant colors, completely covering the tailored turban.

Sleeves are fantastic in cut and form, with collars, the distinguishing features of the newest dresses. One Canton crepe worn at the recent races at Belmont Park, Long Island, carried a flowing sleeve of white which hung from a closely fitted black cape, the entire length of the arm. Another showed an interesting treatment in stripes of silk crepe of which the dress was made, caught at the wrist in a closely fitting band. Other sleeves flared from the shoulder into a bell shape with the lower part heavily braided.

The majority of dress skirts worn were from 8 to 10 inches from the floor, with loose panels hanging at irregular lengths. Collars, as a rule, were low, but an occasional smart model in cloth showed the collar buttoned to the throat.

The death sentence passed upon Edith Mary Roberts, 21, for the murder of her newly-born child at Hinckley, has been commuted to penal servitude for life.

Constipation

It is never necessary to take strong calomel or harsh castor oil to relieve constipation. Try a combination of simple herbs with pepsin, sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. It is a mild, gentle medicine so safe that thousands of mothers give it to tiny babies, and yet effective enough to relieve the most chronic constipation in grownups. The formula is on the package. A sixty-cent bottle lasts an average family many months, and is guaranteed to do as claimed or your money will be refunded. Eight million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin were sold in drug stores last year!

If you would like to test Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin free of charge before buying it in the regular way of your druggist, send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 19 Front St., Bridgeburg, Ont., and a free trial bottle will be sent you promptly, postpaid.

CARE WILL KEEP AUTO'S FINISH FRESH LOOKING

If proper care is given to an automobile from the first, it will retain its first lustre for a long time, and, in fact, never need reach the stage of being "shabby." The last few years have produced a number of preparations designed to make it easy for the car owner to maintain the original appearance of his car. In fact, there is no excuse for shabbiness except ignorance or laziness.

One of the new ideas in preserving the finish of the car is the so-called wax polish, which gives admirable results when it is properly applied. In the use of the wax polish, the first step is to give the body of the car a thorough cleaning. Then the polish is applied with a piece of cheese cloth aud another similar cloth is used to distribute the wax evenly over the surface. The common mistake on the part of the car owner is to assume that the more wax used the better. As a matter of fact, the thinnest possible film of wax is needed. After the wax has been applied, the finish so imparted will last anywhere from four days to a week, and when it begins to get a trifle dull again a new rubbing with clean cheesecloth will bring the lustre back. The wax polish may be used for the body, fenders, hood and such other polished surfaces as may be found. It is also a good idea to thoroughly clean the under sides of the fenders and apply the wax polish, after which mud and dirt will not adhere as rapidly as before.

Spray Polishes.

The other type of body polish, which is, comparatively speaking, a recent development, is that which is sprayed on the surface with a big syringe-like affair. In the use of this sprayed polish also the body must be thoroughly cleaned with water. If the surfaces to be treated are merely dusty, the polish may be sprayed on, and the excess be wiped off with clean cheesecloth. In fact, this is the accepted method of using sprayed polishes, the spraying and then removal of the excess with cheesecloth. No vigorous rubbing is necessary with this type of polish.

And after we get through with, all these polishes we must return to the fundamental fact that plain water is still the prime essential in cleaning the car. Washing the car is not the casual job that too many owners seem to assume. The lustrous finish of the modern motor car is a delicate thing; it can be damaged irreparably by careless or ignorant handling.

Remove Mud Quickly.

To begin with, the car should be washed as soon as possible after it has become muddy or ditry. If mud is allowed to dry on the surface, its removal is likely to leave traces behind. In washing the car plain water should be used at a temperature of about 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Water either too hot or too cold is likely to damage the finish. Never turn a stream of water on the body surface. The water is quite likely to carry grains of sand or grit into the enamel and scratch it. Perhaps the best way to deal with the water is to use a large sponge, which should be sopped in the water and then squeezed out at the top of the panel. The water flows down over the surface in a gentle stream and floats off the mud, which is the proper method.

It is unwise to use soap about the body of the car, except possibly to eradicate grease or oil spots. In that case a cloth soaked in castile soap suds may be used to remove the offending spots. The hood must never be washed while it is hot after a run, as that will discolor the surface.

To clean the radiator, turn a stream of water through it from the rear so that water passes out in front instead of getting into the engine and mechanism.

In drying the body, a chamois skin which is really a split sheepskin, is the best weapon to use. Rub in a straight line, and never in circles. Tar spots or dabs of road oil may be removed by covering them with salt butter, which softens them so that they may be gently wiped off.

Finally, let us call the attention of the average car owner to the condition of the running gear of his car. It is usually encrusted with dirt, inches deep. This should be removed with a stout splinter of wood, and then the parts should be scrubbed with a soft brush, plentifully supplied with soap and water.

FOUND NOT GUILTY OF ASSAULTING AN OFFICER

In the county judge's criminal court before Judge Ward on Friday last Norman McIntosh and Frank Martin were found not guilty of assaulting a police officer while in discharge of his duties. The charge arose out of an alleged assault on March 30 by McIntosh and Martin on ex-Provincial Constable Andrews now serving a five months sentence for B. O. T. A., and who has also been committed for trial on a theft charge. According to the finding of Judge Ward, Andrews had been drinking himself, and was the aggressor on the four occasions that evening when the three came in contact. When Andrews first met the two they were talking together, and Judge Ward stated it was the duty of the town police to look after such affairs. According to witness Andrews had a bottle that evening, and the Judge preferred to take the evidence of four men in preference to Andrews' lone word. Andrews could not have been acting in the execution of his duties no matter how much the two defendants were to blame, so they could not have been guilty of assaulting an officer in the discharge of his duties. During the fracases Andrews lost his police constable's badge and handcuffs, and was badly beaten up.

FOOLISH ENGLAND.

(Westminster Gazette.)

For while the British are disputing about wages, or working half-time and giving themselves over to the delights of cricket, tennis, and golf, the German is working whole time and overtime, and under the immense stimulus of indemnity, preparing an output which may not only pay his debts, but in doing so capture the trade of the world. If we go on for long as we are new going, while the German works grimly eleven hours a day for the recovery of his country, we shall be in serious danger of losing the peace.

"CARRYING ON" IN SPITE OF NO COAL.

It is universally recognized that British engineersdisplay their highest qualities in the most serious emergencies, and this fact was amply proved during the recent prolonged coal stoppage. The electricity supply stations kept going by means of rapidly installed oil burners, and the gas works maintained an uninterrupted supply for a far longer period than was thought possible by means of utilizing their stores of coke in the production of water gas. Another interesting development of a more homely character was the institution in Birmingham of central supplies of hot water. These supplies were instituted for benefit of the poor who needed all their exiguous provision of coal for cooking purposes.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

DO YOU LIKE PETERBOROUGH? IF SO, CAN YOU EXPLAIN WHY?

IT'S A TEN-TO-ONE SHOT THAT YOU WILL SIT SILENT WHILE VISITORS FROM METROPOLITAN CENTRES DRAW UNFAVORABLE COMPARISONS, BECAUSE YOU LACK A DEFINITE ARGUMENT TO PRESENT IN PETERBOROUGH'S FAVOR.

Just how big or how small is the city you live in?

Unless you are a very recent arrival here you have come to take your surroundings pretty much for granted. When you have visitors from a smaller place you rush them about and try to impress them with wth the sophistication of your city, but it is a ten-to-one shot that in the presence of visitors from Montreal, Toronto or the large cities of the United States you keep silent while they discourse upon the attractions of life in a metropolitan centre, and draw unfavorable comparisons between the business district here and the skyscrapers they are accustomed to. You may even grumble about having to live far distant from the beaten track of first run dramatic productions and the cheerful life of the great cities.

Why Do you Like Peterborough?

But how much do you know about Peterborough?? Can you name any one thing in Peterborough that makes this city predominant, that makes it a better place to live in than other cities. You may be satisfied to live in Peterborough, you may even prefer living in Peterborough, but can you explain your preference aside from the fact that you may have a large circle of friends and acquaintances with resultant sentimental bonds here?

What Statistics Show.

The encyclopedias and guide books will inform you that Peterborough is 76 miles northeast of Toronto on the Otonabee river, that through it pass the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Railways, and the Trent Valley Canal, that it has the largest hydraulic lift lock in the world, nine banks, nine public schools, a Collegiate Institute and a Normal School, 22 churches, and an estimated population of 23 000, or, including suburbs, approximately 29,000. You will further learn that the surrounding country is adapted to farming and lumbering, that its natural resources are water power, lumber, building stone, gold, silver, lead and mica, and that the city has 38 industries manufacturing cereals, electrical supplies, farm implements, dairy supplies, textiles, canoes, confectionery, harnesses, labels, automobile brake linings, paper boxes, bricks, sawmill and mining machinery, stoves, tiles, locks, mattresses, condensed milk, tents and awnings, lumber products, and that in it are three farm magazines. The statisticians have also compiled figures published a daily newspaper and showing that the city contains a theatre and four moving picture houses, six public parks, a private athletic park, exhibition grounds, two public bathing places, and is surrounded by a number of popular summer resorts.

Statistics compiled here recently show that Peterborough's industries exported products to the value of over $1,500,000 to the United States in the first quarter of the year, competing with American manufacturers in their own markets and that in proportoin to its size Peterborough is one of the greatest industrial centres in the Domnion.

What Visitors Say.

If you have the faculty of discerning romance in dry statistics and statements, the foregoing resume will impress you. But in nine cases out of ten that faculty is lacking, so the Examiner asked a number of people, not natives of this city, their opinion on the matter. And in nearly every case the beauty of the city and surrounding country was stressed.

Opportunities for Outdoor Life.

"From the point of view of the person who likes the great outdoors," said a sports from a large Ohoi city, "you are ideally situated. I know of no other city between the Mississippi and New England, where unusual natural beauty and facilities for fishing, hunting, aquatics and all sorts of outdoor sports are so good, and where the bush and civilization lying close together present such opportunities for an outdoor life."

"A Pretty City."

Peterborough is a very pretty city," volunteered a man from smoky Pittsburg. "Your residential streets and homes are neat and well kept. The care taken by the average citizen here of his lawn impresses me very much."

No Abject Poperty.

"It seems to be almost a city without abject poverty. I have seen few places where the distribution of money is more equable," was the statement of an Ottawa man who has spent some time here. He added that industrial strife seemed to be practically negligible.

Schools are Excellent.

"The schools and educational system generally are excellent," declared a new comer from the west whose children have been attending the local schools recently.

"Clean, Quiet and Pleasant."

A New York tourist termed the city "clean, quiet and pleasant."

The statisticians, tourists and newcomers have learned a great deal about the city's advantages. What do you know about it?

OSHAWA ASSURED OF AMPLE POWER

SUFFICIENT SUPPLY FROM TRENT WATERS FOR CONSIDERABLE TIME TO COME.

OSHAWA, July 25.—Definite assurance that the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission will continue to make every effort to furnish an ample and continuous supply of electric power to Oshawa, is given in a letter just received by Secretary Capt. J. A. McGibbon, of Oshawa Board of Trade, from Chief Engineer F. H. Gaby, of the Commission in reply to a resolution forwarded to the Commission a few weeks ago by the Executive and Manufacturers' Committee of the Board of Trade asking that in view of the shortage of power here from time to time, Oshawa be connected up with the Niagara Falls plant.

Developing 10,000 Horse-Power

Engineer Gaby points out regarding the power demands of the future that the Commission is now engaged in the construction of a 10,000 horse power development at Ranney Falls and expects that this will meet the needs of the district for some time to come. After the output of Ranney Falls is entirely taken up, the letter points out, there are still some other powers which can be developed on TTrent River economically, and after these are exhausted it may be necessary to consider an auxiliary supply from Niagara Falls.

The Niagara Connection

The letter points out that there is one factor which does not make it economical to connect Niagara Falls to the Central Ontario System, except for the supply of very large block of power, viz., the fact that the Niagarra Falls system operates at 25 cycles and the Central Ontario system at 60 cycles. To make necessary and interchange of power under these conditions it is necessary to install expensive frequency-changing apparatus, and while it is quite possible that the load in Oshawa may grow in the future to a sufficient size to make this interchange economical, at the same time this point has not yet been reached and probably will not be for some years to come.

The letter points out that in the future, as in the past, when the Commission fails to supply to Oshawa ample power for its industrial needs. It will be through the interruption of agencies entirely outside of its own control.

SHORTER VAMPS WOMEN'S SHOES

STRAP PATTERNS ARE HERE TO STAY—COLORED STITCHING.

There seems to be a tendency toward shorter vamps in women's shoes. In next season the style in vamps in high and low heels will not be over three and one-half inches. They may be a little longer in walking oxfords. Women are tiring of the long effects and want shorter-looking shoes, even on pointed toes.

Strap patterns are here to stay, in one or two straps, in buckles or buttons.

Colored stitchings will be emphasized in fall footwear, either in contrasting shades or colors to match the leather or fabric.

Oxfords in semi-brogues, not too heavy, with wing tips, in Russian calf and boarded materials, are good for fall wear.

Heels in fancy patterns will be of the Baby Louis type, with the leather Cuban heels for walking shoes. The Spanish or Louis Cuban, about two and one-eighth inches high, with wooden Cuban heels one and three quarter inches high, are used on some of the higher grade models.

Black is the favorite color in patent leather, kid and satin. Black ooze in fancy patterns and black calf in staple patterns in walking heels, is good. Browns also, in satin or ooze will be worn to some extent and a certain revival in gray is prophesied as the fall and winter seasons develop.

APPEALED AGAINST MAGISTRATE'S DECISION.

County Constable Smith of Port Hope, through his solicitor, Mr. D. H. Chisholm, has appealed against the judgment of Col. W. H. Floyd, Police Magistrate, of Cobourg, in fining him $350 and costs for a breach of the O.T.A. The appeal will come before Judge Ward at a date to be set.

This case which arose out of the Grey liquor robbery was ventilated last week in police court here. The Magistrate was at first disposed to make the fine $1,000, but after a conference it was reduced to $350 and costs. The fine was paid.

COLBORNE MAN FINED $50 AND COSTS

For Not Keeping Proper Record of Sale of Extracts, Etc.

Mr. C. M. Allen, merchant of Colborne, appeared before Magistrate Floyd on a charge of not keeping a record of his sales of essences, extracts, etc.

The record book was produced in court and the Magistrate stated that the objection to it was that the year had not been recorded. The month and day and other necessary data were given but the year was not recorded at all, and it was on this account that the Magistrate based his finding.

Several witnesses were present, including Mr. Gould, Mr. Boundy, Mr. Allen's son, all of Colborne, and Mr. Goodrich.

Mr. Payne, solicitor for Mr. Allen, claimed the record was good.

The Magistrate said he could not do otherwise than impose a fine of $50 and $10.85 costs, or two months in jail, as in his opinion there had been a violation of the law, as the year had not been recorded. If the defendant was not satisfied he could appeal to the Commission.

Mr. Allen said he would not pay the fine. "If the temperance people want to put me in gaol, alright; I have done nothing wrong, and don't intend to pay the fine."

However, Mr. Payne induced the son to give a cheque for the amount, claiming that they would get the money back again, as he felt sure the money would be refunded.

"STRANGERS' MONEY."

Innsbruck Innkeepers Revoke the Unpopular Scheme.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, July 25.—The campaign of the hotelkeepers and the cancellation of engaged quarters by summer visitors have proved too much for the Tyrol Government, and it has revoked its "strangers' money" scheme.

This compelled all non-residents to buy the new money and pay in it for all things at a rate of exchange that would make them pay nearly ten times more than the native. A high head tax on visitors is substituted.

Summer visitors had cancelled rooms by the hundred, causing the hotel and inn keepers to hold mass meetings of protest against the scheme.

CASE INVOLVES PETERBORO GIRL

MARY ELIZABETH RILEY VICTIM OF FICTITIOUS MARRIAGE,

TORONTO, July 26.—A complicated case with a decidedly pathetic side to it was uncovered in the Women's Police Court on Saturday when John R. Miller was charged with desertion and non-support by Elizabeth Miller. The neat-looking little woman with the earnest face who stepped into the witness box to tell her story admitted to Magistrate Jones that there were no witnesses present at what she thought was her wedding to Miller in Buffalo in 1908.

Miller denies in the case that he ever married his accuser, who was Miss Mary Elizabeth Riley of Peterborough. He married another woman in May, 1920.

The complainant produced what was supposed to be a copy of the register entry in St. Batholomew's Church, Buffalo, of their marriage. Miller had given it to her, she said, and she had always believed it to be true. Miller's lawyer proved it to be fictious by producing written evidence from Buffalo showing that St. Bartholomew's parish was not established there until 1912.

Believed Ceremony Legal.

Mrs. Miller told the Magistrate that she had gone to Buffalo on July 3rd, 1908, and Miller had followed her, as her people in Peterborough did not like him. She believed that the marriage ceremony, which took place in a house, without witnesses, was quite legal. In the following February she had given birth to a child.

She had had three children by Miller, the eldest of which died, and the youngest of which was born two months ago, she stated. She declared that Miller had lived with her during last summer, although she did not know he had been married again.

Magistrate Jones adjourned the case in order to secure all the facts.

"FRENCH SAMPLE" TRAIN COMING TO PETERBORO SOON.

The following letter is self-explanatory:

Franco-Canadian Sample Trains.
Address:
Dominion Government Offices,
Montreal Post Office.
Montreal, July 21st, 1921.

S. R. Armstrong, Esq., City Clerk,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Canada is staggering under the load of the war and ever increasing taxation following in its wake.

Export trade is our surest and shortest way to relief. For the past five years, means have been sought to assure to Canada her fair share of the French market. France is now easily our third best customer, notwithstanding the fact that Canadian goods are hardly known to the French consumer.

Besides the settlement of the debt due by Germany for reparations, which cannot be now delayed, and the international arrangements for credit which necessarily must follow will permit of enormous purchases being made by the French Government and the French people as a whole.

Canada must be prepared to get her full share of the vast orders which the sympathy of the French people would naturally direct to our market.

The means selected to stimulate our export trade to France has taken the form of an exchange of facilities by which both countries can rapidly, economically and gratuitously advertise their goods by a reciprocal project called the "Sample Trains."

In this regard, I take the liberty of calling your attention to a short pronouncement made during last session, in the Senate, copy of which is attached hereto. For more than a year, France has prepared, with minute care, a beautiful selection of her goods and wares, of the highest grades. They will be entrained in Montreal, constituting the "French Sample Trains," which, in the months of September and October, will tour Canada from ocean to ocean.

This exhibition on wheels will be accompanied by moving pictures of the most beautiful scenery of France, of her historic monuments, architectural wonders, objects of art, etc. The net proceeds of these cinematographic displays will go to the blind soldiers of France, or some other war charitable purpose.

Both the exhibition train and the moving picture shows will visit your city, at a date to be definitely fixed within the next two weeks. Notice of the exact date will be given you forthwith.

This project has the full approbation and collaboration of the French and Canadian Governments, of transportation, manufacturing, commercial and other large interests in both countries.

The universal opinion among those who have studied the situation is that no two countries in the world are better situated to exchange their products without danger of competition to home industries.

May we count on your collaboration to assure the success of this venture and thereby help out own export trade and strengthen the bonds of friendship which unite Canada to France.

Please bear in mind that whatever we do for France in the present instance will be repaid to us fourfold. If we open to her a market of eight million people she in turn must in like manner give us access to her market of thirty-eight million people.

At the present juncture you can be of material assistance by using your influence with the press, important associations, and specially the commercial and industrial bodies, to call public attention and awaken public interest in the coming of the "French Sample Train" to your city, and we would indeed gratefully appreciate your esteemed collaboration in doing so.

Hoping that the present matter will commend itself to your approval and merit your assistance, I beg to remain,

Yours very sincerely,
(Sgd.) C. P. Beaubien, President.

TUXEDOS CONTINUE TO LEAD STYLES

In knitted wear, tuxedos continue to be the leading styles. There is a new buttonless coat also, resembling the tuxedo, but without a revere. The slipover is popular in all styles, the high neck being adapted to the use of a Peter Pan collar; the V neck, the round neck and the campus coat which has a low cut neck to the waist line, affords opportunity for the display of jabots, etc.

A particularly neat suit made of silk yarn is in two-tone effects, skirt accordion pleated, sleeves either elbow length or long and the suit completed with a jumper, form fitting and reaching to the waist.

A novelty is a hand-knitted filet cape, with angora collar and tuxedo front. Scarfs come in plaits, stripes, fancy stitches and assorted color combinations. One is of white, brushed, knitted mohair, resembling a lynx. It is 18 inches wide and 72 inches long, trimmed with white mohair fringe 9 inches long.

Fibre silk composes tuxedo sweaters, slip-ons with short fringed sleeves, round neck and form-fitting body, and a practical golf middy is shown in Shetland wool, camel's hair and chiffon alpaca.

THE LAW OF FRIENDSHIP.

It is better to have one true friend than a thousand admirers, and there is only one way to get such a friend, and that is by being as true as you wish that friend to be.

It has been said that a man can face a frowning world if he knows and feels sure that he has the support of one such, but mere fine wea-

LIVE TIRE QUESTIONS

"What is the cause of these valves leaking air and leaving the tires soft? How can I tell if the valve is leaking or if the leak is elsewhere? Does it make any difference if the valve cap is left off? What can be done to stop a leak in the base of the valve stem?" These are but a few of the questions asked from time to time.

In nearly every case where the valve begins to give trouble and examination will reveal the fact that dirt has worked into it. Dirt and other foreign matter will generally be found to be the chief cause of improper functioning of this small but important mechanism.

And that is the big reason why the valve cap should always be screwed on well—to keep dirt and grit out of the valve he continues. With the cap properly in place the valve is sealed against the possibility of mud dust and other foreign matter entering and later causing trouble. Besides keeping out the dirt the valve cap makes an additional airtight connection to withstand all the air pressure put into the fire.

When removing the valve plunger be extra careful to keep it free from dirt. Insignificant particles of grit often get onto the rubber washer and later cause a leak. If dirt works its way into the plunger mechanism the best thing to do is to buy a new one. Screw in the plunger as far as it will go, as there is no danger of breaking it when the cap is used on a screw driver.

When there is a leak around the base of the valve stem, tighten the hexagonal nut, which—by the way—should always be screwed down tight against the washer at the base. Then the rim nut, which screws down over the stem and presses the leather washer against the felloe of the wheel, should always be screwed down so as to seal the hole in the rim. Otherwise dirt and moisture will seep in between the tire and the tube. Tire men say great losses are occasioned very year by the carelessness of many motorises in omitting to see that this nut and washer are properly in place.

To tell if a tire valve leaks or not is easy if one knows this little "kink". Remove the cap and have the wheel turned until the valve is at the top. Then bring a glass full of clear water up so the steam is immersed. If there is a leak bubbles will rise to the water's surface, of course.

QUIET WORK.

Day does not slam her door, and then depart
In rage, leaving the world unto old Night;
Nor does she burst upon our dream-filmed sight
And shake us all awake with a rude start.
But with a gentle touch she pulls apart
Sleep's star-decked curtain, all unseen, unheard,
That not an infant in its rest is stirred—
So dear is Quietude to Nature's heart.

The little lad we knew but yester morn
This morning talks in world-terms, is a man!
But down the years along life's crowded track,
Announcing change no noisy herald ran;
For God's true artist, Nature, fool in scorn
At cheap Sensation's placard-bearing back!

SPORT COMMENT

Long Jim Barnes, the gaunt and angular Pelham golfer, is on the top of the golfing heap. There is no doubt about golf and its fascination. Golf celebrities are just as famous as fistic or baseball celebrities. Ted Ray and his pipe, Mitchell and his long driving, Barnes and his mop of hair, Tellier and his dandified delivery, Armour and his mannerisms are an integral part of the game. In their way they are bound up in the sport as much as Dempsey's pep, Carpentier's gracefulness, Leonard's science is in boxing, the home-run hitting of Ruth and the pitching of Faber in baseball.

There is a great agitation in the States to find out what is wrong with baseball. The lively ball is blamed. They will have to look deeper into the cause of the falling off in attendance than that. It looks as though the public constantly seeing the recurring headlines of the White Sox trial are losing their faith in the game. The charge now that the players manipulated the deal and approached the gamblers to throw the series will send the none too secure props of the pastime trembling.

Correspondent wants to know the number of rounds Willard fought Johnson, Willard fought Dempsey and Johnson fought Burns. Willard and Johnson fought twenty-six rounds when Johnson folded up and took a knockout. Willard lasted four rounds with Jack Dempsey. Johnson defeated Tommy Burns at Rushcutters Bay, the fight being stopped in the fourteenth round.

There is a revulsion of feeling against Carpentier gradually spreading over the eastern section of the United States. It is said on good authority that Carpentier demanded $100 to appear at the Martin-Moran fight, and the boob of a promoter paid it. There was a story when Carpentier first came over that he refused to go to a banquet tendered in his honor unless he was paid for the privilege. Those close to Carpentier claim that he is the thriftiest bird that ever sailed after a championship crown. Rumor states that he was absolutely certain he could defeat Dempsey and thought a rushing fight was his best weapon. Rumor also states that he now thinks he could defeat Dempsey by keeping away from him for fifteen rounds in a New York ring. He will also insist on five-ounce gloves, the despatch says, and a 24-foot ring. All of which may or may not be a prelude to another deluge of the "Greek god" stuff.

Litany of a Sport Ed.

From lady fans trying to find the winner of the last race and also rans in every other;

From club presidents who send two tickets for a regatta after getting about two hundred dollars worth of space gratis for their water jamboree;

From baseball games with fourteen errors,

Good Lord deliver us.

The Two Greatest Heavyweights.

The two heavyweights from ring history who have shown more stuff since Sullivan's day than any one else are Jeffries and Dempsey. Corbett lost his first hard fight after winning the championship. So did Fitz. But Jeffries beat Fitz twice, Corbett twice, Sharkey and every one else in sight.

Dempsey has made quick work of all opponents for three years. Stanley Ketchell lasted twelve rounds with Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns fourteen. Can any one imagine Ketchell and Burns, weighing but a trifle more than Carpentier, lasting that long against Dempsey? Or Dempsey taking fifteen rounds to knock out Jeffries in the shape he was against Johnson?

Fitz reached the heights only after he had passed his prime, while Corbett, with all his speed and ring craft, lacked the ruggedness and punching power of Jeffries and Dempsey.

Willard, after winning the title, did nothing to prove his greatness, centreing his main attention upon circus life, where the sawdust meant more to him than the rosin, and three rings looked to be more attractive than one.

HERMAN COMES BACK, REGAINS BANTAM TITLE

RECEIVES JUDGE'S DECISION OVER JOE LYNCH IN 15. ROUND BATTLE.

NEW YORK, July 26 (Canadian Press). — Pete Herman, of New Orleans regained the world's bantam weight championship at Ebbet's Field last night by receiving the judge's decision over Joe Lynch of New York, after a fifteen-round bout.

Herman, staging a sensational "come-back," had the better of the thirteen rounds. One was even and the other went to Lynch.

The New Orleans boy forced the battle from the opening bell. He worked his right and left effectively, and Lynch's frequent sallies found him ready to mix.

Lynch claimed that he injured two fingers of his right hand in the fourth round.

COMPLAINING OF BAD UMPIRES

Oshawa Reformer: Considerable "mousing" is in evidence in two or three of the towns on the Central League Circuit about bad umpiring. It is true that some raw decisions have been made but in almost every case the officials have been impartial. The fault is that some teams can only pick out the spots which affect themselves while many close decisions might be in their favor, and not be noticed. Teh Petes are still doctoring the sore spot they received at Port Hope on Saturday, and once again they blame the um. A fact that Oshawa fans may be proud of is that their Central representatives have not been heard to blame the umpires for any of their defeats and no doubt they have as much foundation for doing so as other teams.

FAST LACROSSE GAME PROMISED WITH CAMPBELLFORD ON FRIDAY

Why not paste the date of Friday evening at 5.30 o'clock in your hat as an appointment you will not miss? Peterborough and Campbellford Intermediate lacrosse teams will meet in the second half of the group schedule, and the public are promised an interesting game. News of Peterborough's showing in Havelock last week went directly to Campbellford, and it may be taken for granted that Dick Cole's team will not run the risk of being upset in the local game. And that is just where the interest lies. Jim Skinner believes that if his rejuvenated crew work as hard and as fast and as effectively as they did against the C. P. R. gang Campbellford will get a trimming. Havelock is due here for two games, and if the locals can not win the group honors they would get considerable satisfaction from taking a fall out of either or both these teams. At any rate last night's practice was the best of the season. Twenty-two men were out and the Juniors and Intermediates played against each other as in a real game.

C.G.E. PLAYER RECEIVED MEDAL

J. M'DONALD RECIPIENT OF MEMENTO FROM OVERSEAS FOOTBALLERS.

While he did not play against the touring Scottish football team, Player J. McDonald, of the C.G.E. line-up, who was a reserve at the Toronto match, has been shown full recognition by the victorious Scots, now returning home. This morning the acting secretary of the P. and D.F.A. received from the O.F.A. secretary, W Muir, a very handsome medal to present to McDonald as a memento of the game in Toronto, which he attended, ready to play if called upon. The medal is about as large as a 25 cent piece, gold plated, with a small neat Old Rose ribbon and an enamel pin bearing the words 'Lanark F.C." On the face of the medal the Scottish emblem of a rearing lion in enamel and what is evidently the club's emblem, is entwined by a raised Scotch thistle. It is a handsome medal and should be warmly cherished by J. McDonald.

PLENTY CUP TEAM TO HAVE WORKOUT

The Plenty Cup team chosen by the executive of the P. and D. F. A. to play Brantford in Brantford on Saturday will meet a mixed team of C.G.E. and Caleys at the Oval at 6.15 to-night in a practice game. J. Clarke will likely referee. The secretary asks that every player be on hand early with his complete outfit. It is hoped that the football fans and citizens in general will see this game and support the team, morally and financially that represents Peterborough in the realm of football on Saturday.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN GOLFERS

CHAMPIONS ARE FIT FOR SERIES OF HARD GAMES

FANS SHOULD SUPPORT EFFORTS TO BRING INTERMEDIATE BASEBALL HONORS HERE.

Supporters of amateur baseball will be given an opportunity this week to show their appreciation of the efforts put forth this season to have Peterborough well represented in the intermediate series of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association. It is hoped that the fans will give their whole-hearted support and patronize the games.

It is true that the City League and the Mercantile League did not play high-class baseball, but the organziations served their purpose, and in the O.B.A.A. contests, the two best teams in the city will compete.

These teams, C.G.E. and Cressmans, will play the first game at Riverside Park on Thursday evening at 530 o'clock. The teams are well matched, with batteries, fast infielders and reliable outfielders. The team that wins the series should go a long distance in the intermediate championship race.

Holly McIlmoyle is taking Barries' Mercantile Leaguers to Keene to-morrow evening for a game with Zion, of the East Peterborough League. Baseball is making big strides in Keene, and supporters of the game there, want to see some of the Peterborough teams in action.

Moore did so well against St. Peter's that he may be used on the mound against Bankers this evening. Shaughnessy has carried the burden for Lakeviews and is in need of a rest. Bankers will be out in full force, in view of the fact that a win will give them the championship of the juvenile series.

PETES PLAY IN COBOURG TO-MORROW

The Peterboro Central League team will open the second half of the League race at Cobourg to-morrow when they clash with Manager Tyson's outfit. The Cobourg crew are always hard to beat at home so that the game will require the Petes to be on their toes all the way. Players are notified that the cars for Cobourg will leave the Water street Bowling Alleys at one o'clock sharp to-morrow.

CANADIAN GIRLS SUMMER CAMP

The first annual co-operative camp for Canadian Girls in Training for the centre district, Ontario, opened this week at Lake Couchiching, from July 25th to August 1st. Girls from 13 to 18 years of age are eligible for this course, which is held under the anspices of the Ontario Girls' Work Board, and the registration is limited to 100.

The aim of the camp is to give the girls a happy holiday, to give each a glimse, through carrying it out in the daily life of the camp, of what the Canadian Girls in Training programme can mean to the individual girl, and to give her training to help carry out the programme in her own local Sunday school.

It is organized and promoted by the Ontario Girls' Work Board, composed of official representation of all evangelical churches desiring to co-operate, and official representation from the Young Women's Christian Association.

The girls are divided into groups, each with its own leader, group name, motto, emblem and call. Each day has its varied activities—out-of-door games, hikes, bathing and boating. The groups assemble daily for Bible Study, and for a mid-week meeting, where devotional sessions, business matters, practical talks and activities are carried out according to the programme of the C.G.I.T.

There are rest periods in the afternoon, and the groups assemble in the evening for songs, story telling, the camp paper, concerts, stunts of various kinds, Vesper service around the camp fire and helpful talks. The officers of the camp are a camp directress, camp mother, camp nurse, business manager, land sports officer, water sports officer and group leaders.

Several local young ladies intend to go to Lake Couchiching for this course.

PETERBORO HORSE WON 2.15 RACE AT KINGSTON MEET

(Special to the Examiner).

KINGSTON, July 26.—The horse races held at the Fair Grounds on Monday afternoon, under the auspices of the Gentlemen's Driving Club, provided some good sport. There were two events, the 2.15 pace and the 2.30 trot and pace. There was some disappointment when it was announced that the classified race was called off owing to failure to make up the necessary entries.

In the 2.15 pace, Hazel H., owned by Edward Jones, of Peterborough, had her own way by winning three straight heats well in advance of all the contestants. The battle was one for the division of second money in this event, as Hazel H. outclassed her rivals, but the race was exceedingly interesting and was much enjoyed by the lovers of this sport.

The 2.30 trot and pace resulted in a hard contest between Sunny Jim, owned by B. O. Allen, Colborne, and City Limit, owned by E. Elmhurst, Indian River. Sunny Jim was clearly the best horse entered, and would undoubtedly have won by three straight heats but was not up in the getaway of the first. While the field was about two hundred yards in advance at the start, he closed much of the gap at the finish. The next three heats were his, although Don Pedro, owned by W. Davidson, of Phillipsville, made a hard fight with City Limit. It was a contest that raised much excitement, with Sunny Jim the favorite.

Following are the results:

2.30 Trot and Pace—Purse $400.

Sunny Jim—B. O. Allen, Colborne—5 1 1 1.
City Limit—W. Elmhurst, Indian River—1 2 3 3.
Don Pedro—W. Davidson, Phillipsville—4 3 2 2.
Bernard McKiney—W. H. Eves, Kingston—3 4 4 4.
Jim Elliott—Mr. Armstrong, Havelock—2 5 5 5.
Time—2.24 ¼; 2. 24¼; 2. 24 ¼; 2. 24 ¼.

2.15 Pace—Purse $400.

Hazel H.—Ed. Jones, Peterborough—1 1 1.
K. L. Lambert—Dr. Benson, Belleville—4 2 2.
Lloyd George—E. Jones, Peterborough—2 3 4.
Ripple Audubon—S. Hollingsworth, Athens—3 4 3.
Time—2. 19 ¼; 2.20 ¼; 2. 19 ½.

The officials were: Starter—M. S. Grace, Kingston. Judges—W. D. Mace, Winnipeg, J. Haley, Picton. Timekeepers—E. J. Metcalfe, L. Guess. Clerk—G. Veale.

WILL SERVE CITY WITH ORDER PROCEED WITH DISPOSAL PLANT

ONTARIO RAILWAY BOARD DECIDES THAT IT HAS NO JURISDICTION IN APPEAL OF TOWNSHIPS TO COMPEL CITY OF PETERBORO TO CONSTRUCT SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT—MATTER FOR THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

Deciding that the application of the townships of Otonabee and North and South Monaghan, for further directions to the City of Peterboro, in conection with the construction of a sewage disposal plant, was a question that fell within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Health Department, the Ontario Municipal and Railway Board in Toronto yesterday instructed the Board of Health to serve an order on the city to proceed with the construction of the proposed plant in accordance with the plans already submitted .

D. M. McIntyre, chairman of the Railway Board, sharply criticized the citys continued delay in carrying out the former order for the building of a sewage disposal plant, and expressed the opinion that the city had not kept faith .

The city was represented by C. R. Widdifield, City Solicitor, and R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, and the townships by Reeve McIntosh, of North Monaghan; Reeve Fred Eason of Otonabee, and their solicitor, Mr. F. D. Kerr.

From several reports of the hearing of the township's applications yesterday it appears that the Provincial Board of Health may now order the city once more to begin at once the construction of a sewage disposal plant of the activated sludge type in the face of the Council's oposition to this system of sewage disposal.

Following investigations by City Engineer Parsons, and his advice that the activated sludge system was still in the experimental stage the Council decided to make a stand against the Provincial Department, and at the same time virtually agreed that only the Imhoff system would be acceptable to them, and adopted. This dispute has been a big factor in the delay of the work, although such practical considerations as the cost of labour and material undoubtedly influenced the Council's attitude.

At any rate they had practically reached the position in which they were preparing to proceed with the Imhoff tank system when the Railway Board reinforce the Board of Health's order, that the activated sludge type shall be employed.

There was no direction made as to the time within which the work shall be completed, but it is likely that the Provincial Board of Health will cover up this omission.

POETESS CALLS HUSBAND SQUATTER AND INTRUDER

MRS. EMMA V. P. MARSHALL, HYDE PARK SPIRITUALIST, FILES ACTION FOR EVICTION—MR. MARSHALL, SLEEPING IN BARN, FIGHTS THE SUIT.

POUGHKEEPSIE, July 26. — Mrs. Emma Victoria Pitkin Marshall, known as the poetess and spiritualist of Hyde Park, appears to have become tired of her husband, Culver Marshall, to whom she was married in 1917. She filed suit in the County Court to-day before Judge C. W. H. Arnold, asking that Marshall be evicted from their home on the ground that he is a 'squatter and an intruder," the squatting and intruding dating from the day of thier marriage.

Marshall is fighting the suit, which will be heard by a jury next Tuesday, and his attorneys claim that the petition does not apply because no condition of landlord and tenant exists. Mrs. Marshall sets forth that she first ordered her husband to stop squatting and intruding around her house on July 18, 1921, but that he has refused to go and continues to make his home there in spite of everything she can do. His attorney declared to-day, however, that since he was served with the notice he has been compelled to sleep in the barn, and that while he was prepared to submit that he did not propose to leave the premises unless he was ejected by due process of law.

Trouble between Marshall and his wife began shortly after their marriage over a prenuptial agreement, by which Marshall signed away his interest in a farm a short distance from the house in which his wife lived. She started to harvest the hay on the place and he began in action to stop her, claiming that she had taken all his money and refused to let him have any to spend.

CONTINUE REVISED PROSCRIBED LIST

SIR GEORGE FOSTER REFUSES TO CONFIRM REPORT THAT ALL WILL BE REINSTATED.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, July 26. — Further revision of the lists of the proscribed in the Post Office Department of the Civil Service is in progress, and from present indications there will be a considerable number of reinstatements.

Rumours have been afloat to the effect that the Government, in view of the existing serious unemployment conditions throughout the Dominion, had decided upon complete reinstatement, excepting in the cases of pensioned employees.

Questioned regarding this rumour to-day, Hon. P. E. Blondin, Postmaster-General, merely said: "If it is half true I will be satisfied, but I do not know."

Sir George Foster did not confirm the rumour. He declared that the process of elimination had been proceeding, but that an opportunity had been given for revision and for the hearing of representation from employees and heads of branches.

AWARD IS MADE IN WATERPOWER

deed to anything else, so far as I could learn. My suggestion was to fill up certain of the breaks or cuts in the embankment to keep the water in bounds, and then to dig a ditch or trench close along side the embankment on its west side to take away the seepage or leakage and convey it down past the Morris property and to the stream below. This would in any case help and I think fully protect Mr. Morris's interests. It would also I think materially assist Mr. Cardwell but am not so sure it would so fully protect him as it would Morris. Mr. Morris bought his property with full knowledge of the existence of the pond and all prior rights pertaining thereto.

I regret the parties, as it seemed to me, would not even try by cooperation to amend or improve the existing situation.

All I can therefore ro is to allow the appeal and vacate the award and with costs; order accordingly.

Dated 26th., July, 1921.

CAR DITCHED—THREE HURT.

HAMILTON, July 26. — William Spriggs, Simcoe, was, it is feared, fatally injured and Louis Young, of Simcoe, and William Ottley, badly injured yesterday when an automobile in which they were driving was ditched on the Guelph Road, near Harper's Corners, about eleven miles from Hamilton. The driver of the car, a man named Cooper, of Brantford, was the only one of the party to escape uninjured. The men were driving from Brantford to Guelph, and, for some reason not given, the car went into a ditch, where it upset.

FATHER AND MOTHER ARE KILLED—5 KIDDIES INJURED.

COLUMBUS, July 26. — Mrs. Ellen Frew, forty-two years of age, of Bricknell, Ind., was killed, and her husband, Henry Frew, aged forty-seven, and their five children injured, the father probably fatally, when their automobile skidded and upset east of here yesterday.

The family was en route home from Pittsburg, where they attended on Sunday the funeral of Mrs. Frew's mother, who was killed in an accident last week.

STRIKES HEAD IN DIVING.

STRATFORD, July 26.—William Bart, a young man residing at 44 Brant Street, suffered a badly fractured skull yesterday while diving into a small pond just outside the city. He had been swimming for some time, when he decided he would take a dive. Selecting a lofty position, he dived into the water, striking his head on the bottom. He was rushed to the General Hospital, and although still in a serious condition hopes are entertained for his recovery.

GRAVEL IN HIS FACE.

BELLEVILLE, July 26.—George Whelana, working on the Provincial highway east of this city, was injured in an explosion yesterday afternoon, in a blast.

He was struck in the face by gravel and flying debris. His injuries were minor cuts.

Fortunately his eyesight was not injured. Pieces of stone and gravel were removed from his face at the hospital.

BABY GIRL FALLS 20 FEET INTO SIXTEEN-MILE CREEK.

MILTON, July 26.—While Kathleen, the fifteen-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lloyd, was playing on the Pine Street bridge last evening, she overbalanced herself and fell twenty feet into the Sixteen-Mile Creek.

When rescued by Dave Brush, it was found that the child had her collar-bone broken and was otherwise badly hurt. She is in a serious condition at present, but it is believed that she will survive her injuries.

TAKES MERCURY DOSE, MISTAKING THE BOTTLE.

WINDSOR, July 26. — Taking a dose of mercury yesterday in mistake for a headache remedy, Mrs. Louis Charkozki, aged twenty-eight, of 1527 Marenette Avenue, is in a serious condition.

BATHED TOO SOON AFTER EATING.

MONTREAL, July 26. — Three drowning fatalities were reported on Montreal Island yesterday, two of them being youths who went in bathing too soon after eathing.

A curious feature of these two cases is that each of the youths had eaten a large quantity of cherries before going into the water. They are George Roy, of 2101 Lafontaine Street, 15 years of age, drowned at Longue Pointe, and Willie Poirier, of 112 Hamilton Street, 17 years of age, drowned at Ville La Salle.

The third case was that of a sailor whose body was recovered in the harbour. His body has so far not been identified.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(Canadian Press). — Rails, Equipments and Steels represented the firmer issues at the listless opening of to-day's Stock Market. Union Pacific, New York Central, Crucible Steel, United States Steel, Baldwin Locomotive, Mercantile Marine Preferred and United States Rubber reflected further covering of short contracts. Domestic and Foreign Oils were irregular at slight changes. Tobaccos, Leathers and Food Specialties, which featured yesterday's stronger issues, showed no definite trend. Preliminary exchange rates on London were moderately above yesterday's low quotations.

Gains were effaced within the first hour, mainly as the result of the heaviness shown by the leading oils and motors. Mexican Petroleum reacted one point and Studebaker lost 1 5-8. United States Steel, whose directors heet at the close of the session to act on the second quarterly dividend, lost only a small fraction, but Bethlehem and Crucible Steels were heavy with Westinghouse Electric. American Tobacco was the heaviest of the specialties, and Sugars and Rubbers added to their early concessions.

Call money opened at 5 1-2 on exchange, but was offered at 5 per cent. in private loans.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 26 (Canadian Press). — Wheat displayed considerable firmness to-day owing to the gossip that exporters were buying. Lessening of arrivals here and at Kansas City tended also to favour bulls. On the other hand bearish Canadian crop reports attracted some attention.

Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 1 1-2 cents higher, with September 123 1-2 to 124 and December 127 to 127 3-4, were followed by numerous fluctuations within the initial limit.

Corn hardened with wheat. After opening 1-4 cent off to 1-8 cent up, including September at 61 5-8 to 61 3-4, the market scored slight general gains.

Oats were governed by the action of the other cereals, starting unchanged to 3-8 cent higher, September 39 7-8 to 40 cents, and then making something of a general advance.

Higher quotations on hogs helped to lift provisions.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, July 26 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange easy. Demand $3.57; cables $3.57 1-2; Canadian dollars 11 1-16 per cent. discount.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, July 26 (Canadian Press). — Dealings in Government bonds and bak stocks furnished most of the activity in the Toronto Stock Exchange this forenoon, trading in the more speculative stocks. beisg very quiet.

Brazilian opened at 21 3-4, but settled steadily, closing at 20 7-8. Riordon was again wea, opening at 4 1-2, but firmed up to 4 3-4. Victorys were strong, 37's opening the day with a sale of 24,000 at 99.15, and later sales moved up to 99.20 for board lots, with smaller amounts cheaper. 23's were also active and strong. Bank stocks were firm.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, July 26.—Riordan was again the feature of the market during the morning's session. After a great deal of weakness it sank to 4 3-8, at which figure it closed.

Abitibi and Atlantic Sugar both remained unchanged at their opening figures at 26 1-2 and 24 respectively, while Brazilian closed three-eighths lower at 21 1-2. Brompton, too, did not vary from its opening quotation. Laurentide closed fractionaly stronger at 66 5-8, but National Breweries remained quiet all morning at its opening figure. Spanish River, however, strengthened a point to 49.

Might Be Acceptable.

A clergyman was dining in a west-end restaurant one evening, when a woman wearing a bare-back gown entered, and took a seat at the next table. The padre could not help overhearing some remarks by the lady about his personal appearance. He took no notice until the waiter offered him some mayonnaise with his salad.

Then he said in his blandest pulpit voice:

"No, thanks; I don't require dressing, but I think the lady at the next table does."

WORLD OF MIRTH SHOWS OPENED LAST NIGHT WITH A BIG CROWD

EXHIBITION GROUNDS WAS A MECCA FOR FUN-SEEKERS—A REVIEW OF THE SHOW.

Gee Whiz! That's some show! The World of Mirth Shows, proclaimed by advance notices as one of the best and cleanest attractions on the road, opened a week's engagement here Monday night at Exhibition Park and in reality lived up to every promise in that line, also being greeted by one of the largest first nights crowd that ever turned out to amusement of that kind.

The World of Mirth Shows are remarkable in that they have all of the merriment and fun craved by the excitment loving soul and the seeker after good times, while at the same time every amusement on the ground is above board and fit for anyone to see. The management believes this claim so strongly it invites complaints, if any cause arises.

While the crowd seemed of the usual Monday Night "show me" kind the excellence of the many attractions was soon in evidence and all of the exhibitions were being well patronized.

Only one of the shows remained dark that of Wilson's Animal Show, where Madam Aurora features de-Artagnan, the famous horse back riding lion, caused by a slight accident to Madam Aurora trying to induce the King of Beasts that he must work whether he wanted to or not, this exhibition will open tonight.

The feature show the La Rose Electric Fountain makes its third visit to Peterboro and it is not only well, but favorable remembered. It cannot be called a show or performance but strictly a spectacular production combining electricity, fire and water, two spirtly young ladies assisting in the production, the bining and comingling of the different and opposite elements in such a wonderful and beautiful manner is the work of the noted electrician Mr. Geo. La Rose. This is the only exhibition of its kind travelling in this or any other country.

At Hagar's Autodrome, the seekers of sensation and thrills are given the acme of satisfaction in that sport. Hagar and his sister, Miss Alta give an exhibition of a dare devil riding on a motor cycle and regular motor car on walls as straight up and down as the walls of you home, travelling madly around amid a staccato of pops that makes you gasp for breath.

Metz's Wonderland is somewhat different than the usual attraction of its kind inasmuch that it presnts no repulsive freaks of any sort but has confined itself to nature's strange and curious workings. Here one can see a human being sans arms, sans legs, who is aptly termed the living half man, many other odities are to be witnessed also.

The Grapplers

For the lovers of the roped arena and the padded mat Jack Morrow entertains by meeting all comers in the wrestling line, nor does he bar size, weight, creed or color; several good matches have been arranged for the week and devotees of the grapling art are assured of some strenuous enjoyment. The razzle dazzle is just what the talker says, a house of mirth, this is a new one for this season and should not be confounded with "Over the Falls", as they are in no way similar. Four rides, whip, carrousel, ferris wheel, ad all cater to their clientele and add enjoyment to the occasion.

Jolly Babe is a tiny mite of humanity, who tips the scales at the modest weight of 635 and aged only 19. Babe says the weather doesn't bother her as she is single and has nothing to worry her except the fact that Paris reports the dresses are to be much longer and she can't see the waist of cloth. By the way she is a mighty good entertainer.

Of course it could not be a carnival without hot dog, pop corn and ice cream cones, to say nothing of the different games of skill where one tries to win the kiddie or sweetheart a kewpie, box of chocolates or some other trinket, and last night's crowd seemed to be on the winning side Prof. Sam Colasanti and his Liberty band gave an evening concert down-town which was greatly enjoyed by music lovers, this will be a daily feature. One should not forget to mention Hammond & Barry's dog and pony circus, this is especially entertaining to the ladies and children. The little animals are wonderfully trained and give an excellent exhibition.

Taken all together the attractions are all high class and of out-of-the ordinary merit, and as good enjoyment is as necessary as good food the out door amusement goers are assured a week of fun and enjoyment. All of the exhibitions will be open every afternoon and evening.

AT THE THEATRES

The Capitol, with its new blue and rose lights, was well filled last evening. The Pathe Review is always interesting, Topics of the Day is greeted with bursts of laughter, and the serial, "The Avenging Arrow," grows more exciting with each instalment. The two comedies, "Rush Orders," a Snub Pollard quick lunch scream, and "In Bad Again," are laugh producers, and the feature, "What's a Wife Worth?" received close attention. This is a heart-interest drama, intensifying the thrill of mother love. Ruth Renick, as Rose Morrison, and Casson Ferguson, as Bruce, her husband, have some big scenes and do some splendid acting in this interesting production. There are some pathetic bits in the picture, but the baby brings smiles. The predicament of the young husband with two wives is very cleverly worked out in a satisfactory ending.

CHOICE RECIPES

French Pastry From Fifth Avenue.

One of the most popular pieces on the trays of French pastry served in the tea rooms on the avenue is the fruit babas. To make, dissolve half a cake of compressed yeast in half a cup of lukewarm milk; add half a cup of flour and beat until smooth, place in a warm place to rise. Beat to a cream one-half cup of to the well risen sponge with two cups of sifted flour three well beaten eggs, three-quarters cup of chopped seeded raisins, three-quarters cup of seedless raisins and the grated rind of one lemon. Mix well and fill well buttered muffin tins half full. Place in a warm place until light and double in bulk and bake in a moderate oven.

Remove from the oven and cover at once with a frosting made from one cup of powdered sugar, one and a half tablespoons of hot water and one and a half tablespoons of orange juice.

Cream Puffs.

For delicious cream puffs place in a saucepan one cup of washed butter and two cups of boiling water, bring to a boil and add all at once two cups of sifted flour. Stir until it forms a ball that will not stick to the sides of the pan. Place the cooked paste in a bowl and beat in, one at a time, six eggs. With a teaspoon place the mixture in little balls on buttered pans, two inches apart. Bake twenty to thirty minutes in a moderate oven. When cool cut a small slit in the side and fill with whipped cream mixed with seedless raisins or chocolate filling. Dip tops in white frosting.

For the chocolate filling add to one and a half cups of scalded milk half a cup of flour mixed to a smooth paste with half a cup of cold milk. Place in a double boiler and cook fifteen minutes, stirring constantly. Beat the yolks of four eggs with one cup of sugar and a quarter teaspoon of salt and stir into the hot mixture. Add two squares of melted chocolate and one tablespoon of butter; cook until well blended, remove from the fire, cool and flavor with vanilla or almond.

Taxi drivers in Paris practically rule the boulevards, where they delight in jostling fares and, in general, making a trip around the city as uncomfortable for the passengers as possible.

PHYSICAL DIRECTRESS NAMED AT LONDON.

Miss Edith Pryce, of Peterborough, to Assume New Duties in September.

The following is taken from the London, Ontario, Free Press:

Miss Edith Pryce, late superintendent of physical instruction at the Peterborough Y.W.C.A., and at present supervisor of Thames Park playground, has been officially appointed physical instructress of the London Y.W.C.A., at a meeting of the board executive.

Miss Pryce's appointment meets a long-felt need of the local "Y," and if the use of the Western University gymnasium is obtained for the season, as is confidently expected, the winter programme of the Y.W.C.A. will come nearer than ever before to attaining the "Y" ideal of the "greatest good for the girl citizen."

The physical instructress will conduct all physical classes, will supervise the basket ball league, and will assist in the arrangement of the social evenings at the "Y." In addition, she will give certain periods of instruction to the women students at Western University, provided that the present plan of using the university gymnasium on Oxford Street is carried out.

For next summer, too, an important programme will be prepared, including indoor and outdoor baseball, and all types of out-of-door sports.

At Christmas it is intended to give some sort of fete, to demonstrate the progress of the classes to date.

Miss Pryce comes to the London Y.W.C.A. highly recommended, and great things are hoped for in the coming season. A definite programme will be drawn up by the physical education committee, of which Mrs. Harmon Westland is the convener, and Miss Pryce will assume her new duties in September.

AMERICAN AUTOMOBILE COMPANY MAY ESTABLISH BRANCH IN PETERBORO

REPRESENTATIVE OF FIRM IS IN THE CITY—LIKES PETERBORO.

For several days Mr. Byron Lederer, a representative of the Birmingham Motors, Jamestown, N.Y., has been in Peterborough seeking a Canadian site for their company, which will soon place on the market an automobile that embraces radical departures in the way of spring suspension from the several types motorists are all familiar with. While the American plant is being started the company considers a Canadian plant necessary for development of business on this side of the line.

The claim of the Birmingham Motors is that this car is the easiest riding car ever built, regardless of of price, and a car that will practically double the speed of other cars over rough roads, and this statement they are prepared to back up in actual competition with any car, regardless of make, under a cash forfeiture offer. In the Birmingham car as developed, there are no anxles. In the construction of the Birmingham chassis rigidity with light weight has been established. The running board and torque tube has been incorporated into the chassis; this feature, fully patented, marks a revolution in frame construction and allows the use of a light body, as it is not called upon to maintain great stresses.

Favours Peterborough.

When seen by the Examiner, Mr. Lederer spoke favourably of the company locting in Peterborough if the citizens supported it in a financial way. Enterprises cannot be started without capital and it is estimated that upwards of a million dollars is required to put the company on an operating basis. It practically amounts to this, Mr. Lederer said. "If $500,000 is subscribed in Peterborough to the stock, a plant will be erected here that will employ 200 or 300 men to start and turn out 40 cars a day, later, of course, expanding as business grew. "I have visited nearly every city and town in the States," said Mr. Lederer, "and have never been so favorably impressed with any place the size of your city." Excepting for your streets, general appearance of your public improvements, schools and houses, is far above the average American cities. Mayor A. A. McIntyre and City Clerk S. R. Armstrong drove me around showing what you had to offer and it was most interesting. Ald. G. N. Gordon, Ald. R. Jones and Ald J Hamilton have been more than painstaking in acquainting me with business conditions here and Mr J. J. Duffus, President of the Chamber of Commefce, has been very obliging. It is the intention of the Birmingham Motors to at once establish a Canadian branch, and Peterborough offers all the advantages we can ask. It is centrally located, has satisfactory railroad facilities and waterways; is a port of entry and there is reasonable light and power and the right kind of labour. I find, that many parts we expected to import can be manufactured here. Of course it rests with the headquarters at Jamestown, but Peterborough seems a very favourable location, although there are two other Canadian cities endeavoring to secure our plant.

Easy Riding.

It is the intention of the company to advertise the Birmingham as the Premier Rough Road Car of America. Under actual tests the car has proved its worth to this distniction and will travel where no other car can, it is stated. The car is built with a Continental Red Seal six cyinder motor, Timken roller bearings, Michelin Disc wheels, spring manufactured by Detroit Steel Products Co., Firestone tires, and is finished not in several layers of paint and varnish, but in Du Pont Fabrikoid, that is thoroughly waterproof, will not scratch, peel or blister, will needs only a one-storey building, in beauty. Mayor S. A. Carlson, of Jamestown, is President of the company, and C. E. Weaver, general manager. The policy of the company is to concentrate on quantity production, using only tried and recognized parts. No special machinery is therefore required and the plant which, through carrier systems, the cars can quickly be set up. quickly be set up.

NEW TORONTO RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION BEGINS UNDER CITY AUSPICES

TORONTO, July 26. — Eight o'clock this morning saw the beginning of street railway construction in Toronto, under Transportation Commission auspices.

The work marks the first step in the upbuilding of an all-city publicly owned railway system.

PEACHES DUE BY END OF WEEK.

Raspberry Crop Will Soon Be Thing of the Past.

Fruit men are awaiting the arrival of the peach crop with interest, and it is expected that by the end of the week peaches will be plentiful. The peach crop is only fair, growers state, and dealers do not look for cheap fruit. Canadian plums are arriving in good shipments but the crop is light according to the Toronto reports. Plums are expected in large shipments in a few days; meanwhile they sold at 30 cents a quart yesterday.

The rearguard of the raspberry crop is now in the stores, selling at 25c a box generally although some of the dealers have cut their prices a few cents below that. Huckleberries are plentiful at 35 and 40c a quart. The cheapest way to buy them is by the 11 quart basket though. One dealer was selling these large baskets at $2.75 yesterday.

Both the orange and lemon market is very firm, the dealers say, and no prospects of cheaper fruit for some time can be maintained. Lemons are wholesaling in Toronto at as high a price as $14 a case, almost twice what they were asking early in the summer.

This is the last week for cherries, fruit men state, and they hold out no hopes of householders being able to get any next week. Yesterday the ships were selling them at $1.7 to $2 an 11 quart basket. Tomatoes were coming in rapidly and one of the Charlotte street fruit dealers said that to-day he expected to have 50 baskets of tomatoes to sell at $1.50, or 15c a pound.

SOVIET CLAIMS FUNDS OF ITS PREDECESSOR

NEW YORK, July 26.—(Canadian Press).—Russian Soviet Government has served notice on four New York and Washington banks that it is owner of more than $179,000,000 deposited in these institutions by Boris Bahmsteff, who was appointed Russian Ambassador to the United States before the Soviets acquired control.

FISHING CONDITIONS GOOD AT ALGONQUIN

ALGONQUIN HOTEL, N. B., July 26.—All day the motor boats have been chug-chugging down the harbor and out into the bay, for it is glorious fishing water. The sky has been overcast nearly all day with the sun peeping through now and then. Everyone knows that the fish bite better on a day like this and every available motor has been engaged. Almost as early as sun rise they started out and only at sun set will they will be all in. The chief catch this year is cod. Haddock seem rather scarce though once in a while some one lands a big one. Some pollock are also caught, but not as many as in former years.

While the men are fishing the women have been playing bridge or puzzling out the fascinating stitch for the new sweaters. It is hard to believe that with the thermometer here at seventy and sixty-two, in the cities it is soaring to eighty-four in Montreal, eighty-two in Quebec, eighty-one in Ottawa, eighty-one in Toronto and seventy-two in London.

FRANK TATTERSALL LEAVING PETERBORO FOR SPOKANE CHURCH

GIFTED MUSICIAN WHO HAS BEEN ORGANIST OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH GOING TO LARGER FIELD.

On inquiry, it was learned from Mr. Frank Tattersall, organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Church, that he expects to leave Peterborough in August to fill a similar position in the city of Spokane, U.S. The congregation of St. Paul's, as well as many of our citizens, who have been delighted with Mr. Tattersall's marvellous public performances on the pianoforte, will share in the general regret that will be felt at losing him.

Mr. Tattersall came to Peterborough with a high reputation gained in the exacting music circles of England, where he had been described as the English Paderewski. Those who appreciated his art most in Peterborough likewise regretted that it was comparatively obscured by the obvious limitations of this city, and it is to be hoped that the city of Spokane will provide audiences worthy of his talent and his skill. Mr. Tattersall's technic is a wonderful accomplishment in itself, but he will be remembered in Peterborough not so much for his amazing facility of expression, but as an interpreter of Chopin and Liszt.

In social, as well as in musical circles, both Mr. and Mrs. Tattersall and their two promising young daughters will be missed because of their unostentatious, quiet, and pleasing manner which has won for them many sincere friends.

Mr. Tattersall's position in Spokane will open for him a wider and more useful field for his musical gifts, and the Presbyterian Church there will have secured not only a brilliant musician, but a Christian gentleman with high ideals. For Mr. Tattersall is firmly convinced that the influence of the church music as a religious adjunct is immeasurable. He is alive to the fact that through religious truth, musically interpreted, the soul can become uplifted when mere words sometimes fail.

Mr. Tattersall's relinquishment of his position in St. Paul's creates another break in this church's musical services, and one for which it will be difficult to find as proficient a successor.

One of Mr. Tattersall's reasons for accepting a temporary position in Peterborough was to gain some quiet rest and relaxation, and to recover from the harrowing effects of the most terrible sea experiences that the mind can imagine. He and his wife and three children had sailed from Liverpool for Canada in the ill-fated White Star liner Arabic, when it was torpedoed by the Germans and sank. With it went down Mrs. Tattersall and one of the children. The story of the rescue of Mr. Tattersall and his other two daughters is a thrilling one. Mr. Tattersall lost all his worldly goods when the Arabic went down, and he has been quietly endeavouring to regain his former status for his family and to fit himself again for his musical career, which was so suddenly interfered with by the wreck.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 26. — The Ministers of France, Great Britain, and Italy presented Premier Stambulinsky a joint memorandum calling the atention of the Bulgarian Government to certain alleged intrigues calculated to cause unrest in Thrace and bring about disagreeable consequences to Bulgaria.

The Premier, in reply, affirmed Bulgaria's desire for peace in the Balkans, and declared she had taken measures to ensure peace, not only in Thrace, but also along the frontiers of the neighbouring countries.

Bulgaria, he added, would always respect the desires of the Powers, and would never be the centre of trouble.

TRAFFIC BY-LAW AND PROVINCIAL LAW IN CONFLICT

STATUTE FIXES THE MINIMUM FOR DRIVING CARS AT 16 AND COUNCIL MAKES IT 14.

On the point of the minimum age of the drivers of vehicles, the city's new consolidated traffic bylaw conflicts with the Provincial traffic code. The Council has decided that "no horse or power propelled vehicle shall be driven upon any street in the city in charge of a driver less than fourteen years of age."

The Provincial regulation in this regard is as follows: "No person under the age of 16 years shall drive a motor vehicle, and no person over the age of 16 years and under the age of 18 years, shall drive a motor vehicle unless and until such person has passed an examination and obtained a license as provided in this Act, for a person who drives a motor vehicle for hire, pay or gain."

According to the Ontario statute, no person under 16 shall drive a motor vehicle. But the council reduces the age limit to fourteen years for both motor and horse vehicles. For guidance of the public some person in authority should inform the public whether the Council was acting within its jurisdition when this age clause was adopted.

FIRST ROUND TRIP OF SEASON

STEAMER STONEY LAKE CARRIED 250 PASSENGERS

The first round trip from Peterborough to Lindsay via the Stoney Lake and G.T.R., held yesterday, was very successful, about 250 persons joining in one of the best outings that may be had this warm weather. At 7.30 the steamer, under command of Capt. Scollard, left the George street wharf with the decks filled with people. The weather was propitious until Buckhorn was reached in the afternoon. Here a heavy thunder storm surrounded the boat, and at Bobcaygeon at 4 p.m. the storm became so severe that everyone had to take to the lower deck and salon. Lindsay was reached at 7 p.m., the train for home was taken a half hour later, and shortly after nine the G.T.R. left the tired but happy holidayers high and dry on the Peterborough platform from which they separated for their various destinations.

These trips will be run about every two weeks during the rest of the summer.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE NEARING END AND SCENE WILL SHIFT TO U.S. CAPITAL IN NEAR FUTURE

EAGER DISPOSITION TO PROMOTE SUCCESS OF DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE VISIBLE ON EVERY HAND IN LONDON.

MEIGHEN AND SMUTS ON DOMINION DELEGATION?

BY JOHN A. STEVENSON
(Special Despatch to the Examiner)
(Copyright, 1921)

LONDON, July 27.—The British premiers' conference has now reached the pen-ultimate stages, and the situation is being gradually clarified. Premier Meighen now expects to sail on the Carmania on July 30, landing at Halifax, unless contingencies as yet unforeseen occur.

There has been a steady interchange of views with Washington and the basis of a reasonable agreement as to the method of procedure is within reach. President Harding remains firm against any preliminary conference in London, but is willing to sanction preliminary diplomatic conversations touching the subject, in which, Dominion representatives like Premiers Hughes and Massey of Australia and New Zealand, who foresee obstacles in the way of their attending the main conference at Washington, will secure an opportunity of presenting their views.

On every hand, there is now visible an eager disposition to promote the success of the Washington confrence, and skeptics and doubters are reduced to silence. Plainly discernable, is a willingness to subordinate personal predilictions and conveniences for the larger end.

The truth is that no responsible statesman in view of present financial difficulties can afford to imperil his political future bye seeming to thwart in the slightest degree a project which at least holds some promise of liberation from the oppressive borders of a remenent expenditure.

Some uneasiness exists about the Japanese attitude as evidenced by Premier Kei Hara's recent interview, but there is little disposition to regard it as a final expression of a considered national policy. Other indications are available that Japan, if the agenda is made reasonably clear, will be an unqualified participant in the conference. Her desire to have a definite programme set is quite intelligible and excites no resentment. Last week there existed a danger that the Washington conference might never be held, but it has now disappeared. It has been practically decided in deference to American opinion that the British commonwealth shall be represented as an undivided unit.

Premiers Hughes and Massey, having promulgated their views before hand, will not need to be present; therefore, Premier Meighen of Canada and Premier Smuts of South Africa, if possible, will act as the delegates from the Dominions. There is no need for Premier Meighen to participate in the preliminary conversations. He will be regularly informed of the results.

The American government is firmly opposed to a postponement of the Washington Conference until spring, and urges November 11 as the date for the opening of the assembly. The interested governments are likely to agree and will immediately start the preparation of their respective cases.

The British premiers are likely to hold a few more meetings; for the purpose of discussing a policy suitable for adoption by the British delegation at Washington, and to receive some reports which are due. But the real work of the conference is over, and the scene now shifts to Washington.

Japan Accepts?

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Communication from Tokio believed to contain the formal acceptance by Japan of President Harding's invitation to participate in the International discussion of far Eastern questions as well as disarmament, reached the State Department to-day. Pending decoding and examination officials refused to comment an the nature of the communication and had made no decision as to its publication.

IRELAND TO HAVE 4 LEGISLATURES?

LONDON, July 27, (Canadian Press.) — The possibility that four legislatures may be established in Ireland, one each in the provinces of Ulster, Munster, Connaught and Leinster, under a central national parliament, is hinted at this morning by the Sketch, which says:

"It need not be assumed, as is done in so many quarters, that under unification there would be only two governing authorities. It has almost been overlooked that there are four great provinces in each with historical individuality."

After Whiskey In Wrong House

ARMED, MASKED BANDITS RANSACK HOUSE NEAR ST. THOMAS UNSUCCESSFULLY.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 27. — Four armed men, masked bandits, travelling in a high powered car, burst their way into the home of Fred Hill, west of this city last night, and after binding Mr. Hill's hands behind his back, and locking him and his mother in a room, searched the house from cellar to garret, depating with ten dollars in money.

The county police who are investigating the case, believe that the robbers got into the wrong house by mistake and were after a large quantity of liquor said to have been purchased by a man in that district. Mr. Hilu described the intruders as young men and strangers. He and his wife were released by one of the quartette before they left. Mr. Hill was unable to notify the police department immediately after the burglargs left on account of having their telephone wires cut. He told the police that they threatened to shoot him if he did not tell where his whiskey was.

AMOUNT OF PAY SLASH NOT YET DECIDED ON

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 27. — "The Commission has decided on a wage reduction for the men on the Chippewawa works," was the statement of Sir Adam Beck, after the conference of the Provincial Hydro Commissoin with the representatives sent over from Niagara by the men.

"Does that mean a cut for the laborers?" he was asked.

"No: it will apply to all the trades," said the Hydro chairman.

But, the extent of the cut, he said, had not yet been determined. That would be left until a further conference next Tuesday with the men's representatives.

"You can say that the engineers on the Chippewa work, the men on the steam shovels, and the men on the motive power, will not accept a wage cut. That is definite," said Frank Healey, and R. O. Jarmon, the business agents of these unions, at the close of the conference. They made it plain that no matter what the other unions did, they would not accept a reduction in wages.

GREEKS SAY TURK RESISTANCE BEEN BROKEN ENTIRELY

TURKS CLAIM GREEK LOSS IS HEAVY ALSO—BANDITS RAID TURK TOWN.

ATHENS. July 27 (Canadian Press). — Information from all sources indicates that the resistance of the Turkish Nationalists in Asia Minor is completely broken, the Greek official news agency declares in a statement issued here today."

The Turkish losses in killed, wounded, and prisoners to date are estimated at 60,000.

The Greek statement says they are constantly pressing the Kemalists along the road to Angeria.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 27 (Canadian Press). — The Turkish Nationalist Prime Minister, Feyzi Pasha, told the National Assembly last night that although the Turks had been obliged to yield ground in the face of the Greek advance, the Greeks had suffered terrible losses.

The region between Kutaia and Eski-Shehr, which was recently captured by the Greeks, was covered with thousands of bodies, he declared.

Circassian bandits appeared to-day in Karnabogha, on the Sea of Marmora, 25 miles east of Gallinoli, raided the town and killed the Turkish Governor and the commander of the Gendarmerie.

200 PER CENT. PROFIT BEING MADE ON MEAT

INVESTIGATION IN MONTREAL REVEALS CUSTOMERS PAYING 15 TO 20 CENTS A POUND TOO MUCH, IT IS ALLEGED.

MEAT MAN DECLARES PUBLIC IS TO BLAME

MONTREAL, July 27.—Customers are paying fifteen and, even twenty cents a pound too much for their meat in many local butcher shops, according to men prominent in the meat trade. "The public is to blame for the high prices," said one of the informants. "They should demand cheaper meat."

The very finest cuts of beef should be sold for not more than thirty-five or thirty-six cents a pound, and in cash-and-carry stores, where the dealer has no delivery expenses, the price for the choicest beef should be somewhere between twenty-five and thirty cents a pound, he stated.

It is slowly dawning on purchasers that there is far too great a discrepancy between the price of 6 and 7 cents which the farmer gets for choice cattle on the hoof, and the price of 50 cents a pound for sirloin steak, which they carry home themselves. When asked for an estimate one authority informed that, in the old days before the war, it was considered a fair rate for the dealer to double the price which he paid for the whole carcass, when he estimated the proper retail price for sirloin and other choice cuts. Now, owing to increased overhead expenses, it is only fair to add a little to the butcher's selling margin: but even when making ample provision for the increased cost, present prices are far too high.

The present quotation for dressed beef is fifteen cents in Montreal, and the highest rate charged is 17 cents. This is the price for the whole carcass. On a basis of fifteen cents as the wholesale rate, and allowing the retail butcher, 133 1-3 per cent. for his expenses (which is considered a generous estimate), the best cuts, sirloin and chops, could be sold for 35 cents at a fair profit, it was said. In the case of cash-and-carry establishments, where there are no delivery rigs, and no expense for drivers, horses and feed, the butcher can make a profit even when he allows less than a hundred per cent. for overhead.

Delivery Costs.

This is the ideal selling arrangement, according to men engaged in the trade, for in the last few years particularly the public has learned to demand so much in the way of service, that the initial cost of the article is dwarfed by the expenses the merchant has to pay to satisfy the housewife's whims. More and more people are acquiring the habit of telephoning to the butcher for a pound and a half of steak or a pound of chops, and butchers say it often costs them more to deliver it than the meat is worth. However, the public find little encouragement to carry home their own bundles of meat, when they pay top-notch prices anyway. Sirloin steak at an uptown cash-and-carry store was placarded the other day fifty cents a pound, a price at least three times the cost of the meat, and one which allowed the butcher a margin of two hundred per cent. instead of less than one hundred.

Porterhouse chops could be had for 45 cents, beef chops for 35 cents, beef tongue for 36 cents, flank steak for 30 cents, and stewing beef for 18 cents a pound. The only sign of decreased prices was for liver, which was marked 8 cents. Nowhere was there evidence of any reduction because of the lack of delivery service. On the other hand to prove that a successful business can be carried on at lower prices, and that there is plenty of trade for butchers, whose charges are not excessive, a cash-and-carry store has been pointed out where even in this, the slack season, the lines of people waiting to be served extend out into the street.

In the butchers' shops where a delivery service is maintained, and where it is considered reasonable to allow a little over a hundred per cent. as a margin, the merchant, it was found, as a rule, generously allows himself two hundred per cent., while in the case of cooked ham he charges what the traffic will bear, 75c a pound at the present time. Thirty-five cents is the usual price for round steak, while veal cutlets bring fifty cents a pound and veal steak sells for forty. According to the informant sirloin should be selling for the price of round and the round itself should be still lower.

Costly Bones.

The price of first-class dressed calves is fifteen cents at the outside, and yet dealers are charging five cents more for the steak and about fifteen cents a pound more for the cutlets than the fair rate, 35 cents. Stories are told of butcher-shops where soup-bones are sold for two cents a pound, but when enquiries were made at an uptown shop as to the price of this article which dealers claimed they couldn't give away, the reporter was informed that they could be had at the rate of two pounds for 25 cents. It is scarcely to be wondered, at that soup meat

LOSES LIFE IN AN ATTEMPT TO SAVE HIS WIFE

DR. STONE, PRESIDENT OF PERDUE UNIVERSITY, FALLS TO DEATH IN MOUNTAIN CREVICE IN ROCKIES.

WIFE LIVES AND IS EXPECTED TO RECOVER

BANFF, Alta., July 27.—(United Press.) —The lure of the Canadian Rockies to-day claimed the life of Dr. W. E. Stone, President of the Purdue University, and one of the country's leading educators.

The body of Dr. Stone was found jammed between two sharp jettings of rock at the base of Mount Asnon. He had fallen into the crevice while attempting to rescue his wife.

Mrs. Stoney was found seriously injured, lying at the foot of the crevice.

Her husband had attempted to pull her to the surface with a rope. He did not have strength enough to carry out his purpose and he lowered himself to her side. Gathering his wife in his arms Dr. Stone attempted to climb back. He lost his footing and fell back into an even deeper cervice. Death was believed to have been instantaneous, so great was the fall.

Mrs. Stone tumbled back into the shallower crevice, where she was forced to lie until rescuing parties found her Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. Stone left the camp on July 17 on a practice climb of three days in order to condition themselves for the big Alpin climb at Lake Ohara this week.

Mrs. Stone was rushed to an emergency hospital at Camo, Assiniboi, and a corps of doctors and nurses sent from here, ministered to her.

Physicians said she may recover. She would not talk of her harrowing experience, during which she spent hours lying in the crevice a foot from the body of her husband. She did not know of his death, however, until informed by her rescuers.

The body of Stone was found on Sunday. It took nearly an entire day to remove it from the crevice, and guides from the camp did not return with the news until late last night. The brief word reaching her from the guides was a message telling of heroism and tragedy.

FAMILY WIPED OUT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

FIVE DEAD FOLLOWING FATAL CRASH IN CLEVELAND LAST NIGHT.

CLEVELAND, O., July 27. (Canadian Press.) — Five persons were killed, four of them almost instantly, when a shuttle car on the Abbey viaduct and an automobile, crashed head on shortly after midnight.

One family was wiped out, when John M. Francyk, 40, garage owner, his wife, 37, and their two children, Edna Mary, aged 10, and Theodore, 9 months, were killed.

The fifth person killed was Mrs. Anna Branloff, 40. Her husband was seriously injured.

Each of the dead sustained a fractured skull.

CUBA PLANS INCREASE IN SUGAR PRODUCTION

URGENT LEGISLATION INCLUDES NINE MEASURES TO THIS END.

HAVANA, Cuba, July 27. (Canadian Press.) Provision for increasing the production of sugar and for sending a commercial mission to Washington to secure a revision of the reciprocity treaty between the United States and Cuba, are include among the nine measures constituting the urgent legislative programme drafted yesterday by the Congressional leaders and President Zayas.

YUKON LIQUOR VOTE COMPLETE REVULSION

(Special Despatch to The Examiner).

DAWSON CITY, Yukon, July 27.—Returning Officer Craig today announced the returns of the plebiscite held on July 11 on the question of the importation of liquor into the Yukon Territory. The vote was 2 to 1 in favor of importation, and is regarded as showing a general revulsion of feeling over the whole territory after one year's experience of "bone dry" prohibition and the consequent bootlegging and illicit stills and showing that the people want Government control of the sale of liquor.

FIND NO BASIS FOR CONFERENCE

VALERA AND COLLEAGUES STILL SEARCH FOR COMMON GROUND HOWEVER.

DUBLIN, July 27 (Canadian Press). — Eamonn DeValera, Irish Republican leader, and his colleagues had not yet found a basis for the proposed conference with the British Government in London, but are continuing to search for a common ground on which the contending parties can meet, it was stated in a well-informed quarter to-day.

TAXING ALL CARS IN U.S. SUGGESTED

ESTIMATED SCHEME WOULD BRING REVENUE OF $100,000,000

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 27. — A federal license tax on all autos is being considered by the House Ways and Means Committee in its revision of the revenue laws. The proposal also has been submitted to President Harding.

Tax rates of $5, $10 and $15 a car have been suggested. It is estimated that there are 10 million passenger-carrying autos in the country, and the backers of the plan believe that at least $100,000,000 should be

ULSTER TO KEEP PRESENT RIGHTS, HOCKEN BELIEVES

ORANGE LEADER ADDRESSES GRAND LODGE IN TORONTO

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, July 27.—Grand Master H. C. Hocken, addressing the Grand Orange Lodge of British North America, this afternoon, referring to the Irish question, expressed the belief that the authorities would not sacrifice the people of Ulster to placate the "Rebels."

"Until a final decision is reached, however, the friends of Ulster will watch developments with apprehension," he said. "If the negotiations now proceeding fail it will not be the fault of Ulster."

"All that Northern Ireland asks is security within the Empire to work out the new institutions so recently imposed upon that part of the country."

He asked all Orangemen to join in expressing the hope that Lloyd George may succeed in effecting a settlement that will be safe for the Empire and Ulster.

INSTALLING WATERWORKS AT ST. ANDREWS-BY-THE-SEA

ALGONQUIN HOTEL, N. B., July 27.—St. Andrews is almost filled with tourists. The heat in the United States and in the Canadian cities have driven many to the seashore. This has been considered a warm day for St. Andrews with a temperature of 62 and 70; but what is that compared to 84 in Montreal, 89 in Ottawa, 87 in Toronto and in Quebec 78?

The links are crowded every day by enthusiastic golfers. Yesterday saw the beginning of the play for the Passamoquody Cup, ladies' handicap presented by Mr. F. H. Markey of Montreal. This competition will not be finished until Friday. This match is played on the eighteen-hole course.

Great progress is being made with the installation of the waterworks. It is now almost certain that the work will be finished by September, although it has been unpleasant having the street torn up, but no one has grumbled, for the resulting benefit will be so great.

RUM ROW LOOMS IN BATTLE FOR N. OXFORD SEAT

PROHIBITIONISTS IN VACANT CONSTITUENCY INDUCE ROSS TO RUN ON THEIR TICKET IN BY-ELECTION.

LIBERTY LEAGUE WILL ENTER THE FRAY ALSO

(Special Despatch to The Examiner).

WOODSTOCK, July 22.—D. R. Ross, of Embro announced this morning that in response to the urgent representations of a large body of supporters he will be a candidate in the by-election in North Oxford to fill the seat rendered vacant by the death of the late John A. Calder.

This step is being taken, he said, particularly in view of the announcement from Toronto that the Liberty League intended to place a candidate in the field. Mr. Ross is going to run as a prohibitionist, and he said that he expected that he would get more than 90 per cent. of the women's votes, because practically all of them are prohibitionists. He further claims the support of a large part of the Liberal party as he has been a staunch Liberal all his life and a member of the Liberal Association for years.

GHAUFFEURS MUST PRODUCE LICENCES

SAXI DRIVERT AND CARTERS MUST REPORT TO THE POLICE AT ONCE.

To correct the list of registered taxi and bus drivers, carters, and expressmen, the police require that every one of such occupation report at the Station before Saturday with his tag or number given him with his license, so that he may be correctly entered with the right number and his name and address.

While many men engaged in this business are correctly entered, there are many, the police say, whose numbers are lacking, and in some cases there is evidence of numbers having been exchanged. It is with a view to having the entire list correct that the drivers and those of kindred occupation are asked to attend personally and give the facts. Those who did not secure tags with their license can then get them, as there is a plentiful supply now.

Taxi drivers who have no chauffeur's license are forewarned to get them before facing the offiuers, for the Chief stated to-day that every one would assuredly be asked if he was a licensed chauffeur.

Measures will be taken to enforce the law requiring every taxicab driver to have chauffeur's license, and prosecutions will be made if delinquents do not bestir themselves.

NERVOUS BALDNESS.

A correspondent who signs her letter "Anxious" describes a small, round, bald spot about the size of a dime which she found on her young daughter's head —the girl otherwise had a head of thick, long hair. Other women have written in from time to time, describing similar small spots of the top and back of the head.

Now this is generally what is called "alopecia areata" or "nervous baldness," and is found mostly in children or young women. It is perhaps contagious, because where one child in a school gets it, almost at once several others will; one soldier shows it, and several others in his company are at once attacked. This would seem to prove the theory of microbic origin, but the general opinion is that it is a nervous and rather common trouble.

The electric treatment is most effective for this, high frequency currents, or the violet ray treatment. Using vaseline on the spots daily, is effective too—carbolated vaseline (which contains a little carbolic and is therefore antiseptic) besing best. If possible, a hair specialist should give the treatment — ne that really knows his business; for if neglected or if a variety of useless hair washes are used, the trouble is apt to spread. Of course the spot must be kept clean, and the child's health given extra consideration. Plain, easily-digested, nourishing food, and an absence of anything that would make her nervous or irritable, are necessary.

THE TURKISH BATH.

The Turkish bath is a successful method of finding out what purgatory feels like.

Long before the people of this country had come to know and love Turkey it was the custom in that strange land to take a bath every once in a while. The peaceful hyena-hearted subjects of the sultan tried out several kinds of baths before lighting on the one which has brought comfort to so many burdened souls and volcanic stomachs. They tried out the sponge bath and the washbasin bath and the tub bath and the mud bath and the alcohol rub, but none seemed to meet the needs of their rough, hack-saw natures as well as the home-made variety, which is still used in Turkey at painful and irregular intervals.

The Turkish bath was brought to this country to stimulate the crop of total abstainers and has been an effective aid to temperance. After a man who has become carefully intoxicated from his ears down enters a Turkish bath for the first time and watches himself turn to the bright pink color of a porterhouse steak, he will either sign the pledge at once or draw a short, crisp will leaving his property to the W.C.T.U. A Turkish bath, properly given, will drive a brand new drinker so high up on the water wagon that he can't be heard without talking on his fingers.

The Turkish bath is given in a small tight room which contains everything but the head of the patient, which is allowed to stick out and wonder how long it will be before the roast is done. Live steam which has never been used on anybody before is introduced into the room and locates at once on its victim which it proceeds to parboil at slow and easy stages. When the patient has been reduced to a mellow state and can hardly be told from a tomato salad, the steam is turned off, after which an unfeeling but muscular mechanic seizes a long towel with a sand-paper finish and uses it as a draw shave. This is one of the most soothing processes on record, and imparts a dull gloss finish to the cuticle.

It is a great mistake to decry the Turkish bath, or any kind of a bath, but it would be more popular if there were more bath and less Turk in it.

GOING IN.

A straw may have broken the camel's back and we may speak of the blow that killed father. But the final and crushing burden which Fate may unload on a poor perishing Naval Officer is that of putting a ship in commission.

"Going in commish?" one inquires. The invariable reply is: "No; going insane!"

One Commander was explaining his gray hairs. Early last spring, it seems, he got orders to hike for the smoky confines of a certain shipyard and take charge of a new destroyer going in. She had been launched and was taking stores and equipment aboard preparatory to putting out for a trial spin.

With some misgivings the new skipper picked his way through a howling wilderness of steel cranes and roaring forges to the dock where his Baby lay. He found her out of sight behind a mountain of cases, tanks, boats, rigging, spare stanchions, engine parts, liquid fuel, and fresh vegetables.

The Company's representative met the naval hero at the gangway. "Glad to see you, sir," said the Cit. "We'd just about decided to order sea-stores without waiting for you."

"Order them!! You mean to say she can take anything more?"

The Cit. laughed. "Don't get discouraged. This mess is just the permanent cargo—spares, reserve supplies, and all that; stuff you would need in case you were wrecked or went adrift."

It proved to be so. For next day came ammunition and a full set of rifles, pistols, grenades, and cutlasses for the crew. These with a few thousand boiler tubes, a dozen twenty-foot torpedoes, and all the wardroom furniture made it necessary to stow the "reserve supplies," as the Cit. had called them.

For two solid weeks the crime went on. Crime, indeed, for the thin-skinned sea warrior fairly bulged with her load. To make matters worse cases and packages were of every conceivable size. Whole carloads of paint drums, bundles of waste, coils of wire, bedding, boathooks, oars, broomsticks, bolts of canvas, knives, tools, and a billion other articles poured in a steady swamping stream upon the shoulders of the unhappy Commander.

Not only did he have to straighten out all this material mess but he was frantically busy with whipping a new crew into shape, so new that they still had to fight instead of argue. Which didn't help much.

"No wonder, Commander, that you're gray!" exclaimed a sympathetic listener to the harrowing tale.

"Wait a bit," was the reply, "I haven't got to that yet. It was bad when all this muddle came. I hated the man who told me our crank shafts didn't fit. I lost sleep when the torpedo gyros side-swiped their air-valves. And I nearly resigned when the ship's cook got measles. But what silvered my hair with gray and clipped ten years from my span of life was the day I spent helping my wife pick out an Easter bonnet."

"No," re reflected, "'going in isn't so bad after all when you come to think of Easter bonnets—say man, you're married. Ain't I right?"

SOME LARGE FISH.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Common of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Summerfield and Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood, who have been on a fishing trip to Rice Lake, had some good luck. They landed a twelve pound lunge, a bass weighing four and one-half pounds, and a pickerel which tipped the scales at five and one-half pounds.

Mr. P. Snider, Mrs. Curtis, Miss Rosamond Jewell and Miss Gwendolyn Huffman, of Toronto, motored to the city yesterday, and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Johnson, 157 Dublin street.

IMPRUDENT, NOT IMPUDENT.

By a typographical error in the report of Judge Huycke's judgment in the case of Breckenridge vs. Morris, the omission of the letter "r" in the word imprudent vastly changed the meaning of the sentence in which it appeared as impudent. The corrected passage referring to Mr. Fred Wilkins' acting as engineer in making the award that precinitated the litigation follows: "I will venture the opinion that under the existing circumstances it was mos unwise for the Council to appoint him, and imprudent in Mr. Wilkins to accept such appointment."

LARGE CROWD TOOK IN SHOW LAST EVENING

WILSON ANIMAL SHOW OPENED— THE ATTRACTIONS.

Tuesday night's crowd at the Carnival, now being held at the Exhibition Grounds where the World of Mirth Shows are presenting an unusual line up of attractions, exceeded that of Monday's all seeming bent on seeing everything to be seen, and at the time to deplete the different concessions of their stock, good nat ure predominated all looking for, and evidently finding wholesome enjoyment, the grounds were gaily decorated Tuesday by adding long strings of different colored pennants which greatly enhanced the bazaar effect. Wright and Linderman, managers, are young, but progressive showmen, who have every interest of their patrons at heart. The street car company is giving excellent servic which greatly adds to the comfort of the vast throng.

Last night witnessed the opening of the Wilson Animal show and it was well attended. Capt. Harry Wilson has spent the major part of his life to produce an act in wild animal subjugation that would not only be novel, but sensational as well and by introducing Madam Auro-- and her horseback riding lion de Artiganan it appears he has reached the climax for one can readily realize the immense amount of patience necessary and the dangers incurred to induce a horse, who has a natural antipathy for a lion, to allow the lion to leap as well as ride upon its back, and one the other hand to keep the lion from attacking the horse, but through the efforts of this noted trainer the almost impossible had been accomplished and as a fitting finale she, to a certain degree has fulfilled the Biblical prohpecy of the lion and the lamb, by inducing a dog and a lion to eat raw meat from the same plate. At last night's performance the trainer seemed to have her hands full as the king of beasts was in an exceptional surly mood due perhaps to the intense heat.

ISSUE WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS AGAINST BRITISH COMMANDERS IN IRELAND FOLLOWING TRIAL

ALL OFFICERS IN CASE OF EGAN, SENTENCED TO DEATH BY MILITARY COURT, ARE INCLUDED.

COURT CLAIMS MILITARY COURT NOT NECESSARY

DUBLIN, July 27. — (Canadia Press.)—An important judgment was delivered in the Chancery Division yesterday, when the Master of Rolls ordered a writ of habeus corpus returnable Friday against General Sir Nevil Macready, commander of the British troops in Ireland, Major General Sir Edward Strickland, division commander, and others in the case of Egan, sentenced to death by a military court at Limerick in June for having ammunition in his possession.

In the long judgment the Master of Rolls has decided that Egan should have been tried by court martial under the Restoration Act. The claim of the military authorities that the existence of a state of insurrection justified them in over-riding the legislation seemed to him to call for a new Bill of Rights. There were considertions more important than the temporary duration of an insurrection. Among them were the eternal principles of justice which could not be violated without detriment to the interests and feeling of a civilized feeling of a civilized community.

HUSBAND TELLS OF BIG CHANGE

"THE WAY TANLAC RESTORED MY WIFE IS NOTHING SHORT OF WONDERFUL," HE SAYS,

"What Tanlac has done for my wife is nothing short of wonderful and I'm gald to recommend it to others," said Earl George Bradley, well-known electric operator on the Dominion Power and Transmission Co., residing at Ancaster, Ont. while at the Parke and Parke Drug Store in Hamilton, the other day.

"Nearly a year ago my wife suffered a severe attack of influenza which developed into pneumonia, and after this she gained strength very slowly. Her appetite was so poor and her stomach was so disordered she could scarcely eat anything, and she complained of feeling tired and worn out all the time. She couldn't sleep nights, and mornings seemed more tired than on going to bed. In this awful condition she could hardly stay up, to say nothing of doing her housework.

"But Tanlac soon brought about a great change in her condition. She has taken four bottles now and her appetite is good, and she has gained so much in weight and strength she says she hardly feels like the same person. She sleeps well, too, and Tanlac has done her a world of good in every way, and she is still gaining in weight and strength." Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

"ULSTER ROCK" OBSTACLE, SAYS DUBLIN REPORT

SINN FEIN LEADERS EVIDENTLY FIND IT DIFFICULT TO SURMOUNT IN NEGOTIATING FOR PEACE.

PRESENT TERMS ARE ONLY BARE OUTLINES

LONDON, July 27.— (Canadian Press.)—The uncanny silence Dublin maintained relative to the British Government's proposals would create uneasiness but for the known fact that the Sinn Fein leaders are engaged in daily discussion of these proposals which, as Austen Chamberlain, government leader, revealed in the House of Commons yesterday, were only outlines and principles. This is interpreted to mean that they afford a basis for continued negotiations. No reply has yet been received by the Prime Minister form Mr. De Valera.

According to reports current in Dublin, what is called the "Rock of Ulster," is the great obstacle which must be taken into consideration.

MRS. SMITH-WILKENSON NO PIKER, PLANS TO KNOCK NEW YORK DIZZY

(By Lloyd Allen, United Press Staff (Correspondent.)

NOTTINGHAM, Eng., July 27.—Mrs. Edward Henry Smith-Wilkinson announced to-day her intention of educating the United States.

"When I get there," she said, "to the land of the almighty dollar, I'll show them what dollars were made for."

With that warning New Yorkers should not be surprised to see a neat yacht steam up New York bay sometime soon, throwing off a rich golden aura.

It will be merely Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson and her:

$3,400,000 worth of jewelry
$128,000 worth of gowns.
$64,000 worth of hats.
$60,000 sable coat.

Talented Henry.

And——

Her husband, who may be exercising his acknowledged talent in em broidering a Dorothy bag.

Mrs. Edwrad Henry Smith- Wilkinson has had other husbands. With their help and a number of coast resorts under her control she accumulated a fortune which was enhanced by judicious war-time investments.

Mr. Smith-Wilkinson, several years her junior, formerly was plain Mr. Smith.

They dazzled Paris.

Bowled 'Em Over.

When she entered the Claridge dining- room, Paris stood on its dining chairs and called upon its sacred pigs.

Then she returned to her home town, Nottingham, prepared to go to New York and take everything with her.

"I'm a self-made woman and I can afford to do it," she told the United Press in discussing her plans of invasion.

Lure of Feminine Fails to Draw Men to Church

OXFORD, England, July 26. — Kinemas having failed to attract young men into the churches, the clergy are thinking of going back to the old way of enticing a man with a maid.

It has been remarked that nearly the whole of the church congregation to-day is composed of women, and with the object of luring young men into the straight and narrow way, a deep and subtle plan was mooted at the vestry meeting of St. Peter-le-Bailey here.

'Fill up the two front rows of seats with pretty girls, and that will mean more men in the back seats," it was suggested.

One London clergyman, indeed, confessed that he had already put the scheme into effect —but it had not worked out correctly. He had made a selection of the prettiest girls among his flock to make collections and show people to their seats. But, instead of attracting young men inside the church, he found the only result was an assorted and impatient group of young men waiting outside the church to greet the girls as they made their exit. The pious little feminine quota also took to hurrying through the service and dashing out to meet their swains before the service was through.

RUSSIAN TRANSPORTATION BREAKDOWN IS SERIOUS

WARSAW, July 27.—(Associated Press).—Russia's transportation difficulties, because of the general deterioration of the railroads under the Bolshevik regime, according to Moscow reports, have brought about an odd situation. While Southern Russia has a surplus of corn and has been endeavoring to export it to Italy, Northern Russia has been buying the same kind of grain from foreign countries.

The railroad situation is said to be particularly bad in Central Russia and only recently it was reported that the service between Moscow and Kiev had been reduced to an average of one train a week for freight and passengers.

Russia's metal production is reported to have reached but two per cent. of the pre-war figures, the coal production about 20 per cent. and the oil production 40 per cent.

She will recover, it is understood at Camp Assiniboine headquarters, where she was taken. Nurses have already been sent out and everything possible being done for her. Telegrams were dispatched re Dr. Stone's relatives in Lafayette, Ind., last night.

MAKE GAS FROM OLD OAK LOGS IN SUSSEX, ENG.

LONDON, July 27.—(Associated Press).—Gas made from old oak logs is now being supplied successfully to the inhabitants of Steyning in Sussex. Other towns are rapidly following suit. It is claimed that this wood gas practically the same heating and lighting properties as coal gas and its use means a saving of more than half a dollar per 1,000 cubic feet to the consumer.

The Steyning gas works being threatened with closure owing to the prohibitive price of coal, about £5 a ton, the carbonization of wood was resorted to as an experiment, with the result that wood gas has been definitely adopted as an illuminant until the price of coal comes down.

At Birmingham old road pavnig blocks have been converted into wood gas with equally satisfactory results.

AN UNFORTUNATE DECISION.

The Building Trades Council of Toronto, after cosidering the matter for some time, and after several conferences with contractors and manufacturers, has refused to accept the proposed ten per cent. reduction in wages. The decision seems to be an unfortunate one, inasmuch as the maintenance of the present scale of wages is regarded as a decided obstruction to building activities and a general reduction of ten per cent. would have done much to create new confidence and stimulate the launching out of new building enterprises. It is felt by contractors that in view of the falling cost of living the workers in the building trades should be willing to make their contribution in restoring conditions to a condition more nearly approaching normal, and their refusal at this time to do so will have the very unfortunate effect of slowing up building operations and increasing the ranks of the unemployed. It is certain that until there is a further decline in the cost of material and of labour the only building that will be undertaken will be work that cannot be postopend.

CLOSE THE LOOPHOLES.

When the measure known as the Parents' Maintenance Act, which makes, under certain conditions, children responsible for taking care of their parents, was passed during the last session of the Legislature, there was general approval of the Act, the press hailing it as an enlightened and progressive piece of legislation that had been sadly lacking from the statute books. Unfortunately, judging from a case in the women's court in Toronto this week, there appears to have been some carelessness in regard to the Act, for it is claimed that no proclamation has been found, nor was there any notice published in the Gazette as required to make the measure operative. If these contentions are true, the loose ends should be attended to as soon as possible. Legislation requiring children, who are financially in a position to do so, to maintain their aged parents, should not be, but unfortunately is, necessary, and its effectiveness should not be marred by any legal technicalities or loopholes that allow the act to be violated.

A NEGLECTED DUTY.

The chairman of the Ontario Railway Board is reported to have sather sharply criticized the City of Peterborough for its delay in commencing the construction of a sewage disposal plant. The criticism cannot be strongly resented, for it must be confessed that we have shown, to put it mildly, no undue haste in dealing with this problem. The sewage disposal plant should have been installed years ago, but Council after Council has shelved the matter, leaving it for another year's group of aldermen to handle. It is of more importance to Peterborough and to the townships bordering on the river than was the construction of the Hunter street bridge; yet the latter enterprise, coming to the fore years after the sewage disposal plant was first mooted, was launched, and is almost completed, while the pollution of the Otonabee by the sewage of Peterborough continues. It may be an expensive undertaking, but the installation of a modern system of disposing of the city's sewage cannot long be deferred. It is a responsibility that we must accept and discharge. Our municipal pride, if nothing else, demands that we do not continue any longer than is absolutely necessary, a nuisance that is offensive to our neighboring townships and that seriously menaces the charm of one of the most beautiful rivers in Ontario.

SUCCESSFUL LOCAL DEFLATION.

Although it is bad logic to argue from the particular to the general, yet it remains true that an experiment on a small scale can illustrate the soundness of a general principle. Such an example appears to be that provided by the town of Dunbar, Pennsylvania, which recently gave an illuminating demonstration of the proper way to conduct the process of deflation. As it happens, a few thousand persons in that centre depend for their livelihood on the operation of a series of plants owned by the company. In view of discouraging business conditions the management felt compelled to shut down for an indefinite period. Under these circumstances the employees got together and offered to take a cut of forty per cent. in their wages if the company would agree to keep the factories going. This was agreed to, and, by way of appreciation of the sensible spirit shown by the workers, the company reduced the rent of its houses by forty per cent. The stores then took a hand in the matter by at once lowering prices.

It is obvious that if something of this nature took place all over North America the return to normal conditions would be immediate. These common sense working people at Dunbar realised that it is the purchasing power of wages which counts rather than the volume of money. At the present time the value of a dollar is somewhat around 60 cents, as measured by its power to buy, and it will not be worth one hundred cents until the cost of commodities, including labour, comes down materially. When that takes place, everybody will be as well off as they now are under conditions of inflation. The trouble is, however, that the matter has become a class problem, and each class wants the other to give way first. What is needed is a little of the Dunbar spirit, and then we should quickly see unprecedented activity in building, and unemplo ment a thing of the past.

The most distressing aspect of the existing situation is the loss which those who resist bring on themselves and on others. The coal strike in Great Britain is an example. It would be impossible to compute the actual loss which grew out of that three months' strike of the miners; but it is known to run into billions of dollars. The loss of wages alone was three billions. Directly and indirectly the amount would probably rise to five times that sum. While Great Britain was being held to comparative inactivity she lost one of her finest opportunities since 1918 to extend her trade. That loss can never be retrieved.

To ask workers to bear the brunt of deflation is, of course, unjust. In Great Britain a plan has been evolved by which wages automatically follow the cost of living. The curious thing on this side of the Atlantic is that, while the war was in progress, wages were adjusted to meet the rising cost of commodities; but now that commodity prices are declining, the doctrine is asserted that wages should have little or nothing to do with the cost of living. Such a contention would be more or less harmless if it were not wholly impracticable. It is like saying that a man can eat his pudding and have it too. While the cost of production is kept up prices will also remain high, and the purchasing power of the dollar will stay at sixty cents. To make a dollar in wages buy a dollar's worth of necessities, all the factors in pro-direction must be reduced. That is not only elementary economics, but it is obviously common sense. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

PARIS, July 26. — Statistics compiled by the French in the restored provinces of Alsace and Lorraine, show that 80,000 of the German population have quit those provinces since the armistice and taken up their residence beyond the Rhine, rather than become French citizens.

It is remarked that those persons are among the "most exalted nationalities' in Germany, and that they are active in organizing another brand of hyphenated associations—called the "Alsace-Lorraines" — the purpose of which is to vindicate the rights of the fatherland "on the land of empire."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor:

Dear Sir: I notice in your paper of Saturday, July 23rd, that Ald. Hamilton stated that the men employed on the Hunter street bridge did not do a normal day's work, and that the council was the cause of the same to some extent. Now, Mr. Editor, it has taken Ald. Hamilton a long time to find this out. What has the chairman of the Special Bridge Committee been doing that he did not find this out before the bridge was nearly finished. If he knew of the same, why did he not go to the contractors and tell them that the men were not earning their money. No contractor is bound to keep a workman who loafs on the works. What was the superintendent and six foremen there for? Were they there as figure heads or there to look after the city's interests? Now, Mr. Editor, Ald. Hamilton said that the council should not have tied the contractor down to only city labor. I, Mr. Editor, as a laborer of this city, consider that it was only just and right for the city to do as they did. It is the workingmen of this city that has got to pay the biggest share of the expense. The outsiders pay nothing; in fact, there is too much of our city's money going out of town when it could be put to a better advantage by keeping it in town. Now, Mr. Editor, Ald. Hamilton says that a gerat deal of the extra cost of the bridge was through the increased wages paid to labor, but I do not hear him say anything about the money that was thrown away when runways were built that turned out a failure and a tower that was built twice as high as was wanted for the work it was doing. Hundreds of dollars wer wasted in lumber, nails, and carpenters' and laborers' wages. That blunder was kept in the dark, and charged up to labor, and I may say that Ald. Hamilton was one of the committee that voted for the increase of wages to the laborers, and if Ald. Hamilton would like to know anything more he can hear the same by answering this letter in the paper.

I remain, Mr. Editor,

GENERAL ELECTRIC PLANT WAGE REDUCTIONS

BIG SHENECTADY PLANT MAKING CUTS AND CONTINUING POLICY OF RETRENCHMENT.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 26.—The General Electric Company is putting into effect wage cuts, one class at a time, the reductions ranging from 10 to 30 per cent. In addition to making wage reductions, the company is continuing its retrenchment policy by laying off large numbers of employees in alternate weeks or every third week.

Plumbers and steamfitters, who have been receiving 70 cents an hour will be cut this week to 50 cents an hour. This is one of the largest reductions made at one time at the plant. Other mechanics, including mechanics in the machine shop, and electrical workers, are subjected to 10 and 15 per cent. reductions. In some cases wage cuts took place last week.

Others have been notified that their wages will be cut this week, that the wage cut will be general throughout the plant and that every employee will be affected eventually.

"STREET OF MANY FAKIRS" IN BERLIN LOSES ITS TITLE

BERLIN, July 27.—(Associated Press).—"The Street of Many Fakirs"—the section of the Friedrichstrasse between Unter den Linden and Koch streets—may soon lose the right to its exotic title, won by virtue of the varied and questionable commerce which thrives upon its sidewalks and crossings, for an agitation has been started to "clean it up."

Every article from jumping-jacks to fine Oriental rugs may be purchased from the vendors who infest the street, eternally crying their wares.

The chief complaint against the character of the street, however, is that thieves use it continually as a clearing-place to market their "hauls." Not infrequently a ragged, unkempt man will offer most expensive imported fabrics for suiting, in odd bolt lots, at ridiculous figures. Much of this stuff, the police feel certain, has been stolen, but it is difficult to fix the crime on the street vendor.

Victims of the various drug habits find their chief source of supply on this street.

TOO FAVORABLE EXCHANGE CAUSES SWISS STRINGENCY

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 27.—(Associated Press). — Switzerland has reached the acute stage of economic stringency resulting from a too favorable rate of exchange. The tourist season, upon which she depends to such a great extent, opened with little prospect of an improvement in the situation.

Tourists who usually visit Switzerland during the summer are going to French and Italian resorts.

The Swiss themselves, to a considerable extent, are abandoning their own country to spend their outings in France where Swiss money counts for twice its value at home, or in Italy where it counts five times the normal value.

The crisis shows not only in the absence of tourist trade, but in industrial stagnation, a good many workers being already out of employment.

A few weeks ago it looked as if the delegations to the second assembly of the League of Nations, Sept. 5, would find difficulty in getting lodgings here, hotel keepers hesitating to reserve apartments for them because it would require them to refuse tourists at the height of the season.

It now appears that the hotels will welcome the league delegations unless there is an unexpectedly radical change in the travel situation.

Chapter 22.

I was determined that Kent must, in some way, get the diamond back to Victor Lachman. I knew that it would be the only way he could ever win back his own self-respect. He was the kind of a man who had to think well of himself. And I knew that I was the kind of a wife who demanded that her husband should think well of himself.

I knew that my standards of life were much more clearly defined than Kent's. Now I longed to make him understand, to see and feel these things more vitally, as I understood them.

There was not only the question of how to get the diamond back that worried me, but I was haunted with the suspicion that Tom Barney knew something about it. How much did he know? That was the question. That he was informed somehow, of Kent's sudden trip to Philadelphia and its motive, I had not the slightest doubt.

Then, too, I could not decide whether or not to tell Kent of my suspicions. I was most afraid to. Kent was nervous enough and living under a terrific strain, without having that to worry him. I decided to wait a little.

One night, a few days after Kent had confessed to me about the diamond, he was unusually late in getting home from the office. I got extremely anxious watching for him. If he expected to be late he always telephoned so I would not worry, and this night he did not do so.

I always worried so about him now. I dreaded some terrible climax to our troubles. He might be found out and arrested! Each day life was a torment to me. And the strange part or it all was that my love bound itself closer and closer around Kent in my longing desire to protect him. I could understand perfectly that mad, all-forgiving love which a mother feels for her wayward son. The realization that I must shield Kent from a positive danger, both from the outside and from himself, brought a strange sort of romantic thrill to me. I was in a continual state of anxiety over him. Yet each day of worry seemed to make me love him that much more.

About 8 o'clock, when I had become nearly desperate, Kent came in. He looked flushed and excited.

"Oh Kent, whatever kept you?" I cried, as I rushed to the door to let him in.

"That fool, Tom Barney," he answered.

My heart stopped beating for a minute. How I dreaded that name! Kent followed me into the living-room.

"Just as I was about to leave the office, Tom happened in. He didn't seem to want any thing, just hung around and talked. Even when Mr. Blake went home, he still stuck around."

"What did he talk about, dear?" I questioned.

"Nothing special—but he's always kidding me about having a lot of money, and my fat bank account. It gets me peeved," Kent blurted out. "I finally closed up the place and told him I was going home."

"Did you ever talk to him about money matters, or let him see your accounts?" I asked, hoping to find out if Kent had ever hinted to him in any way about his having money.

"No, I never talk those things with Tom. Well, I—I don't know, but lately I haven't liked the way he's acted." Kent looked at me with his big, questioning, brown eyes. "He's always telling me what a peach you are, and how wonderful you are, to-night he entertained me by telling me there was no man in the world good enough for you. I know that well enough, Babs, without his telling me—and, and it's none of his damn business anyway," he added.

There was a magazine lying on the floor by the table. He kicked it vehemently, and then picked it up and put it on the table.

"Well, never mind that, dear," I said, the faintest little smile catching at the corners of my mouth. "Come on into dinner."

But Tom Barney's conversation did worry me a great deal. I wondered that Kent was not suspicious. I felt myself that there was more than just a few casual remarks in his conversation. I was afraid that he was trying to bother Kent purposely, and I longed to know his reason. Certainly it was not a good one.

SIX MONTHS' TERM TICKLES "BOY PONZI," IN $500,000 CASE

STEPHEN CAPSACK, 17, OF CHICAGO, WHO FOUND FARMERS EASY VICTIMS, IS SENTENCED TO FEDERAL PENITENTIARY—EXPECTED SIX YEARS, HE SAYS.

CHICAGO, July 26. — Convicted of using the United States mails to defraud Stephen D. Capsack, known as the "boy Ponzi," was sentenced to six months in the Federal Penitentiary at Boonville, Mo., for mulcting farmers throughout the country of more than $500,000 in securities.

'Six months," said Stephen as he sat in a nonchalant attitude in jail after his trial. "Say, I expected six years at the least. I nearly expired when the judge told me I was only due for a short spell. I'll bet the hick friends I trimmed will be all het up over this."

Capsack, who is only seventeen years old, was arrested by Federal agents in Alpine, Texas, several weeks ago, after he had fled from Chicago.

"I wanted to be rich," the youth explained. "I don't know exactly why. Anyway I got the idea of razzing the hay pitchers. I did it too, plenty. It always used to get my goat the way they spoke of people living in Chicago, as though they failed to appreciate they were alive. Guess I showed them whether we're boneheads or not."

Capsack had brokerage offices from which he wrote letters to farmers throughout the West, urging them to place their securities in his hands. He guaranteed to sell the bonds sent to him and offered special inducements in the way of speed. The cost of his services was but two perecent. of the total he bulletined the farmers.

When he received the bonds, however, he sold them and placed the proceeds in the pockets of his snappily tailored trousers. Most of the bonds found in the boy's possession were almost worthless, which resulted in the leniency shown by the Court.

DETHRONES BACON AND SHAKESPEARE.

French Professor Seeks to Prove by Algebraic Formula Who Wrote Plays.

About two years ago Professor Abel Lefranc of the College de France declared in a lecture at the Sorbonne that neither William Shakespeare nor Francis Bacon had written the Shakespeare plays, but that the author was William Stanley, the sixth Earl of Derby. This was the Stanley who had died in 1642 having purchased the Isle of Man and married the eldest daughter of the seventeenth Earl of Oxford—beyond which little more is generally known. Since then Parisian reporters have been seeking in vain to interview the Professor, who holds the chair of mediaeval comparative literature at the College de France and lives at 38 bis Rue Denfert-Rochereau, in the academic quarter close to the observatory.

On May 15, however, he decided to give to the Paris correspondent of The Morning Post of London what he had so long concealed from the French—his reasons for believing that Lord Derby was the author of the plays. What he said in his small study, where books and papers dispute every inch of space, the Post's man set down as follows:

"When Istarted investigating Shakespeare I proceeded more or less on algebraic principles. It seemed to me self-evident that a man of the character of Shakespeare was incapable of writing the plays accredited to him, and I constructed a whole series of what might almost be described as equations, each of them containing a mysterious X. To illustrate my meaning, from the internal evidence of the plays I argued that (1) the author must have been a man accustomed to the habits of courts; (2) he must have traveled extensively in France and Italy; (3) he must have been an accomplished musician; (4) he must have been greatly interested and sympathetic toward magic; (5) he must have been an ardent falconer, and so forth.

"One day I hit on a footnote in a book I was consulting that pointed out that the sixth Earl of Derby had written some plays to be performed by common players. No trace of these plays could be found at his death. I found that in the British Museum were one or two small pamphlets giving an account of the life of William Stanley, sixth Earl of Derby, and when these were copied out I found, to my great satisfaction, that the personality and experiences of the Earl of Derby fitted in with my various equations. Again and again something mysterious in Shakespeare's plays has been cleared up with almost uncanny facility by referring to the touchstone of the Earl of Derby as the author of the plays. I have already published a whole series of these curious coincidences in volumes that have appeared in both French and English, and should like to quote one or two as illustrating my meaning:

"In the 'Taming of the Shrew' Gremio, in presenting Lucentio as a tutor, says of him that he is 'known as a scholar that has long studied at Rheims.' Why Rheims? The town was never noted as a great seat of learning, but the mystery becomes clear when one knows that the fifth Earl of Derby was on a mission to Paris, accompanied by his son, a college had been founded for English Catholic noblemen's sons at Rheims, and the English scholastic most interested in its foundation was a friend of the Derby family.

Shakespeare Would Never Have Dared.

"Take another case, 'The Tempest.' It seems scarcely possible that a playwright like Shakespeare should have ventured to write a play of this sort at a time when King James was discouraging magic and punishing magicians. On my referring to the life of the Earl of Derby, however, the problem became clear. It occurred to me that the author must have known the celebrated English musician John Dee, and, on searching among John Dee's papers I found in his journal eight mentions of the Earl of Derby in the period between 1593 and 1597. There are records of Dee having dined with the Earl and of their having gone walks together.

"Every lover of Shakespeare is familiar with the intimate knowledge he shows of such special arts as falconry and of music, the former particularly a nobleman's sport. It seems unlikely Shakespeare could ever have acquired the intimate acquaintance with falconry the author of the plays suggests, and on referring to the touchstone of the records of the Earl of Derby I was astonished and pleased to find in a diary that he was continually going out falconing. Similarly as regards music. The poet writes of music as only a lover of music and an expert could write, and there is in existence a volume of madrigals and pastorals composed by one Francis Pilkington that includes in it: No. XXVII. A pavin made for the Orpharion, by the Right Hon. William Earle of Darbie, and by him consented to be in my book placed.

"Then consider the wonderful episode of Ophelia. It occurs almost word for word in the writings of Marguerite de Valois, who was at Liege in June and July, 1577, and describes the tragic death of Mademoiselle de Tornon. Now, William Stanley, as he then was, was at the Court of Navarre in 1580, and there is nothing surprising in his having heard of and being struck by the tragic episode, but it would require a strange coincidence for he actor Shakespeare to have heard of it and a still stranger coincidence had he as the author of the plays invented an episode that agrees in detail after detail with the story.

"Again, the history of the Earl of Derby, whose elder brother died of poisoning in a way closely reminiscent of the death of Hamlet, explains a mystery, namely, the change that came over the character of the plays. There is nothing in Shakespeare's life, so far as we know, to account for this development of melancholy, but the career of the Earl of Derby would amply account for it. His jealous disagreement with his wife and the trouble over many years that necessitated a tedious law suit, and the illness from which he suffered, all explain why in the latter part of his life he should have been inclined toward melancholy.

"Needless to say, I should not think to build up the hypothesis of the Derby authorship on the evidence I have mentioned to you, but the instances I have quoted could be multiplied twentyfold. I hope very shortly to be in a position to unveil the secret of the sixth Earl of Derby, and later to bring out further fresh proofs that attribute the authorship of these plays to this enigmatic personality."

TEACHERS TOLD TO DEBATE SEX.

Banish False Modesty From Schools, Says Educator.

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 26.—Banish false modesty from the school room, Benjamin Gruening, director of physical education in Washington, D. C., Schools, told the National Education Association here.

"The overly modest English teacher, who is embarrassed when she is compelled to mention in the class room anything relating to sex, is responsible for much of the sex consciousness in high school pupils," Gruening said.

"Every teacher of English literature should feel free to discuss human passions, human relations and human ideals without embarrassment."

Evolution of the mind was discussed before the convention by R. T. Hargraves, Minneapolis.

"The mind is an inheritance," he said. "Its quality is the same as 2,000 years ago, but its equipment is now far superior."

"The college student of to-day has the same mentality as the student of 20 years ago but he is a better man because his high school and college technical training have been better," Prof. C. H. Williams, University of Missouri, stated.

HERDS OF TEXAS CATTLE TROUBLED BY LOCO WEED.

SAN ENGELO, Tex., July 26. — Texas cattlemen are brain confronted with the dread Loco weed, the eating of which causes thousands of casualties among the great cattle herds which roam the southwestern pains.

Loco weed sare to cattle what drugs are to the human system, according to recent investigations. The Loco weeds thrive just before the spring grass sprouts and then again late in the fall. With little to graze upon, cattle eat the Loco weed, which is in appearance not unyike alfalfa, although its color is purplish. Cattle, once they eat the Loco weed, can satisfy their appetites with nothing else. They refuse to eat grass. The Loco weeds have little nutriment. The cattlement and thousands die. What become thin from undernourishsubstance is contained in the plants that is poisonous has not yet been determined. One theory presented is that some animal parasite or small fungoid hidden on the plant is responsible.

OBITUARY

(Contributed.)

William James Weatherilt, the subject of this sketch, was born in the township of Hope, on January 3, 1850, and died at his home in the village of Bethany, on March 1, 1921, in the 70th year of his age.

From childhood he had the advantages of a Christian home, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Weatherilt, being earnest godly members of the Methodist church, and living out day by day, in the presence of their family, the religion which they professed. Early in life, through Christian influence at home and careful teaching in the Sunday school, he began to develop those sterling qualities which go to make up strong, robust integrity and worthy citizenship. His life was quiet, unassuming and without demonstration, but spoke with greater emphasis than any words from his lips. He lacked many of the qualifications which go to make up the character of the fast and foppish youth of to-day, but this is a fact which we are grateful to note and acknowledge. Honesty and truth for him had a charm, so had all things pure, beautiful and good. To guile, and graft and self seeking he was an utter stranger. His inner character was known to very few, and the writer was one of these.

During part of the year, prior to his demise, he lived and worked in this city, and it was during this period that the writer had an opportunity of studying these magnificent principles which marked this quiet man as an exponent of unsullied manhood, splendid citizenship, and a moral character as clean as the last drop of dew. As we have said, his life as a citizen and Christian gentleman was not marked by demonstration; however, we learn that during a recent evangelistic service held in the village of Bethany, by his pastor, Rev. J. Beckle, he took a stand for God and the better life; nor did he fail to openly profess this faith in God, or confess Christ before men.

His illness was of brief duration, lasting but a few days. There was no murmuring or complaint. Loved ones stood by him in his last hour, and "there was no moaning at the bar when he put out to sea."

The funeral service was conducted by his pastor, and the mortal remains of William Weatherilt were laid in God's quiet acre, there to await the sound that shall call the sleeping dust of mortaltiy back to re-animitation and everlasting life. His eartly death is mourned by a widowed mother, three sisters, and three brothers; namely, his widowed mother, Mrs. W. J. Weatherilt, of Bethany; Mr. W. E. Gilbank, of Bowmanville; Mrs. James Marshall, of Janetville; Miss Lily at home; John in Saskatchewan; Eddie in Bowmanville and Milton in Bethany. We extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy, and point them to that source of divine comfort, from which millions of sad and broken hearted members of the human family have derived help in time of sorrow, bereavement, and the shadow of death.

THE FROG GIRL

The "Frog Girl" is the latest idea in a metallic book rack or ornament.

An interesting line of dolls has heads made of half cocoanut hulls. The eye of the cocoanut, painted bright red, forms the mouth and round black shoe buttons are used for the eyes. The dolls come with and without wigs and with and without caps. All are dressed in bright, distinctive colors.

A doll with bright red hair has long curls tied with a blue ribbon.

A new "Lemonade" set consists of six crystal tumblers with stirrers of blue and crystal glass. There are two decanters. A crowing cock stands suggestively on the silver stopper of one of the decanters, while a fierce bull dog graces the other. The sets come packed in a basket of blue enameled straw with tiny clusters of bright red strawberries on the handle. In the centre of the basket a plate rack holds a half dozen blue and crystal tea plates.

A dog made of beaten metal fashions a combination cigar cutter and ash tray. The dog's tail is used as a cigar cutter. He stands on a pedestal in the centre of the 4 inch wide ash tray.

A novel game device is the teetotum. It is made of sterling silver, fastened to an easel back instruction card. One or more players spin the little top-like novelty, each in turn, the player winning or losing the amount indicated when the teetotum stops spinning.

Composition toilet goods are now made in two-tone effects, shell and ivory, and amber and ivory combinations are most effective.

Of the 986 motor vehicles in service in the city of Pernambuco, Brazil, 90 per cent. are Canadian or American, 4 per cent. German, 3 per cent. French, 1 per cent. Italian and 1 per cent. Swiss.

SAILING CANOES ON PETERBORO WATERS

(By F. H. DOBBIN.)

Scattered around town are men, now mature in years, who at a time of life, when personal activity in real sport that one could have a share of, were associated with the American Canoe Association and its oldest offspring, the Northern Branch Association, taking in Canada north of the Great Lakes. Canoeing as a sport found its devotees largely in Ontario, with a sprinkling in Quebec. On the upper waters of the lakes, and, indeed, in Quebec, north of the St. Lawrence, the canoe was to some extent a means of a livelihood. The surveyor, explorer, trapper and lumberman all used the canoe for what it was worth, which amounted to a form of craft that no other ever devised could take its place.

Canoeists of old, in the city, might be interested in a call back to the old days of the A.C.A. meets, at Stoney Lake, Pigeon Lake, at Orillia, and especially the larger meets at the Thousand Islands, on the St. Lawrence. Stave Island and Sugar Island meets were and now remain memorable occasions. For there one met the canoeist from the Eastern States and along the salt water shores of the Sound, the largest number attending from points accessable by the rivers of New York State and New England. For the A.C.A. has its traditions. Its banners hang on the inner walls of many a camp and cottage. Racing flags, paddling trophies, tilting wins and souvenirs of prowess with single and double-blade paddles.

Good Old Days.

So, if any wish to recall memories of real good days and times, a look at a couple of sailing canoes, now just reaching completion at the factory of the Peterborough Canoe Company, are worth more than a passing glance. These were built to order to be used at and around Boston, Mass., on the bay and salt water. The Shore meets are a feature of the season. Men who cannot afford to sail an America Cup contestant take it out with a sixteen footer, well and perfectly fitted for the sport.

These canoes are decked in for nearly the whole length. Carry two masts, the sail rig being what is known as the "hat-wing," a modification of the well known Mohican rig. The spread of sail for the size of the craft is enormous. More, in proportion than Shamrock IV. carried in her last contests. A heavy and large steel plate centre-board drops down below the bottom of the hull to about three feet, enabling the canoe to sail marvellously close to the wind and beat up almost in the face of it. The board is raised and lowered at will. Rudder, tackle, cordage and connecting ropes all fitted and carefully disposed within reach.

In a stiff wind these canoes will make, easily, from ten to thirteen miles an hour, or even more. Which is equal to the best pace of a fairly fast trotter on land. Many of the average equip power launches do not make similar speed. To hold the canoe to its work, for with the spread of sail there is every provocation to not upset, but be thrown over on its side, the "hiking seat" is made use of. This is a contrivance, securely fastened—its underparts—to the gunwales of the canoe. A second section is fitted on rollers and slides to and fro. In a high wind the occupant of the boat, to keep the craft from going over, slides the seat out a matter of five feet against the wind and perches on the extreme end. Now a lump of humanity weighing 160 pounds and making a leverage five or six feet from the centre of gravity exerts some balancing power. But it is all needed to keep the canoe on its bearings. Extension handles are provided that the rudder may be within reach, and though the rudder will stay put for a time, it has to be at instant care, for the canoe may be about as docile as an especially frisky and baulky colt.

Good Summer Sport.

It is a matter of twenty-five years since canoes of such equipment were seen on the river and lakes about Peterborough. As a summer sport few equal the use of the sailing canoe. One has something calling for skill, readiness and alertness to boot. Passengers seldom plead to be taken on board, unless prepared to undergo a copious wetting. Besides, the cockpit is so confined and the feet of the master mariner so protuberant and liable to be in three places at the same time that sitting in the boat would subject one to a process of gentle kneeding. Surely the sailing canoe is no excursion steamer.

These canoes now on view are beautifully made and fitted. Almost too pretty to put in the water. But the owners will groom, and rub, and polish, and care for them as a fond mother cares for her best twin, for in a race the smallest things often count. Many a racing canoeist, and he falls short of the attainable if he be not alert to whale some hated rival, gets up very early and fondly polishes, rubs and smooths the hull of the canoe with some mysterious preparation that will, it is said, repel the water, allay friction, and give the difference of two hundred yards in a five-mile speed contest.

Of course, the skill and know-how of the skipper counts as a first consideration. Men have come to the meets bearing large packing cases and disclosed canoes of surprising neatness of model and immaculate in all particulars. Gone out on the water and were miles behind. It is the know-how. Others will take any old punt, and with skill and judgment, land it across the winning line while the gallery, seated on the hot-hot rocks, marvels and discusses how it is done.

It is a fine ambition to own a good sailing canoe. A better one to make use of it, and still better to try and induce others to come into the sport and get a little of the real thing. With waters that are the envy of our friends from the States, that are at our very doors, that offer the very best of recreation and healthful sport in the summer months, we let this blessing go by and sit on a hard and hot bench and see gentlemen swipe, run and dispute and whale the umpire, that latter activity as a sort of redeeming diversion. It must be sorrowfully admitted, even if it be caustic, that few of the young men of this generation have the sand to sail a canoe as it may and should be sailed.

A 30 by 3 1-2 automobile tire makes approxicately 6667 revoltions to the mile; a 35 by 5 tire makes 571 complete turns to the mile.

THE WRONG "DOPE."

A geography lesson took the form of assigning to certain towns the commodities for which they are famous. Knives had been awarded to Sheffield, carpets to Kidderminster, bicycles to Coventry, and boots to Northampton, when a small boy volunteered: "I know where wire comes from!"

"Where?" said the teacher.

"Epsom," said the boy. "I read it on a placard yesterday."

HINDENBURG SAYS ALLIES MISSED GREAT CHANCE AT ALEXANDRETTA

Hindenburg came out of the war a man of many personalities, a character confused both by official attributions and popular legends. There was first the conventional Prussian soldier, veteran of the wars of 1866 and 1870-'71, long occupied with general staff work, retired as general at his own request and called to active service when the great war broke.

This officer, previously of very moderate distinction, rose to eminence in the very first month of the war, became field marshal, bulked larger as the struggle went on, took command of the Eastern front, was promoted to control of all the German armies and remained in control of them as chief of the great general staff until the armistice.

But on what evidence of personal capacity and accomplishment was his promotion based? It was known that he had attached to himself an alter ego, General Ludendorff, to whose enormous energy and fertility most of the conceptions of the Hindenburgian military policy were due. One mind worked through the other, apparently to the entire satisfaction of both. Thus arose a dual personality, the fame of whose achievements accrued to Hindenburg, the ranking though silent partner in as strange a combination of minds and wills as military history has ever known.

Finally there is the Hindenburg of popular imagination—a man, a symbol, a barbarous demi-god whose monstrous wooden image the populace of Germany worshipped and idolatrously drove gold, silver and iron nails into it at so much per drive. It was this deity in which Germany saw reflected the ancient and ruthless military tradition of the German tribes.

Which was the real Hindenburg? Are all equally unreal? It is hard to tell exactly, and the Field Marshal's two recently published volumes don't help the investigation much. Negatively, at least, they confirm the theory that Ludendorff was the driving power in the collaboration and was gratefully recognized as such by his nominal superior.

Ludendorff frankly describes his relationship to Hindenburg when he wrote in his first publication after the war: "After discussion with my assistants I used to lay my ideas for the initiation and conduct of all operations briefly and concisely before the Field Marshal. I have the satisfaction of knowing that from Tannenberg to my resignation in October, 1918, he always agreed with my views and approved my draft orders."

It is a curious circumstance that the only Hindenburg order which Ludendorff didn't prepare or indorse in advance was the one which the Kaiser used as a pretext for forcing the First Quartermaster General's resignation—an order suggesting opposition to acceptance of the demand embodied in one of President Wilson's armistice telegrams.

Hindenburg corroborates Ludendorff passively when he admits: "After I had learned the work of General Ludendorff, and that was soon, I realized that one of my great tasks was, as far as possible, to give free scope to the intellectual powers, the almost superhuman capacity for work and untiring resolution of my chief of staff, and, if necessary, to clear the way for him, the way in which our common desires and our common goal pointed." He says also, significantly: "His (Ludendorff's) influence inspired every one, and no one could escape it without running the risk of finding himself off the common path."

Why was the way never cleared for Ludendorff to be in name as well as fact the chief of the general staff? Tirpitz says that the Kaiser never liked Hindenburg's associate, which is clear also from some of Ludendorff's own remarks. Hindenburg looked the sub-war lord part better and his semi-deification had progressed so far that it might have been dangerous for the government to lay rude hands on a popular superstition.

From the military point of view Hindenburg's book faithfully echoes all of Ludendorff's previously published views. About the only conflict noticeable is over the result of the battle of Chateau Thierry. Ludendorff had said: At Chateau Thierry, they had bravely attacked our thinly held fronts, but they were unskillfully led, attacked in dense masses, and failed."

Hindenburg is a little less grudging. He writes: "We made the acquaintance of her (America's) first trained troops at Chateau Thierry. They had attacked us there and proved themselves clumsily but firmly led. They had taken our weak units by surprise, thanks to their numerical superiority."

Hindenburg was a pronounced "Easterner" and expresses the sound view that Falkenhayn made a grave blunder in not pressing the attack on Russia in 1915 and 1916. That was Germany's best policy. But his own fatal blunder of urging a renewal of indiscriminate U-boat warfare in February, 1917, is passed over lightly. Yet, except for that error, despite the failure to push for victory in the East, Germany would probably not have been beaten, America need not have been dragged into the war just as Russia was going out.

Hindenburg naturally criticizes Falkenhayn's Polish campaigns of 1914 and 1915 and sustains Ludendorff's rejected alternative plans. He also criticizes Verdun—a colossal blunder. He goes further than most German soldiers have gone, in admitting the faults of the first Marne campaign. His judgment of this operation is worth quoting:

"I do not believe that one single cause can make our great plan of campaign, unquestionably the right one, responsible. A whole series of unfavorable influences was our undoing. To these I must add (1) the watering down of our fundamental scheme of deploying with a strong right wing; (2) the fact that through mistaken independent action on the part of subordinate commanders, our left wing, which had been made too strong, allowed itself to be firmly held; (3) ignorance of the danger to be apprehended from the strongly fortified great railway works of Paris; (4) insufficient control of the movements of the armies by the High Command; (5) perhaps also the fact that at the critical moment of the battle certain subordinate commands were not in close enough touch with a situation not in itself unfavorable."

This is enlightened criticism. Hindenburg also emphasizes more pointedly than Ludendorff did that Amiens was the necessary goal of the first German drive in northern France in 1918. He admits that when Foch saved Amiens that drive had practically failed.

So far as Allied strategy is concerned he justly derides the mess made of the Rumanian campaign of 1916 and the failure of the Allies to attack Turkey at her most vulnerable point in Asia, namely, at Alexandretta. He quotes Enver Bay as saying to him: "My only hope is that the enemy has not discovered our weakness at this critical spot." He adds:

"If ever there was a prospect of a brilliant strategic feat it was here." He wonders why Great Britain didn't make use of her opportunity. But Sir Ian Hamilton has told us that one of Kitchener's instructions to him was that Alexandretta was "to be taboo—not to be touched." And British policy wasn't changed after Kitchener's death. Hindenburg also contributes the information that the Turkish army lost 200,000 men defending Gallipoli, which means that it was virtually wrecked there.

The Field Marshal's outline of the war is more interestingly written than Ludendorff's. It is also naiver in tone. Like Ludendorff he tries to charge the loss of the war to the German civilian government. He lauds the old Prussian military absolutism. But this absolutism was the chief source of Germany's political weakness. Her people lacked unity because they felt that they had been deprived of a share and a stake in the government. Both Hindenburg and Ludendorff envied the power of a democratic dictatorship for war exemplified in France, Great Britain and the United States. They do not see yet that in the long run a democracy makes war most successfully, because it is capable of unity in time of trial and is able to change rulers and break down hampering institutions before defeat comes.

Not the Motor Alone Makes the Chalmers a Great Car

The Chalmers motor is a good motor. But it is not the motor alone that makes the Chalmers the wonderful car it is. Rather, it is the fundamental soundness and goodness of the entire construction. Without doubt, the thing that gives Chalmers' owners their greatest satisfaction is the smallness of the repair and replacement bills.

Long Periods of Continuous Service

Their cars run for long periods without shop attention. They save money. They miss the inconvenience of having the car laid up.

Much of this is naturally due to the general mechanical excellence of the Chalmers. Much again to the principle of the Chalmers motor.

Pre-Heated Fuel Improves Performance

Pre-heating the fuel, as the Chalmers does by means of the hot-spot, accomplishes complete combustion in the cylinders. This results in more power from less gasoline. Smoothness of running is increased. Acceleration is quicker. Ordinary engine troubles are avoided.

There is no doubt in our minds that the Chalmers is a wonderful car. Nor in the minds of Chalmers' owners.
We suggest that you check Chalmers' upkeep and performance records.

Star Dust

Marie Mosquini, who plays opposite Harry "Snub" Pollard in Hal E. Roach Comedies, spends her extra time these days in planning diversions for Bebe Daniels during the latter's sojourn at the Orange County Jail where she was sent up for speeding. Miss Mosquini sent her a big package which contained games, books, magazines, and a pink plumed pen for Bebe's letter writing. The two are old friends, the friendship dating from five years back, when Miss Mosquini was in the office at the Hal E. Roach Studios and Miss Daniels was Harold Lloyd's leading lady.

Betty Blythe seems definitely to have taken the place on the screen made vacant by Theda Bara's desertion to the stage, only Miss Blythe not only fills the place, but runs it over with her gorgeous personality and clever artistry. A girl who can easily step from comedy drama, as in the Rockett picture, "The Truant Husband," to a role like the "Queen of Sheba," is a wonder worker.

Will Rogers, Goldwyn star, whose boast it is that he is the only man in motion pictures who doesn't own a dress suit, was invited to speak at the recent meeting of the Actors Equity, at the Ambassador Hotel, in Los Angeles. He spoke—but, he told his audience, it was only by the greatest good luck that he managed it.

In the first place, he said, he came near not getting there in time because he had to walk half the way from the studios at Culver City—there were so many cars parked ahead of his. When he finally arrived at the hotel he had difficulty convincing the doorman he belonged there—if he hadn't happened to have his invitation with him, he would never have been admitted.

Buster Keaton had ignored the Edison questionnaire for a long time, as he figured it did not come within his particular line of comedy. But there is always somebody with a clipping of the famous questions lying in wait to prove one "amazingly ignorant." And Buster couldn't escape. When cornered and compelled to look over the list, he did it with his accustomed solemnity.

"There's just one question I can answer," he said after studying the list. "Mr. Edison asks, 'What is felt?'—The reply, of course, is 'Prohibition.'"

Tom Moore rises up to affirm that the life of a motion picture star isn't all sweets and radishes by any means. "Slap-stick artists have a hard time of it," he said the other day on the Goldwyn lot, "but they aren't the only ones. Consider my last few pictures. There was 'Made in Heaven,' in which I was a fireman and actually drudged like any other fire-fighter for thirty days; 'Hold Your Horses,' in which I cleaned streets for an equal length of time; "Officer 666," in which I wore myself out tramping my beat, and last, but not least, "From the Ground Up," in which I am now exercising my muscles digging ditches. It's a great life, if you manage to keep strong!"

Jean Paige, whose fame has spread throughout the country through her splendid portrayal of Jessie Gordon the heroine in the Vitagraph masterpiece, "Black Beauty," is now in the East awaiting the completion of the script of the picture version of "The Prodigal Judge," in which she will appear as Betty Malroy. "The Prodigal Judge," by Vaughan Kester, enjoyed a huge success when it was published a few years ago, and will be presented by Vitagraph as a special production.

Screen Styles

Estelle Taylor wears an effective black crepe georgette dress trimmed with long black silk fringe, in her latest picture. A broad black satin hat bordered with a strand of ostrich completes the costume.

Pearl White golfs in a striped yellow and white silk jersey, a white crepe de chine waist and plaited skirt of white sport silk. The hat is a cream sailor. The William Fox offices are assured by the star, who is in Europe, that the latest Parisian fashions will be tucked in her trunks.

In a forthcoming production Eileen Percy will appear in a thistle-colored taffeta with full skirt and an apron of delicately and elaborately embroidered mull. The waist is close fitting, with a bib of the same embroidered mull and a soft rolling collar the ends of which cross and fasten in back at the waist line. The apron streamers are of cherry-colored ribbon.

Shirley Mason, in her newest picture, wears a demure tunic of orchid ne de chine embroidered with mauve Iris. The skirt is straight and of the same orchid crepe. A close-fitting mauve satin hat, so small that one could almost call it a scull cap, is very suggestive of the Orient.

Edna Murphy introduced in a garden scene a cretonee frock with blue piping and white buttons. The waist was long—the straight skirt being fastened to it. The line from shoulder to hem at back perfectly straight. A wide straw hat was trimmed with ribbon and flowers to match cretonne.

PLAGUE THREATENS 100,000 VICTIMS IN THE COTTON BELT.

Tenant Farmers, Half-Starved by Crop Failure, Face Scourge of Pellagra.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Pellagra, one of the worst scourges known to man, is making alarming headway in parts of the cotton belt States, according to the Public Health Service, which estimates that this year the disease, which is due to semi-starvation, will claim about 100,000 victims, and of these 10 per cent. will, in the opinion of the Government experts, die. The alarming situation, which today presents one of the most grave problems facing the Public Health Service, is due principally to economic conditions in the cotton-growing and cotton-milling sections of the South.

A statement issued from the office of Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming calls the attention of the country to the pelagra menace, and warns that unless prompt and energetic measures are taken to check the spread of the disease, which is due to lack of proper foods, "it will take a still heavier toll from the already enfeebled population in 1922."

The statement of the Public Health Service follows:

'While the American people have been spending money lavishly to save the Chinese and the Europeans from starvation a veritable famine has been developing in the rural districts of the South, and particularly in those of the cotton belt, which stretches from Eastern Texas to the Carolinas. The tenant farmers, most of whom devote all their land to cotton and allot not even a foot to kitchen gardening or for the use of a cow or even of some hens, have been forced by the failure of the cotton market to adopt a starvation diet that is rapidly decimating them.

Thin People

Thin, nervous, underweight people take on healthy flesh and grow sturdy and ambitious when Bitro-Phosphate as guaranteed by McDermid and Jury is taken for a few weeks.

At a Disadvantage.

At an artistic reception one of our minor poets became the centre of a circle of admirers, who waited vainly for some witty or poetic conceit. Few writers are fluent dispensers of epigram at a moment's notice, and our author was oppressively mute. At last somebody became impatient.

"Oh, do say something," she urged.

The writer faltered, then gurgled desperately:

"Have you noticed that this year's pawn tickets are pink?"

VICTIM OF ROBBER WINS DEATH RACE.

Boy Takes Comrade With Fractured Skull 11 Miles to Hospital, Then Collapses.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 27.—Despite serious injuries and loss of blood, a youth named Samuel Forbes rode his motorcycle eleven miles into Atlantic City early yesterday in a supreme effort to save the life of a companion whose skull had been fractured and whose unconscious body lay in the sidecar.

In front of the institution Forbes collapsed, fell over the handlebars and lay in the street. Hospital attendants carried him and Leopold Dassen of 317 Atlantic avenue into the institution where both their lives are despaired of.

The two young men were the victims of a holdup by a big negro who assaulted them with a baseball bat. He escaped in the woods after having stripped them of their valuables. Two young women companions of the pair hid their jewelry while the boys were fighting with their assailant and fled, avoiding attack.

The assault occurred on a side road near Absecon, just off White Horse Pike two miles from Absecon. hTe girls' shrill screams were plainly audible on the main highway as the negro battered their companions with his bat, but motorists who could be seen flashing past in the darkness only put on speed, refusing to come to their aid.

EMIGRATION IS FORBIDDEN, BUT MANY LEAVE RUSSIA

WARSAW, July 27.—(Associated Press)—Bolshevik soldiers guard the Russian border and only certain persons are given permission to leave the country, yet by bribery and other means, great numbers of persons are crossing into adjacent countries each night.

Polish Government officials have estimated that about 50,000 have been entering Poland from Russia every month, despite efforts of the Polish authorities to keep them out. Only a very small percentage of these people carry the proper credentials from the Bolsheviki.

A recent arrival in Warsaw from Russia was Ralph Rimar, formerly an art student in Detroit and Charleston, W. Va., who left America, via Canada, early in January this year, with 700 other Russians. Rimar went to the United States eight years ago from a part of Russia which is now included within the Polish republic, where his parents reside.

Rimar says that when he last saw the emigrants whom he had accompanied to Russia all had had enough of the Bolshevik regime and wished that they were back in the States.

Rimar was in Russia three months, visiting Petrograd, Moscow, Kiev and other cities and towns. Conditions generally, he said, were gradually becoming worse, everywhere. He is eager to return to the United States, but, without credentials, is unable to get a passport.

Rimar says he went to Russia to satisfy his curiosity and for fun—but that he didn't have any pleasure at all, and that his curiosity is thoroughly satisfied. He was arrested five times, went without a square meal for 12 weeks, and that if he is ever able to get back to the United States he will stay put there for all time.

MOTOR TROUBLE LEFT THE STREET RAILWAY WITH ONLY FOUR CARS

SERVICE TEMPORARILY CRIPPLED THIS MORNING WHILE GENERATING SET WAS BEING REPAIRED.

Only four cars were running this morning and they weren't running very fast. At that the system was lucky to have any of its rolling stock in motion. With a big deficiency in power due to a blow-out in the substation on Simcoe street, the management was forced to leave the Jackson Park line deserted, the George street section with only two cars, and the C.G.E. and Charlotte street lines had one each.

On Monday night about ten o'clock the system was crippled during the rush hour from the Exhibition Park. Yesterday a substitute motor was set up, but proved unsatisfactory, and this morning O. R. Thompson, of Belleville, assistant superintendent of the Central Ontario power system under the management of the Hydro-Electric Commission, was directing repairs which, it was stated, might be completed before the day was over. Mr. Thompson could not account for the mishap to the motor. Among the railway men the opinion prevailed that the system had been overloaded with extra cars all heavily freighted on Monday night with the crowds returning from the carnival show at the Exhibition Park. Mr. Thompson scouted that theory, and stated that there was no evidence as to the cause of the blow out. The motor belonged to a generator set used in transforming the alternating current supplied by the Hydro into a direct current required in operating the street cars. The damage was comparatively trifling, but the disruption of the street railway service affected many of the citizens, whose querulous enquiries could only be vaguely answered by the employees.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 27. (Canadian Press.) — Acute weakness in United Drug shares, which opened at further losses of 5 1-4 points, and soon extended its decline to 7 1-4 points, was a striking feature of the early dealings in to-day's stock market.

Among the more popular issues, advances predominated. United States Steel gained a substantial fraction and Baldwin Locomotive, American Woollen and United Retail Stores were firm. Bethlehem Steel, Studebaker and Central leather were inclined to ease. Foreign Exchange was little changed save for a sharp break in the Italian rate.

United Drugs increased its loss to 6 3-4 points before supporting orders brought about a feeble rally. Pressure was directed against Central Leather Common and Preferred, Sears Roebuck, General Electric, United Fruit, Famous Players, American Sugar and American Tobacco, in which losses ranged from 1 to 2½ points. Popular Steels and Equipments were firm. High-grade oils held their ground, but some of the cheaper domestic issues eased. Rails were apathetic at trifling gains and losses. Call money opened at 5 per cent., the lowest initial rate of the week.

The leaders forfeited part of their gains later, although call money eased to 4½ per cent. Obscure specialties, including American Car and Pressed Steel Car, developed further weakness. The closing was irregular.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 27. — (Canadian Press).—Fresh strength developed in the wheat market to-day owing more or less to opinions that the peak of large receipts had been passed. Besides, new export buying was noted. The opinion also prevailed that recent sales to Europe had been far in excess of totals announced. Opening quotations, which varied from a half decline to a quarter advance, with September 123½ to 123 3-4, and December 126½ to 127, were followed by a material upturn all around.

Corn hardened with wheat, despite news of showers over night. After starting 1-8c off to 3-8c, including September at 61, the market scored slight general gains.

Oats were steadied by the firmness of other cereals. The market opened unchanged to 3-8 lower, September 39¼ to 39½, and then turned upgrade.

Higher prices on hogs gave strength to provisions.

Subsequently the bullish aspects of the Government weekly crop report led to an additional advance in wheat. The market closed nervous, 2c to 3 3-4c net higher, with September 1.27 to 1.27¼, and December 1.28 3-4 to 1.29.

Later the urgent need of rain in Iowa, Indiana and other important States had a bullish influence on corn. Prices closed unsettled ¼c to 1c net higher with September 61 3-8c.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, July 27.—(Canadian Press). — The market continued moderately active during this morning's session. Abitibi remained unchanged at its opening quotation, as did also Atlantic Sugar and Riordon. Brazilian, however, lost a half point to 21 3-4. Dominion Steel was quiet at its opening figure, only a couple of odd lots being sold. Laurentide was strong, rising from 66¼ to 67½. Spanish River was also up considerably, advancing a point to 49. Wayagamack remained quiet at 39½.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange steady; demand 3.57¼. Canadian dollars 10 15-16.

LIVESTOCK MARKET

TORONTO, July 27. — Reeciptt were 1117; trade was strong. Quotationstions: Heavy beef steers, $7 to $8; butchers' steers, choice, $7 to $7.50; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $4.50; calves, $8 to $9; lambs, $9.50 to $10.50; hogs, selects, $13.

TORONTO, July 27. — (Canadian Press.) — Activity on the Toronto stock exchange again centred on Brazilian this morning. Opening low at 19 3-4 it rose steadily on active bidding to 22 1-2, after which it eased off, closing at 21 3-4. Only one small lot of Riordan changed hands. It went at 4. There was a good demand for War Bonds at pprices fairly steady for board lots, although there was considerable fluctuation in smaller amounts. Victories 37's opened at 99.15, but a sale of 40,000 at 99.20 fixed the price for large quantities fairly firm at that price. Mines were silghtly weaker.

$200 PER CENT BEING MADE ETC.

is left to spoil in the hot weather, when a four-pound bone costs fifty cents.

Another instance of the reluctance of dealers to advertise a low price, though in reality they would be glad to get rid of certain parts of the carcass no matter how low the figure, was shown the other day when a dealer gave eight cents a pound as the price of a pig's head. He would have been glad to sell the meat at a much lower rate, he confessed, but he was unwilling to change the original price until the meat commenced to spoil as it would in a very short time in this weather. He adopted this course, not from any desire to send the meat to be made into fertilizer, rather than let his customers have it cheaply, but because he thought a lowering of the price would make no difference in the demand whatever, and was of the opinion that people who wanted the meat would pay eight cents a pound for it as readily as they would pay two cents.

Price No Object.

The same belief that the customer is quite indifferent to the price he or she pays, but will cheerfully hand over whatever amount is charged, provided he gets what he wants, is responsible for the difficulty which the thrifty housewife has in obtaining mutton, which is now to be had at a very low price. Notwithstanding its cheapness very few butchers have any on hand at the present time, for everyone wants spring lambs, though they pay more for it.

In accounting for the high retail meat prices the claim is put forward by the butchers that the public is entirely to blame for the present condition of affairs because women want the best cuts of meat and are satisfied with no other. The dealer explains that during and since the war the demand for steaks and chops has greatly increased and that stews are now out of fashion. This obliges him, he says, to keep on boosting the price of the cut for which there is the greatest demand because he suffers heavy losses on the less desirable portions.

Lack Enterprise.

On the other hand the housewife claims that the retail meat trade lags behind sellers of other merchandise in selling enterprise. Though many butchers complain of serious loss even at the present prices, chiefly due to the fact that for much of the carcass of animals they buy there is no demand whatsoever; yet they make absolutely no effort, in the majority of cases, to stimulate sales of the cheaper cuts which frequently spoil on their hands, say their customers.

Many stores have no price-cards. Unless the housewife asks particularly for certain cuts she neither sees them nor hears of them. The dealer almost invariably urges her to buy the most expensive meat he has. While makers of patent foods are constantly demonstrating in stores and advertising the most attractive way to prepare and serve their products, the butcher alone fails to seize his opportunity of stimulating the interest of his customers and turning to his advantage what is now a source of serious loss. For the consumer's ignorance and the dealer's lack of enterprise both pay, and pigs' heads, pigs' feet, soup meat and other cuts are being constantly taken to the abattoirs to be made into fertilizer. A local butcher informed a reporter that he would save several thousand dollars by closing his shop during the summer months, though he asks peak prices.

CRERAR TO RUN IN FRONTENAC?

STRONG POSSIBILITY OF AGRARIAN LEADER OPPOSING DR. EDWARDS.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

KINGSTON, July 27.—It is learned from leading members of the Frontenac U. F. O. that there is a strong possibility of the Hon. T. A. Crerar being asked to run for the riding of Frontenac in the next Federal election. Farmers consider that a man like Mr. Crerar, who might be the next Premier of Canada, is the only one who could defeat Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P., in this old rural constituency.

FARMERS IN FAVOR OF DISARMAMENT

TORONTO, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—At a meeting of the Canadian Council of Agriculture this morning, the delegates approved of the principle of disarmament. It is understood that some changes will be made in their platform.

ST. THOMAS, July 27. — Cecil Schram, employed by the local garbage collecting department, met with a peculiar accident yesterday while engaged at his work. His right leg was severely burned above the knee, necessitating his removal to the hospital.

MEIGHEN SUPPORTER QUITS IN S. ESSEX

Dr. Brien, M.P. Won't Be Candidate at Next Federal Elections.

ESSEX, July 27.—(Canadian Press Despatch.)—Dr. J. W. Brien, M.P. for South Essex, will retire from political life when the Federal Government goes to the people, he told a meeting of supporters of the Meighen Administration here this afternoon. The announcement that he would not be a candidate for re-election came as a surprise to Dr. Brien's supporters, who had assembled to discuss steps toward the re-organization of the constituency in the interests of the Conservative party.

INGERRSOLL, July 26.— A record in which the harvester, the miller and the baker figured was established a few days ago at Thamesford.

On Friday forenoon biscuits of excellent quality were made and placed on the table for dinner.

TO TELL POPULATION OF THE CITIES SHORTLY

OTTAWA, July 26.— (Canadian Press.) — The Dominion Census Branch stated to-night that returns were not so far compiled as to admit of giving an approximate idea of Canada's population, as compared with the total of 1911. In a week or two the department will be in a position to announce correct returns for the cities and larger towns. Final figures for Provinces and the whole Dominion may not be available for another couple of months.

HUDSON BAY CO. HAS BIG PROFIT

LIQUOR TRADE UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE YEILDED $3,000,000

MONTREAL, July 27.—(Special Despatch to the Examiner)—The Hudson Bay Company in their annual report, a summary which has reached here by cable, announce that a loss of $84,084 was encountered in operating the fur trade section during the year. This loss is attributed to decline in fur decline in fur values. On other trading a profit of $240,410. is reported.

A distribution of 40 per cent will be made on the ordinary stock. The report indicates that the Company has made a drastic revaluation of all stocks during the last 12 months the ability of the Company to pay out 40 per cent. on $1,000,000 common stock in addition to 5 per cent. on $2,000,000 preferred stock despite large losses in the fur trade and revaluation of the retail store stocks, gives rise to the belief in Canada that huge profits were made by the company during 1920 on its land holdings as well as on its liquor transactions. It is commonly understood in London trade circles that the company's liquor trade yielded a profit of nearly $3,000,000.

British Society Is Starting To Take Up The Movies—Mary Pickford Proves Favorite

An item from The Daily Graphic, a London publication, indicates that members of British society are rapidly becoming rabid film fans.

Here is what The Graphic says about it:

"Who said society was not taking up the film? When Mary Pickford is seen in 'Pollyanna' at the Palace today Princess Beatrice, Princess Christian, Princess Marie Louise and Princess Helen Victoria will be present, while among other well-known people who will also attend are Lord Balfour of Burleigh, the Countess of Carlisle, the Countess of Kintore, Grace, Countess of Wemyss, the Countess of Cromwell, Lady Augusta Inskipp, Lady Edmondstone, the Hon. Mrs. E. Johnston and the Hon. Mrs. Burn."

Mary Pickford's "Pollyanna" is to be the first picture shown at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, situated in Shakespeare's own garden at Stratford-on-Avon, when this theatre follows the lead of so many others and is converted into a picture theatre on September 12th.

"We feel sure," says an editorial in The Daily Graphic, "that if Shakespeare were alive today he would be one of Mary Pickford's greatest admirers, and he would simply love her in this glad play."

Are You A Movie Plotter?

(By RITA WEIMAN.)

(Rita Weiman is one of the most successful of America's young authors. She started in newspaper work, then took up short story writing, turned out a successful play, "The Acquittal," and is now writing directly for the screen.)

There is no spot more fascinating than a motion picture studio.

The studio holds for the writer the charm of seeing the children of his imagination take form and live and breathe for him. It has the mystery, the thrill of the stage. But like the theatre, it is not a playground, except as one would choose to pun on the word "play," and I never do that if I can help it.

No work in the world requires more sincerity or greater concentration. It is an art, a mode of expression, both for actor and author, which demands thorough study of method so that the angles of what can be expressed and what cannot, according to the limits of the screen, may be understood.

Real Ideas Wanted.

Time was when people labored under the delusion that "anything was good enough for the movies." Authors who would have labored night and day to make a play acceptable for the theatre, scribbled an idea on a scrap of paper or the back of an envelope and considered it quite acceptable for a picture play. That was why so many Johns rescued Lizzies from speeding trains when the industry was young.

Today motion picture producers are demanding stories that are real, with the heart throb of human life, not as dime novelists pictured it, but with that conflict of the soul which we meet in daily problems on all sides of us.

Newspaper Training

And so I should say to a young girl who really, sincerely, wants to become a scenario writer, exactly what I'd say to one starting out to become a writer of fiction or the drama. Learn to know life as it is, and you'll learn to transcribe it to whatever medium you choose. The best way to go about that, I truly believe, is to do the thing that so many others, including myself, have done—work on a newspaper. You will be assigned to all sorts of stories, pleasant and unpleasant, you will learn dramatic forms. You will, above all, learn to sift the kernel of a story from its trimmings.

Then, when you have a real idea to tell, put it in synopsis form and submit that to a motion picture firm. It is not necessary that you know the technique of the screen to do this. If you have a vital, human story to give them, picture companies will put it into technical form themselves. But I do advise anyone having a photoplay produced to work with the continuity writer who is preparing it for the screen, and in that way learn the motion picture angle. I have learned more about screen technique while assisting in the preparation of my story, "The Grim Comedian," for the screen than a library of books on the subject could have taught me.

Be a Secretary.

There is, by the way, another manner of becoming acquainted with scenario writing. Last year, while doing some work at one of the studios, I chatted with the secretary of an official of the company. This year I found her established as the secretary to the scenario editor and studying under his direction how to write scenarios. She had started out as a stenographer only a few years ago, and through her earnestness and application is now on the way to making a place for herself among scenario writers. And she is not yet 22. That's why I'd write as a slogan: Sincerity first, above all things—and then, hard work.

Marie dearest,

This crooked babbles on and babbles on — just like me! It certainly is the coolest spot I've struck for an age though. I nearly frizzled to death yesterday — — you see, I played tennis for three hours in the burning hot sun, without even stopping for a minute. But it was worth while for I beat poor old Jack!! I'm sure I'll have wonderful respect for my athletic prowess now!!!

Goodness gracious, there I spilled another drop of Campana's Italian Balm on this letter! you see I'm continually dosing up my poor burned arms and neck with Campana's, for it's the best little "soother" I've found yet, — and I've tried a good many.

S'long,
Peggy.

Ingram Gets Yale Photoplay Degree

For his artistic achievement in translating "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" into motion pictures Yale University has conferred upon Rex Ingram, motion picture director for Metro, the degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts. This is the first official recognition of the screen as an art any university or college has ever given.

Mr. Ingram formerly was a student at Yale, matriculated in the class of 1914. When circumstances forced his relinquishing hopes of a degree of graduation, Mr. Ingram went into motion picture work.

Commenting upon the university honor given him, Mr. Ingram said: "It not only means much to me—more than I really can express—but a great deal to the screen. Picture-making is an art, a big one. We don't know its possibilities yet. We are all just learners; students and explorers at the same time. The recognition Yale means that it already has accomplished something making it worthy of membership in the family of arts. For they are a family. I find photoplays governed by the same principles as sculpture though the two mediums of expression are directly opposite. I see pictures as photographic moving groups of sculpture.

"Each character in 'The Four Horsemen' is a definite personality. We sought to choose photoplayers who best typified these personalities as we saw them and then I endeavored in the composition and lighting, as well as in the dramatic action, to portray these personalities vividly and humanly, to make them live on the screen, to sculpture them on the photographic film, if one might put it that way."

The adaptation of "The Four Horsemen" was made by June Mathis. John F. Seitz photographed it.

Will Use Screen To Fight Radicals

From Lexington, Ky., comes the news that "war on Communism, Bolshevism, Socialism and all forms of government that do not recognize the rights of property and the right of genius to its just rewards" has been declared by Dr. John J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, as part of the policy of the bureau of which he is the newly appointed head. A campaign for the furtherance of "visual education" through motion pictures also will be undertaken at once.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Hon. J. A. Calder denies the newspaper reports that he is to be shelved into the Senate. There appears, however, a well organized attempt to get him somewhere—out of the way, if we can judge by the agitation, started by the chief Conservative journals, such as The Montreal Star. But Calder has turned his back—not his face—to the wall.

A READER.

To the Edito of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Recently the City Engineer recommended to the Council, and they granted the recommendation, that several Norway maples be cut down on Aylmer street between London and Dublin streets. This particular group of trees were admired by everybody. If Alderman Turner's suggestion at one of the meetings in the early part of the year had been carried out these trees would have been properly pruned by those that were out of employment and receiving aid from the city, and we would have got value for the money paid out, and those receiving it would feel a good deal better. If the City Engineer would see to it that no Manitoba maples or Carolina poplars or any other obnoxious trees were planted it would be quite an asset to our city. This, coupled with the state that the market square was in on a recent Saturday, is, in my mind, sufficient evidence that there should be more cutting out at our next municipal election. The ratepayers should begin to get busy.

Thanking you, I remain,
Yours truly.
W. H. MERRELL.

HARLEM HAS FETE FOR JACK JOHNSON.

Thousands of Negroes Welcome Him With Four Bands Working in Relays.

NEW YORK, July 26. — There wasn't a vacant window in West 131st street, between Lenox and Fifth avenues, and the spirit of holiday was in the street, when Jack Johnston returned. It was abroad all over Harlem, for Jack Johnson was back. Up and down in front of the apartment house at No. 58, where Johnson was the guest at dinner of his friend, Dick Ellis, stalked "General" Buck Rogers, former personal bodyguard of the one time champion, with shiny tall hat and arrayed in evening clothes.

Johnson had a strenuous day. He arrived in the city on the Twentieth Century Limited, fresh from his prison term at Leavenworth. Thousands of negroes who waited for him at the 125th street station, confident he would get off there were disappointed when the Limited failed to stop. He was whisked back to Harlem by automobile, where the crowds good naturedly mobbed the car and tried to carry him on their shoulders. There was a reception for him at Manhattan Casino in the afternoon and another big time last night, with four bands working in relays.

Johnson appeared to be in surprisingly good condition. He is not fat. There is only the slightest bulge about his waistline, and he says he weighs 225 pounds, just ten pounds more than he wants to be when he enters the ring again.

'Dempsey's the man I'm after," he said, 'and I think he'll fight me. If he does Im going to give half of my share to a fund for disabled veterans I can take off enough weight in ten days, and I think it would be a mighty good scrap.

THE BEST FORD STORY.

It is not perhaps generally known that Henry Ford keeps a book in which are pasted all the many hundreds of different jokes that have appeared in the American and English newspapers concerning his cars.

So far from resenting the sly digs he rather welcomes them, as affording him a good free advertisement, and recently he himself told this one in public, with the added comment that it was the best of the batch.

The head of a Government department at Washington (said Mr. Ford) wanted a car, and rang up the garage where they were kept.

"Sorry" came the reply. "We've only a couple of Fords in just now."

"All right, send one along. And I say, while you're about it, send a squirrel with it, will you?"

"Squirrel? What do you want a squirrel for?" asked the puzzled garage keeper.

"To pick up the nuts."

LAKEVIEWS COME FROM BEHIND TO WIN THE JUVENILE SECOND HALF

WERE DOWN 5 TO 1 AT END OF FIFTH IN LAST NIGHT'S GAME BUT SCORED FIVE RUNS IN LAST TWO INNINGS AND NOSED OUT BANKERS IN FIGHTING FINISH

At the end of the fifth innings in last night's City Juvenile League game at Riverside Park between Lakeviews and Bankers, there did not seem to be a chance for Manager Lebarr's outfit, and the Bankers, leading by 5 to 1, looked all over winners of the second half and champions of the League. But the Lakeviews staged a garrison finish, sending two runs across in the sixth and nosing out the opposition by a rally that netted them three runs and the ball game in the seventh session, the final count being 6 to 5 in their favour.

As a result of their exciting victory the Lakeviews captured the second section of the juvenile race, and will now have to play a series of two games with the Bankers, winners of the first half, to decide which team shall have the honour of representing Peterborough in the semi-finals of the juvenile series of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association. The first game of the play off will be staged at Riverside Park next Tuesday night.

Last night's game was one of the best battles the Juvenile League has seen this year, thanks to the fighting finish of the Lakeviews. Both teams did some excellent fielding, and the game kept the fans on their toes all the way.

Lakeviews used three pitchers to turn the trick. Moore started, but the Bankers jumped on him for three hits in the first innings, the safeties, accompanied by two errors, giving them three runs. Shaughnessy succeeded him in tre second, but he was no mystery either, the men of money getting six hits and two runs in the three innings he worked. Finally Lou Lebarr was sent to the mound in the fifth and he blanked the losers for the three final innings, allowing them only one single.

Lefty Turner, who only gave the Lakeviews two hits the last time he faced them, was not nearly so effective last night, being found for eleven safeties.

First Innings.

Lakeviews—Rogers singled through short and went to second on a wild pitch. Shaughnessy rolled to D. Johnson, Rogers going to third. Lebarr bounced one to "Lefty" Turner, wo held Rogers at third and tossed out the batter. Moore expired on a rolled to Hensley. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Bankers — Rody fumbled Hensley's tap long enough to give the batter life. Jack Turner singled to right. Wilgar singled to centre, scoring Hensley and sending Turner to third. McLean cracked one to Whitlow, who threw Turner out at the plate. Jack Hardill singled over short, scoring Wilgar. Hall walked, and when Rogers threw to third to catch McLean, Whitlow let the ball get away, McLean scoring. Jack Hardill also came home on the play, but was called out for cutting third. Three runs, three hits, two errors.

Second Innings.

Lakeviews—Ward grounded out to D. Johnston. Whitlow lined to the same player. Hensley threw out Sharpe. No runs, hits or errors.

Bankers—Shaughnessy went to the rubber for the Lakeviews, Moore taking second and Pethick centre. D. Johnston doubled to right and C. Turner singled to left, scoring Johnston and taking second on the throw to the plate. Hensley sacrificed, Shaughnessy to Lebarr. J. Turner fouled out to Rogers. Wilgar drew a pass. G. Hardill lined into Rod's hand. One run, two hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Lakeviews—McLean, the Bankers' third baseman, had to retire through illness. D. Johnston moved up to third. Geoff. Hardill came in to second and E. Johnston went to centre field. Rody, first up, beat out a tap to third. Pethick fanned and Rogers popped to Lefty Turner. Shaughnessy singled to right and Rody was out trying to go to third on the play. Hall to Hensley to D. Johnston. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Bankers — E. Johnston was safe when Rody's throw pulled Lebarr off the bag. J. Hardill cracked a single off Shaughnessy's glove. Hall fanned. D. Johnston walked, filling the bases. C. Turner's liner was captured by Rody, who doubled Johnston off third unassisted. No runs, one hit, one error.

Fourth Innings.

Lakeviews—Lebarr singled to left. Moore fanned and Ward popped to the pitcher. Whitlow beat out a bunt and Lebarr scored when J. Hardill threw low to third. Sharpe fanned. One run, two hits, one error.

Bankers—Hensley flied to Ward. J. Turner singled past third. Wilgar singled to short, Rody nearly capturing the drive with his bare hand. G. Hardill singled to centre, scoring Turner. E. Johnston walked, filling the bases. J. Hardill hit to Shaughnessy and Wilgar was out at the plate. Hall rolled to Moore. One run, three hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Lakeviews— Rody popped to G. Hardill. Pethick singled to right. Rogers was safe on D. Johnston's fumble, Pethick going to third. Shaughnessy struck out and Lebarr flied to Hall in right. No runs, one hit, one error.

Bankers—Lebarr went to the firing line for Lakeviews, Shaughnessy taking first. D. Johnston and C. Turner rolled to Moore. Hensley was called out on strikes. No runs, hits or errors.

Sixth Innings.

Lakeviews—Moore beat out a tap to short. Ward popped to "Lefty" Turner. Whitlow also hit to the pitcher, who threw to second too late to get Moore. Moore scored on Wilgar's low throw to third. Sharpe hit to Hensley, who threw to the plate, too late to get Whitlow. Sharpe stole second. Rody singled to second, Geoff. Hardill making a nice stop. Sharp tried to score on the play, but was out at the plate and Wilgar's throw to Hensley nipped Rody, who was trying to reach second on the toss home. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Bankers—J. Turner was safe on Whitlow's fumble. Wilgar flied to Ward. Geoff. Hardill singled over second. E. Johnston grounded to Lebarr. Moore threw out J. Hardill. No runs, one hit, one error.

Seventh Innings.

Lakeviews—Pethick singled to left and went to second on a wild pitch. Rogers beat out a bunt, Pethick going to third. Rogers stole second. Shaughnessy and Lebarr fanned. Moore hit to D. Johnston, who mussed up the roller and Pethick counted. Ward came through in the pinch by singling to right, scoring Rogers and Moore. Whitlow fanned. Three huns, three hits, one error.

Bankers— Hall rolled to Shaughnessy. D. Johnston was retired on strikes. C. Turner flied to Pethick in centre and the game was over.

THE FOOTBALLERS HAD WORKOUT

ANOTHER PRACTICE GAME BEFORE THE BRANTFORD TRIP.

In an hour's play last night that gave them some fine practise, the Plenty Cup team tied with a mixed team of Caleys and C.G.E., 1-1, at the Oval and another game between the same two squads will take place to-morrow night, the team's final brushing up before journeying to Brantford on Saturday. The fixture was arranged to give the Peterborough representatives a good workout together, and it served is purpose admirably. While the "scrub" team worked like Trojans to defeat the Plenty Cup boys the latter did not push themselves to exertion and were satisfied to hold their opponents.

In Brantford on Saturday in a third game to choose the Plenty Cup team there was a draw, 1-1, and Toronto was playing a scrub team agains tthe eleven picked to play against the undefeated Scots a short time ago The scrubs trimmed the others 1-0, so when the Plenty team were held to a tie last night no new football precedent was established. Refree J. Clarke called the game a few minutes after 7 o'clock. The line-ups were:

Plenty Cup Team.		Mixed Team
Griffin	Goal	Swan
McDonald	R. Back	Hardie
Ralston	L. Back	Hensby
Burrows	R. Half	Brown
McMillan	C. Half	Moir
Frost	L. Half	Wright
Manders	O. Right	Dingwall
Chambers	I. Right	Parkins
McDougall	Centre	Calder
Rorrison	I. Left	Roberts
Bartley	O. Left	Hannah

The game to-morrow night is called for 6.45 sharp. The practice game is called chiefly to allow the team to get in some combination work, which is essential if a showing is to be made in Brantford.

SPORT COMMENT

"Hutchison's victory at St. Andrew's was not the triumph of a man, but the triumph of an implement. . . . The infamuos ribbed iron clubs—with their positive wickedness, etc." — George Greenwood in the London Telegraph.

"Hutchison was able to stop a ball quicker with his ribbed clubs, but ribbed clubs do not play themselves alone. Hutchison may not be the steadiest golfer at all times in the world, but he is easily the most brilliant, and his sensational play was crushing throughout." — Bernard Darwin in the London Times.

Did it ever occur to Mr. Greenwood that the ribbed mashie was a strictly legal implement when Hutchison won? And that it was the invention of a British manufacturer and was first used in Great Britain?

Martin, Gibbons, and Carpentier.

An international melee between Bob Martin and Georges Carpentier, both members of the Western Front, would undoubtdly stir up something of a froth.

There is additional talk concerning a meeting between Martin and Gibbons by way of selecting the proper entry to face theFrenchman. But, after all, is Martin quite ready to stake his future upon any such early test? He stuck for fifteen rounds with Bill Brennan and then knocked out Frank Moran, but he is still comparatively inexperienced, with much to learn in the way of ring skill and ring speed. Nearly every one you meet is pulling for him to get there. If he has any chance to reach the heavyweight height some day, this future should not run the risk of an early defeat. It is no certainty that either Gibbons or Carpentier would beat him. But the odds, as he looked against Moran, would hardly be in his favour.

In the query, "What's the matter with baseball?" such words as "the universe" might be substituted for "baseball."

"The fellow who nails the champion is some youngster coming on, not some veteran drifting back." Sure. Some young fellow such as Zbyszko.

Do baseball umpires finally become sparring partners to round out a consistent existence, or sparring partners become baseball umpires?

There may be another occupation to take its place with these two jobs, but we can't focus our memory on the name just at this passing moment.

Old F. P. A.says that Dempsey should be arrested for resistingan officer (non-commissioned). Either that or for breaking the piece (of Carpentier's hand with his jawbone).

A man is entitled to earn what he can get, but once more in passing we arise to suggest that any more $500,000 purses and $1,600,000 gate receipts are not going to help any game. Anything in reason, but there is always a limit, even when the public does the paying.

The next move should either be to standardise a less lively baseball or else supply the outfielders with stepladders and the infielders with catchers' mitts and shin guards.

Some rival may overtake Rogers Hornsby for the batting leadership of the National League this year, but not as long as motorcycles are barred and base hits retain their present value in completing the returns.

MIKE GIBBONS TELLS HOW BROTHER TOM WILL WIN

NEW YORK, July 27. — Big brothers who used to lord it over the kid of the family can sympathise with Mike Gibbons.

Mike used to be the big boss of his brother Tom; but things are all changed now.

Tom's chief claim to fame used to rest in being the brother of the famous Mike. Now Mike is known as the brother of the famous Tom.

Mike, the "old phantom," is here training for a rather inferior bout with Augie Ratner. Tom is getting ready for a crack at the light-heavyweight championship and higher against Georges Carpentier.

"Before we knew anything about the gloves, I used to have it all over Tom," Mike said here to-day. "He was just a little fellow, and I could cuff him around whenever I wanted—whenever father wasn't looking.

"Then I started boxing and as Tom took on size he thought the gloves gave him a chance to get even, and he started to learn the game. But he didn't get along very fast. He learned how to box, but he didn't develop enough punch to hurt me. I could easily avoid anything he tried to give me.

"But Tom grew bigger; he became a better boxer, and he learned to hit. He has it on me with the gloves now. I don't want to stop anything that he doesn't pull."

Despite the reversal of conditions, Mike is getting a lot of pride out of the rise of his brother and he boasts—"I told you so."

"Several years back when I was going good, I told the sport writers that Tommy was going to get there some day, and he did.

"Of course, I think Tommy will beat Carpentier, and there is nothing personal in my judgment. I know he is going to win, because he is a better boxer and a harder hitter than the Frenchman.

"I have seen Carpentier in action. He has nothing but some flashy footwork and a good right hand. He won't get his right over on Tom like he did on Dempsey's jaw. Every time he misses he's going to get one in the exchange that will wear him down just like he was battered down by Dempsey. Tom can hit to the body just as hard as the champion can, and, what is more, he knows just where to hit. He has been studying the vital spots for two years, and he knows them. Tom has two good hands, and what is more—he can take one. He will not have to take many from any boxer, because he is clever enough to get away from them."

Mike is training alone here. He would like to have Tom come along and help him, but the younger brother wants to stay up at his summer home at Lake Osakis with his family and do most of his training there.

BETWEEN THE NETS.

(By H. S. MURTON.)

We have seen how the Indians played lacrosse, how the white man in Montreal first knew its fascination in 1839, how a regular club became established about 1860 in Montreal and how the spread of the game to Ottawa, Cornwall and farther west necessitated the formation of the National Lacrosse Association in 1867. It was about this time that the game first came to Toronto, the Toronto Lacrosse Club with grounds on Jarvis street between Wellesley and Gloucester streets being the pioneer club of this city. They were followed in 1868 by the Ontarios and by the Atmes, of Yorkville, and later by the Aetnas and Tecumsehs, junior teams at that time.

* * * *

The 12 playing members of the original Toronto Lacrosse Club were: Goal, John Henderson; point, James L. Hughes; cover point, W. O. Ross; field, Herbert Ross, W. Cousens, Charles Nelson, Charles E. Robinson, Thomas Mitchell, R. H. Mitchell; home, Sam Hughes, John S. Ewart and H. Suckling. As in fairly recent times, the greatest opponents of Upper Canada were the Shamrocks, of Montreal, and it was the Toronto Lacrosse Club which first defeated them and transferred the championship from Quebec to Ontario in 1876.

* * * *

In the following years so many new clubs having arisen and many changes in the rules having been proposed, it was decided to re-organize the old National Lacrosse Association. The meeting was held in the Toronto club rooms, and delegates were present from the Montreal, Shamrock, Emerald, Sarsfield and Independent Clubs, of Montreal; Toronto, Ontario, Tecumseh, Aetnas and Young Canada, of Toronto; clubs from Hamilton, London, Brampton, Orillia, Whitby, Bowmanville and Indian members from the St. Regis, of Cornwall, and the Cayugas and Royal Canadians of the Six Nations Indians. It will be seen from the list of places that lacrosse had gained ground considerably since the organization of the original N. L. A. A strict set of playing rules was drawn up and adopted.

* * * *

A great event in lacrosse circles, and indeed in the whole country, judging from the mass of comment upon it at the time, was the trip to England in 1876 of a team of Canadian amateur whites and a team of Indians. The expedition was in charge of Dr. Beers, and seems to have been well planned, as it was received with cordial welcome by some of the best clubs in England. Matches were played before the Prince of Wales and the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. The English and Irish accounts of matches played at Hurlingham, Dublin, Belfast, Edinburgh and elsewhere are very voluminous, and if they are somewhat naive and lack expert appreciation of the game, yet are frank in expression of first impressions of an entirely new game. It is pleasing to relate that these impressions were almost unanimously favorable, and the adoption of lacrosse in the Public schools of England was urged by a great many writers at the time. The object of the trip was stated to be the attraction of interest to Canada for the purpose of immigration, and certainly enough press notices greeted the teams to call the attention of a great many people to the new world.

* * * *

Naturally the chief curiosity of the expedition was the Indian element. Columns are devoted to the appearance, manners, dress and play of the redskins. The latter, whose expenses were paid by the pale faces, seem to have been quite conscious of the interest they were arousing and took advantage of every opportunity to make themselves conspicuous. Only four of them could speak English, but the others sought to make up by antics their disadvantages in speech. Keraronwe, the Indian captain, took special delight in amusing the crowd with his frequent exhortations in native tongue.

* * * *

One report says, referring to Keraronwe: "The latter conduced to his own enjoyment throughout the greater part of the afternoon by smoking a large clay pipe, apparently of Irish manufacture, though he carried in his belt a tomahawk, which, when in working order, he devoted to a similar use, placing the tobacco in the hollow hammer-like end of the weapon and drawing the smoke through the handle. He never seemed ill at ease, and when later in the day he was introduced to the Lord-Lieutenant and the Duchess of Abercorn, he appeared quite comfortable, and immediately after shaking hands with her grace he significantly touched his nose with the forefinger of his right hand. His conversation with the Viceroy and the Duchess was understood to be in French." However, any suggestion of immodesty which could be discerned in the conduct of the Iroquois braves was compensated for by the warmth and sincere loyalty of the address presented to Queen Victoria. Altogether the trip seems to have been a success, and its visit was followed by the adoption in England of the game by many clubs.

* * * *

Lacrosse being such a new game, some of the early descriptions of it are highly amusing. The Belfast writer tells his readers that it is much like the Irish hurly or shinny. A New York writer on the occasion of a match at Staten Island in 1880 between New York and the Toronto Club likens it to dismounted polo. The stick is described as similar to a hockey stick with a racket in the crooked end. But all alike are much impressed with the game as a physique builder, and point out the merit of having all the players engaged practically all the time in contrast to baseball or cricket.

The wholesale business in automobileparts and accessories last year was valued at $725,136,942.

SHOWS PICTURE IN DEATH HOUSE OF SING SING

Convicts Entertained by Thomas Meighan, Star of "The City of Silent Men."

A dozen condemned men enjoyed the privilege of seeing the first motion picture ever exhibted in Sing Sing's death house through the kindness of Thomas Meighan, Paramount star, and his director, Tom Forman, who recently presented a projection machine to the prison. Interiors of the prison are shown in Mr. Meighan's new picture, "The City of Silent Men," which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow night.

As the death house is small, the machine had to be placed twelve feet fom the screen. The reels were run off twice so that the twelve men could see them through the steel-barred doors of thir cells. A bedsheet, used as a screen, was stretched at the west end of the short corridor which has a row of cells on each side. When the reels were run off the sheet was shifted to the east side and the picture repeated.

Mr. Meighan recently staged an escape scene at Sing Sing for his latest Paramount picture, "The City of Silent Men," and he was so struck with the utter dreariness of the life of the inmates of the deathhouse that he asked Warden Lawes if a motion picture projecting machine could be used there. The Warden said the men might see censored pictures occasionally and the projection machine was ordered. It arrived in time to add a little mirth to the last Christmas many of the condemned men enjoyed.

Besides this splendid big production a funny two reel Century comedy, 15th episide of Fighting Fate, Pathe Review and one of the excellent Paramount mazagines will complete one of the very best programmes seen at the Capitol in some time.

BASEBALL COMMENT

(Port Hope Guide.)

It is regretted that Mr. Ward Patterson, of Peterborough, was refused admission to the official's bench at the game in Lindsay on Saturday. Mr. Patterson was an official of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association for a number of years, and the Central League never had a better friend or a more loyal supporter than Mr. Patterson. He has done much to promote baseball in this section, and the interests of Central League clubs and individual players always received every consideration and attention from Mr. Patterson.

If some fool rule in the Central League constitution is responsible for this unpleasant occurrence, then we say, by all means abolish the rule. Mr. Patterson's work for the Central League entitles him to the first position at any game, and the executive should see that this courtesy is extended at once.

In Denmark, a driver's license is issued only after a strict examination by the state officials.

POLICE PATROL THE STREETS EVERY NIGHT IN AUTOMOBILE

MEN NOT JOY-RIDING, SAYS CHIEF NEWHALL—NEW POSITION OF INSPECTOR CREATED AND SERGEANT REID IS APPOINTED.

Within the last few weeks a new office, unconfirmed as yet by the Board of Police Commissioners, has been created in the police department by Chief Newhall.

Sergt. James Reid has been made acting inspector in a test of the efficacy of such an office, and so far its establishment has been well founded and the value of such an office proved, the Chief of Police said today.

Duties Secretarial.

The principal duties of the inspector are of a clerical nature. All communications reports, etc., are examined by him and passed on to the Chief after their importance has been determined. The correspondence of the Department rests on the Inspector's shoulders. He is directly in touch with the sergeants and men through their reports. He looks after the issuing of licenses and such things.

The correspondence of the local police department has trebled this year because of new laws and increase of crime, Chief Newhall stated to-day. An average of 12 letters a day are received. Such places as Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, Detroit, Kingston, contributed to the pile of letters this morning and to answer these carefully and explicitly occupies a great deal of time. Formerly this work was largely attended to by the Chief, but these duties now rest with the inspector. The Inspector relieves the Chief of Police of practically all clerical work so his time is uncumbered in his manifold duties as Police Chief.

Many Interviews.

On an average he is interviewed by a dozen persons a day; he has investigations to make; he has to be constantly in touch with the progress of crime throughout the country ,and if an Inspector is not maintained it is next to impossible to keep up with the work.

The new enactments and new offenders all over the country have resulted in an avalanche of investigations to be made under his direction. If Peterboro has not been a boiling pot of crime other places in the province have been, he said, only efficient organization has saved us the orgy that other cities and towns have gone through.

Patrol Streets with Cars.

The police car has proved exceedingly valuable. Every night from 25 to 40 miles of outlying streets and roads are patrolled. In the reports to the Sergeant the driver must describe the night's patrolling minutely and the Chief was scornful of those who in their ignorance accused the police of "joy riding" in the automobile. At any time, the Chief said, he could tell exactly what the car was doing any night in question and charges of "joy riding" were not founded on the truth.

The definite appointment of Sergt. Reid as inspector will make the department that much more efficient, the Chief said, and relieve him so he con give his whole hearted attention to directing the machinery under his control for the mitigation and stamping out of crime in this city.

SAVING $2,000 ON $3,000 CONTRACT FOR THE FILTRATION PLANT PUMPS

ROBERT HICKS, CHAIRMAN OF THE UTILITIES COMMISSION, SAYS CITIZENS WOULD HAVE COMPLAINED ON GROUNDS OF ECONOMY IF THE HIGHER TENDER HAD BEEN ACCEPTED —RESIGNED TO CRITICISM.

"What's the use", said Robert Hicks, chairman of the Utilities Commission, when asked this morning if he had any comment to make on recent statements that the Escher-Wyss company of Switzerland from whom the Commission bought the pumps for the filtration plant was controlled by German capital.

"The people are apparently not in the mood to listen to anything we might say", he continued, "and the Examiner editorially seems to take the same attitude. The contract amounted in round numbers to $8,000, and of this sum $4,000 on motors is being spent here in Peterboro with the Canadian General Electric Company. Then there is $1,000 for fixtures which are being bought in Canada. This leaves approximately $3,000 for the pumps, and on that $3,000 outlay we are saving somewhere in the neighborhood of $2,000. Apparently the opinion has got around that the entire $8,000 is paid to the Escher-Wyss company. In that connection it should be understood that the local tender was $10,000. I am quoting in round numbers, but that is practically what it amounted to. But the motors and the fixtures were the same in each tender, therefore it will be apparent that the differnce of $2,000 involved only the price of the pumps. Mr. Wm. Kennedy Jr. of Montreal, our engineer on this work recommended the Escher-Wyss company to us. He said they were a large, reputable firm, and successful pump makers. Personally I understood that it was a Swiss company and because of the fact that their tender enaoled us to make a saving I considered that it was our duty to the ratepayers to accept that tender. I am speaking only for myself. If we had turned down that tender we would surely have found it difficult to explain to the public why we added to the cost of the filtration plant $2,000 which we could have saved. Personally I feel that in the circumstances the Commission did the right thing, and there is also a great deal of satisfaction in the knowledge that the filtration is going to be a successful job, financially and otherwise, that the ratepayers have got full value for their money, and that my successor in the chairmanship will find this work cleaned up and in good shape."

Mr. Hicks appeared to be resigned to criticism, feeling that if the higher tender had been accepted there would have been complaints from those citizens, who demand economy first.

VALERA CALLS FORMAL MEET

$15 MISSING AFTER HIS FORTUNE TOLD

TRAVELER LET GIPSY HOLD HIS MONEY WHILE SHE READ HIS PALM.

While a traveller in one of the sample rooms at the Empress this morning was waiting for business to turn up two Gipsy fortune-tellers (sic) passed down Water street, turned and coming back asked him what the life line in his palm said. To fill an idle moment the traveller, Mr. C. Rose, hold out his hand, but the woman instructed him to let her hold some of his money, while she traced the markings of his palm. He handed forty dollars over to her, and when the reading was finished she returned it. He had watched the whole mystic proceeding but back in his pocket his wad seemed to have lost weight, to have shruken or in some way lost it heftiness. Curiosity prompted him to count his rolls again and he found it $15 short, according to the story that emanates from the Police Station. There was some interrogation by the police, it is understood, but no developments are reported.

FLOATING DEBT OF THE COUNTRY TO BE INCREASED

REVENUE FALLS AT ALARMING RATE FOR OTTAWA FINANCIERS

OTTAWA, July 27. — Until the rate of interest has gone down it is believed that the Dominion Government will adopt as its policy an increase of floating indebtedness in preference to refunding as the various loans come due.

Officials here believe the rate to be much higher than present conditions justify, although it is recognised that a long-term loan of 25 years' duration would probably be taken up by the public at a reasonable rate of interest. Some Provincial loans have been made at around 6 per cent., but it is claimed here that a Provincial loan for an amount easily handled by liquid money reserves in sight is a different proposition from the immense loans the Dominion Government would have to make. Sooner or later the public will be asked to subscribe to a bond issue to retire those coming due, but not until money is easier.

For Railway Deficits.

The floating indebtedness will probably have to be increased in order to make up railway operating deficits as well as to take up loans falling due. It had been intended at the time of Sir Henry Drayton's last Budget address to meet these out of Federal revenue, but Customs receipts have fallen at a rate not paralleled in the history of the country, and even the increase in income taxation will not give enough money to treat the operating railway deficits, let alone the fixed charges, sinking funds, and betterments in this way.

If the Government-owned and controlled railways make a better showing it would help the situation, but little relief is expected in this way. In 1914 a drop of four millions in a month of Customs receipts was thought to be disastrous from the point of view of revenue. The present Administration has seen the receipts drop more millions than that in ten days. The bright side of the matter is that to date $52,000,000 have been received in income taxes and that from 75 to 80 millions will be taken in all this year.

Britain as Example.

It is admitted here that increasing the floating indebtedness is not a desirable thing, but it is stated that Great Britain increased her floating indebtedness £110,000,000 in three months for the same reasons which make a similar course desirable for Canada. The United States, as the great creditor nation, has enormous surpluses of gold, and it is stated, if these were released for the help of debtor nations at reasonable rates of interest just now the whole aspect of things in Canada and elsewhere would change.

GASOLINE IN DETROIT DROPS TO 19.9 CENTS A GALLON.

DETROIT, Mich., July 27.— As a result of a price war, as bitter as it has been brief, gasoline to Detroit consumers has dropped one cent a gallon, and according to the heads of large refining companies the 19.9 cent rate is likely to continue indefinitely.

Last Monday the Indiana Refining Company placed eleven new trucks in service, and announced to retailers that it would accede to the demand of a two-cent margin of profit. Other companies put the rate in effect the following day, the price to the retailer being 18.9 cents and to the consumer 20.9 cents.

Announcement was made yesterday by the local Standard Oil representatives that effective to-day the consumer must receive his gasoline for 19.9 cents, while the rate to the retailer must continue at 18.9 cents. Garage men say they are tired of price dictation by the Standard Oil Company.

FINE WAS REMITTED.

Chinaman Who Had Gin For Rheumatism Had Fine Returned.

An Order-in-Council has been passed remitting the fine of $200 imposed on Lee Heong, a Chinaman, of Brighton, recently convicted of a breach of the Ontario Temperance Act. The Order was passed following the reports of the Commissioner of Police and the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario. It was clearly a technical breach of the Act and the Chinaman acted on the advice of the Police Magistrate of Brighton. While the liquor has not yet been returned to Lee Heong, there is no doubt it will as soon as he provides a proper place in which to receive the same. Mr. F. M. Field, K.C., acted for the defendant.

MAHARG TELLS HOW APRANGEMENTS WERE MADE TO THROW "SERIES" OF 1919 BY WHITE SOX FOR $100,000

RELATES STORY OF MEETING IN ANSONIA HOTEL, NEW YORK, WITH BURNS, CICOTTE AND GANDIL AT WHICH HE ALLEGES DECISION TO SELL OUT WAS REACHED SO GAMBLERS COULD MAKE "CLEANING."

By Carl Victor Little

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

CHICAGO, July 27. —(Canadian Press.)—Judge Hugo Friend to-day informed the States' Attorney that he would direct the jury to return a verdict of "not guilty" in the cases of Buck Weaver and "Happy" Felsch, former White Sox players, and Carl Zork of St. Louis, unless further evidence was introduced aagainst these men.

CHICAGO, July 27. — "Billy" Maharg came back to-day and pointed an accusing finger at the "Black Sox" on trial for alleged conspiracy.

Maharg said he met Burns in New York before the series.

"I was in conference with Burns, Cicotte and Gandil," said Maharg.

"We discussed throwing the series at the Ansonia Hotel in New York.

"Cicotte said he would throw the series in any order the gamblers wanted.

"I went to Philadelphia to raise $100,000 to buy the players. I couldn't raise it."

Q.—"What conversation did you have with Burns at the Ansonia after Cicotte and Gandil left?"

A.—"Burns told me these boys had agreed to sell the series for one hundred thousand so gamblers would make a cleaping. Burns asked if I could raise the money. I told him I would try."

Defence attorneys battled hard to exclude Maharg's statements, but the attempt was unsuccessful. The witness then went into the story of the suit-case full of money flashed by Attel. He also recounted how Attel threw a paltry $10,000 at the players when they started to "squawk" for their money.

Maharg with Burns and other gamblers, then came to Chicago for the next games.

Before we left Cincinnati we arranged a conference with Attel in Chicago, testified Maharg. "Attel took all the bets he could make that Cincinnati would win the series. I heard him turn down bets with those who wanted to wager on the Reds."

Maharg described the new arranement made between the gamblers and the players in Chicago before the fourth game.

Attel agreed to put up $20,000 on the Reds to win the next two games and the proceeds of the bet were to go to the crooked players if they carried out their agreement, according to Maharg's story.

JUDGE G. M. ROGER DIED IN COBOURG

FORMER MAYOR OF PETERBORO AND HIGHLY RESPECTED CITIZEN PASSES.

George Morris Roger, junior judge of the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, died yesterday at Cobourg, and in his death Peterborough lost another prominent member of the Bar, who left this city to accept a judgeship.

Judge Roger was about 70 years of age and was a son of Rev. J. M. Roger, pastor of the Presbyterian church here. He married a daughter of the late J. H. Roper, at one time manager of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Toronto. He received his education here and completed his law studies at Osgoode Hall, being called to the Bar in 1875. Till May, 1909, he practiced his profession in Peterborough, at first being associated with E. A. Poussette, and later he was in the firm of Roger, Bennett and Goodwill.

While he conducted a large legal practice, deceased took a prominent interest in civic affairs and served some terms as alderman, and in 1903 and 1904 was Mayor of the city. He was President of the Peterborough Law Association. He took a considerable interest in politics, as a supporter of the Liberal party. In May, 1909, he received his appointment to the Bench, moving to Cobourg, where he has since resided.

Judge Roger is survived by his wife. Mr. J. Fairbairn, chief engineer of the C.P.R., is a nephew.

FILTRATION PLANT PROGRESSING WELL

WILLIAM KENNEDY, JR., OF MONTREAL, INSPECTED WORK TODAY.

William Kennedy, of Montreal, who has been the consulting engineer retained by the Peterborough Utilities Commission on the filtration plant being constructed here, was in the city inspecting the work today, and to R. L. Dobbin, superintendent of the job, he expressed satisfaction at the progress that had been made.

Upwards of 200 men are working for the two contractors, and the work has done much to alleviate the unemployment which exists and has existed in the city for some months. Few references have been made to this before, but the employment given to men thrown out of work in factories and shops by the business depression has been a boon that has helped these men over a critical period. "The work has been a God-send to me," one man is credited with having stated. He had been thrown out of work in the factory and had not worked steady for four months till he got the job on the plant. Most of the laborers are men laid off in factories, and, despite their "softness," they have stuck. There has been little grumbling about wages, and the only regret of the workers is that the job cannot last all winter.

A gentleman in Toledo would like to ask some etiquette expert if it is a gentleman's duty to approach a woman and say: "Pardon me, madam, but your left eyebrow is on crooked and there's speck of soot on your right knee."

"TIP" BURN AMONG POTATOES

A trouble which is widely distributed and very prevalent in some seasons, and to which the name, "Tip Burn," has been given, is to be found among our potato crops. This trouble takes the form of a gradual burning and drying-up of the leaves of the plants, often commencing at a comparatively early stage in their growth and, in many cases, if allowed to go on unchecked, slowly but surely involving the whole of the plants so that they die down a considerable time before the tubers are fully developed.

The appearance of this trouble in the fields is often mistaken by growers for Late Blight. There is, however, a marked distinction between the two, for Late Blight may commence by attacking any part of the plants—leaves and stems alike—has a dark, water-soaked appearance and, in its early stages, is damp to the touch, while Tip Burn invariably commences at the margin or tips of the leaves and has a decidedly dry appearance and touch with the exception of after rain. It also appears much earlier in the season than Late Blight has ever been recorded and does not cause the death of the plants so rapidly. Nor has it ever proven so destructive as Late Blight, although evidence has been obtained that in seasons when it is severe and where no effort is made to check, a considerable reduction in the yield of marketable tubers, due to the premature death of the plants from this cause, may result.

Investigators of this trouble are not yet in agreement as to the cause. The observations of some have led to the belief that a period of hot, dry weather during the growing season causes the leaves to throw off moisture more rapidly than it can be furnished by the plant, the result being the appearance of Tip Burn. This theory seems, however, to be disputed by the fact that the trouble is not found in the hot regions of the Western States where the temperature often becomes excessive and the air is especially dry.

More recent investigations lead to the belief that this burning of the leaves probably follows the depredations of sucking insects. These investigations are not yet complete, but enough evidence has been produced to serve as a warning to potato growers to keep these insect pests thoroughly under control in an endeavor to avoid Tip Burn.

We have found in our experimental work with potatoes that Bordeaux mixture will to a large extent control this trouble. In 1918, when it was extremely prevalent, we had several plots to which, for the purposes of experiment, Bordeaux mixture was not applied. These plots suffered from a severe attack of Tip Burn and the plants were all killed down by the second week in August, while other plots on the same land, and to which, for the control of Late Blight, Bordeaux mixture was regularly and thoroughly applied, suffered to a vary slight extent only, the plants remaining green until frost came. Bordeaux mixture acts as a repellent to the Leaf Hopper, as well as a protection to the plants. Many other cases, in addition to that referred to, have come to our attention, bearing evidence that regular and thorough spraying with this mixture will reduce to a minimum the ravages of Tip Burn.

TAXING THE CAT.

Winnipeg has imposed a dollar a year license on cats, and thereby raised new and vexing questions.

The Toronto Telegram asks what privileges such a license carries. Does it give the unfeathered songster the right to mount the backyard fence at midnight and fill the air with his music? Will the boots and language hurled in his general direction by men who claim the right to sleep be in defiance of the statute?

All attempts at producing revenue may be more or less justified at times of financial crises. But anything that gives the midnight cat any official standing in the community must be viewed with a suspicion almost amounting to alarm.

STOPPED THE WEDDING.

Just as he was leaving his temporary lodging quarters at the Ontario Hospital last Saturday afternoon, preparatory to being married at 4 o'clock, a young man named Ayres, nineteen years of age, was arrested by Chief C. F. Lavery, on a charge preferred by the Oshawa police. The young man had been in Whitby about two weeks, and had made arrangements to be married by a local clergyman. Saturday afternoon, Chief Lavery was informed by phone from Oshawa that Ayres was wanted in that town on a charge of seduction, and that he ought to be arrested before the marriage was consummated. After taking Ayres into custody, the Chief handed him over to the Oshawa police. Needless to say, the wedding did not take place.—Whitby Gazette and Chronicle.

VOL. XLIX., No. 23 PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1921 PRICE THREE CENTS

TRIBUTE PAID JUDGE ROGERS BY COLLEAGUES

JUDGE WARD, CROWN ATTORNEY KERR, AND G. N. GORDON, ON BEHALF OF PETERBORO BAR, EULOGIZE DEAD JUDGE.

COURT IS ADJOURNED IN RESPECT TO HIM

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

COBOURG, July 28.—Yesterday at the Court House, Cobourg, when His Honour, Judge Ward opened the Court for the trial of Percy Simpson, on a charge of burglary he announced the death of his honour, Judge Rogers, the other Judge of the County Court of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham.

His Honour, Judge Ward, told in very feeling terms of the very friendly relations that had existed between the late Judge Rogers and himself, that they had worked along together as judges in the same court, and that he had always felt the highest respect and regard for the late judge. He further said that Judge Rogers' care and attention to his official duties was an outstanding characteristic of him, and that his services had been most effective and most satisfactory.

Judge Ward was visibly affected by the loss of a Judge of the same court, who had been associated with him for a great many years, at Cobourg.

W. F. Kerr, Esq., Crown Attorney, addressed the court on behalf of the bar of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, and Mr. Kerr also mentioned the splendid service the late Judge Rogers had given, in his capacity as a judge, and as a citizen of Cobourg. He gave instances of kindliness and large hearted sympathy of the judge for every movement for the advancement of the community and the improvement of the conditions of the people. Judge Rogers, was known, he said, by all the people, as an upright, kindly, sympathetic citizen, and as a most conscientious and painstaking judge.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, who was present to defend Percy Simpson, spoke on behalf of the Peterborough bar, of which, he said, the late Judge Rogers was a leading member for a great many years. He said Judge Rogers had been Mayor of Peterborough for two terms, had been a most public spirited citizen and was highly regarded by every person who had known him.

Mr. Gordon said Judge Rogers' record as a lawyer was outstanding for his caution, perserverance and careful attention that he gave all his clients. According to Mr. Gordon, Judge Rogers was a leading figure in all the community's efforts in Peterborough, and in the death of Judge Rogers, he said that Peterborough had lost one of the strongest characters that she had ever had.

Mr. Gordon said he felt that His Honour, Judge Ward had taken the only course that could be taken, under such circumstances, and that was, to adjourn the court, out of respect to the memory of the late judge.

Immediately after the adjournment of the court, the sheriff ordered the flag to be put at half mast and the judges, lawyers and court officials gathered in little groups speaking of Judge Rogers, good works and the high regard in which he was held by all the members of the community.

Germany Leads Trade Race in South America

REGAINING HER POSITION IN ONE OF HER BEST FOREIGN MARKETS BEFORE THE WAR.

By James Miller

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

BUENOS AIRES, July 28.—Germany is winning the race for the South American trade.

The Customs House and surrounding yards were stacked to-day with American-made goods, valued at from $40,000,000 to $60,000,000. Meanwhile three German ships which arrived here with almost identical goods, discharged their cargoes, saw them sold, and cleared for Germany and more cargoes.

The German goods sold at one-half the price of the American product, because of the high cost of the United States dollar.

PAYS TO HAVE THE BEST, SAYS ONTARIO M.O.H.

FILTRATION PLANT IS VERY NECESSARY, BECAUSE OF SERIOUS POLLUTION OF THE WATER, DR. CLINTON DECLARES.

RAPS CITY'S SLOTH IN HAVING EARTH CLOSETS

"It always pays to get the best," said Dr. G. Clinton, of Belleville, District Officer of Health, referring in an interview with The Examiner this morning to Peterborough's new filtration plant. "Pure milk and pure water are essential to the health of any community," he continued. "I understand that the purity of Peterborough's milk supply is being well looked after, and knowing the condition of the water above the city as I do I am glad to see that the authorities are preparing to supply the people with filtered water."

Dr. Clinton has just made his annual inspection of the hotels and summer resorts in the Stoney Lake and adjoining district. He found the conditions quite satisfactory.

The summer hotels have all installed septic tanks to take care of their sewage, and the passenger boats have also conformed with this regulation.

"But there is contamination from other sources than these," said Dr. Clinton. "Sewage from Bobcaygeon probably affects Peterborough's "Earl of Mansfield," and "Dornock drainage from the farm lands and homes on the upper rivers and lakes, and the water is also polluted during the time the drives of logs are being floated to the local mills. There is only one sure safeguard, and that is to filter the water as your city is now preparing to do."

Asked as to whether individual tap filters in the homes would have been a satisfactory alternative and cheaper means of purifying the water, Dr. Clinton replied with a decided negative. "These small filters simply collect the impurities in the water and would have been generally unsatisfactory. With a filtration plant, the city will always have water that will be safe to drink, and when you are about it you might as well build a good one."

Too Many Earth Closets.

Following this commendation of the city's enterprise for the health of its people, Dr. Clinton offered a suggestion and a criticism of the Council for permitting too many earth closets to be used on streets where sewerage was provided. The Council, he said, was given every authority to compel citizens to put in sanitary plumbing, and there was no reason why this legislation was not taken full advantage of. If some persons could not meet the expense in a lump sum, they could arrange with the Council to have the cost spread over their taxes for a term of five years.

Dr. Clinton was accompanied by Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., in his visit yesterday, and while in the city examined some houses whose earth closets have been complained of by neighbors. If the Council would not take action in such cases Dr. Young had the power to placard these houses as unfit for habitation. Dr. Clinton expressed the opinion that if the Council would take a firmer attitude and force citizens to use the sewers that are provided for them, the conditions making for the health of the community would be greatly improved.

ONT. ELECTIONS NOT THIS YEAR THINK LEADERS

FERGUSON'S BELIEF IN PROXIMITY OF CONTEST SCOFFED AT IN GOVERNMENT CIRCLES.

TIME RIPE NEXT YEAR, IT IS THOUGHT

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, July 28.—In U.F.O. and Labor circles the idea of G. Howard Ferguson, Conservative leader, that the Provincial election will be sprung this year is not taken seriously.

"If we wait until next year, when the Government expects to make a good financial showing, when the road policy will be showing results and when the agrarian movement has triumphed in the Federal election, the time may be ripe," said one authority to The Examiner.

"But the Legislature will not meet for some months, and it is doubtful even then that the Conservative and Liberal oppositions would unite to force an election. If they do, we will be ready for them."

The Government has been in office nearly two years, and its term does not expire for two years.

GUIDES CARRYING MRS. STONE REACH FOOT OF ROCKIES

GRIEF-STRICKEN WOMAN TOO OVERCOME TO TELL OF SUFFERINGS.

BANFF, July 28.—(United Press)—Heroic Guides, carrying Mrs. W. E. Stone on a stretcher, picked a treacherous path from the foot of the Mountains to Marble Creek today, according to word reaching here.

The widow of the President of Purdue University was still in a serious condition it was reported and too greatly overcome with grief to speak of the eight horrifying days in which she lay helpless in a deep crevice of the mountain beside the body of her husband.

A temporary camp was prepared at Marble Creek with rough comforts for the suffering woman. A party of Club members and newspaper men left here hastily Wednesday at noon to take the invalid food and medical supplies to the camp at Marble Creek. They were due to reach there some time to-day.

LORD BIRKENHEAD POINTS TO DIFFICULTIES CONFRONTING CONFERENCE OF REPUBLICAN LEADERS IN DUBLIN.

CALLING DAIL EIREANN NOT OF IMPORTANCE

LONDON, July 18. — (Canadian Press). — Speculations and predictions regarding the Irish situation have taken many precautions as a result of developments featuring the negotiations during the past 24 hours. Of these developments, perhaps the most talked of is the speech made in the House of Lords yesterday by Lord Birkenhead, Lord High Chancellor, in which he invited Parliament and the country to have patience with the trouble Eamon De Valera, Irish Republican leader, and his colleagues may be having in Dublin to reach a decision on the British proposals.

The question of assembling the entire Dail Eireann to consider the British Government's proposals is not regarded by many newspapers as having a very important bearing on the progress of negotiations, and, according to some reports, considerable difficulty has arisen in this connection.

LIBERATION OF IRISH PRISONERS AN OBSTACLE

LONDON, July 28.— (Canadian Press.)—It has been stated frequently that the British government was willing to release thirty-six members of the Dail Eireann who are in prison or in internment camps, if De Valera will but make the request. It is said on the other hand, however, that the Sinn Fein leaders are reluctant to ask for the liberation of their comrades, lest it appear that they recognize Great Britain's right to imprison representatives of the Irish Republic. How this difficulty, if it exists at all, will be circumvented is not apparent at the moment, but the view is taken that certainly before very long the "Dailities" will be released to participate in the Irish Parliament meeting which it is believed in many quarters already has been arranged for.

LUXURIOUSNESS OF TASTE MADE MEAT SO HIGH

BUTCHERS DENY PROFITEERING AND CLAIM REFUSAL TO BUY CHEAP MEAT LEAVES HUGH STOCKS ON HANDS.

SLACKENING SALES THUS FORCE UP PRICE

Luxuriousness of taste developed amongst all classes of citizens during the war and not thrown off since, despite unempolyment and tight money, expressed in the buying of only choice cuts of meat, butchers in this city say, have forced meat prices up and they are not to blame if some meats are dear.

The butchers as a body deny profiteering and many of them declare that, with the public refusing to buy cheap meats that are left on their hands to decompose, and the slackening sales of meat in the hot weather, they are lucky if they do not have to shut up shop.

Not so many years ago they say, front and hind quarters were on a parity in the public's favour. People were not fastidious and pot roasts and cheaper cuts sold as well as the higher priced meats. Not now. Of late years, with bulging purses, the demand has been for sirloin and porterhouse steaks. The juicy hind quarters became the favourite and front quarters "went by the boards." Therefore the hind quarters rose in value and the front remained about stationary at a pre-war level. The result has been that No. 1 prime hind quarters are quoted to the trade at 27 cents to-day by a leading Toronto abattoir. The Examiner had this quotation straight from the traveller to-day. While hinds are 27, fronts are only 8 cents. This traveller stated that the meat trade is in the same situation all over the country, due to the refusal of housewives to buy the front quarters, and to sell front quarters the abattoirs have been forced to raise the price of hind quarters, but even this attempt has not been successful.

Wholesale, beef is costing 17 cents a pound, he said, and when the waste is figured, and the fact that most of the front quarters sell at only 10 cents a pound or thereabouts, and only a few hind cuts at 40 cents, the greater part from 10 to 25, evidences of profiteering in the retail meat business are hard to find.

Sell at Loss.

One butcher said to-day that there was 10 to 15 pounds waste in cutting up front quarters. We sell the shank of that beef at 8 cents and the stewing beef at 10 cents so there isn't much profit in that when it costs us 15 or over. After we have taken out the kidney and fat on the hind quarter there is left some of the fine cuts, sirloin and porterhouse, that we sell at 40 cents and the rest is flank, that is hard to sell at 10 cents. On the hind quarters there is that 10 pounds of kidney and fat that we paid 15 cents a pound for that is lost. We give this in with the steak for frying. To show how much they were profiteering this butcher brought out a piece of shank weighed it at 16 lbs., and said he would sell it for eight cents a pound and it cost him 15.

Fastidious Public.

Hind quarters are scarce, the butchers say, because of the demand of a fastidious public. If housewives woud buy front quarters the prices of the finer cuts would soon drop. One butcher offered an illustration of the public shyness of cheap cuts. "I put a breast of mutton in the window a couple of Saturdays ago with a 10 cent tag on it. It stood there all morning and afternoon. No one looked at it. In the evening I decided something was wrong so I took it out, put on 18 cent tag on it and sold it shortly after. That is the way the people are buying meat. They evidently don't want the cheap cuts.

Pork the Same.

In selling pork, butchers say that they are up against the same problem. Nobody wants the front quarters. Only the high priced bacon is acceptable and so the meats from the hind quarter are being maintained sky-high by the people themselves refusing to buy the cheaper, but just as nourishing, other parts.

WIRELESS CHAIN - IN THE EMPIRE?

UNDERSTOOD PREMIERS CONFERENCE HAS APPROVED PROJECT.

LONDON, July 28. — (Canadian Press.)—There seems to be some authority for stating that the Empire Premiers' conference has approved of plans for an imperial wireless chain at a total cost to the British government of two million pounds.

Matters down for discussion at the Premiers' conference are understood to be nearly cleaned up and it is thought the agenda of business will likely be concluded this week.

"Naughty Arch" in New Appeal

COURTS HAVE CONVICTED HIM, HE TURNS TO THE PEOPLE FOR POPULAR VERDICT.

By Lloyd Allen

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, July 28.—John Wakeford, the "Naughty Arch," who was unfrocked as a clergyman when found guilty of immorality, took his case to the people to-day.

Barred from a legal appeal since the highest court in the land convicted him, Wakeford hoped to create a popular demand for a rehearing which would lead to his reinstatement in the Church.

The Archdeacon will address a mass meeting to-night at Queen's Hall, renewing his charges that he was convicted on framed evidence. The strongest evidence he has to break down is that of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pugh, managers of the Bull Inn at Peterborough, where the Archdeacon was said to have spent two days with a young woman he met at the famous Peterborough Cathedral.

Mrs. Pugh testified that she investigated Wakeford's room at the inn, finding there the Archdeacon's pyjamas and a woman's night dress. There was no mark on the feminine apparel, but the pyjamas bore the name, "J. Wakeford," she said.

The Archdeacon denies that he wears pyjamas.

IN VIEW OF AGREEMENT UNDERSTOOD TO EXIST BETWEEN U.F.O. AND LABOR POSSIBILITY OF LABORITE ENTERING SLIGHT.

EXPECTED FARMERS WILL PICK ROSS AS CANDIDATE

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

WOODSTOCK, July 28.—David M. Ross, formerly Reeve of West Zorra, and a member of the Oxford County Council for eight years, announced to-day that if the U. F. O. sanction his nomination he will be a candidate in the by-election to be held to fill the vacancy in North Oxford for the Provincial Legislature.

Mr. Ross said he was confident that the U.F.O. would place a candidate in the field, that a convention would be held, and that he would run if the convention supported him. He remarked that already he had been approached with a view to becoming a candidate.

In spite of rumors, it is hardly likely that there will be a Labor candidate in this election. In view of a previous agreement, in which the U.F.O. are said to have made a bargain to support a Labor man in the Provincial election, providing the Laborites supported a Farmer for the Fededal House, John Scott, who was the defeated Labor candidate at the last election, said that he might be a candidate, but only if the U. F. O. lived up to this agreement in U. F. O. circles. However, there is an inclination to deny the existence of any such bargain.

Mr. Ross, the probable U. F. O. candidate, is a farmer of West Zorra, and was for two years North Oxford U. F. O. Director. He has always taken an active and intelligent part in the municipal affairs of the county, and during the eight years which he served in the County Council he gave painstakingly of his time and talents. He has always been an active follower of political affairs in North Oxford, and his announcement is not altogether unexpected.

TRAFFIC ON TRENT 54 PER CENT. OFF

ALL CANALS EXCEPT WELLAND AND THE ST. LAWRENCE SHOW DECREASES.

OTTAWA, July 28. — (Canadian Press.)—The traffic on the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals increased 37 and 35 per cent. respectively in June, 1921, according to an announcement made public this morning by the transportation branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Traffic on other canals showed considerable decreases compared with June of last year. The Shambly Canal dropped 58 per cent., Trent Canal 54 per cent., Murray Canal 43 per cent., Rideau 31 per cent., Soo 30 per cent., Ottawa Canal 17 per cent. and St. Peter's Canal 15 per cent.

The American highways, which comprise 2,500,000 miles of roads, would encircle the globe 100 times.

RIOT FOLLOWS FAMINE TRAIL OVER RUSSIA

TWO COMBINED HOLD PROMISE OF TAKING GREATER DEATH TOLL THAN THAT COUNTRY'S PART IN RECENT WAR.

CARAVANS STRIPPING COUNTRY AS THEY GO

(By United Press).

LONDON, July 28.—Famine and riot spread over Russia to-day, holding a promise of a greater death toll than resulted from that country's part in the war and her revolutions.

More than ten million men, women and children were directly affected by the drought. Staggering caravans setting out from the Volga region in search of food stripped the country as they went. Cavalry horses, fire horses and cart horses disappeared as the miserable refugees passed by. In cities rations were cut. Leon Trotsky as food dictator reduced army supplies, in Petrograd two regiments revolted because of the food cut. Civilians there started a demonstration against the nation's edict, 100 of them being killed and 1,500 wounded.

The famine situation was complicated by the almost complete breakdown in transportation. With fair supplies of food in some sections, notably the Ukraine region, authorities were unable to distribute it. Famine-stricken sections have been compelled to migrate in search of it. The search has become a panic with hundreds of thousands wandering hopelessly over burning roads, blown one way or another as various rumors of great food stocks come. The great famine region represents one-twentieth of Russia's territory, but is a region that ordinarily supplies one-half the country's food stocks. As large as the Mississippi valley, the section extends from Astraken in the south to Simbirek in the north. Mortality among children were especially pitiful; wasted from lack of food and weakened by the long trips undertaken by their parents, they fell by the hundreds.

PARIS, July 28. — (Canadian Press.)—France informed the British government late yesterday that the question of sending reinforcements to Upper Silesia must be disposed of satisfactorily before French representaives can attend the meeting of the Allied Supreme Council on August 4, at which it is planned to discuss the entire Silesian question.

BLACK IS NEW COLOR; SEEN IN EVERYTHING.

Turkey Red Enters, Too, and, in Autumn Suits, Brown Family Prominent.

Black is the new color this season and is to be seen in everything, combined with turkey red, some of the New York and Paris shops showing nothing else. There will also be a tremendous vogue for the coat dress which will be made in plain, straight lines, with narrow belts and round necks, the "V" with small collar also being shown and my lady of fashion can make no mistake in buying an all black wardrobe plainly tailored.

In the new autumn models which have already found their way into the Toronto shops, and are being viewed with much interest by the up-to-date fashion world, from all appearances suits this year will be plain-tailored, with coats to the knee, and skirts a trifle longer. The whole Brown family are to be seen on the best models, including the russett, henna, and golden brown shades, beaver and beaverette collars and cuffs being the most popular, duvetyn, broadcloth, tricotine and the ever popular velours will again hold their own. The hats will be very plain and mostly hand-made, all trimmings tabooed. The New York sport models of felt and straw are a delightful novelty as are also hatters' plush and velvet, all of the brightest colors.

The new fur models are from forty to forty-two inches in length, and show very wide and deep shawl collars with a long roll in opossum and squirrel, and are lined with the new Swiss brocades and pussy willow taffetas, in bright colors. Equally good with or without belts. The fur chokers of kolinsky, sable, squirrel or ermine will be as popular as ever when the warm weather is over. As for the stoles, which this season are made double, fox taupe, brown and white are immensely popular. Cloaks of all kinds to wear with the coat dresses to be worn on all occasions which have been found most practical will again come into their own, their distinguishing difference being a short panel both back and front, with fur collars and cuffs.

Some additional particulars of the coming styles may be gleaned from Messrs. Rogow Bros.' ladies' costume tailors, 440 George Street, who give special attention to the varying changes of fashion.

ACT SAFELY, THINK SAFETY

FATALLY HURT IN FALL.

MONTREAL, July 28.—Seated on the railing of the second-storey balcony at 524 Adam stret last night and waving to his brother, Arthur St. Martin, 47, lost his balance and fell to the ground, being fatally injured. He died in the Notre Dame Hospital, shortly after admission.

FIRE AT CHATHAM.

CHATHAM, July 28.—The big livery barns of Charles Hewing, on the west side of the Market Square, were severely damaged by fire last evening, the building, which is owned by Chapple and Harrington of this city, is a three-storey brick building and when the alarm was turned in the entire roof was ablaze. All the fire apparatus in the city turned out on general alarm.

DROWNED IN LAKE ONTARIO

TORONTO, July 28.—Miss Reta Glass, 19 Myrtle avenue, Hamilton, was drowned under tragic circumstances eight miles off shore from Port Dalhousie last night. After drifting on the lake for seven hours in a frail canoe, she and her companion, Murray Tait of Toronto, were finally sighted by the wheelsman of the Dalhousie City. A line thrown to the luckless girl while she was yet in the canoe slipped through her hands, the canoe upset, and she was sucked under the boat.

Murray Tait, living at 617 Gerrard St., east, who was sevad from the stormy waters, said last night they had gone out in a canoe from Grimsby and had been caught by a storm, which swept them away from the short and for 18 miles east. Tait apparently lost control of the frail craft.

YOUNG SURVEYOR DROWNED.

OTTAWA, July 28. — Death of drowning in the wilderness, two days' journey in by canoe, was the fate of James E. Narraway, aged 21, youngeht son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Narraway, according to information received in the city late last nuight. The drowning accident took place at Snow Shoe Lake, Man., 100 miles north of Lac du Bonnet, where the young man was aiding in the surveying of the Ontario-Manitoba boundary line. While the news of the fatality is meagre it is known that Mr. Narraway was working with the instrument across the lake from his comrades—a distance of half a mile.

WHY CHILLY WEATHER BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says skin pores are closed and uric acid remains in blood.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

THE STARVING MILLIONS ARE STRIPPING RUSSIA

STARVING HAVE NOW RESORTED TO VIOLENCE

DEMONSTRATIONS BEYOND CONTROL OF MILITARY FOLLOW PATH OF FAMINE IN STRICKEN RUSSIA.

REFUGEES STRIPPING LAND LIKE LOCUSTS

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

LONDON, July 28. — Demonstrations beyond the contro lof the military and the civil authorities, are raging in Russia, as a result of the famine, according to newspapers received here to-day.

Starving refugees sweeping across the country by thousands, towards Moscow, are stripping the land like locusts.

Cities have been looted and all animals seized and killed for food.

The soldiers, discouraged by the cuts in rations, have joined in the demonstrations in Petrograd and in Moscow, the reports said.

Petrograd was the scene of extensive rioting on July 19 and 20, in which 100 unarmed participants were reported killed, and 1500 wounded.

Women have joined in the demonstrations and many of them have been killed by firing squads, it was reported.

The city of Tamboff was practically invested on July 20th, according to the newspaper Isvestia. Soviet authorities sent troops out to check the straving invaders from the Volga region.

The refugees tottering as they came, marched doggedly on in the face of bayonets and the sharp commands of the soldiers. The troops did not have the heart to fire on them and they staggered into the city.

Cavalry horses were sacrificed for food, the city being unable to care for the refugees otherwise. The fire department was the next to be deprived of its animals. Finally private carriages and car horses were shot, thousands of refugees fighting over the carcases.

Over 6,500,000 men, women and children are overflowing the provinces of Tamboff, Fenza and Veroness, according to the Isvestia's figures.

MOSCOW, July 28. (Canadian Press.) The Soviet government announces that the famine in the Volga region, which started last month, has grown steadily worse.

The official figures of the Commisar of Health, show 13,476 cholera cases since the beginning of the year of which 11,234 occurred in the month of June alone.

The Vossische Zeitung says that there are five hundred cholera cases in Moscow.

MAKE THEM OBEY

The following letter has been received by The Examiner in reply to the request for advice recently made through The Examiner by a man who claimed that his son, 16 years of age, refused to obey him:

Sir,—In answer to that letter regarding the boy of 16, I really am at a loss as to what to advise at his age; but my advice to all parents is to begin training their boys and girls to obey when very young, 18 months or 2 years, and they most likely will have no trouble later on. I never did.

STAGE IS SET FOR TALKS ON DISARMAMENT

JAPAN'S ACCEPTANCE RECEIVED AND FORMAL INVITATIONS TO CONFERENCE LIKELY TO BE ISSUED TO-DAY.

JAPAN'S ACCEPTANCE "MOST GRATIFYING"

BY A. L. BRADFORD,
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 28.—Presidens Harding and Secretary Hughes today were prepared to issue the formal call for the Washington disarmament and Pacific Conference.

Japan's acceptance of the President's proposal for the conference although given with important qualifications, was hailed as "most gratifying" here to-day since it means unanimous acceptance from all five powers receiving invitations.

Hughes expects to reach an immediate agreement with the powers, on a date for the opening of the conference.

President Harding wants the date for the conference to be November 11 Armistice Day, and Hughes hopes to secure an agreement on this day. Invitations from a number of Pacific coast cities asking that the discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern questions be held there, are reaching the White House and the State Department. It can be stated with confidence, however, that these invitations, while appreciated, will not be accepted and that there will be only one conference, that in Washington.

WINDSOR POLICE IS INEFFICIENT ALDERMAN SAYS

CLAIMS BURGLARY INSURANCE RATES THERE ARE HIGHEST IN COUNTRY.

WINDSOR, July 28.—Charging that Windsor Police Department is inefficient and claiming that burglary insurance rates in this city are the highest in the country, Alderman A. E. Hooper, announced that he would introduce a solution at the next meeting of the City Council calling upon the police authorities to redouble its efforts towards the preservation of order.

"Instead of taking a holiday during the summer months the Police Commission would do well to continue its weekly sessions and give some consideration to the outbreak of burglaries and shootings which bid fair to rival Detroit's record if not curbed at once," said Alderman Hooper.

He added that he had been informed by persons who had endeavored to secure burglary insurance that the rates were prohibitive and he expressed the belief that the companies placed Windsor under this handicap because they felt that police protection, here, was not as reliable as in other cities of the country.

One of the most prominent of Windsor insurance underwriters was asked about the point raised by Alderman Hooper. His reply practically bore out the claims of the alderman.

"As an example," this underwriter said, "I know that the Ontario Government applied to a local insurance man not long ago for protection on its liquor warehouse here. The companies represented by this agent refused point blank to issue such a policy. That shows what those insurance companies think of the police system of this city."

CHOICE OF CONVENTION OF FARMER MEMBER-SELECT WEDNESDAY AN OUT-AND-OUT FARMER.

RESIDED IN WESTERN ONTARIO FOR A TIME

CALGARY, Alta., July 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Herbert Greenfield of Westlock is Premier-Designate of Alberta to succeed Hon. Charles Stewart, whose government was defeated at the polls by the United Farmers on July 19. Mr. Greenfield who is Vice-President of the United Farmers' Association, was the choice Wednesday of the Farmer members-elect and in due course he will form his cabinet and take over the administration.

He was born in Winchester, England, 52 years ago. He is an out-and-out farmer and has passed through the mill from being a hired man to the owner of one of the finest farms in northern Alberta.

He came to Canada in 1892 and for several years was engaged in farming at Watford, in western Ontario. In 1906 he homesteaded at Westlock and has resided there ever since.

He is a man of strong personality and is considered by his admirers to be eminently fitted to guide the Farmers' destiny in Alberta.

KING SAYS HE WON'T QUIT IN N. YORK RIDING

LIBERAL LEADER CLAIMS HIS NOMINATION PRIOR TO BURNABY'S AND LIBERALISM AND PROGRESS SHOULD UNITE.

SEES DANGER IN SPLIT OF PROGRESSIVE FORCES

AURORA, July 28. (Canadian Press.) Addressing the voters of North York, who attended the annual gathering of the Liberal Clubs of the riding here yesterday, Hon. Mackenzie King, the leader of the Liberal party, told them that he did not propose to quit the contest in the riding simply because Mr. R. W. E. Burnaby, the President of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, happened to be in the field.

He made this declaration at the close of his address in touching upon the result of a three cornered contest which he had remined his audience might result in a return of a candidate of the Meighen government if the forces of Liberalism and progress were divided.

Hon. Mr. King remarked that he had been nominated to contest the seat before the formation of the U. F. O. and stated that he was prepared to leave to his friends and those of Mr. Burnaby as to who had prior claim to nomination.

THE NEW PREMIER.

The career of the new premier of Alberta, Herbert Greenfield, chosen yesterday by the U.F.A., furnishes another striking proof of the fact that Canada is the land of opportunity. Mr. Greenfield came to Canada from England as a young man and was employed for some time as a farm hand. Realizing the possibilities that farming in the northwest offered a man who was ambitious, and not afraid of work, he took up land in the pioneer district north of Edmonton and in spite of early difficulties won his way through to success. He has long been a power in Alberta, doing valuable work as president of the Provincial Rural Municipalities Association and being one of those chiefly responsible for the establishment of the system of rural hospitals which have been of inestimable value to the farmers of the province. Evidently the United Farmers of Alberta have made an excellent choice in selecting Mr. Greenfield as their political leader and thereby making him the new premier. His career will be followed with interest throughout the Dominion.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

From Ottawa comes the somewhat belated but none the less welcome announcement that preliminary negotiations are being undertaken with a view of outlining some method of concerted action to relieve unemployment during the coming winter. That there will be many men out of work in most of the cities of Canada seems a foregone conclusion, and the best efforts of Municipal, Provincial and Dominion governments and of organizations representing the returned soldiers and labour will be required to prevent distress and suffering. The Federal government takes the view that the Municipal and Provincial authorities should do all they can to solve the problem, calling upon the Dominion administration when they find that their own efforts are impotent. That attitude seems to some extent at least to evade a share of the responsibility, but it is obvious that the Federal government will have to contribute its share towards a policy that will alleviate as far as possible the distress caused by a widespread industrial depression. It is the biggest problem the people of Canada have before them at the present moment.

JUDGE ROGER.

His host of Peterborough friends were deeply grieved yesterday to learn of the death of Judge Roger, of Cobourg, formerly chief magistrate of this city. His Honour Judge Roger was for many years prominent in the professional, civic and social life of Peterborough. Born and educated in this city and completing his law studies, he returned to Peterborough on being called to the bar and for thirty-four years practised his profession here, earning the good will and esteem of the whole community. He did not selfishly devote himself to his profession to the exclusion of other things, for he placed his ability and judgment at the service of his fellow citizens by acting for a number of terms as alderman and afterwards by filling the mayor's chair for two years. His tenancy of the chief magistrate's position was marked by a conscientious attention to his civic duties and his never failing courtesy towards all classes of citizens. Although for twelve years Judge Roger had been absent from the city, he had never vacated the high position he held in the regard of all who knew him and the intelligence of his death was sadly received by hundreds of of friends and acquaintances in Peterborough.

JOBS, PANICS, AND COMMON SENSE.

Nearly 150,000 wage-earners are unemployed in Canada to-day, and there is every prospect that unless some heroic measures are adopted this number will be doubled by Christmas. The official figures supplied by Ottawa give cause for the gravest concern. If the anxiety which they raise is lightly brushed aside as something unpleasant to think about in these halcyon summer days, the problem will fester through neglect; if, on the other hand, the authorities are thrown into panic, their alarm will only act as an irritant.

Broadly, it may be stated that the stocks of staple necessaries and luxuries were at a very low ebb at the time of the Armistice. There followed aperiod of refilling the warehouses and stores and the mills and factories worked at capacity. Partly owing to the shortage of supply and partly owing to a psychological condition that the war created, wages went sky-rocketting and this was followed—as high wages are always followed—by a period of extravagant living and wastefulness. The reaction which was bound to come fell upon this continent, and to a lesser extent on other countries, with a most disturbing suddenness. There was a lull in purchasing by the ultimate consumer and merchandise was thrown on the market in such quantity that prices tumbled and the delicate equilibrium of prices and distribution was upset. Factories began to close down, staffs were reduced, trade grew dull, which is the same as saying there was unemployment.

It is no good crying over spilt milk, nor repining over the dollars that were spent for eighteen months in vulgar extravagance. It will be better if we can say with Kipling, "We have had a jolly good lesson and it serves us jolly well right." Admitting the unemployment, how can present conditions best be relieved and how can we escape the slough of despond which the gloomy ones predict for us?

Obviously we must avoid pessimism and panic. Those who are able should continue to spend sanely and to the limit of their resources. There should be prudence; but parsimony on the part of those who are able to purchase freely will be as unpatriotic and as selfish as was the orgy of spending. Further, there should be a campaign for the encouragement of thrift, such as the Government carried on during the critical war days. "It is not much good talking of savings banks when a man is spending his last dollar to buy food," says the out-of-work. As a matter of fact, he is utterly wrong. Any psychologist or student of social economics knows that the propaganda for thrift finds its most fallow soil at the very moment of national or individual reaction. The spendthrift is more likely to translate his "I won't be such a fool again" into the concrete action of depositing the first dollar of his earnings in the bank, if he is saturated with teachings of the boon of thrift at the time of lowest ebb. Moreover, thrift is a proved stimulus to exertion.

A heavy responsibility rests upon the employers and capitalists at this time. The ideal employer will be daring without being foolhardy and will take risks when selfishness might prompt him to let well alone. It will be the duty of the Government to give a lead to the people by discouraging in every possible way that form of public extravagance which is enervating to the statesman and a cancer on the country. Grandiose schemes must be set aside "until a more convenient season," unless they are such that at least ninety per cent. of the expenditure is consumed in labour. — Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Weather Man should be satisfied with beating all existing records.

The "big ditch" at Chippawa has evidently been a big sinecure for some of the workers there.

Hon. Mr. Biggs seems to be having considerable trouble in keeping his dates. Surely the condition of the roads is not to blame.

Unemployment in the building trades will not be helped by the refusal of the unions to accept a reduction in wages.

The worst of it is that just as soon as we get through sweltering from the heat, we'll have to turn our attention to next winter's coal supply.

HARLEM KID GETS DIFFERENT REWARD.

Papa Paddles Prodigy Who Put Arm in "Dyke."

NEW YORK, July 28.—The Dutch boy who plugged up a hole in the dyke with his hand and saved all Holland is a prototype of five-year-old Davey McCluskey of Harlem. Davey's arm got stuck in a fire hydrant for half an hour before six firemen took the hydrant apart and freed him.

Davey and some chums found the cap of the hydrant loose and unscrewed it. Davey shoved his left arm in up to the shoulder. When he tried to withdraw it he couldn't because of the suction. He didn't even whimper while being rescued and the firemen shook hands with him and called him a "game little kid." But McCluskey, Sr., happened along and Davey's reward was different from the Dutch boy's.

One of the police chiefs at the Montreal convention reported to his brethren that burglars prefer to enter the house by the back way. Well, well; and we always thought they rang the front door bell and asked politely, "Do you want any burglars to-day?"

She Had.

Hearing a faint rustle in the dark hall below, the elder sister, supposing the young man had come, leaned over the bannister and called out:

"Well, Bessie, have you landed him?"

There was a deep, sepulchral silence for some moments. It was broken by the hesitating, constrained voice of the young man:

"She has."

BOMB EXPLOSIONS ON ST. JOHN'S EVE IN LISBON.

LISBON, July 28. — The festivities of St. John's Eve were interrupted by the explosion of three dynamite bombs of enormous dimensions, placed by unknown hands in different parts of the city, outside three priting o ces of which the printers are on strike.

The first explosion was so terrific that although Lisbonites are becoming accustomed to bombs, real panic was produced among the merry-makers in the streets of the Biarro Alto who, leaving their openair balls and bonfires, fled into the lower part of the town. Although there were no victims the force of the explosion brought down teh ceilings of the houses near which it burst. A dense and suffocating smoke filled the whole street, and many people fainted.

Another bomb did less damage in the Rua dos Corrieros, and the third, which was of the same powerful type as the first, burst near an openair ball, seriously wounding three persons. Some arrests were made of workmen, but no real clue has yet been discovered.

Another case of attempt against the life of a judge of the Tribunal of Public Safety was also made about the same time, two shots being fired at him in the street without wounding him.

LOG CABIN CAMPS ALGONQUIN PARK, ONTARIO

In Nominigan Camp and Camp Minessing, the Grand Trunk has created log cabin camps similar to those of Maine of world-wide fame. There is the large central lodge or meeting place, and in close proximity to it there is a series of log cabins, all built of cedar logs with the bark on, chinked with cement and moss and thoroughly in keeping with the natural beauty of their location. The central lodge and the cabins are simply comfortably furnished and have modern conveniences, with bathrooms and hot and cold water. In the Ojibway language Nominigan Camp means "the camp amid the balsams," and it is a very appropriate description, for the region is rich in this aromatic growth. Nominigan Camp is situated on the easterly shore of Smoke Lake, seven miles by stage from the Highland Inn, one of the largest and most attractive of the Park lakes. Camp Minessing in the Ojibway language means "Island Camp," and is situated on Island Lake, 10 miles north of the Highland Inn. Illustrated descriptive literature telling you all about these camps can be had on application to any Grand Trunk Agent, or C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont. 3d-16-23-28

U. S. CLOSED DOOR FAILS TO CHECK IMMIGRATION.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

QUEBEC, July 28. — Despite the nearly closed door which the United States has placed in the path of immigration from Europe, the tide of immigrants to Canada shows scant increase, according to local imigration officials.

The United States permits only 3 per cent. of any nationality, based upon their population in the United States in 1910, to enter, and the entry is regulated at a definite quota monthly.

TO SOLVE MYSTERY OF CALVIN'S TOMB.

Handed Down From Father to Son For Three Centuries.

GENEVA, July 28.—The mystery which for three and a half centuries has surrounded the burial place of John Calvin, the great Genevese Reformer, is about to be solved.

Calvin's historian, Theodore de Beze, recounts that it was his master's wish that no memorial should mark the place where he was buried. This wish was faithfully carried out, and when Calvin breathed his last in May, 1564, his remains were interred in secret in the churchyard of Plainvalais, now within the city limits.

Since those days the secret of the tomb has been known to only one family, that of Speyr, of Basle, in which it has passed down from father to son with the injunction never to reveal it as long as there were descendants in the family. The last of the race, Eugene de Speyr, who is over 70 years of age, and lives at Avignon, in France, has just informed the consistory of the Protestant Church of Geneva that, having no descendants, he desired to reveal the secret of Calvin's tomb, which was pointed out to him in 1883 by his grandfather.

A meeting was accordingly arranged a few days ago between M. de Speyr and representatives of the Church and the cemetery was visited. Near the stone which bears the initials "J. C.," as indication of the presumed site of the grave, M. de Speyr, after some search, pointed out where the tomb should be. The city authorities have given permission for the site to be explored.

NO HAY FEVER HERE.

Thousands of people suffer annually from this most distressing ailment, hay fever, known also as "autumn catarrh," "hay asthma" and "rose catarrh." The complaint usually continues until frosty weather, and is aggravated by dust, riding in street cars, and by the pollen of hay or flowers. But within a few hours' journey are regions rich in beautiful scenery; there health and pleasure go hand-in-hand and where perfect immunity from hay fever is assured. Among these regions none offer surer relief to the hay fever sufferer than the Lake of Bays district of the "Highlands of Ontario." Chapter 23.

The next morning Kent came to me just before he left for the office.

"I want you to draw that $500 out of the bank today and have it here for me when I get home," he told me.

I looked up in surprise. I did not question him and he went on to explain:

"I shall take a hurried trip over to Philadelphia tonight. I'm going to see if I can't get the diamond," he finished. I could see that he was greatly agitated.

"Yes," I answered simply. I knew it would not help him to ask questions or dwell on the subject.

"I'll try to get home from the office a little early—say about 5 o'clock. There is a train about 7 that I want to catch. You might have a little something ready for me to eat. It'll save time," he explained.

"I'll have everything ready," I assured him.

I kissed Kent goodbye and something that morning made me cling a trifle longer and more tenderly to him before I let him go. I was sure his eyes were moist as he turned at last to leave me.

I went up town early and drew the money out of the bank. It was a much happier person that drew it out than the one who had placed it there fearfully, not quite eight weeks before.

But even so, my thoughts were not entirely happy or free from doubts and forebodings. The details of Kent's trip to Philadelphia were unknown to me. He had not told me, and I was not sure that I wanted him to. But the fact that he was going back again made me nervous. There was no telling what might happen.

Still he was doing the very thing that I had longed to have him do, and I determined to be brave.

I was ready and watching for him at 5 o'clock. I did not have to wait long. At ten minutes past I saw him come hurrying up the street.

We sat down and had a hasty supper together. Neither of us talked much—our hearts were too full.

"Now Babs, if you will get me the money," he said, when we had finished.

I got it for him, and he went to his room for a few minutes. When he came back I was surprised to see that he was not taking a bag of any sort.

"Did you forget your suitcase?" I inquired, thinking in his excitement he might have left it in his room.

"No, dear, I'm not going to take one. I don't intend to stay one minute longer than I have to, and I'm coming straight back here to you if I have to travel all night." Then he took me in his arms, and held me ever so tightly for a second.

"Be careful," I cautioned, forcing back the tears. "God bless you!"

Did I imagine it, I wonder, or did Kent hold his head up a little higher and his shoulders a little more straight as I watched him go down the street?

And then when Kent was gone and I was alone, I realized that the biggest and most difficult part was still ahead of us. To get the diamond back again to Victor Lachman without being discovered was a stupendious undertaking. As I thought about it, I wondered that I had ever dared to contemplate its possibility.

Now it seemed hopeless. I commenced to reason with myself that the only way out would be to make a clean breast of it all, and trust to Mr. Lachman's mercy. It would kill Kent, I shuddered at the thought and yet something even stronger than conscience told me that that diamond must be returned, or made good.

Any way into the small hours of the morning as I sat up waiting for Kent, I thought and pondered for some solution out of the horrible situation.

Tomorrow—Kent's Trip Is Successful.

Peterborough People At Reception In London By Sir G. and Lady Perley

The ladies of the Auxillary to the G.W.V. A. of which she is president, and her many friends, will be pleased to know that Mrs. E. V. Frederick is having a very enjoyable holiday in England. She is now in Scotland on a ten day's motor excursion with her father, Dr. Muir.

At the Dominion Day "At Home" at the Ritz Hotel given by Sir George and Lady Perley, Mrs. Frederick met Mrs. McLeod wife of Mr. McLeod, at one-time manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Peterboro, Mrs. (Dr.) Hewson and some Lakefield friends.

A newspaper clipping regarding the reception, entitled "The Greatest Travellers"? says in part: "Lady Perley, who wore beige charmeuse, and Mrs. Meighen, wife of the Canadian Premier, were joint hostesses at the Dominion birthday reception, which was held at the Ritz Hotel yesterday.

Among the great throng that crowded the rooms were the American Ambassador and Mrs. Harvey, Lord and Lady Treewen, Lord and Lady Loyat, Lady Beaverbrook and Miss Helen Drury, Lord Aberdeen, the Chinese Minister and Mrs. Wellington Koo, and for Clement and Lady Kinlock-Cooks. Everyone, everywhere, seemed to be talking travel, and I came to the conclusion that Canadian are the greatest and most appreciative voyagers in the world."

Mrs. Frederick reports the weather as "simply terrible, ninety-one degrees in the shade. There has not been any rain for months. The country is all dried up."

PIMPLES ITCHED AND BURNED

Face Was Badly Disfigured. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

"Small red pimples and blackheads began on my face and my face was badly disfigured. Some of the pimples festered while others scaled over and there were places where the pimples were in blotches. They used to itch and burn terribly. "I saw an advertisement for Cuticura and I tried them. They stopped the itching and burning and I used four cakes of Soap and three boxes of Ointment which healed me." (Signed) Miss V. A. Hayne, Stormont, N. S., Dec. 26, '18.

Paper Pattern's Part in Fashion

Cowper wrote, "While the world lasts fashion will lead it by the nose," and in the history of fashion the paper pattern has played no inconsiderable part.

The story runs that Mr. Ebenezer Butterick, a tailor by trade, and founder of the Butterick Publishing Company in 1865, one day watched his wife trying to fashion a pair of trousers for her young son from a pair of his father's old ones. Taking up his shears and a newspaper, Mr. Butterick cut out and handed to her a pattern which later became the nucleus of a great industry.

The first traveling salesman for the Butterick Publishing Company was Mr. J. W. Wilder, father of the present President, George W. Wilder. One of Mr. Wilder's expense accounts, dated Feb. 28, 1864, reads: "This day I commenced traveling for Butterick. I started at Fitchburg and drove to Princeton.

"Y" Camp Is One Of the Coolest, Most Attractive Holiday Places

One of the prettiest, coolest, most attractive places in which a girl might wish to spend a holiday may be found in the Y.W.C.A. Camp at Stoney Lake. Situated on an island across the lake from the Burleigh House, on a small knoll where cool breezes play all day long, it is almost entirely surrounded by shade trees, maple and pine and cedar, which open out at the front of the cottage for an uninterrupted view down the pretty lake. The house is large and roomy, with a wide, screen enclosed verandah at the front and side which opens with French windows into a spacious living-room, equipped with table, comfortable chairs and wide, homey-looking brick fireplace. Japanese lanterns, pictures and gay pennants adorn the walls of porch and rooms, and there are large wall lamps in every room. Two large bedrooms, a good kitchen and well-lighted, commodious pantry complete the lower floor, and three large bedrooms, with screened sleeping-porch, comprise the second storey. The house of white and green is well screened and lighted throughout, and has a cheerful, comfortable atmosphere, not so much like an institutional camp as of a real home, where the friendly young ladies from the Y.W.C.A. in Peterboro hold sway in turn during the summer months, with the assistance of the housekeeper, a lady with a hand for cooking, for the meals are abundant, wholesome and delicious.

There are three good boats, just as many hammocks slung beneath the whispering leaves, a swimming-place, a phonograph for dancing, with excellent records, a bull-frog that croaks hoarsely on moonlit nights, a night-prowling chipmunk which dotes on peanuts, but cares nothing whatever for toes or noses, a ground-hog with luxurious appetite, who consumes the flowers in the rockery, two visiting friendly canines, that swim over to the island occasionally, a ouija board, and a masculine protector in the shape of the housekeeper's small son who places plates, carries cushions or row the punt with indefatigable vigor. And, admirable arrangement, the mosquitoes are very scarce.

There are popcorn roasts on flat stone plateaus, excursions to beauty spots, where sheer walls of the reddish grey, moss-covered stone rise high over swift-flowing miniature rapids, outdoor meals on the pine-needle carpet, where a keen appetite makes everything taste twice as good as at home, trolling expeditions for toothsome fish suppers, moonlight rows on a smooth, silver lake and trips to the Indian encampment, where really pretty Indian girls sit making their sweet grass and birch bark wares. The great rolls of pinkish, silvery veined, satin-smooth birch lie at their feet, and their hands are busy with fuzzy bundles of quills, from which they extract the tiny darts, to be dyed rich crimsons, blues and browns, and worked into intricate patterns in boxes and baskets. The tents glimmer in the dusk, when the men light huge bonfires and sit around talking of the day's catch, and the little dark-skinned, dark-eyed children run in and out. They have unmistakable features, but "white" names like Evelyn and Mary.

Isabella Valancy Crawford, Poet, Once Resident Of Peterborough

The Toronto Star Weekly under last Saturday's date prints a poem entitled "The Song of the Axe", by Isabella Valancy Crawford. Old residents of Peterboro will remember that Miss Crawford lived here for many years. She was born in Dublin, Ireland, on Christmas Day, 1850. Her father was Dr. Stephen Dennis Crawford.

In 1858, the family emigrated to Upper Canada and settled at Paisley, on the Saugeen River, where the pioneer experiences of the family were afterward depicted by Miss Crawford in "Malcolm's Katie."

Good fortune did not accompany the Crawfords to the New World. In a few years, disease took nine of the twelve children, and a small medical practice reduced the family to semi-poverty. In 1864, they removed to the village of Lakefield, and eight years later, to Peterborough, where Dr. Crowford practised until the time of his death in 1875.

Miss Crawford and her mother lived for ten years prior to her premature death from heart failure, in Toronto, in humble lodgings, where the gifted writer strove with tireless pen to earn a living for them both. Here a book of verse entitled "Old Spookses' Pass", was published at a financial loss in 1884. Miss Crawford died on February 12th, 1887.

In 1905, Mr. Jno W. Garvin, himself a Canadian writer of note, and husband of the talented Katherine Hale, with the knowledge and consent of her brother, Mr. Stephen Crawford, collected, edited and published Miss Crawford's best poems, in a volume of over three hundred pages, with an introduction by Miss Ethelwyn Wetherald. In Mr. Garvin's foreword to "Canadian Poets," from which this slight sketch is taken, published in November, 1916, he says in part:

"It seems strange to look back up on the time—thirty-three years ago—when a successful Ontario educator felt justified in the statement that Canada had no national literature worthy of the name, and never would have until the country became an independent nation — with no shackling colonial ties. At the very moment that such a declaration and prophecy was made, Roberts had begun his brilliant career as a writer, Isabella Valancy Crawford was preparing for publication Old Spookses' Pass, Malcom's Katie and Other Poems, Charles Mair was thinking out the construction of his great drama, Tecumseh, and Lampman, Campbell, the two Scotts, Seranus and Bliss Carman were ambitiously fingering the chords. And today Canadians have no doubt of their national independence, are prouder than ever of their integral position in the British Empire, and have a school of verse, characterized by freshness, spontaneity, originality of theme and good artistry, that would reflect distinction on the literary genius of any civilized people."

The "Song of the Axe", reprinted by the Toronto Star Weekly, runs as follows:

"Bite deep and wide, O axe, the tree
Wthat doth thy bold voice promise me?"

"I promise thee all joyous things
That furnish forth the lives of kings;

"For every silver ringing blow
Cities and palaces shall grow."

"Bite deep and wide, O axe, the tree!
Tell wider prophecies to me."

"When rust hath gnawed me deep and red
A nation strong shall lift his head

"His crown the very heavens shall smite
Aeons shall build him in his might.

"Bite deep and wide, O Axe, the tree!

One Lucky Horse

Some horses, like individuals, must be born lucky. There is a little brown horse in this town that has a good time. It always looks well groomed, well fed and well cared for. It goes along at a certain gait, neither fast nor slow. And then there is another, a thin, black, nervous little beast that is always on the run. Its driver, a lanky, spectacled youth, likes to urge it up the hills in particular, and he evidently doesn't believe in ever letting a horse walk, even on sultry days.

And dogs. One little collie pup sits in state in its master's car and surveys the world, and another sits tied to a short rope attached to a stake placed in the exact centre of a blazing hot treeless field, with its tongue dry and parched.

Cats aren't so badly off, as a rule. They look after themselves pretty well. The tortoiseshell kitten that provided entertainment for three little youngsters who had never before seen a kitten drink milk from a saucer was left to its own devices thereafter and fell into evil hands. Two days later it was rescued by a kindly fate in the guise of a sprouting youth whose blunt nose and missing front tooth had nothing whatever to do with his kind heart.

"Where did you get the kitten?" he was asked.

"I just bought it from a guy for a quarter. He was throwin' it around," he said, with a wide smile, as if it were quite the thing to exchange the price of five delicious ice cream cones for a drab and badly-frightened little pussy, who could do nothing but purr and weave itself around the feet of an unexpected friend.

Are Men Coming Into Their Own?

Are men at last coming into their own? That is, in the matter of fashions. We note that a big exposition of styles in men's clothing and furnishings will be held in the Mechanics' Hall, Boston, some time during the latter part of September or early in October. It will be sponsored by the Men's Apparel Club of New England and will run for five days.

And The Toronto Star Weekly is running a series of articles for the education of men in the art of proper costuming. The ladies aren't going to have everything fashionable, after this. Colored silk handkerchiefs with gay borders, two-button sports jackets of pongee or shantung silk with cricket cloth trousers, fashions in shirts, in ties are the main items in this week's article. News of shoes with white laces and instep trimmings, socks of different shades with clocks for adornment, and the announcement that trousers are to have a flare effect at the bottom will doubtless be eagerly received by the majority of men.

A jury of architects will decide on the plans and specifications during the Centenary celebration which is to be held next September and work will start immediately.

All Mexican architects are invited to submit plans, the winner receiving $20,000 and the privilege of inspecting the erection of the monument at a liberal salary.

Practical Hints

Cereals are generally the most nourishing of the cheaper foods.

A worn-out, linty cleaning cloth may do a whole lot of harm to a drain. The frayed threads clog the pipes and "stop up" sewers and run up plumbers' bills.

Cleaning clothes have a way of seeming to merely evaporate into thin air that is deceiving. The disappeared fabric is deposited in the bottom of the pail and when the cleaning water is thrown out this lint of course goes with it.

When paring strong onions put in a pan of cold water, to prevent your eyes from watering.

Bits of bacon rind make splendid bait for the mouse trap.

If some pieces of tinfoil are placed under flower vase doilies the dampness will not affect the most highly polished table.

WHAT HAPPENED TO HEBERT'S MONEY?

Death of Man Found on Road May Be Due to Crime.

MONTREAL, July 28.— The information that although he had only a short time before, been paid a week's earnings, no money was found in his possession when he was admitted to the Royal Victoria Hospital, sheds new light on the death of Moise Hebert, 62 years of age, of Village Belanger, who was found with a fractured skull on the St. Rose road early o Sunday morning.

Hebert, who died at the hospital soon after he was admitted, was found by a party of autoists who were passing along the St. Rose road. The theory hitherto held in the case was that the man had been struck by an automobile and that the driver of the car either failed to stop afterwards or was not aware of it.

The body was not identified until late yesterday afternoon, when Jules Petitjean, of 2081 Papineau avenue, who had read of the finding of the body, recognized it as that of one of the laborers at a quarry of which he is the owner at Village Belanger. Petitjean stated that it was late on Saturday when he paid Hebert his wages, and the man could hardly have disposed of such a sum of money in the neighborhood of Village Belanger before the time at which he must have been struck. What then became of the money? Was the injury to his head of accidental origin?

It is believed that Hebert has relatives at St. Hyacinthe, Que., and morgue officials await a claimant to the body. Several points in connection with the case may be cleared up at the inquest to be held to-morrow. Detectives are working on the case.

LIKE HORATIUS AT THE BRIDGE RUSSELL-TOWNSEND CARRY ON

FRANK BARBER FOUND FLAW IN COUNCIL'S RESOLUTION OF DISMISSAL AND HELD IT UP IN TORONTO—WORK GOES ON AS USUAL.

The Russell-Townsend Company are still carrying on with the finishing touches of the Hunter street bridge, in spite of the resolution passed at the special meeting of the Council last Friday night, instructing Mr. Frank Barber, the engineer for the city, to give them immediate notice of dismissal.

Mayor McIntyre told the Examiner last night that he had received a reply from Mr. Barber informing him that the Council's procedure was illegal under the contract.

Added to this development was the prospect of completing the chipping of the south side of the bridge some time next week, a combination of circumstances that may influence the Council to let the Russell-Townsend Company finish the job.

Mayor McIntyre said he was sounding the opinion of the Aldermen and if they were agreeable the situation may not be dealt with until the regular meeting for August, next Monday night. If most of the members desire that some show of militancy be made a special meeting will be called for Friday night.

The flaw in the Council's notice of dismissal was not made very clear to Mayor McIntyre, he intimated, and apparently was not forseen by City Solicitor Widdifield and Ald. Gordon, both of them lawyers, who who knew the terms of the contractual agreement and who were present when the resolution was passed. Mr. Barber must have discovered it at a glance. His representative Mr. H. L. Seymour, was supplied with copies of the resolution, to be delivered on Saturday to the members of the Russell-Townsend Company, but Mr. Townsend had not received his copy on Monday. Presumably, Mr. Seymour had some slight foreknowledge of the Council's intention but if he was aware of any growing impediment to the fulfilment of the resolution was made in good faith, Council's attention to it.

Several members of the Council, commenting on the situation had no particular criticism to offer, but they felt that the Council had been made to appear more or less ridiculous by the turn of events. The resolution was mad ein good faith, simply as a stroke of economy. It was felt that the finishing touches to the bridge could be completed under the supervision of the City Engineer, and it was intended that unnecessary chipping of the surface would be discontinued. One possible suggestion might be offered, since the work was begun without ceremony a couple of years ago, it might be carried along until the Civic Holiday event, when the last tap of the compressed air chipper might be executed with appropriate celebration and to the accompaniment of sighs of relief, and a chorus of "At last!" from the assembled ratepayers.

FACTS CONCERNING LAKE OF THE WOODS AND THE BACKUS DEAL

THOMAS TOOMS, M.L.A.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—As the Bill passed in the Federal House concerning the Lake of the Woods vitally affects this Province and will likely come into much prominence in the near future, I consider it my duty to lay a few facts concerning it before my constituents of West Peterborough and the people of this Province.

Strong delegations from Kenora were appearing before Premier Drury asking for an industry to be assured for that district. Government engineers looked the land over and reported more water power necessary for proper development. Mr. Backus was interested in Kenora; he held limits (obtained previous to this Government going into power) on which the development of Kenora depended for industry and financial salvation. Therefore, the Drury Government said to Backus; "You have the Lake of the Woods limit, with power from the city to carry on. We will give you a lease of the White Dog Rapids on certain terms which will safeguard the interests of Ontario and the Dominion with due consideration for Manitoba." Two things were also placed in this agreement: (1) To place within Government control the rate at which development was to take place. (2) To place in order once and for all and to clean up the vexed question of the control of the Norman Dam. The Norman Dam was taken for regulating the waters of the Lake of the Woods, but it was in such a position that at any time the owner of that dam could have cancelled that arrangement by first giving 30 days' notice, and he or they could then assume for themselves the regulating of the Lake of the Woods' levels. So by the lease of the White Dog Rapids we obtained control of the Norman Dam.

The Kenora said that Backus needed more timber limits. So the Provincial Government said that the English River limits would be sold under competition. "So, Kenora, if you want to go on with your development you can take the risk of securing the limit in the open market." This limit was put up; there were four tenders. Mr. Backus gave a cash bonus of $50,100, a British Columbia lumber company a cash bonus of $25,000, J. E. Kilpatrick cash bonus of $5,000 and Seamen Paper Co. a cash bonus of $2,500. Under these conditions the limit went to Backus. The limit had been up for sale before, July, 1915; the value of the mills to be erected were $1,750,000, hands to be employed 250. In 1920 the agreement is: Mills to be erected at a value of $2,500,000, with 1,000 hands employed. In 1915 duties for spruce was 40c and other pulp 20c. The 1920 arrangement is 90c for spruce and 40c for other pulp Under these circumstances I think the Government drove a very good bargain for the Province of Ontario.

With regard to the power question, Premier Drury said to Manitoba when the development of the White Dog Falls takes place, we will see that it takes place to meet the just rights of Manitoba.

However, it did not rest there. The next thing was, Premier Drury was requested from Ottawa to hold a conference as to the development of the White Dog Rapids. Premier Drury understanding this was the business of the Province of Ontario was not inclined to be dictated to. However, Premier Meighan asked for a discussion of the whole matter of the Lake of the Woods and the Winnipeg River. It was decided that concurrent legislation should be introduced into Parliament to establish joint control, by establishing a board of two members from the Province of Ontario and two from the Dominion. The Dominion wanted the board to control the English and Winnipeg Rivers. Premier Drury wanted each river developed separately, and the Bill he introduced in the Legislature was one of co operation, but which he failed to get through. Premier Meighan was informed of Premier Drury's inability to get his Bill through, so Premier Meighan on April 29th assured Premier Drury that he would endeavor to continue the old arrangement. To the surprise of the Ontario Government two or three weeks later a Bill was introduced in the Federal House to assume control of the English and Winnipeg Rivers. That Bill is very far-reaching in its scope. The Dominion has certain rights on the Lake of the Woods, being international and navigable water, but asserting the rights of controlling the outflow of the Lake of the Woods is preposterous.

The right of navigable waters and international line by the Dominion cannot be gainsaid, but that does not give them control of the Norman Dam.

If the Dominion can do that in the case of the English River, which is wholly a Provincial stream, what hinders it from taking possession of the Chippewa Canal, upon which Ontario is spending many millions of dollars. Therefore, it becomes a vital question to every citizen of Ontario. The only thing under the circumstances is for Ontario to fight this Bill if we are to protect Ontario in its right to its water power.

When the Lake of the Woods Bill came before the Legislature Mr. Dewart, leader of the Liberals, said, speaking for his party, he was absolutely against Bill, because it was a distinct invasion of the principles of Provincial rights.

Peter Heenan of Kenora, Labor member, asked for the Bill to be held over for this year.

Mr. Ferguson, Leader of the Conservative Party, stated: "We in this section of the House stand strongly upon proposition; that Provincial autonomy must be maintained."

When the Lake of the Woods Bill came before the Federal House quite a number of the Ontario members voted against it. This, I hope, will help the people of Ontario to realize the fact that their rights of water power are assailed by the Government at present in power at Ottawa.

THE CAMPER.

I can see clover and wild roses growing,
Gay bee balm dots the slope.
Through willow leaves the Summer breeze is blowing.
Flowered like the richest cope.
Stretches the meadow, emerald velvet edging,
The shallow river's rim,
Where, darting between arrowheads and sedging
Gauze-flies the surface skim.

I can see lights where crowds I know assemble,
While Wealth and Fashion meet,
Where on the sea the moonrays break and tremble,
And music's throb is sweet.
Pride flashes past the nook where I am waiting,
Forgotten and obscure.
I smile to think that careless eyes are rating
My tent as mean and poor!

I can see sun-shafts dart above the world-brim,
In magic Day's rebirth.
No limitations mine of time or task grim,
My realm the wondrous earth!
With fire to cook my fish, Health's zest in living,
My boat, a hammock plain,
To city splendors I no thought am giving,
As monarch here I reign!

A GOOD SEASON AT STONEY LAKE

RESORTS ARE WELL PATRONIZED —FISHING EXCELLENT.

The season at Stoney Lake is in full swing. Most of the resorts havebeen well patronized since the early part of June, and many of the tourists seem to be making longer stays than usual this year. One American party, however, has made several flying trips, having been back and forth to Buckhorn three times already this season on short fishing excursions. Viamede has nearly seventy guests, Mount Julian, Crowe's Landing and Glenwood are full, South Beach, McCracken's and the Burleigh House each have their quota, Kawartha Park and Juniper Island are as popular as ever, in fact, all the summer resorts are doing good business. The Lakefield House is well patronized, and Mr. Lawless is making great headway with his fine dancing pavilion. The season at Bobcaygeon has been spoiled to some extent by the construction work for the new locks.

The Burleigh Fishing Club, which had its inception with two American enthusiasts who came for many years to this part of Canada for the fishing, has now increased its membership to twelve, and report an excellent season. Jacob's Hotel, near the Burleigh House, a clean little hostel with ar Indian proprietor, is headquarters for a large number of the native guides. They also have an encampment across the road, where a dozen tents are erected, and here the white and red men gather in the evenin gto go over the day's triumphs or downfalls. The increased fee for a fishing license, according to some, has scared away a number of ardent devotees of the anglin gart, but this must be the exception, insteadof the rule, according to the maiority of the fishermen. Lovesick district continues to be a favorite ground, and one lucky man recently brought in a four pound bass from here, which he presented to the proprietress of the Burleigh House. Even in the extremely hot weather, fishing was good this year, which is somewhat unusual in this branch of sport one veteran angler, who has been visiting the same district with the same Indian guide, for the last 20 years, returning on one of the warm days with sixteen bass and two lunge, while another with less experience, starting out with 15 lowly but long and wiggly worms, supplemented by a couple of unfortunate frogs, returned with a bona fide string of sixteen fish to his credit. In fact, the fishing this year has been the best in sixteen years, according to one who knows.

DANCED WITH THE PRINCESS MARY

WAS THUNDERSTRUCK WHEN HE LEARNED PARTNER'S IDENTITY

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

LONDON, July 28.—Dennis Taylor, ex-soldier, mopped his perspiring face as he looked after his partner of the previous dance. "I-I-I'd rather face a battery with my old machine guns than dance with her," he stuttered. His partner was Princess Mary, who paid a surprise visit to the Workmen's Club in the East End dock district. She danced several times, talked merrily and enchanted members of the club. Dennis was her first partner.

"I was thunderstruck when I saw who it was," he said.

ONTARIO PREMIER IS BACK ON FARM

HAS GOOD CROPS BUT BEMOANS LOW PRICES OF FARM PRODUCTS

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, July 28.—"I am a little soft from lack of my customary muscular exercise, but I can still farm," said Premier Drury to a friend yesterday. "Last time I was home I buckled down and pitched 18 loads of hay in a day, which was not too bad."

Mr. Drury has fine crops, but, like the rest of the Ontario farmers, is bemoaning the low prices of farm products. As he sees it, the farmer is taking his losses bravely, and there are others who should do so without so much dogging.

TAX EVADERS ARE CHEATING U. S. OF $100,000 A MINUTE

SO NEW YORK DISTRICT ATTORNEY DECLARES STATISTICS SHOW.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(United Press)—Luxury tax evaders throughout the United States are stealing $100,000 a minute from the Government and the public, Col. William Hayward, United States District Attorney, charged in an interview with the United Press to-day.

In New York alone $4,00,000 is being stolen every month, he said. "Statistics gathered by Federal experts show that the Government should collect $15,000,000 in luxury taxes every month in New York City," he said. "We are getting only $10,500,000, showing that these low scoundrels are cheating the Government out of fifty million dollars in this city every year."

DISCRIMINATING ABOUT THE EATS

AMERICANS WANT THE "FIXINGS" ON FISHING TRIP.

A short-sighted policy in the matter of laying in a sufficient quantity of ice is one of the usual drawbacks of the summer season at Stoney Lake. Some of the campers who boil the water are compelled to drink it in a lukewarm condition, which isn't exceptionally satisfactory.

With regard to the complaints sometimes heard about high prices charged at Canadian summer resorts for an ordinary table d'hote service, a man who has travelled the Lakes for a great many years says that it is caused by inordinate craving for fancy foods on the part of the American tourist. He claims that the inhabitants of the country to the south of us spend a far greater amount of time in figuring out what they like to eat than the average Canadian. "You don't hear a bunch of Canadians sitting down and talking about what they had for breakfast or what they are going to have for dinner," said this authority, who maintains that American tourists expect fancy high class cafe fixings when they come on a fishing excursion to Canada.

MOTHER SIMIAN AND HER YOUNG SON ARE POPULAR AT SHOWS

WORLD OF MIRTH SHOWS STILL CONTINUE TO DRAW LARGE CROWDS.

While there is much to interest and amuse at Metz's Wonderful and museum of odities, exhibiting here with the World of Mirth shows at the Exhibition grounds, Mother Simian and her youngest son seem to hold the center of the stage.

Mrs. Lizzie Simian's baby boy is rayed over by the fair sex as about the cutest youngster one would want to look at, and were it not for Mother Simian no doubt the baby would have to undergo an unlimited amount of fondling, but not being American born and coming from a very suspicious race, Mrs. Simian repels all advances in that line.

Master Simian (named Reese after his lamented father who was killed in a fight on a banana plantation), is about two months old, weighs two pounds and a half, yet despite his miniature size is as lively as a little cricket and is continually in mischief much to the grief of his mother who is inclined to be very sedate. The Simians do not speak the American language but by dint of much questioning it has been learned that they are natives of the Congo river district in Africa and come of a very proud, although very small tribe and claiming that their ancestry dates back before the American people were ever heard of and cite Prof. Darwin, the eminent scientist as proof of their claims.

Time and again have the other celebrities of this attraction extended the hand of good fellowship only to be repulsed with a look of disdain as much as to say, my son and I are the features here and do not care to mingle.

Mrs. Simian like her miniature son is also very tiny, she weighs fifteen pounds and measures three feet in height, and each afternoon and evening they will hold receptions for the admiring public but the management wishes to state in advance that Lizzie will allow no familiarity.

The big mid-summer carnival is now in full swing and the World of Mirth shows as a whole are giving entire satisfaction and if the crowdh of the first part of the week are any criterion of the later half record breaking crowds can be expected. Wednesday nights attendance was held down some what by the threatening weather of the early evening but as the storm passed around the people began to arrive and soon all of the exhibitions were busy. The engagement closes Saturday evening, next stand being Montreal, where they will exhibit at Fletcher's Field, under the auspices of the new tubercular hospital.

BOGUS DETECTIVES STOLE SAVINGS.

MONTREAL, July 28.—Mrs. L. Houle, of 145 Eadie Street, Cote St. Paul, complained to the police that two men posing as detectives in search of stolen goods, had entered her home. When the two alleged detectives had gone, Mrs. Houle discovered that a sum of money, said to be $2,600, the property of her husband, was missing. The money had been left in a drawer in a desk.

When the two men came to her home, Mrs. Houle states, they showed some kind of a badge and stated that they were searching for stolen goods. Objections to their searching the house were raised, but without success. The two men searched every room in the house and then left telling Mrs. Houle they had found none of the stolen goods. When she discovered the theft of the money she called her husband, who conducts a store nearby. He in turn notified the police, who are investigating.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—Marriage in San Francisco is a lottery, with the odds one or two for divorce, and payment of the $2.00 fee a gamble at the same odds that $6.00 later will be paid for filing suit for divorce, according to the annual report of County Clerk Mulcrevy, published to-day.

The report showed that 7,585 marriage licenses were issued during the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1921, while suits for divorce totalled 3,678, or 48.5 per cent. for the same period.

CHOLERA INFANTUM
THE FATAL DISEASE OF CHILDREN

Mothers should look well after their young ones during the hot summer months as this is the time of year when this summer complaint is most prevalent. It begins with a profuse diarrhoea, the stomach becomes irritated, vomiting and purging set in, and the matter ejected from the stomach has a bilious appearance; the child rapidly loses flesh and is soon reduced to great languor and prostration, which in a great many cases, terminates fatally.

To quickly offset the vomiting, purging and diarrhoea

BERMUDAS FORBID ILLICIT LIQUOR SHIPMENTS FROM THE ISLANDS

(United Press.)

HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 28.—The Bermuda authorities have determined to kill the "infant' industry of smuggling liquor into the United States.

The islands, which became ' a river of booze when the States went dry and the liquor holders saw a chance of using the islands later as headquarters for smuggling, have refused to play the part.

So drastic are the regulations against the illicit despatch of liquor to the States, that two passengers last Monday ,slipping aboard one of the New York boats, with a bottle of whiskey each, were arrested, and subjected to heavy fines.

The judge took the oportunity to issue a warrant that smuggling on any scale will meet with still heavier punishment hereafter. The new regulations, which have dashed the hopes of prohibitive smugglers provide that liquor may be shipped into dry territory only on a regular bill of lading. Since the thousands of gallons of booze concentrated here are in bond warehouses, officials declare smugglers have small chance to remove them for illegal shipment.

The authorities here have taken the attitude that while the Bermudas are "wet," the government will not in any way participate in booze running. This attitude has discouraged the operators of many boats, eagerly waiting here for cargoes, which they can run to some point along the United States coast where they can be sold to bootleggers.

Under regular bills of lading a shipment of 1169 barrels of whiskey left here as late as July 16th for New York. Other shipments this year included 175 barrels on January 5th, and 2980 cases on May 7th. There were several small shipments.

A large part of Bermuda's great reservoir of liquor flowed from the United States when its owners sought a safe place to keep it, either while awaiting the repeal of prohibition or in the hope that it would be moved back at a great profit.

One such shipment was received early in 1920 when the steamer Maume brought from Baltimore about 12,000 gallons, 2,296 cases and 2,732 barrels of whiskey.

KING'S COUNCIL APPOINTED ON BASIS OF MERIT

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT CONFERRED HONOURS FOR PROFESSIONAL STANDING AND NOT FOR POLITICAL REWARD.

The fact that Messrs. R. R. Hall, G. W. Hatton and F. D. Kerr have been appointed King's Counsel by reason of their standing in the legal profession and not for any political affiliations, will be particularly gratifying to their many friends in Peterboro. The 91 memebsr of the bar in Ontario who have been honored by the Government, were recommended to Attorney General Raney by a special Committee composed of Sir William Meredith, Chief Justice Mulock and Dr. John Hoskin.

In his announcement of the appointments, Hon. Mr. Raney says that the greater number of the legal profession in the province and all the Judges, were of the opjinion that the distinction of King's Counsel should be continued. "Yielding to the consensus of opinion of both the Bench and the Bar, the government finally decided to continue the distinction on the basis of recommendations by representatives of the bench and the bar, so that the title would become a purely professional one, and be freed from the suggestion which has been attached to it in the past of having been conferred, in many cases for political reasons, or as a reward for party services."

The list includes quite a number of lawyers who are comparatively well known in Peterboro through their occasional appearance in the local courts. Amon gthem are W. F. Kerr, of Cobourg, brother of Mr. F. D. Kerr, of Peterboro, upon both of whom the honor of King's Counsel has been conferred at the same time, Eric N. Armour, of Toronto, the Right Honorable Sir Thomas White, M.P., of Toronto, J. A. McIntosh, Toronto, Hon. Charles Murphy, Ottawa, T. J. Rigney, Kingston, and Gordon Waldron, Toronto.

WEST INDIES OPPOSED TO CESSATION TO U. S. TO PAY OFF WAR DEBT

So Sir Gilbert Carter, Just Back, Says.

PLYMOUTH, July 28. — The people of the West Indies are wholly opposed to any suggestion that the islands should be ceded to the United States as part payment of Great Britain's war debt, according to Sir Gilbert Carter, who has just returned from the islands.

Sir Gilbert, who has been successively Governor of the Bahamas, Barbadoes, and Trinidad, and whose wife is the daughter of the late Francis Parker, of Boston, Mass., admitted that the interests of the West Indies are largely American; "but if I know anything of the temperament of the people of Barbadoes, they would resist a cession to the bitter end," he said.

Sir Gilbert added that since the opening of the Panama Canal, Barbadoes has become one of the great health resorts of the world, where visitors from both North and South America congregate.

ANOTHER REGATTA COMING SOON

SERPENT MOUND REGATTA WILL BE HELD ON THURSDAY AFTERNOON, AUGUST 11TH. TWO MILES SOUTH OF KEENE.

Those who are holidaying around Keene and on the River to Rice Lake, together with citizens of Keene, are holding their first annual Regatta, to be called "Serpent Mound Regatta," for the reason that it will be held off the Serpent Mounds, so well known in this district, on Thursday, August 11th.

In the afternoon there will be aquatic sports and a baseball game. An old-time basket picnic will be held on the grounds, which are most suitable for this occasion. There will be a band in attendance, and the members of the committees are anticipating that their first Regatta will be most successful, as it is the intention of making it an annual affair.

BAND CONCERT WELL ATTENDED

PIPE BAND PLAYED TO A LARGE CROWD LAST EVENING.

The first pipe concert given by the Caledonian Pipe Band in Peterborough since they got their new uniforms, was given in Victoria Park last night, when, assisted by other Scotch talent, they produced a concert that brought back fond memories of the Land of the Heather across the sea. Packed close about the grand stand for a distance of 75 or 100 feet, were the crowd of enthusiastic citizens who enjoyed the concert as thoroughly as it could have been enjoyed, and clamours for more followed every number.

Mr. T. Tooms introduced the Pipe Band and commended them on the excellent name they were making for themselves, and for their smart appearance in their new uniforms. Mr. Tooms referred to the large crowd who were in attendance, and said he knew the concert would be much enjoyed. The band, under Pipe-Major J. Smith, was seven strong, four pipers, two side drummers and bass drummer, and the uniforms of the Cameron colors with full regalia added much to the appearance of the band. Their first number was "Highland Laddie." Other numbers by the band were "McKenzie Highlanders," "Cock of the North," "79th's Farewell to Gibraltar," "Earl of Mansfield," and "Dornoch Links." Little Misses Florie and Nancy Cassidy danced the Highland Fling in a very precise manner, and the difficult Seann Triubhas as an encore. The inimitable imitations of William Thompson of Harry Lauder were as usual greeted with continued applause, and completed the Gaelic touch to the programme. Miss Florie Cassidy shifted the setting to the Emerald Isle when she danced an Irish Jig, and with her sister an Irish Reel that, to use a stage expression, "brought down the house."

This first concert of the band given in the park was such an unqualified success that it is possible that others will follow, and in this way the dearth of park music that the Council saw fit to make may be relieved in a unique manner. To the Heintzman Hall for the loan of a piano, the band desire to express their grateful appreciation and to Mrs. Hyde, who so kindly acted as pianist.

Because of the growing popularity of motor trucks, draft horses have decreased in the largest cities in the United tates.

WIFE OF ALBERTA'S NEW PREMIER HEARS NEWS WITH PLEASURE

VISITING IN STRATHROY WHEN WORD OF HUSBAND'S ELECTION COMES.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

STRATHROY, July 28. — Two thousand miles from home, but by no means in a strange country, Mrs. Herbert Greenfield, wife of Alberta's newly chosen Prime Minister, heard this morning with undiguised pleasure of her husband's selection as head of the Farmer government of the western province. Mrs. Greenfield was visiting friends of her girlhood days in Delaide township when a telegram from Mr. Greenfield arrived here to tell her of the event. She expressed the greatest delight.

"It is almost too good to be true," she remarked. "I am not altogether surprised. We had considered it a possibility, but it is none the less pleasant news for all that."

Mrs. Greenfield is a pretty little woman of about 48, of decidedly lifely disposition. People in Strathroy and the surrounding country who knew her when she was Miss Elizabeth Harris, at the time when Herbert Greenfield had just come out from England to take up farming, say she hasn't changed a bit. They also remember Mr. Greenfield as a jovial soul and recall that he used to have a decidedly pleasing voice and a reputation as a singer.

"I can hardly realize what it means yet. I really can't say anything," Mrs. Greenfield said to a reporter this morning. Asked as to how she would like the idea of leaving the farm and going to live at the Provincial capital, she repeated it was too big a thing for her to realize, but laughed at the reporter's queries with the utmost good nature. She told of their two boys, Frank and Arnold, 19 and 17 who, she says, have been practically running the farm for the last two years, and added they would also be pleased with the news.

"Are you acquainted with Lieutenant-Governor Brett, who is also from Adelaide Township, Ontario," she was asked.

"No, but my husband has had dealings with him in a business way," she replied.

"Did you expect your husband to get the Premiership?"

"No, but we had considered the possibility," and then she added, "Now, I don't want you to go and give me a lot of publicity. I have really nothing to say."

Luther Harris, of this town, is a brother of Mrs. Greenfield, and she will visit at his home for some time before going back to the West. Mrs. Henderson, of Adelaide, and Mrs. George Matthews, of Deleware Township, are sisters of Mrs. Greenfield.

U.S. FARMERS ARE RETURNING AGAIN TO PROSPERITY

ONE OF GREATEST GRAIN MOVEMENTS IN HISTORY CROWDS RAILWAYS.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(United Press.)— Farmers, the first to feel the pinch of the nation-wide economic depression, now are beginning ahead of any other class of business to experience a return of prosperity. One of the greatest grain movements in history now is crowding the facilities of the railroads, according to reports received by the Association of Railway Executives. Grain shipments during the last five weeks broke records of more than two years' standing.

GIRL OF 10 MADE A BRAVE RESCUE

JUMPED INTO SWIFT CURRENT AFTER CHILD WHO HAD FALLEN IN.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 28.—(Canadian Press):—Without a moment's hesitation, little Margaret Matthews, ten-year-old daughter of Professor and Mrs. W. D. Matthews, of New York, when Sally Morton, aged three, fell into the Kennebecasis River at Gondola Point, a summer colony, plunged in after her, and after a struggle with the swifting-running stream, landed her safely on the beach. Margaret jumped in without removing her clothes or shoes, and held up the drowning child by gripping her garments in her teeth.

CROP OF APPLES TO AVERAGE WELL

A BETTER YIELD THAN LAST YEAR IS EXPECTED DESPITE RECENT DROUGHT.

OTTAWA, July 28. — The apple crop throughout the Dominion, though seriously affected by recent drought, is still likely to average better than last year.

The best reports, according to the Department of Agriculture, come from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, where there is a heavy set for all varieties. Baldwins and Kings promise well in Nova Scotia, but in other varieties there has been a heavy drop, reducing prospects to about ten per cent. in excess of last year.

In Ontario apples have suffered greatly from dry weather, and a heavy drop has brought down the possible crop to some 80 per cent. of that of 1920. Spies, Baldwins, McIntosh, Russets, heavy; Ben Davis, light.

British Columbia expects a crop some ten per cent. better than last year's. A fair to good crop of peaches is expected in British Columbia.

In Ontario, a thirty-five per cent. of average crop. Yellow St. John's, best; Elbertas and Crawfords, light.

Plums promise well in Quebec; about 50 per cent. of the average in Nova Scotia, and 35 per cent. available in Ontario, with the exception of Japanese, which are a practical failure. British Columbia expects 90 per cent. of a full crop. Pears are generally promising in British Columbia.

In Ontario the prospets are for a 60 per cent. average crop. Bartlett light; Duchess, fair. Nova Scotia counts on 50 per cent. of a full rop. counts on 50 per cent. of a full crop.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—A five point rally in United Drug and an eight point decline in Pressed Steel Car on the overnight announcement that dividend action on the latter had been deferred, featured the conflicting movements of active shares at the opening of today's Stock Market. The rally in United Drug was short-lived, however, that stock soon re-acting seven points. Other issues, particularly Equipments, Oils, Rubbers and Motion Picture shares, became unsettled at re-actions of one to two points. Texas and Pacific was among the steady Rails, and General Asphalt, Baldwin, Locomotive and Retail Stores registered moderate gains.

NEW YORK, July 28. (Canadian Press.) United Drug recovered almost four points of its early reversal but other specialties displayed increasing weakness. National Lead dropped almost 9 points, and losses extending from 4 to 10 ponits were sustained by Steel Springs, Pressed Steer Car, United Fruit and California Packing.

Prominent Steels, oils and motors were iregular and textile and chemical secialties also gave way to pressure. Rails were the only comparatively steady features. Trading was not in the least degree stimulated by the opening rate of 4 1-2 per cent. for call money.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Receipts 178; trade weak. Quotations: Heavy beef steers $7 to 8; butcher steers, choice, $7 to $7.50; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $4.50; calves, $7 to $9; lambs $10 to $10.50; hogs, selects, $13.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(Canadian Press.)— Sterling exchange steady, Demand 357 1-4, Cables 357 3-4; Canadian Exchange 10 15-16 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Bulls had the advantage in the wheat market to-day, owing to continued smallness of rural offerings. The belief that export business of late had been greatly underestimated was also a strengthening factor. Assertions that the recent advance was more rapid than circumstances would warrant failed to make much impression. Opening prices were varied from 1-4 to 3-4c. higher with September 127 1-2 to 127 3-4 and December 129 1-4 to 129 1-2, were followed by a slight reaction and then by material gains all around.

Dry weather hoisted the Corn market. After opening 1-4 cents to 5-8c. up, including September at 61 7-8 to 62, prices scored a decided general gain.

Oats were firm with other cereals, starting 1-8 to 3-8c. higher, September 39 1-2 to 39 3-4, and then continuing to ascend.

Higher quotations on hogs gave strength to provisions.

TORONTO, July 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Brazilian was strong in the quiet market on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Opening at 22 it held at that or better throughout the forenoon. Ten shares of C.P.R. went at 126 1-2. Steamships sold at 20 and a small fraction under. Victory Bonds were not so active as yesterday, but prices held firm with offerings finding a fairly good demand. Bank stocks held steady, with demand fair.

MONTREAL, July 28. (Canadian Press.) The feature of this morning's trading was the strength exhibited by Spanish River, which after closing at 51 1-2 last night rose to 56 to-day, its noon close.

Abitibi remained unchanged at its oepning quotations. Atlantic Sugar rose 1-2 point to 26. Brompton lost 1-4 to 19 3-4. Dominion Steel did not vary, but Laurentide strengthened a point to 69 1-2 ;as did also National Breweries to 54. Riordan remained quiet at its opening figure. Wayagamack went up at 1-4 to 40 1-2 before closing for the morning.

CANADIAN HENLEY EXPECTED TO ECLIPSE ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS; BIG PARTIES BOUND FOR ST. KITS, MECCA OF THE ROWING FRATERNITY

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 28.—(Canadian Press.)—All is in readiness for the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, which commences here tomorrow and concludes on Saturday, and, judging from the advanced reports it promises to eclipse all previous records, both in attendnce and in the high calibre of the contestants.

Several boats have already arrived and more art expected by the afternoon, and it is quite probable that before nightfall some 75 boats will have arrived at the Mecca of the rowing fraternity.

Accommodations already reserved at three of the leading hotels number 250, but this number will be further augmented with fresh arrivals later. Big parties from Toronto, Buffalo and Detroit are expected in view of the international aspect of the regatta.

CAMPBELLFORD HERE FRIDAY AFTERNOON

INTERMEDIATES AT RIVERSIDE PARK AT 5.30—GOOD LACROSSE PROMISED—VISITORS ARE STRONG.

The Campbellford and Peterboro Intermediate and Junior lacrosse teams meet to-morrow in two games, the Intermediates playing at Riverside Park at 5.30 o'clock, and the Juniors at Campbellford.

It had been sugested by the local Club that the junior game be deferred in order that Peterboro might strengthen its intermediate team, but according to the local management, Campbellford would not consent.

BELLEVILLE AND LINDSAY WINNERS

Lindsay and Belleville were the other winners in addition to Peterborough in the Central League race yesterday. Oshawa visited Lindsay and were beaten in a snappy ball game by 3 runs to 2, Oulette holding them to four hits, while Lindsay nicked Patton's delivery for six safeties. Lindsay scored in the first but the winers of the first half came back with three hits in the second, scoring two runs. Lindsay tied it up in the third, and put over the winning run in the sixth.

Alex. Kay was umpire-in-chief.

The batteries were — Oulette and Eates for Lindsay, and Patton and Belding for Oshawa.

At Belleville the Grand Trunks used Kelleher on the rubber for the first time this season, and beat Port Hope 10 to 4, although the Ontario's made it interesting up to the eighth, when Belleville scored five.

DIFFERENCE IN LABOR COSTS HERE AND U. S.

Discussed in Debate in U. S. House on Tariff.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Difference in the cost of wheat production in the United States and Canada was discussed in the House recently, in connection with the tariff bill, and especially in relation to the duty which the bill imposes on wheat. Representative Hawley, of Oregon, who was speaking in defence of the bill, was asked by Representative Stafford, of Wisconsin, to explain the difference in labor costs and in other costs in the production of wheat as between the United States and Canada. Mr. Hawley explained that the advantage in the production of wheat was with Canada. He said:

"The labor cost of producing commodities in Canada varies somewhat with the commodity. In some instances their costs are not very much lower than ours. In other instances they are considerably lower. The difference between the United States and Canada, taking wheat or hay or potatoes, lies in the greater productivity of the soil of Canada, the greater crop per acre. For instance, durum wheat raised in the old North-West Territory. A volume entitled 'Agricultural Staples and the Tariff,' by the Tariff Commission, shows that in 1910 and 1914, which it says are typical years in both countries, the cost of production of wheat per bushel in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, as compared with Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, and Minnesota, was 20 cents less per bushel, and the Canadians obtained about 7 bushels more per acre. These are among the factors in determining the duty on wheat."

Mr. Madden—Does that include the difference in the cost of the land as between the United States and Canada, or just the labor?

Mr. Hawley—It includes the production costs.

Mr. Madden—Of course, there would be a great deal of difference in the cost of the land, which is worth less in Canada than here.

Mr. Fess—In the great wheat countries of Manitoba and Alberta, where they have only recently been opening it up, is not the land considerably cheaper than it is in our own country?

Mr. Hawley—Very much cheaper, and more productive.

WHY HELL GATE IS SO NAMED

Hell Gate, a channel in the East River, between Long Island and Manhattan Island, received its name from the early Dutch settlers in New York. The channel was so dangerous that the colonists felt no other name would fit. From each end a tide poured in, with resulting whirlpools, eddies and conflicting breakers. In addition, under the surface at high tide, but projecting well above it at low water, were numerous jagged reefs, thus multiplying the dangers to navigation. Early navigators avoided the pass when they could, but as settlement grew, commerce grew also, and the use of the channel became more and more necessary. One boat in every 50 that attempted to go through was ripped open by the rocks or broken in the whirlpools.

In 1851 attempts were made to lessen the dangers in the channel. The tops of several reefs were blown away by surface blasting. Later the Federal Government took a hand, and undermined and destroyed the reefs by great charges of dynamite. In 1885, after the last of these operations, there was left a hannel 200 feet wide and 26 feet deep at low water. Thus Hell Gate was Hell Gate no longer; the name remains as a reminder.

The noted Hell Gate bridge, the heaviest bridge in the world, now spans the river at this point. One of the great engineering feats of the Twentieth Century in concrete construction. It was opened to traffic Jan. 1, 1917. The span is 1,016 feet long, and the top of the arch is 300 feet above the water.

PETES OPEN THE SECOND HALF BY A 3 TO 1 VICTORY AT COBOURG IN CENTRAL LEAGUE

SOLOMON CREW WIN A SNAPPY BATTLE IN LAKESHORE TOWN —SCHAFER HELD THEM HITLESS FOR SIX INNINGR BUT THEY MACED HIS OFFERINGS FOR FOUR HITS AND THREE RUNS IN THE SEVENTH INNINGS WHILE KIRN PITCHED OLD TIME GAME AGAINST TYSON'S MEN.

Fielding snappily behind steady pitching by Howard Kirn, the Petes opened the second half of the Central Ontario League race auspiciously yesterday by beating Manager Tyson's Cobourg outfit in the Horse Show town by 3 runs to 1. It was a fast clever exhibition of baseball, in spite of the half gale blowing in from the lake that made the judging of flies a difficult operation, and at times raised clouds of sand to bother the players. It was all over in an hour and twenty-five minutes, so that it will be seen that the play never lagged.

Kirn pitched one of his old time games, allowing the odd hit now and then, but—outside of one innings, when Cobourg bunched three safeties for their solitary counter—keeping the blows well scattered and refusing to permit a wallop when a clean hit would have meant runs. His team mates gave him nice support, helping out with a fast double on one occasion, while Lornie Rose took care of five flies in left field, Walter Jackson cut off a run by a beautiful throw to the plate, Micky Murray handled eight of nine chances in clean cut style and the rest of the crew all did their bit.

Shafer, who hails from the land of Uncle Sam, and proclaims the fact by wearing an American flag on his shirt front was Cobourg's pitching selection and for six innings had the Petes completely buffaloed. Not a solitary hit was registered and only two men reached first—both on errors— while nobody got as far as second. With Schafer going along like that and Cobourg in possession of a counter, batted over in the third, the outlook was not of the brightest. In the seventh, however, Bob Ross started the fireworks by bunting safely for the first hit off Shafer. Swanston followed with a single. Skitch obligingly moved the runners up a peg with a bad heave, and Murray, who has not having much luck with the willow, broke in at the proper moment by slashing a hit past second, which drove in two runs. Tommy Holyman supplied the necessary safety to send Murray in with Run No. 3, and the game was on ice, for Kirn only allowed one hit in the last three innings.

Cobourg contributed some snappy work in the field. Butler starred with a sensational catch of Holyman's drive to left, which would have rolled to the lake had it got away from the Cobourg outfielder, while Baker mad a flashy one-handed pick-up of a slashing grounder from Kirn that cut off a run. The ever green Dick Turpin handled seventeen chances at first base without a skip, and his son at shortstop, made some nice stops and throws.

The best of feeling was in evidence and the game was one of the most pleasant the Petes have experienced since the League began. There were no personalities or crabbing, and not a disagreeable incident to mar the occasion. The umpiring of Jack Rosevear of Port Hope, behind the plate, and of Barnes, of Cobourg, on the bases could not have been improved upon. Mr. Barnes is a home umpire who calls them as he sees him, not as he would like to have them be. In the ninth yesterday, with a Cobourg man on second and one out, Gerald Turpin hit a slow one to Murray, whose throw to Ross barely beat the runner, as his foot was reaching for the bag. It was a close play, and a decision in favor of the runner would not have occasioned a howl from the Petes, while it would have left Cobourg wit hthe tieing runs on the bases and onlyone out. But Mr. Barnes called Turpin out, the next batter fanned and the game was over.

As will be seen from the box score, Manager Solomon broke into the game himself yesterday, owing to the absence of Stan Lowe. He had a light day.

Solomon sacrificed, Schafer to D. Turpin. Baker made a dazzling stop of Kirn's fast drive, robbing the batter of a hit and the Petes of a run. Three runs, four hits, two errors.

Cobourg—Murray got G. Turpin at first. Schafer fanned. Skitch went to second on Murray's throw over Ross's head. Jacobs fouled out to Murray, who took the high one near the left field fence. No runs or hits, one error.

LACROSSE NOTES

Havelock journeys to Campbellford next Wednesday, August 3rd, and all East Peterboro will likely accompany them. It is a decidedly important game for Campbellford. They must win on their home grounds, and as they have already done so in the first half of the schedule, they should repeat. It should be a rattling game, as both teams are down to intensive training and are in top form.

H. S. Murton has quite evidently been down to Havelock, judging by the following observations in his column in the Toronto Telegram:

"Those who think that the senior series is of paramount importance in the O.A.L.A. should go out of town to visit some of the intermediate clubs. For instance, Havelock, Peterboro and Campbelford is such a group. Havelock is the size of place where a secret whispered is common gossip on the street corners ten minutes after. But their last gate against Campbellford was over $400. From far and near the farmers and the summer resort frequenters motor in to the games and the entire town wends its way nightly to the practices. It is what one can truly say this year, a lacrosse town.

"Some of the boys come in from farms four miles away, some wedge in a practice or two between runs on the railway, for in this railway town naturally some of the boys follow the town's industry. It means a sacrifice of money for some to attend, but they do not complain, for every one's heart is in the team and its success. There are some beautiful stick handlers among them, and condition is good. Their passing is not bad but what they lack is a knowledge of tactics. Most of them, and this applies to nearly all applies to nearly all outside towns, commenced on the juvenile teams, playing just any way which became convenient. They have kept in this rut, and the consequence is that they are excellent stickhandlers but do not even know what the odd-man game means. Consequently a great deal of energy goes to waste.

"Peterboro is the weak sister in the trio. She has lost every match so far, and the town is rather indifferent. Campbellford plays in Peterboro Saturday, and Havelock visits Campbellford next Wednesday, the 3rd of August.

"The other group in this district is junior, and consists of Campbellford, Peterboro and Hastings. Marmora attempted to get in this spring but could not get together a team. Baseball has small hold down this way, but the difficulty is that the young fellows are scattered by their work as there is no centre large enough to give employment to a full team. However, they do the best they can and that is very creditable. Percy Lancaster, the ex-O.A.L.A. president, is the moving spirit behind the Havelock team.'

SPORT COMMENT

The greatest day in the career of Steve Donoghue, the greatest rider ever developed on English turf, was that on which he rode J. B. Joel's Humorist to victory in the Epsom Derby. Not only was it the consensus of opinion that Humorist's win was in the main due to Donoghue's superhuman riding effort, but England's premier jockey also had the pleasure of knowing that he had won a bet for the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, both of whom thanked him personally after the race for the manner in which he had piloted their favourite. Mr. Joel, the South African millionaire, who also won the Derby with Sunstarin 1911, is said to have made between £60,000 and £70,000 in bets and stakes. He was given a great ovation by the crowd, and warmly congratulated by the King and Queen, later by E. Whineray, whose Leighton started as favourite.

Thirty years from the time he originally burst into prominence as an athlete, C. B. Fry, aged 50, is again coming into the limelight wonders as one of England's leading cricketers. He is considered one of the wonders of the century, classing as a batsman and fielder, good enough to represent England in an international conflict when the country teems with many first-class cricketers, many born after he made his appearance as a star player. In his school days, Fry was a football player and athlete of note, establishing a world's record of 23 feet 5 inches in the broad jump in 1892.

Joe Darcy, brother of the late Les Darcy, is being pointed toward the heavyweight championship of the world. The younger Darcy, now only 19, has been whipping every one in these parts, and doing it handily. He is 6 feet tall, weighs 180 pounds, and is picking up poundage and height with every six months. It is predicted that he will pack close to 200 pounds of fighting bulk and measure 6 feet 2 inches before he is 21. Darcy, a natural fighter, packs a terrific punch, can take punishment in a game fashion, hits powerfully with either hand, and is exceptionally fast. Australians are supremely confident that in another year or two at the most he will have fought his way along to a point where he will be Jack Dempsey's most formidable foe.

Georges Carpentier has sailed away—leaving many persons puzzled about that broken hand he talked about after Jack Dempsey polished him off. No one saw an X-ray of the fracture—but the Carpentier camp insisted that it was very nicely fractured. No one was unkind enough to hazard the guess that perhaps it was just a strain—not a fracture. But eight days after the broken hand was supposed to have afflicted Georges he appeared on one of the New York beaches. The crowd saw him—rushed forward. It wanted to shake hands with Georges. And Georges was agreeable. The Frenchman shook hands with several thousand persons—shook vigorously and firmly with his right hand. And there were no bandages on it. The puzzlement of the folks therefore comes from the fact that a man could recover so speedily from a broken hand, that in one week he could shake the palms of thousands—and grasp each firmly—without a wince of pain or an outward show that the hand ever had suffered any breaks.

The Green Valley Country Club has a one-man

The Green Valley Country Club has a one-man golf match every day by a man who plays against himself. He is Dr. Harley Parker, known twenty years ago as a Chicago National League pitcher, and later as director of athletics at North-western University. He is ambidextrous, and plays his right side against his left. Naturally, the doctor has to have two sets of golf clubs, and when Southpaw Parker is playing the other Parker two caddies are required. Speaking of his game, or games, to-day, Dr. Parker said:

"My left arm is a little better at the drive, getting ten yards more than the right sometimes, but my right arm is more accurate. From tee to flag it is just about a draw."

Even when he is playing some other individual, Dr. Parker carries both sets of clubs, and his ambidextrous ability gives him a great advantage over a player who can play only right-handed or left-handed.

CENTRAL LEAGUE TEAMS MUST KEEP SPECTATORS OFF PLAYING GROUNDS

Cobourg, July 26, 1921.

At a meeting of the C.O.A.B.L. executive in Lindsay July 20 President A. C. Kimmel was authorized to issue the following instructions, which were confirmed at the executive meeting in Cobourg.

In future each club in this league shall have a definitely defined playing field and positively no one, with the exception of those whose duties make it necessary, such as players, managers, scorers, etc., shall be allowed on this field during the progress of the game. Exception is made to this rule in the case of league officials and their guests, past secretaries and presidents and members of the press.

Umpires are hereby instructed that, on it being brought to their attention that the above ruling is being violated by either team he must stop the game, give the offending team a reasonable length of time (say five minutes) to clear the field, at the end of which time if the field is not cleared he will forfeit the game to the team offended.

Each home club shall furnish at least one officer of the law at each game to help enforce above rules.

The Port Hope Club is hereby instructed to extend the present rope protection on the third base line to the west corner of the grand stand. Also to erect a rope or protection extending from the east corner of the grand stand parallel with the first base line as far as first base and for such distance further as they see fit.

The Cobourg club is hereby instructed to extend their present protection down the third base line to meet the wire protection directly behind the home plate and to erect a further rope or other protection from said wire protection behind home plate parallel with the first base line as far as first base and for such distance further as they see fit.

The Belleville club is hereby instructed that if they desire spectators inside the present track fence to erect rope or other protection parallel with first and third base lines from directly behind the home plate as far as first and third bases and as much further as they see fit such protection to be also in front of the present bleachers near home plate.

The playing fields are then defined as follows: Oshawa—The present fence inside the track shall be the boundary. Lindsay—The presence fence inside the track shall be the boundary. Peterborough—The two grand stands with the present fence surrounding the grounds shall be the boundary. Port Hope—The protection and grand stand as before mentioned shall be the boundary. Cobourg— The protection as before mentioned shall be the boundary. Belleville—The protection as before mentioned shall be the boundary.

The above is deemed necessary because it has been found that in practically every instance where there has been any disturbance during the progress of the game it could be traced directly to adherents of teams gathered around the players benches or the absence of any line or indication of boundaries over which spectators could not pass. It is regrettable but inevitable if innocent clubs must suffer with the guilty.

SING SING CONVICTS WATCH MEIGHAN "ESCAPE"

Star of "The City of Silent Men" is Screened in Dramatic Incident.

Prisoners in Sing Sing prison who saw certain scenes of Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount piture, "The City of Silent Men," filmed, admit that Mr. Meighan's "escape" from the prison was novel and entertaining. "The City of Silent Men" will be shown at the Capitol Theatre tonight.

Mr. Meighan, as the hero of the story, is sent to prison on circumstantial evidence, and after serving several years he makes his escape. The fugitive secreted himself in a packing box, was nailed up inside and rode out on a four-horse truck through the famous "South Gate" of the prison. He took the same route that Thomas Murray, a daring crook, took when he escaped, nailed up in a laundry case, on May 27, 1887. Imprisoned old-timer smiled as they looked on. They found the scene interesting and instructive.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes permitted Director Forman to stage the scene at Sing Sing, but was extra cautious to see that no genuine convict was tempted to depart with the players. The 'prisoner" was hidden inside the big packing case inside the prison and then, as the gate was opened to let the truck drive out, rode to freedom in the case. The truck drove to the Ossining freight station, with the camera clicking behind it, and there the "fugitive" got out of the box and made hs "getaway" with the camera photographing the feat.

The balance of this splendid program will contain about everything in the way of interest to a motion picture audience and will be fully up to the usual high-class Capitol Theatre standard.

DON'T PAY FOR LIGHT.
The Havelock Electric Light Commission is notifying a large number of Havelock citizens that their electric lights will be cut off at the end of July if their light accounts are not paid up. About 75 are said to be very neglectful of the necessity of paying for the splendid electric light service we are enjoying and the Commission intend to see that they pay up or off go their lights.

HERE'S MY SUCCESS.

Here's my success—the roses by the gateway,
The children running gladly up to me.
A simple street of friendship, not a great way,
A bird house and its tenants in a tree.

Here's my success—the kettle singing gayly,
The living-room alive with songs and cheer,
A place to fill that needs my presence daily,
The children growing stronger year by year.

Here's my success—not fame or high position,
A little home where laughter oft is heard,
A happy table—there's a glorious mission—
A meal that's flavored with the merry word.

Here's my success—a glad wife at the doorway,
Rest and contentment when the day is done;
And though you find life's splendors lining your way,
Here loving lips tell me my battle's won.

FRANCE NOT TO AWAIT BRITISH ACQUIESCENCE?

SUCH IS BELIEF IN LONDON AS TO FRENCH ATTITUDE ON DESPATCHING REINFORCEMENTS TO SILESIA.

BRITISH NOTE SENT IN TO PARIS THIS MORNING

LONDON, July 20. — (United Press).—The British Press to-day took a serious view of the Upper Silesian dispute.

The general opinion seemed to be that the hope of a Supreme Council meeting on August 4, had been abandoned both by France and Great Britain. It was believed that France now intends to go on with her announced purpose sending additional troops to Silesia without awaiting Britain's acquiesence.

PARIS, July 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Great Britain's reply to the latest French note on the Upper Silesian question, in which divergencies still exist betwen the two nations as to the proceedure to be adopted in dealing with the problem notably as to the sending of reinforcements to that area, was delivered at the Foreign Office this morning by Lord Hardinge, British Ambassador. An hour's conversation between Lord Hardinge and Premier Briand ensued, after which the Premier joined his colleagues in a cabinet meeting in progress at the Palace of Elysee.

ADVISES REFORMS IN POLICE COURT

TORONTO REPORT SUGGESTS TRIAL BY JURY AND WOMAN MAGISTRATE.

TORONTO, July 29.— (Canadian Press.)—That the "prisoners dock" is a barbarism and should be removed, isone of the recommendations made by the Public Service Commission in its report on the Toronto police coutrs. The Commission also demands that the name be changed to the "municipal court" and suggests trial by jury in this court without the necessity of going to higher courts. Need of a woman magistrate and many other reforms is urgently recommended, also many amendments in the criminal code in regard to bail.

REPAINTING THE LETTER BOXES.

The letter boxes throughout the city are being treated to a coat of paint and the alteration to their appearance has been quite refreshing. Citizens generally have lauded the government's zeal in repainting the mail containers, but remarks derogatory to the civic bodies have been heard about the fire hydrants and alarm boxes, which should be painted red. This makes them more conspicuous.

Labor Turnover Cost Industry $100,000,000

COUNCIL OF ENGINEERING FINDS THIS WAS LOSS TO METAL TRADES ALONE LAST YEAR.

BY PAUL R. MALLON,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 29.—"You're fired," and "I quit" cost American industry $100,000,000 last year, the American Engineering Council declared to-day.

The Council, making public a report of its committee on the elimination of waste in industry, declared that metal trade firms lost that sum through unnecessary labor turnovers, with an accompanying loss of machinery. The loss reached $100,000,000

"Experts estimated the cost of labor turnover vary from $50 to $25 per employee hired, trained and separated," the committee report showed.

An average figure of only $50 applied to 2,000,000 employees in the metal trades industry, means an average of about $100,000,000 in this one industrv.

BLAMES GEDDES FOR TREATMENT OF NORTHCLIFFE

LONDON STAR CLAIMS FOREIGN MINISTER DID NOT INSTRUCT AMBASSADOR TO "BOYCOTT" PUBLISHER.

FOLLOWS PAPER BARON'S ATTACK ON GOVERNMENT

LONDON, July 29.—The Evening Star this afternoon states that the official responsibility for the cancellation of invitations to Lord Northcliffe at Washington will be placed upon Ambassador Geddes, saying that it is officially denied that Lord Curzon, the Foreign Minister, instructed him to "boycott the publisher.

The Evening Star says: "The Foreign Office was not surprised at Ambassador Geddes, cancellation of the dinner invitation after the language and actions of Lord Northcliffe against Geddes' own chief.

"However, it is officially denied that Lord Curzon coerced the Embassy or in any way influenced its decision to cancel the function. It was known at the Foreign Office some time ago that Geddes had offered hospitality to Northcliffe during his Washington visit.

WASHINGTON, July 29. — Lord Northcliffe, the British publisher, now in the United States, in a statement issued here last night, said that, "for reasons of which he is not aware," invitations extended to him to stop at the British Embassy and to attend a dinner there last night had been withdrawn.

"Knowing the methods in India of Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary," the statement declared, "Lord Northcliffe is positively certain that Lord Curzon has adopted those methods here."

About News Rights.

The British publisher's statement conveyed the impression that the whole matter involved in the reported cancellation of invitations was an outgrowth of the recent controversy between Lord Northcliffe and Lord Curzon. Soon after President Harding made his overtures for a disarmament conference, The London Times, the leading paper published by Northcliffe, opposed the suggestion that Lord Curzon be appointed one of the British delegates to the proposed conference, and attacked both the Foreign Secretary and Premier Lloyd George. This attack was followed by suspension of privileged rights enjoyed for years by The London Times, a Northcliffe paper, in the obtaining of news from

LOSS THROUGH FOREST FIRES MANY MILLIONS

FIRES IN ABITIBI REGION OF QUEBEC ALONE CAUSED DAMAGE OF $800,000, ONLY PARTLY COVERED BY INSURANCE.

SPARKS FROM ENGINES BLAMED FOR THE FIRES

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

QUEBEC, July 29.—Losses estimated at millions of dollars are said to have been suffered in the province through the recent forest fires which, on account of the extensive drought, have taken at times such a menacing aspect.

Experts who have been engaged in preparing estimates have not yet supplied the forestry branch of the Department of Lands and Forests with any official figures, but it was learned from a reliable source this morning that in the Abitibi region alone, where forst fires have certainly not taken the extension of some in immediate northern sections, over $800,000 worth of forests have been destroyed with about $600,000 worth only covered by insurance.

Though there has been cases of neglect, forst fires in that region have apparently been caused by sparks from locomotives, and settlers there are said to have been rather prudent.

DOLES OPPOSED FOR WORKLESS NEXT WINTER

STEPS TO BE TAKEN TO COPE WITH UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM.

OTTAWA, July 29. — Unless prompt steps are taken by the federal, provincial and municipal authorities to cope with the situation, Canada will face during the coming winter, with the most serious condition of unemployment in her history—conditions more acute than those which existed in 1878 or 1893. Reports on the situation received by the department of labor from Montreal, Toronto and other large cities are of a nature to cause serious disquiet, and as a consequence of these reports the provincial authorities have been warned to prepare for the situation. Already there have been several provincial conferences on the subject at which the federal authorities have been represented; and it is hoped that by winter some scheme of cooperation between the federal, provincial and municipal authorities will be worked out whereby the situation may, in some degree, be met. Last winter the federal authorities undertook to pay half the cost of whatever assistance was decided upon as necessary at any point. But this system of doles is not favored, and is looked upon as not only bad for employees but for employers.

Summer negotiations looking toward a reduction of wage scales have not resulted in any real agreements being reached. Employees, naturally, are loath to relinquish the rates secured during the war. Employers are opposed to carrying on their industries under existing rates. Hence building programmes have been abandoned in many cases, while many industries this winter will be either running at half speed or not at all.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association has promised to assist in meeting the situation but declares that such assistance will be limited, owing to the fact that last winter in an endeavor to give employment, they filled their warehouses with goods for which there has not been a heavy demand.

For July of last year the percentage of unemployed among the workers of the Dominion was 2.75 . Today the percentage was 16.74, a percentage hardly ever exceeded in normal winter months. The number out of work to-day is estimated at 140,000. With seasonal employments shut down, it is estimated that that number will have incresaed to 300,000 in December.

CURRIE IS PAID TRIBUTE BY BYNG

BY THOMAS GEGGIE,
(Special Cable to The Examiner)
(Copyright, 1921.)

LONDON, July 29. — Lord Byng of Vimy, newly appointed Governor-General of Canada, at the Canada Club dinner in his honour last night, said:

"I sometimes think that when I leave this sphere and have to face the recording angel, I shall expect him to say, 'Young fellow, what have you done?' I will reply, 'I got Arthur Currie to command the Canadian Corps', and the recording angel will say at once, 'Step into the elevator. You can go straight up'."

THE MEN WHO WRITE THE NEWS YOU READ

LITTLE

Carl Victor Little has been with the United Press only one year, but during that time has succeeded in establishing a reputation as a reporter and news writer of ability. His United Press work has been confined to the Middle West, where he has been identified with covering practically every staff story that has "broken" in that region in the last year.

Little was born in Columbus, O., 27 years ago. After graduation from Ohio State University in 1916, he covered general assignmente for the Cleveland Press until June, 1918, when he enlisted and went overseas, remaining for eleven months. He was attached to the intelligence section of the 83rd Division of the U.S. Army.

On his discharge he covered the Ohio Legislature for the Scripps-McRae League, and then came to the United Press.

His headquarters are in Chicago.

LAKE CALUMET AS NEW INLAND HABOR

CHICAGO, July 29.—An enterprising plan to make Chicago the central shipping point between Europe and the Middle East, via the St. Lawrence River canals, was given fresh impetus Monday when the City Council adopted an ordinance to turn Lake Calumet into a great inland industrial harbor. The State's rights in the project had been turned over to the city.

Work of digging a big channel will be begun as soon as possible.

JELLY FISH SCHOOL CLEARS THE BEACHES

BOSTON, July 29. — (Canadian Press.) — More than 150 bathers were treated at hospitals and thousands were driven from Nantasket and adjoining beaches yesterday when a school of red jelly fish drifted into shore and severely stung all who came in contact with their tentacles.

This species of red jelly fish is commonly called "Stingaree" and sometimes "Australian Stingaree" because it is commonly found in Australian waters. The feelers exude a poisonous substance which infects the skin and causes swelling and pain.

FARMERS' GOVT. IN ALBERTA IS NOT BOLSHEVIK

PREMIER-DESIGNATE GREENFIELD ANSWERS ALLEGATIONS OF RADICALISM AGAINST MOVEMENT WHICH HE HEADS.

PLATFORM IS SIMILAR TO THAT OF THE U.F.O.

CALGARY, Alta., July 29.—(By United Press.)—The new Agrarian Government in Alberta is not Bolshevistic, Premier-Elect Herbert Greenfield declared to-day in an exclusive interview with the United Press.

Greenfield told the aims of the United Farmers of Alberta, who swept into power in the recent elections. "The farmers are not Bolshevists," he declared. "They stand for equal rights for every one. That's all." Greenfield, a practical farmer himself, was busy to-day selecting a cabinet of farmers, which will be approved by a Farmer Legislature. The new Government's programme, he said, includes proportional representation, direct legislation, economy in administration, abolition of patronage, the extension of education, the maintenance of public health, assistance for co-operative organization, and prohibition.

An Attorney of the people and especially the women, is Mrs. Irene Parlry, one of the two ladies elected to the new Legislature of Alberta, the other being Mrs. Nellie McClung. There were six women candidates.

For four years Mrs. Parlry was President of the United Farm Women of Alberta and during her term of office the organization grew from twenty local clubs to over three hundred. During two years of this time she was President of the women's section of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. At present she is a member of the University of Alberta Board of Governors and Vice-President of the Alberta Red Cross Societq. As a member of a Provincial Legislature it is expected that Mrs. Parlry will take a special interest in all health legislation. She She originated the plan of paying nurses with obstetrical training in outlying districts where a doctor is not in residence. Alberta has now three such nurses.

'I believe that encouragement should be given to co-operative efforts in the marketing and handling of farm products along lines calculated to reduce the cost of production, distributing and living", Greenfield declared.

"The farmers stand for obtaining from the Dominion all natural resources for development to the benefit of the people.

"I am an ardent prohibitionist. I would enact and enforce such legislation for the control of the liquor traffic as the people may sanction by referndum. Prohibition is an integral part of the farmers' platform."

Greenfield is 52, stocky and strong, a successful farmer and a convincing political speaker.

It was believed that one of the chief figures in his cabinet may be H. W. Wood, former Missiourian, organized the United Farmers.

CALGARY, July 29 (Canadian Press). — Herbert Greenfield, Premier-designate of Alberta, after spending a busy day conferring on the Cabinet situation, anounced that he would make no statement as to the probable make-up of the new administration, and is not likely to do so until the next conference of the U. F. A. members-elect, which will be held in Edmonton prior to taking over the administration.

Ever since the U. F. A. political party captured the Alberta Legislature, rumours have been prevalent that the new Government would use the axe ruthlessly owing to the party's announced antipathy towards the patronage system. However, Premier Greenfield, in a statement, says that those who measure up to an efficient standard have nothing to fear.

Wakeford Has 2 Chances of Vindication

PARLIAMENT OR LORD CHANCELLOR MAY COME TO "NAUGHTY ARCH'S" AID.

BY LLOYD ALLEN,
(Undted Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, July 29.—Archdeacon John Wakeford rocked the Church of England to-day in his appeal to the people from conviction on a charge of immorality.

The muscular clergyman, known as "The Naughty Arch" since his alleged adventure with a young woman who met him in his church, the Peterborough Cathedral, laid his case before the public at a mass meeting last night.

Wakeford's denial of improper relations with the young woman and his replies to the evidence against him, led the belief to-day that there are two chances of success for his appeal.

The first is that Parliament, by a special act, may re-open the case, Wakeford promising new evidence to offset the "pajama and spying chamber maid," testimony which convicted him in both church and secular courts. Wakeford's other chance is that he may be tacitly declared innocent through another appointment by the Lord Chancellor.

WAKEFORD DEFENDS SELF

"How can you convict a man of murder when you can't produce the corpse," demanded Archdeacon John Wakeford, the naughty archdeacon" in an interview given the United Press. 'Here I am a man of the cloth — convicted of immorality. And my enemies have not been able to produce the young woman they said was my companion in the supposed indiscretion.

"The only young woman who could by any possibility be connected with the charges has come forward with a denial.

"I am not guilty. My case was a travesty on justice.

"The English people already have shown an unanimous belief it is increditable that if a man had been so bad he could be so mad as to do what was charged against me."

MISSING WOMAN MAY BE CLUE TO FLIGHT

CHICAGO, July 29.—"A blonde without visible means of support who maitains herself in luxury," was reported missing to-day by authorities trailing Warren C. Spurgin, fleeing Michigan avenue Trust Company head.

pany head. Detectives were convinced that the blonde was a fugitive with Spurgin.

Wtinesses wer found to-day who declared Spurgin, accompanied by another went to the bank at 9 p.m. on July 17. After the two men spent nearly an hour in bank they rejoined the two women and drove away. That was the last positive trace of the banker. A man who was in the auto in which they left was identified and is also missing. Charges holding him with being equally responsible with Spurgin for looting the bank may be made.

APPROVAL OF JAPAN'S ACCEPTANCE SHOWN BY LONDON NEWSPAPERS

LONDON, July 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Hearty approval is expressed by several London newspapers this morning over the Japanese Government's decision to accept President Harding's invitation to discuss limitation of armaments and the Far Eastern question.

The Times in a lengthy editorial, says: "Japan's best friends know that she would accept the invitation, but the fact that her acceptance now is actually on record, is a relief to all who realize the magnitude of the issue with which the conference will be confronted."

SMALL WILL NOW GIVE HIMSELF UP.

Consents to His Arrest in Chicago, Where Officials Known to Be Friendly.

(By LAWRENCE M. BENEDICT, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

CHICAGO, July 29—Governor Len Small, indicted Chief Executive of Illinois, notified Sheriff Henry Mester of Sagamon County he was ready to surrender.

Immediately after "Iron Judge" Smith of the Circuit Court declared "Illinois has no king," and held the Governor amenable to arrest, Small fled to Chicago to the arms of his political sponsors.

After a conference with political leaders and Albert Fink, at present his chief attorney, a message was sent by Fink to Mester advising the Sheriff the Governor would submit to arrest today in Chicago at the attorney's office.

At Own Convenience.

Mester replied he would not go to Chicago to serve the warrant, but would permit the Governor to appear at his convenience in Sagamon County and give bond.

The complete backdown of the Governor from his stand to "resist arrest" with his "entire strength," came as a result of a change in his legal advisers.

When indictments were first returned the Governor consulted with former Governor Joseph Fifer, George Gillespie and James H. Graham. They advised him the "king can do no wrong," and urged him to resist arrest. Last Saturday the Governor came to Chicago and after a consultation with Mayor William Hale Thompson and other of his political friends, called Fink into the case.

Public Sentiment.

The widespread public sentiment in Illinois against the stand taken by Small in declaring he was above arrest, had its effect.

The Governor had given no indication early today whether he would agree to the Sheriff's terms that he must make the arrangements for bond in Springfield.

By forcing the arrest in Chicago the Governor would be in custody in a county where the officials are friendly and whatever steps his attorneys might take would be on friendly ground.

It was understood the Governor's attorneys planned to apply for a writ of habeas corpus in Cook County Court if he were arrested.

U.S. FARMER LEADER FAVORS LAKE-TO-SEA WATERWAY PROJECT.

One of the Greatest Propositions Before the Country, He Says.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(By Canadian Press)—"The project of a great waterway by the route of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence is one of the greatest propositions before the country," said Senator Kenyon of Iowa, chairman of the group of senators from agricultural states, known as the agricultural "bloc."

"I believe the establishment of this waterway on the one hand and the utilization to the fullest extent of the Mississippi River from St. Paul to New Orleans would be of tremendous benefit to the country. So far as I aw concerned, I intend to do everything possible to advance both of these propositions."

Senator Kenyon has become interested in the St. Lawrence project because of the widespread protest of the farmers of the middle west against high railroad freight rates and their demand that relief be given them and opportunity afford to get their products to market by water routes.

Farmers all over the Middle West, in fact throughout the interior of the United States, say they are being ruined by high freight rates and inability to get their products to market. They point out that the more they raise and the better their crops, the worse they are off.

Just now, the farmers of the Upper Mississippi Valley are seeking to get the Goltra system of steel barges on the Mississippi so extend that it will reach from St. Paul to New Orleans and will transport coal and heavy freight to the north while carrying grain and other agricultural products south to New Orleans. This would make possible shipments of agricultural products to Europe at reasonable freight rates.

The efforts to open up the Mississippi to barge traffic will require some additional appropriations by Congress. However, it is recognized by the farm organizations and by members of Congress from the Upper Mississippi and Lakes region tht the development of the Mississippi and the St. Lawrence both are needed. However, they would like to see the Erie Canal made the most of. They feel there is need for great expansion of water transportation and that in no other way can the country escape the toll of heavy freight rates by rail.

The railroads are fighting the development of the water routes in every possible way. Plenty of evidence is at hand on this point. In the long run, however, the railroads will have to give way before the rising tide of public sentiment against rates which are burdensome and, as the public sees them, unreasonable

UNITED STATES FINDING IRELAND A RICH MARKET.

Sinn Fein "Consul" in Ornate Offices — Irish-American Trade Is About $80,000,000

(By PAUL R. MALLON, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 29.—American manufacturers already have recognized Ireland—as a most profitable market place for American goods—J. L. Fawsitt, Irish "consul" to the United States, declared today.

Sitting at his mahogany desk in the spic and span "consulate-general's headquarters," amid a mass of official Sinn Fein documents, the "consul" revealed to the United Press:

Irish-American trade has jumped in volume from $50,000,000 in 1919 to $80,000,000 in 1920, and would run over a hundred millions in the next year.

Freight Service.

A direct freight service has been established between New York and Irish ports.

American bankers and business men are investing hundreds of thousands in Irish trade.

The "consul" looked like a railroad president running his big office efficiently.

Fawsitt produced an official Dail Eireann and an official report signed by the Sinn Fein "minister of home affairs."

Ireland's Imports.

"Last year Ireland imported $800,000,000 of farm produce, raw materials and manufactured goods. Just think what a feather that entire amount would be in the caps of American manufacturers if we were able to spend the entire amount here.

"Americans cannot afford to overlook this market.

"I do not hesitate to say that within a few years I expect to see America the chief supply house for Ireland."

Sinn Fein Will Refuse the British Offer

SINN FEIN DRAFT REJECTION OF BRITISH PEACE OFFER AND WILL MAKE COUNTER-PROPOSALS TO IT

REPUBLICAN LEADERS OBJECT TO LLOYD GEORGE'S TERMS AND BELIEVE THAT HIS OFFER IS SUFFICIENTLY ELASTIC TO PERMIT OF FURTHER CONFERENCES BASED ON THEIR COUNTER PROPOSALS—SINN FEIN CLAIMS HOME RULE SYSTEM OFFERED NOT SUFFICIENT AND OBJECTS TO MILITARY DOMINATION.

By Charles McCann.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

DUBLIN, July 29. — The Sinn Fein to-day began drafting a rejection of the principal terms in the British peace proposals.

The Irish will make counter proposals, principally regarding the degree of self government and the relations to be maintained between Ulster and the southern counties.

The reply will probably not be sent to London before the middle of next week. It is being drafted from a "trading" veiwpoint, that is, the principal terms in their present state are turned down with the idea that the counter proposals will lead to further parleys if the government's offer is elastic.

Lloyd George is expected to answer by inviting DeValera to London for more conversations.

This invitation, it can be stated authoritatively, would be accepted if the government's proposition is a flat take-it-or-leave-it offer. The peace negotiations seem doomed.

Sinn Fein oficials here are resentful at the insistence of the London press that Lloyd George's terms are "generous.' They regard the terms in their present form as not generous.

The Sinn Feiners object in the first place to Britain's desire to maintain military domination over Ireland. They also object to the fact that the offer does not give Ireland, dominion home rule, as it exists in Canada, South Africa and Australia, or freedom from "military domination."

The Sinn Fein wants the peace terms clarified so London will be eliminated as a connecting link between Ulster and the South. They want a united Ireland.

The Sinn Fein Cabinet is undecided whether to call a meeting of the full parliament to approve the reply to the British offer. If the Parliament were called 36 of its members would have to be freed from jail by the British.

OBITUARY

JAMES MARSHALL WILLAN.

(Millbrook Reporter).

Again we are called upon to chronicle the sudden call of one of South Monaghan's highly esteemed residents and Reeve of the municipality, in the person of James Marshall Willan, who was stricken down with a stroke of apoplexy on Saturday evening, July 9th, and on the following Wednesday breathed his last.

The deceased was born in the township in which he resided fifty-six years ago, and was a son of the late Thomas Marshall Willan, and has been a resident of the township during his entire life. He served on the Council Board some ten years and was afterward elected Reeve in 1920, which office he held until his death, and during all those years he served his municipality faithfully and well, and always in the best interests of the township. James Marshall Willan was a fine type of manhood, true and upright in all his actions, with a heart that was full and overflowing with kindness.

Twenty-two years ago ae married Miss Martha Anne Douglas, daughter of Mr. Hugh Douglas, of Cavan, and to this union three sons were born, viz., Thomas, Norman and John, and together with the sorrowing wife two sisters and one brother still survive — Mrs. Dunbar, Peterborough; Mrs. David Hutchinson, Otonabee, and John on the homestead.

The funeral took place on Friday last to St. Paul's Cemetery and was largely attended, his pastor, Rev. Canon Allen, conducting the last sad offices for the dead at the home and the grave.

The bearers were Warden F. Bowen, and members of the Council, viz., H. Barnard, Wm. Rutherford, S. Robinson, J. C. McRoberts and O. B. Johnson, Clerk.

The sympathy of the whole community will go out to Mrs. Willan and her three sons in the loss they have sustained of a loving husband and father, and we can only commend them to the Great Comforter in their sad affliction.

Here is Your Chance, Girls

LOS ANGELES, Cay., July 29.—(United Press).—Girls, if you would become Mrs. Heavyweight Champion of the World, here's the kind of a wife Jack Dempsey is seking;

"She must be able to wear ginghams as well as silks, she must be a girl with a ready smile, a girl with a pleasant face instead of a beautiful one. Above all she must be able to cook."

"That's the kind of a girl I am looking for", said Dempsey to-day in again denying reports of his secret marriage to a Hollywood film actress. "Tell the world I'm looking for a home girl, a girl whose brain is filled with solving the problem of making my home happy and not the career a girl who would be more interested in making other homes brighter."

ORGANIZED GANG IS RAISING BILLS

QUEBEC, Q., July 29.—Raised bills are reported to be in circulation here and banks have been advised that an organized gang was apparently operating here as already ten American one dollar bills raised to $10 have been discovered amongst deposits in local banks. Due to the value of American money, these bills are readily accepted. The bills are well worked, and the discovery of the raising is rather difficult, except by experts.

WATER FRONT OF PARRY SOUND IS SWEPT BY FIRE

PORTION OF DOCK AND TWO WHARF HOUSES DESTROYED—RAGED TWO HOURS.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., July 29.—(Canadian Press.)— A serious fire here yesterday afternoon and evening completely destroyed two wharf houses and a coal shack, as well as a considerable portion of the town dock.

The fire, discovevered about 1.30 p.m., had evidently started from a spark from the Conger Lumber Company's saw mill. The Parry Sound Lumber Company's wharf house and Scott's boat livery were saved after a fight which lasted until ten-thirty at night.

The loss is partly covered by insurance.

RAIN FALLS BUT ONLY ADDS TO CROP DAMAGE

BY ED. L. KEEN,

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, July 29.—Russia's famine flight continued to-day. Cross roads in parts of the Volga valley were choked with thousands of rickety carts, small herds and pedestrians. The wildest confusion reigned at these points. Great clouds of dust rose as conflicting lines tried to force their way through each other; the stifling dust descended again to the caravans, leaving the miserable travellers choking and dying. The cross roads centres of death. Even cattle which had staggered along attached to their owner's carts, failed to survive the heat and dust at the crossings and fell dead in the road. The carcasses were stripped of flesh and used as food, while the caravans heading toward the promise of harvest in the Ukraine and Russia's bundary countries, continued the most miserable victims of Russia's great drought.

There were millions more of sufferers, according to reports reaching here to-day by way of Reval, Copenhagen and Berlin. The principal developments according to those reports, were "the extension of the Soviet Relief committee's activities, the threat of mutinies by different regiments who suffered rations, the establishment of a heavy guard around the Kremlin in Moscow, where Soviet officials stored provisions to withstand a siege if necessary.

Moscow became virtually a military camp. Many regiments were taken up to the city and stationed so that every possible gathering place could be commanded. The International battalion, including many foreign enthusiasts for the Bolshevik cause, was assigned the honor of guarding the Kremlin. Soviet authorities have abandoned their policy of mingling freely with the crowds, When necesasry to leave the Kremlin now they go about in closed cars accompanied by armored cars and squadrons of cavalry.

The panic has affected all Russia, with thousands dying daily in the drought region, the great Volga valley. Every other section was endangered bw the shortage of wheat. Flour commands almost any price. In Simbirsk the best peasant cottages is offered for thirty-six pounds of flour. Generally the peasants make no effort to sell. They merely load their portable goods into a cart and join the great throngs which are shuffling across the shimmering steepes, chasing the mirage of plentiful food.

Meat is valued at thousands of rubles a pound. The Minister of Food has reported that 70,000,000 pounds of corn has been collected in the Ukraine and will be distributed. Even that amount was expected to make little impression in Russia. However, the official has gone even to the extent of taking next year's seed in requisitioning supplies from districts where crops are fairly satisfactory. Reports to the Food Minister's office showed that rains had fallen in some dry sections but only added to the damage.

SECOND DRIVER FOR TAXI FIRM IS FOUND DEAD

FOUND IN FIELD, TOURNIQUET ABOUT NECK, FACE BADLY MUTILATED AND CLOTHES IN POOL OF BLOOD.

ROBBERY THE MOTIVE, ACCORDING TO POLIGE

DETROIT, Mich., July 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Oscar Abrahams, 21 years old, night manager for the Yale Taxicab Company, was murdered Wednesday night under circumstances almost exactly similar to those attending the murder six months ago of his fellow employe, Louis Rezik. His body was found naked, except for underwear, in a cornfield. The hands were tied behind the victim's back, a tourniquet was about his neck and his face was badly mutilated, as though beaten. In a ditch nearby in a pool of blood lay his cap and shoes.

Louis Rezik also was taxicab driver for the Yale Company and was lured to his death by a call which came at 10.30 p.m. Next morning his body was found in a parking strip, in a deserted spot on the East Side. Three bullet wounds in the head caused death. The police believe one man may have committed both murders. Robbery, apparently, was the motive.

GREAT INCREASE ENGLISH DIVORCES

LONDON, July 28.—Suits for divorce in 1919 increase 355 per cent over 1913, the year before the war. Compared with 1918, the increase is 114 per cent. There were 5, 763 cases in 1919.

To a great extent, this growth in the business of the divorce court is attributed in a judicial report to the facilities for instituting procedings provided since 1914 for the benefit of the poor people who brought 2,341 of the 5, 763 suits.

MAY CLEAR UP BANK ROBBERY IN 24 HOURS

POLICE HAVE FOUND CLUES WHICH ARE EXPECTED TO LEAD TO ARRESTS FOR HOLD-UP OF PETITE COTE BANK.

FIND BILL HIDDEN IN ONE HOUSE THEY RAIDED

WINDSOR, July 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Within the next 24 hours it is expected that the Petite Cote bank robbery of last week, when eighteen thousand was taken from the Merchaits' Bank branch in that village, will have been cleared up.

Provincial authorities and the Walkerville police have devoted themselves almost entirely to the task of solving the robbery and have taken one or two suspects into custody. These, owever, have been released afte rthey had given the police the clues they were in search of, it is said. At one place raided it is reported that three thousand in the Merchants' Bank bills was found hidden behind a picture hanging on the wall. This fact, however, the police decline to discuss at present, fearing it may injure their chances of running down the four men who perpetrated the robbery.

FRIDAY, JULY 29TH, 1921.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The congratulations of their fellow citizens are being gladly extended to Messrs. F. D. Kerr, R. R. Hall and G. W. Hatton of the local Bar upon their appointment as King's Counsel in the first list of any length authorized since 1910. In all ninety-one new K.C.'s are announced, and the selection of the three local barristers is a tribute that is appreciated by their host of friends. The manner in which the new list was drawn up, the names being chosen by a special committee, consisting of Sir William Meredith, Sir William Mulock and Sir John Hoskin, representing the Bench and the Bar, makes the appointment particularly pleasing, for it removes from the conferring of the distinction any suggestion that the honor has been awarded on a political basis or in the nature of recompense for services rendered any particular political party. The whole list is a non-political one, barristers of all colors of politics having been included in the distinction.

SPORTING NEWS.

Lord Northcliffe, famous British publisher, in an interview with American newspaper men advocates the publication of plenty of sporting news and the frequent interchange between nations of items in regard to athletic contests. "It helps to create good fellowship," he declared. What is true of individuals is also true of nations is evidently Lord Northcliffe's belief. Nothing develops a community spirit quicker than interest in clean sport; no other activity brings men so closely together in the fellowship of a common interest than does the love for manly pastimes. Differences in social position, in religious belief, disappear when the home pitcher strikes out the third man with the bases full, or the home centre drives the winning goal past the visiting goal minder. A more frequent interchange of sporting news between the nations of the world could not fail to have a beneficial effect or to create the good fellowship, Lord Northcliffe any, who has been visiting his sist-mentions.

AN EXCELLENT CHOICE.

The action of the Drury Government in selecting Fred. R. Miller of Toronto, a civil engineer and a member of the Transportation Committee to succeed Hon. I. B. Lucas as member of the Provincial Hydro Commission will strengthen the confidence of the Province in the present administration at Toronto. It was feared that the Government would appoint a Commissioner whose chief qualification would be a faithful adherence to the political tenets of the U.F.O. and who would more likely than not be antagonistic to the policy that has made the Hydro movement such a huge success. Such an appointment would have injured the Government and have been an obstacle in the pathway of the Hydro enterprise, while the municipalities whose faith in the Hydro and whose zeal on behalf of the great scheme have been prominent factors in the progress that has been made would have felt that they had been betrayed. The choice of Mr. Miller, a man of unusual business ability and a clever engineer, seems to be an excellent one, and his selection is a surprise, it is none the less pleasing to the people of Ontario who believe in the Hydro movement.

A REPORT THAT GOT LOST.

A few nights ago the City Council at the request of an Aylmer street resident authorized the removal of a tree in front of the home of a neighbor of the complainant. Apparently it is only on occasions of this kind that the city fathers can be induced to pay any attention to the most important question of shade trees on the city's streets. This year's Council, of course, is no worse than any preceding board of Aldermen in this respect—the question has been shelved by them are in turn. Five years ago City Engineer Parsons, who is an enthusiast over the subject of tree planting and realizes what can be accomplished by a systematic civic policy, prepared an excellent report upon the subject, going into details at some length and making a number of suggestions in regard to thinning out trees where necessary, the elimination of shade trees of questionable value, such as the Manitoba maple, and in general advocating a closer attention to tree planting and the care of trees and a more general use of the powers that are conferred on municipal governments in this regard. The report was received, pigeon-holed—and apparently forgotten. At least no action has followed, and the enthusiasm of the Engineer and of other lovers of the beautiful has perhaps been congealed by the indifference with which the matter has been treated. And yet a walk in any section of the city shows the absolute need of an application of the policy suggested by Mr. Parsons in 1916.

TAKING CHANCES.

An autoist, driving at high speed, took the chance of any other vehicle crossing his line of advance. He guessed wrong, and an accident was the result. There are scores of instances every day in which drivers take just such chances and nothing happens; but this wild gambling with life and limb on the streets of a populous city is something which cannot be tolerated. It involves too great a risk. That risk is increasing daily as autos multiply, and there will not be safety until the last speeder is eliminated. It can be done. The police force has made a fair start in checking the men who are ready to take desperate chances, and must persevere. Such men are essentially cowards and will yield to the power of the law.

As time proceeds it becomes more and more obvious that the whole problem of auto traffic demands definite action looking to better regulation. It may be conceded that at important street intersections the system now in vogue is working well. Drivers of vehicles of all classes obey the officer on duty. But away from these areas of control there is not an hour of the day that breaches of the speed limit do not take place and other things are done which imperil life and property. It has got to stop. Safety and sanity demand it. The selfish and reckless driver must be suppressed. The streets of a busy city are no place for a man in an auto who is in a great hurry.

Five out of six autos are used for pleasure—wholesome, proper and more or less necessary recreation—but constant apprehension and frequent narrow escapes have just about made that purpose impossible of achievement. Careful and reputable citizens should not be robbed of their rights in that regard. The children who accompany them should not be endangered. During these hot days and nights thousands of children may be seen every afternoon and evening taking the air with their parents. To these little ones every cowardly speeder is a menace and a kill-joy, as is also every autoist who takes a needless chance. It won't do. The children and their parents must be safeguarded. The speeder must be put out of business, if not by exemplary fines then by imprisonment or the taking away of his right to drive at all. It is not of the slightest consequence how he is stopped so long as he is really stopped and kept stopped.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The tennis series with Australia seems to have been a net loss for Canada.

"Walkerton Old Boys Dance on the Main Street" reads a heading in a newspaper. There used to be a good reason in Walkerton for such conduct.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Speaking of short skirts, if the girls with the broom sticks and the lamp posts do not object, why should men? A man can train his eyes to higher things, but then he gets snagged on the waistless skirt. However, he can train himself to look a woman squarely in the face and not blush.—C. M. M.

A young judge had a bootlegger brought into his court recently and was in doubt as to how stiff a sentence to give him. He telephoned to one of his older colleagues for advice and the following conversation took place:

KENT'S TRIP IS SUCCESSFUL.

Chapter 24.

Between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, while I was waiting for Kent, I must have fallen asleep and slept for sometime. I had taken a magazine and propped myself up on the couch with pillows and tried to read. The anxiety of the past few weeks had exhausted me.

I must have been sleeping very soundly, for I did not hear Kent's key in the door. The first thing I knew he was bending over me and calling my name. I woke suddenly to the happy realization that he was near me.

"Oh, Kent," I cried, opening my eyes.

He greeted me with a smile, and, leaning over, pressed his lips against mine.

"What time is it? Did you get it?" I asked anxiously.

"Yes, everything is all right," he answered. He sat down on the couch beside me, and took my hand in his. "I'm going to ask a favor of you, Babs," he told me.

I waited.

"Everything went all right tonight—better than I had hoped for. Now I am going to ask you to try to trust me to carry this thing through. I want to do it alone. After it's all over, and if I am successful, then I'll tell you all about it. It is for you that I am going to do it. But just now I can't stand talking about it."

I put my other hand firmly over his.

"Kent—I do trust you. But I want you to do this thing for your own sake too. Don't you see?" I pleaded.

"Yes—but it's for you mostly that I want to do it. If I was able to feel things as you do I never would have been tempted to take the diamond in the beginning," he said. "I can't get away from the fact that I did it—that there was nothing inside of me, no conscience big enough to stop me from doing it."

"You must not talk like that, Kent," I exclaimed, a little hurt.

"But it is the truth, dear," he went on. "I am just telling you this because I want you to understand me."

"But don't you feel that it is right to return the diamond—don't you feel that yourself?" I entreated.

"Yes. I do know it is the right thing to do, but I'm not so sure that it isn't your influence over me that makes me feel that way. That is why I want to see if I can fix this thing up alone. I want to test myself."

We were silent for some few minutes.

"I began life a pagan—when I was a little fellow no one taught me things. I was brought up without respect for anything but work and power. And then I started knocking around the world by myself. I suffered a lot, and sometimes I became rebellious at work, and longed for power.—And—and that kind of a feeling is a dangerous one, and it's not so easy to get rid of once you have it."

Kent's words frightened me. I did not know just what to say to him. But love and faith could do a great many things, I knew, and I determined to be patient. If I could quicken his conscience into doing right, then I knew that his conscience was alive and still capable of feeling, even though he had lost the power to control it.

And because I did not know what to say to Kent, I just reached up and put my two arms around his neck and held him close to me. It is a very wonderful experience for a woman to feel the strength of her power over a man.

"Kent, I have a great deal of faith in you, and I'm going to believe in you and trust you," I whispered softly against his chest.

He held me for a long time in his arms.

"What time is it now, dearest?" I asked finally.

Kent pulled out his watch and held it for me to see. It was nearly 5 o'clock.

"Come, dear," I coaxed, "you are going to need these few hours of sleep."

And though there were great, dangerous issues ahead of us, we both were very happy that night.

BRITISHERS CONTINUE THEIR EXODUS ABROAD

Most of Them Going to Other Parts of the Empire.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Reports from the United States Consular Representatives in London state that during the first three months of 1921 there was an excess of outward over inward migration of British passengers, to countries other than Europe and not within the Mediterranean area, of 38,192, compared with 34,734 in the corresponding period in 1920, and 66,561 in 1913. To British North America the excess of outward passengers over inward was 10,200, to Australia and New Zealand 9,760, to the United States 12,214, and to British South Africa 3,758.

Of passengers of other nationalities 11,946 left than arrived in the United Kingdom, as against an inward excess of 3,536 in the first three months of 1920 and an outward balance of 10,926 in 1913.

The official returns show that in January-March, 1921, there were 37,998 passengers (including immigrants) of all nationalities who left the United Kingdom for the United States, 17,948 of whom were British. The aggregate shows an increase of 20,635 over the number during the first quarter in 1920, of whom 6,025 were British, but a decrease compared with the like period of 1913 of 16,109, the British proportion reaching 6,847.

To British North America, out of an aggregate of 18,450, British passengers numbered 15,179, compared with 21,973 out of 22,468, and 33,632 out of 39,086 in 1920 and 1913, respectively; while for Australia and New Zealand 12,747 passengers left the United Kingdom in 1921, contrasted with 1,038 and 23,146 in 1920 and 1913, respectively, and in each year were almost entirely of British nationality—a distinction which also applies to passengers to British South Africa, India and other British dominions and possessions.

Inward passengers (all nationalities) in 1921 were most numerous from the United States and totalled 14,291, of whom 5,734 were British; in 1920 the total number from the United States reached 13,301 (6,452 British), and in 1913 there were 9,966 British out of an aggregate of 21,853. From British North America the totals were 9,050, 7,980 and 8,477, of whom 4,979, 5,106 and 5,451 were British.

In the first quarter of 1921 the aggregate number of persons of British nationality who emigrated from the United Kingdom totalled 48,655, consisting of 22,404 males, 19,095 females and 7,166 children under 12 years of age; the foregoing figures contrast with an aggregate in the corresponding period of 1920 of 49,749 (21,921 males, 20,549 females and 7,378 children), and with 80,797 in 1913 (44,627 males, 23,806 females and 12,724 children). The greatly increased percentage of the aggregate in 1920 and 1921 compared with 1913 of female emigrants will be noted. British emigration in the March quarter of the current year was highest to the United States, to which country went 15,463 persons, as against 9,571 last year and 14,495 in 1913; British North America was the next most favored, 12,532 persons departing therefor, compared with 19,103 in 1920 and 36,950 in 1913, while to Australia and New Zealand went 11,111, against 9,636 last year and 21,881 in 1913.

British immigrants into the United Kingdom in January-March of the current year aggregated 12,374 (5,567 males, 4,567 females and 2,240 children), contrasted with 14,678 in 1920 (6,408 males, 5,302 females and 2,968 children), and 11,628 in 1913 (6,143 males, 3,567 females and 1,918 children). The largest number in the current year came from British North America, namely, 2,647, while 2,605 arrived from India, 2,091 from Australia and New Zealand and 1,026 from the United States. In each instance these totals were lower than in 1920, except immigrants from India, while compared with 1913 both the last-named country and British North America recorded an increase.

VERY LITTLE FOR HIM.

A well-known judge, who had the reputation of being a "bon vivant," was one day trying a case in which there was a dispute about a water supply. Having just partaken of a hearty luncheon he began to nod suspiciously during counsel's long-winded arguments. Suddenly the barrister thundered out:

"What we want, my lord, is water!"

"Very little in mine, please, very little in mine," cried his lordship, starting up anxiously.

Several people had the bad taste to chuckle loudly.—Spare Moments.

PLAN TO RECONSTRUCT DEPRECIATED CURRENCY

Similar to That Used By Argentine in 1899.

BUENOS AIRES, July 28.—(Associated Press).—Reconstruction of the monetary systems of those countries whose currency has depreciated, on the plan followed by Argentina in 1899, is recommended by Carlos A. Tornquist, international banker, who was Argentine delegate to the Brussels Financial Conference last year.

Adoption of this plan, he told members of the American Club at a luncheon here, had fixed a permanent value for Argentina's then fluctuating paper currency and quickly enabled the country to emerge from monetary chaos into economic stability and prosperity. Many of the leading men in Germany, he said, were already in favor of adopting a monetary reform patterned after Argentina's.

Explaining the mechanism of the plan, of which his father was the author, Senor Tornquist said under the Conversion Law of 1899 by which it was carried into effect, a value of 44 cents gold was fixed for the paper peso and the national financial institution which the law created, was authorized to deliver one paper peso in exchange for that sum in gold and vice versa. The value, he said, was fixed very much below par, because the depreciation of the paper money had become a permanent one and because values had become adjusted to the depreciation, "that is to say, that, apart from the fluctuations liable to be produced by abnormal causes, the real value of the paper peso measured in gold was 44 cents."

The public immediately responded to the law, having confidence in the plan, with the result that the value of the paper peso became more and more stable and it ceased completely to fluctuate even when the country had obtained only a modest stock of gold. This stock has constantly increased, from barely $3,000 in 1902, $00,000,000 in 1905, to $470,000,000 in the present day. Uncovered circulation of 293,000,000 paper pesos was assimilated and placed on a parity with the emissions subsequently made on gold basis. Today, he said, Argentina had a paper circulation of about 1,350,000,000 pesos backed by a metallic guarantee, which, according to the rate established by the law, amounts to 80 per cent.

"I believe," he continued, "that the existence of such a high proportion of yellow metal gives me the right to affirm that Argentine money is today among the soundest in the whole world."

The result had been that from the time of the sanction of the law, foreign capital had flowed into the country on a large scale, production multiplied, commerce attained extraordinary proportions, immigration increased. "until Argentine production today is one of the essential factors in the world's markets in providing foodstuffs for mankind and raw materials for manufacturers."

Senor Tornquist advocated as the first remedy for the European economic disorder, adherence to the recommendations of the Brussels conference for strictest economy, suppression of subsidies and economic barriers, the reduction of armament expenditures and suppression of unproductive works and even certain productive.

"If they will follow these sound recommendations from the conference of Brussels," he continued, "it is my opinion that many countries will in a relatively short space of time, be able to place themselves in a normal economic condition, under which their production and consumption will be maintained in a proportion permitting the liquidation of the obligations contracted by reason of the war. Then, in my opinion, will be the time for these nations to begin to think of readjusting their monetary systems.

"It does not appear to me possible to effect this reconstruction of monetary systems by means of disinflation, for this would be a slow process and would not do away with the fluctuations in the value of money; and, worse still, it would impose completely unnecessary sacrifices upon industry, commerce and production.

"On the other hand, I consider the Argentine example perfectly feasible for many countries. Our conversion law, its origin, its result, its economic effects, I consider a subject of great importance and great pratical possibilities for many countries, and I think the sooner, and the more, your country does in this direction, in view of its enormous moral and material influence in all present world problems, the better it will be."

The Ideal Laxative for Children

Mothers, give the little ones Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin for constipation. Acts mildly and gently. Formula on the package.

THE alert mother, ever anxious to find something better for her children's health, will interest herself in learning what is best to give them when they are constipated, have a headache, cold or fever, are bilious or dyspeptic. It stands to reason that the remedy that might be suitable for you, at your age, might be too drastic for a child.

By all means do what you can to regulate the diet, giving preference to the light, easily digested foods. But when diet fails you will have to help Nature with medicine. It would then be well for you to avoid the harsher cathartics and physics, castor oil, calomel and such, even if disguised in tablets or pills, for they weaken the child and make it irritable.

A better plan is to give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts mildly and gently and does not gripe or weaken. It has the unusual merit of being safe for the tiniest baby yet equally effective for grownups. The formula is plainly on the package, and a sixty-cent bottle is sufficient to last an average family many months.

There is nothing better or safer than Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin for stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and as it contains no narcotics or mercurials, mothers can feel safe in giving it to any member of the family needing a constipation medicine. It is syrupy and delightfully pleasant to take. It must meet the taste of the majority, for last year over eight million bottles were bought in drug stores, the largest sale of the kind in the world.

Buy a sixty-cent bottle today with the understanding that if for any reason it does not do exactly as claimed your money will be refunded. Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin has been on sale in drug stores for thirty years so you would not be experimenting with anything new.

Try It FREE

There are heads of families who will want to prove to their own satisfaction that my Laxative Syrup Pepsin is as effective in constipation, as mild and gentle in action, as pleasant-tasting and safe, as I claim. Let such write me for a sample. It will be sent postpaid. Simply say, "Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 19 Front St., Bridgeburg, Ont.: Send a free trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin to—" and give your name and address. I will see that the rest is attended to promptly.

YACHTS.

Sad, very sad, is the earthly lacht
Of an ordinary goof in a summer hacht;
He curses his luck, for he is nacht
The owner of a handsome pleasure yacht.

One of the great causes of unrest among the masses these sap-running days is the frequent appearance in the newspapers of such items as this:

"The Ukeliogrehsoy III., Jay Coddington Herringbilt's new yacht, sailed yesterday with a merry party bound for no place in particular and due to arrive there whenever they darn please. The Ukeliogrehsoy III. is 250 feet long and equipped with all the comforts of home. There is a swimming pool, garage and wine cellar aboard. She has two Winton-Deisel engines of 350 horse-power each and has a guaranteed speed of twenty-two knots. Mr. Herringbilt will spend the summer cruising hither and thither and spending a few weeks at both places."

When you are in a hot office, slowing shedding your vitality, struggling to get your mind on your work, and wondering if some practical joker hasn't put a heating system in your Palm Beach suit there is nothing that makes you feel so vicious toward the social system as this.

Any revolutionist who will come out on a platform of yachts for all, guaranteeing at least one to a person, can sweep the country at any time between now and September 1.

There should be enough yachts to go around. President Harding ignored the matter entirely in his platform and has done nothing about it since. It seems to us the time is ripe for a third party, a yachting party. If somebody will give us a yacht we will start it.

Of course there are yachts and yachts. Some yachts are less yachts than others. No discriminating person should even consider a yacht less than 150 feet long. That much length is necessary for drinking space alone. The width is not so important (width never shows in the newspaper photographs anyhow); the width of a yacht depends much on the width of the person for whom it is designed. The best way is to go to a yacht basin, be measured by a yacht tailor and have the yacht fitted to you.

The color of a yacht is a matter of choice, but white is best unless you have to wash it yourself; then a mud color is best.

After being fitted to a yacht and getting the right color tone, the next thing is to pick a name. It must be a name that doesn't mean anything. The best way is to jot down a dozen names from Pullman cars, separate the letters, throw them into a hat, shake them up, and draw fifteen, tacking them on to the side of a yacht in the order drawn. Vincent Astor's new yacht was named that way, obviously. It is called the Nourmahai. Spelled backward, Iahamroun, it is equally appealing.

Some noted yachtsmen change the names at each port. Mr. Stillman failed to do this, and will never forgive himself.

A yacht should have two engines, and, if possible, three or four, in reserve. You never can tell how any one engine may feel about taking orders. It should also have brass railing all around the edge and all around the saloons. Good yachts have all sorts of saloons—dining saloons, drinking saloons, sobering up saloons, and staying-that-way-continually saloons.

It isn't so much sailing as what you sail on. The best yachts this season are getting eighteen to twenty-two knots to a quart. The passengers are getting even more than that.

It is a matter of revolutions per minute. The propeller should make that many under full headway; so should the guests if the owner is liberal with his private stock.

One striking note is being shown in yacht designs this year; all cabin doors are being made without keyholes. American millionaires are very insistent upon this point. And there is a very sudden demand for stewards and crews who are blind in at least one eye.

DID WORK TWICE FOR HIM, HE SAYS

LETRIS ENTHUSIASTIC IN HIS PRAISE OF TANLAS—GLAD TO RECOMMEND IT.

"Well, I don't know what it is, but there's something about Tanlac that certainly does the work," said A. Letris, of 184 Queen street, north, Hamilton, Ont. Mr. Letris is a well-known printer, and has been with the Grimes Printing Company for nine years.

"Yes, sir, I can recommend Tanlac, for it has straightened me out twice, and I believe it will help anyone else who tries it. Two years ago I took the medicine and it fixed me up in fine shape, and I felt good until a little while back when I commenced to feel run down. I got to where I just had to drive myself at my work, and as my appetite was gone, I seemed to go down hill all the time instead of getting better.

"Well, I got me some Tanlac, and it wasn't long until my appetite had a new start. I have just finished my second bottle now and I can eat anything at any time without its hurting me. That tired feeling is gone and I feel full of energy all the time. Tanac is all that is claimed for it, and it certainly is the medicine for me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and leading druggists everywhere.

PELLAGRA CAUSES OVER 5,000 DEATHS

Unofficial Reports in U.S. Run as High as Ten Thousand.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(United Press).—A survey of conditions in the South was ordered today by the Red Cross following a conference with the United States Public Health Service. As soon as the needs of the pellagra-ridden territory are determined, the two organizations will rush food, medicine and doctors, Surgeon General Cumming of the Health Service and Dr. Livingstone Farrand, President of the Red Cross, stated.

Unofficial reports to both organizations place the number of sufferers at more than 100,000. Fatalities will run between 5,000 and 10,000 the Health Service was told.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

SWIM IN STREETS OF GREENWICH VILLAGE

Bohemian Centre Takes Nocturnal Possession of Children's Pool.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Greenwich Village, local centre for everything that is different in art, literature, music, dancing and dress, has brought forth another innovation. This time it is the street swimming party.

Several hundred adult villagers christened last night with delighted whoops and gurgles, a swimming pool constructed in the middle of West 10th street. The pool, six feet wide, 14 feet long and 5 feet deep, was built by firemen of engine company No. 18 for children in the neighborhood, but the grown-ups—if people ever grow up in the village—lost no time in trying it out under Fire Chief Kenlon's ruling that adults would be permitted to use the Fire Department baths after the kiddies got through at nine o'clock in the evening.

Costumes ranged all the way from regular bathing suits to whatever some of the bathers happened to have on when they sighted the pool.

Christening of the street swimming pool keeps the village just one jump ahead of other sections of New York, where the best adults can boast is the block shower party—and just inaugurated under Chief Kenlon's ruling.

"NATURE" BATHERS OFFEND.

Prosecutor is Asked to Act in Case of Jersey Colony.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., July 29.—Complaints that a "back-to-nature" colony of both young people and old had been living a little too close to nature, in that they sought relief from the hot weather by swimming in the Passaic River in scanty attire, have been received by Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield of Union County, and by him referred to Posecutor A. M. Beekman of Somerset County. Mr. Beekman has jurisdiction over the isolated spot where the miscellaneous bathers, last Sunday, attracted many motorists to the river bank to gaze in astonishment on the disporting colonists.

LLOYD GEORGE IRKS CHURCHMEN WITH HIS NO-POLITICS WARNING

Church Leaders Claim Right to Enter Politics.

LONDON, July 28.—(Associated Press). — Prime Minister Lloyd George has aroused the ire of leading churchmen by telling them that they ought to keep out of politics.

The occasion was the General Assembly of Welsh Calvinistic Methodists at Portmadoc, Wales, when the Premier delivered an address, in the course of which he complained of public utterances by highly placed divines at church conferences and elsewhere on questions of the day, such as Ireland and the industrial unrest, which, he asserted, "they were not in the least competent to discuss." He stigmatized their observations as "interferences in the task of government, which, if followed, are replete with mischief both to the church and to the state."

This indictment has aroused a storm of protest and rebuke among Mr. Lloyd George's former colleagues in the Free Churches, and resolutions have been passed at various evangelical council meetings strongly dissenting from the Prime Minister's attitude.

Dr. John Clifford, the veteran Baptist leader, asserts that the Premier's doctrine is contrary to his own, which is that "the churches should take such action as to secure the application of the principles of the Gospel of Christ to the political conditions of the world."

More outspoken is the Rev. H. J. Taylor, a Primitive Methodist leader, who says: "The Premier declares that the business of the church and his ministers is to mind their own job. Their job is to demand that the Premier should practise religion in the law of the land."

From the pulpit of St. Paul's, Covent Garden, the Bishop of Chelmsford flatly told the Premier that he wouldn't accept his rulings.

"If he had said the church must not interfere in party politics, we might be agreed; but that is very different to politics," the Bishop said. "The Government touches human life at every point, and the church cannot agree to refrain from expressing her opinion upon that which touches all her members.

"We are going to make continuous war upon all that poisons the atmosphere," continued the Bishop. "We intend to have our politics impregnated with the right spirit—that of Christianity."

ALGONQUIN HOTEL, July 29.—Who could resist a dip in the briny deep to-day when the water was 75 degrees above. No place in town was more popular after the strenuous morning on the links. The golfers appreciated the bracing influence of the sea waters.

G. A. BORLAND TRYING TO STAY ORDER FOR REMOVAL OF TREE

AND AYLMER STREET NEIGHBORS ARE APPREHENSIVE LEST SAME REGULATION MAY BE APPLIED TO SOME OF THEIR TREES AT THE REQUEST OF OTHER PERSONS.

An interesting question is involved in the Council's order, made at the request of James Lewis, 579 Aylmer street, giving his next-door neighbor, G. A. Borland, living at 581 Aylmer street, ten days' notice that a tree in front of his property is to be removed. Other residents in the vicinity of Mayor McIntyre's home at the corner of Aylmer and London streets have become considerably perturbed over this action, fearing that in similar circumstances some of their trees may be cut down upon casual request of persons living elsewhere.

The tree which has been doomed by the Council is close to the border line between the Borland and Lewis houses. At one time Mr. Lewis owned a string of houses in that block, and it is understood planted the trees which he has lately been thinning out in order that the rest may have a better chance to grow as they should. Working from the south up the street toward the Borland lot, Mr. Lewis eliminated certain trees, and the next one to go, according to his plan, is in front of Mr. Borland's lot. This tree is eighteen feet from its nearest fellow on one side and fifteen feet from the next tree on the other side. In other words, these three trees are too close together, and, according to both the Provincial statute and the city's by-law, one of them should come out. It is on this ground that Mr. Lewis approached the Council for the permission which it is presumed Mr. Borland had refused. The tree in question is eighteen feet from nearest tree on the Borland lot and fifteen feet from its nearest neighbor on the Lewis lot. Therefor, if it is taken out there will be thirty-three feet between the remaining two trees, one in front of each property.

Mr. Borland is Busy.

Mr. Borland has stated that if he has any rights in this matter he will certainly defend them, and at the same time expressed the intention of urging the Council to reconsider their resolution. However, the ten days will be up on Sunday and when Mr. Borland goes home to lunch on Monday he may find nothing left of his tree but a stump. This, however, is unlikely, as the execution must be supervised by the City Engineer, who knows of Mr. Borland's efforts to nullify the order.

It was Mr. Parsons who recommended the removal of this tree after examining the locality.

Mr. Parsons' Statement.

"I would never order the removal of a tree unless I considered it absolutely necessary," said Mr. Parsons, who is a member of the Horticultural Society and in a way has made a special study of trees, specially the best varieties for city purposes. To The Examiner he pointed out that the Tree Planting Act required trees to be at least thirty feet apart, and the city's bylaw required a space of at least 25 feet. Mr. Parsons' position is therefor doubly bulwarked. He further stated that the removal of other trees by Mr. Lewis had made an improvement that would impress even the average person. The tree which Mr. Lewis now wants removed is so close to those next to it that the three of them are crowded and cramped together, choking each other as it were. A space of twenty-five or thirty feet allows sufficient room for the trees to develop naturally and gracefully.

Hundred Should Go.

Mr. Parsons declared that there were hundreds of trees throughout the city which could be dispensed with to the benefit of the others that would be thus given breathing space and "elbow room." In 1916 he had prepared a special report, running to eight type-written pages, dealing fairly comprehensively with the proper planting and trimming of trees in the city. He wasn't certain now whether the Council had actually read the report, but in any event they had not acted upon it. If the superfluous trees in crowded patches were cut out and others planted at least in the same number of streets that are now bare of foliage a striking improvement of the city's appearance would have been already accomplished. But the report is tucked away in the archives somewhere at the City Hall until some Council produces enough nature-lovers to start a real effort toward the "city beautiful" by the simple means of properly planting and caring for the trees on the streets.

The Service.

Rev. MacKenzie spoke eloquently on the comfort of God's word in times of sorrow and referred to St. John, 14. "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in Me . . . . peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

From Revelations, 21, Rev. MacKenzie offered comfort to the family and friends, "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea.

"And I, John, saw the Holy City, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.

"And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, 'Behold the tabernacle of God is with men, and He will dwell with them, and they shall be His people, and God Himself shall be with them, and be their God.

"'And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away.'"

Rev. MacKenzie dwelt on the power of comfort, cheer and inspiration of God's word when mourning the loss of some dear one. At times like these, said Rev. MacKenzie, the supreme necessity of association with God was recognized. Deeds of time could not dissolve it, and on this occasion, he said, he felt they were paying their last respects to one who had held such an association.

Broken Down System Faces Resumption of British Trade.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—According to a statement appearing in a recent number of the Soviet journal Pravda, a translation of which was forwarded here by U. S. Consular agents, the number of commercial steamships in possession of the Soviet Russian Government on March 1, 1921, was as follows:

In Baltic Sea ports, 78; in the Caspian Sea, 238; in the White Sea, 329; in the Black Sea, 222; on the Caucasian Coast, 58; in Crimean ports, 69; in the Sea of Azov, 62—total, 1,056. The article further states that the Soviet Government possesses 946 sailing vessels, of which five are in the Baltic.

Of 732 steam vessels in use at present, only 566 are in fit condition. Owing to lack of material and facilities, as well as fuel, Soviet docks are unable to handle the situation, and the Government is therefore greatly interested in contracting for repair work in different ports, especially those of the Baltic Sea — Reval, Riga, Libau, Copenhagen and Kiel.

From an official Soviet source it is learned that as late as May 14 steamships lying in the ports of the Black Sea were in an especially poor condition, almost all their engines being completely destroyed. In a report of May 5 to the Soviet Institution for Economic Research, it was stated that the Soviet Government has a total of 98 ships for coast traffic, and that the industry shows a general decrease in skilled workmen, lack of laborers, and lessened efficiency.

In anticipation of trade following the commercial agreement with Great Britain, the Soviet Government has been making efforts to put a few ports into condition for entrance of foreign shipping.

On May 1, Golos Rossii, published in Berlin, reported the situation not up to expectation. The port of Petrograd was in a very bad condition, with mechanical equipment not working, the technical personnel lacking, and auxiliary vessels disappeared. Mine sweeping, according to Krasnaya Gazette, was expected to begin May 15. By May 21, according to Latest News (Paris), only one steamer had sailed from the port.

In the Black Sea port of Odessa the elevated "estokada" for car-to-ship loading was taken down by the Bolsheviki and used as fuel. Early in the year the Soviet Government declared Nikolaev and Novorossisk to be first and second ports, respectively, for entrance of foreign vessels.

THE GALAXY, OR MILKY WAY.

This is a story of the "Milky Way"—not that great luminous band which nightly stretches across the heavens from horizon to horizon, but of that "way" to health, vigor, long life and food delight, constructed mainly of that clear white mixture of Nature's body and brain stimulating secrets commonly ycleped "milk." Even as the "Galaxy"—the scientific name for the "Milky Way" of astronomy—is composed entirely of light rays from a collection of illuminative celestial bodies, so is the "Milky Way" of gastronomy composed of terrestrial efficacy for reflecting in human kind those luminous rays of perfect health without which life has no real value.

But our "Milky Way" of living should be travelled wisely and economically, in perfect knowledge of how to most advantageously utilize milk—a food than which there is none other yet discovered so evenly and nutritiously balanced. Although comparatively cheap and plentiful, still it is really too precious to be wasted; and as these hot days when exhausted Nature calls for diet and refreshment unusually strengthening and animating, the following hints as to the varied possibilities of milk for providing pleasurable eating and altogether delectable drinking, in response to Nature's demands, are gleaned from the pen of Anne Lewis Pierce, Director, Tribune Institute:

Where Science and Food Pleasure Meet.

If you are one of those who "love milk just so, warm from the cow or cold from the icebox, the food problem is a simple one, for bread and milk, graham crackers and milk, half and half, if you prefer, and a fruit for dessert is a model summer meal for mid-day. But if you don't like the taste of it, regardless of how fully you may be convinced of its vitamine value and its perfection as a balanced food, and you just cannot make it "go down," there are still multitudes of ways to encompass the milk and the difficulty and enjoy the doing of it.

"An ice cream soda," with its heavy, sweet syrup and coldness, is no preparation for an afternoon's work, especially if it is head work, not exercise. But a milk shake with just enough syrup to flavor it is quite another matter. A frosted milk shake, a Broadway (coffee and chocolate mixed), with or without an egg, and a sandwich or a saltine will go down easily when nothing else will. And then if you supplement this with some fruit, eaten out of doors in the park or even at an open window, and a little quiet or a glance at a book that takes you far away from work, and you have an ideal summer luncheon that cannot be equalled in crowded cafeteria or hotel for many times the price. Relaxation and a light, nourishing, easily digested food is the rule for the summer luncheon.

Why "Bread and Milk" Are Siamese Twins.

The malted milks again add nourishment to the liquid lunch, and those who like buttermilk or the fermented milks have the satisfaction of knowing that they are doing the very best thing for their intestinal tracts that could be done. And it is no small assurance, that, in the summer season.

A word about the sandwiches that go with the milk drink. Cheese sandwiches (American or Swiss), peanut butter with a lettuce leaf and a bit of mayonnaise, olive and lettuce sandwich for piquancy, a combination sandwich of Swiss cheese and a thin slice of ham or tongue with lettuce and either French mustard, mayonnaise or chili sauce—all are among the sandwiches that give real backbone and zest to this light lunch and keep it from being cloying. All milk lacks is the starchy factor, and bread supplies it.

Other ways of getting your quota of milk, if you do not relish it straight, are in the vegtable puree soups. Tomato bisque, and the asparagus, pea, celery and clam soups, made with milk, are delicious and very good for the hurrying, scurrying American of today with his famous penchant for drowning his defenseless digestive juices in cold beverages of every sort and eating on the run.

The soup need not be scalding, only pleasantly warm, and if your philosophy is only equal to the test you will discover that the after effects are more cooling, if anything, than only cold foods. Made from pureed fresh vegetables we know nothing more appetizing than these milk soups, served with crisp crackers.

On Eating Ice Cream.

Ice cream, too, is a food. Did you ever eat it as such and try serving bread and butter with it, or crackers instead of heavy cake If not, you have no idea how good it is and how much more you enjoy the flavor of the cream itself than when served with another sweet. Plain creams (custard, vanilla or even chocolate and pistache) are especially good with fresh fruit sauces—not sugar syrups—and make a magnified, glorified sundae that is a hot weather luncheon if served generously with bread and butter or wafers.

We venture the theory that an abundant serving of two things, rather than a mixture of several, makes a more digestible and simpler luncheon for warm weather. There are also the ice-cold, creamy rice custards which sound merely "hygienic," but are really delicious if well made. And a cold baked custard is always the last word in a wholesome, delicious delicacy.

We have stoutly maintained for many years that an ice cream should not be served at the end of a heavy meal, both because it adds too many calories to the ration and because its coldness discourages digestion.

To be appreciated and to do you the most good the best way to serve ice cream is for luncheon, at 4 o'clock of a hot afternoon or in the evening, either with a light supper or later on. The delicate bitter almond flavor of pistachio cream and its green color make it one of the most refreshing varieties to serve with the fruit sauces.

Try chocolate ice cream either with a coffee or with a crushed strawberry or raspberry sauce, and set it with deliberation and crisp wafers or very plain sponge cake. You may find that you have never really enjoyed ice cream before.

The luncheon subject is just as important to the housekeeper, with or without children, as it is to the business man or woman. It is a mistake to "go on your nerve," because it is too warm or you are too tired or too busy to eat. Your friends or associates will suffer from your nerve strain and irritability and you will suffer temporarily from undernutrition, and finally from overeating when the deferred mealtime comes.

So when in doubt, say milk—but remember that milk may be consumed in many forms, liquid and solid, and have a little imagination about it.

A Read Food Drink.

By the way, iced chocolate is a neglected food drink based on milk. Make a thick chocolate and put it in the icebox so that you will not need to dilute it too much in icing it. Fill the glass two-thirds with the cold chocolate, add cold milk and a single piece of ice when served, and top with whipped cream. This will be quite different from the usual watery beverage which you may have thought was iced chocolate.

Never do we cease to wonder that a perfect food like milk can be 85 per cent. water. It is not the food you eat, but the food the body utilizes that gives you strength, rebuilds and vitalizes the functioning organs. A concentrated ration is not suited to sedentary people or summer conditions. You get protein (3 to 4 per cent.), fat (4 to 6 per cent.), milk sugars (about 5 per cent.) and valuable minerals (0.7 per cent.), all in the most digestible form, from your glass of milk—everything but the starches which your sandwich or bread and butter supply.

The Cream of the Matter.

Of course, the acme of milk is cream, as the Irish might say. Cream is concentrated milk, with a little less of all other food ingredients than the whole milk, but about 18 per cent. of fat—at least three times as much as the milk itself. Whipping cream may have 46 per cent. of fat and it must have at least 30 per cent. to be legal.

Whether we say "the cream of a joke" or the "cream of a community" we mean the best of it—what rises to the top—and when a fact becomes a figure of speech in this way it means that it is an overwhelming universally accepted truth.

Many people deny themselves cream on the score of economy and spend just as much or more for foods that do not add nearly so much quality to the menu. Try skimping somewhere else and have cream for coffee and fresh fruits, and a little added to fresh vegetables, such as new peas, carrots, lima beans and cream sauces for scalloped dishes (potatoes, fish and souffles).

The Best Rises To The Top.

The difference between real cream and a white sauce thickened with flour and insufficiently cooked is one that the most uncultivated taste can detect, for cream gives a texture that even butter and milk cannot supply. A cream sauce thickened with egg yolk is the apotheosis of a Newburg, and the last word in cream soups is spoken by using some of the fine canned soups on the market and thinning them with cream. We know of no way in which the acme of quality and the least trouble can be so surely yoked together. To serve a few people the cost is not prohibitive. Try what cream will do to the quality of your meal and see if the price is not warranted.

And when it comes to vitamine value, you know that butter fat is without a peer as a source of the vitamine that builds or urges on the other body functions to do their duty in this regard.

A toast in milk to health and prosperity. Prohibition does not touch it; it will encourage the farmer, and your body will be grateful to you for giving it refreshment and nourishment and building materials in such easily used form in warm weather. Our digestive apparatus appreciates a vacation as well as our minds.

Some people think that others have no right to think as they please.

Kessock, Sask.—"My mother has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and upon learning of my troubles advised me to try it, as I seemed all run down after the flu and had leucorrhoea very bad. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and used the Sanitive Wash also Dr. Brown's Capsules and Prescription and am much better in every way. I am willing for you to use my letter as a testimonial as I recommend your medicines." — Mrs. IRENE NELSON, Kessock, Sask.

It is not always in business that a woman is forced to give up her work on account of ill health. It is quite as often the woman who does her own work at home, When backaches and headaches drive out all ambition, when that bearing-down sensation attacks you, when you are nervous and blue, the one great help for such ailments is Lydia E. ASLEEP AT WHEEL RUNS INTO POLE

BERT CALDWELL BADLY INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE SMASH.

TORONTO, July 28.—Bert Caldwell of 392 Roncesvalles avenue, well known in Toronto as a vocalist, was badly injured near Oakville, at 7 o'clock yesterday morning when his car struck an electric light pole beside the Toronto-Hamilton Highway. He is now in the Toronto General Hospital suffering from a dislocation of the right knee, a laceration of the left knee and other bruises. His passenger, Harold Reeves of 300 Roncesvalles avenue, is more seriously injured. He had a bad fracture of the right thigh, a laceration of the left arm and other minor injuries.

The accident occurred in front of Major Wm. Eaton's farm, about a mile and a half east of Oakville. The car, Ford sedan, was badly smashed by the force of the collision with the wooden pole, which, although close to 10 inches thick, was broken off by the impact.

Car Seen to "Wobble".

F. B. Henry, Chief Higway Constable of Oakville, who was notified of the accident and took charge of the matter in the absence of Chief Constable Kerr, said that Mr. Caldwell stated the accident was due to his having momentarily fallen asleep at the wheel.

It is thought that the strain of driving all night told on Mr. Caldwell, and that he either dozed off for a few seconds or else relaxed his vigilance long enough for the car to swerve into the pole.

Mr. Caldwell was well known in Peterboro having appeared here on several occasions. Mr. Caldwell was billed to lead the Community singing on Peterboro's Civic Holiday, August 8th but the accident may prevent him from coming.

FARMERS OFFER RAINMAKER $3,000 AN INCH FOR A SHOWER

MILWAUKEE, July 29. — Edward C. Pomeroning, President of the Wisconsin Society of Equity, on Tuesday, telegraphed F. F. Ratcliffe, of Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, to "make it rain in Wisconsin, and we will pay $3000 an inch for the use of your rainmaker."

The society represents 3500 Wisconsin farmers. Ratcliffe, Secretary of the Medicine Hat Agricultural Association Society, induced C. M. Hatfield, rain maker of California to go to the Medicine Hat district, where the farmers were badly in need of rain. They offered him $2,000 an inch if it would pour within a specified time. Hatfield made $8,000 when 4.24 inches fell.

Hatfield has made rain for the farmers in three counties in Washington State, where he was paid $3,000 an inch. His rain making equipment consists of a huge tank twenty feet high in which Hatfield brews a mystic chemical mixture which, he says, opens up the clouds.

MASONS ENJOYED OUTING

(By F. H. DOBBIN.)

The annual is over. Der tag has come and gone. The Masonic fraternity has held its yearly outing. Held it well and good. Each succeeding occasion eclipses the preceding one by just so much of divertment and effrontery as mind can devise. For the party has to be entertained and make its own entertainment. This time imported diversion was provided in the shape of the bagpipes, perpetrated by Jack Smith. Having the steamer, the river and the lake to himself, Smith made the welkin ring. Men who would steer away from a piano and try from a phonograph just sat about and drank in the wierd cadences that Smith wrung from his beloved and decorated pipes. Coming back up the river, with the searchlight suppressed and Smith astraddle of the apex of the bow of the boat and the pipes in violent action, cottagers rushed outdoors to see what was coming. It was wholly fine. Of course, these were Masonic pipes, which accounts for excellence.

The congregation went ashore at Hiawatha and camped on historic ground. Took possession of the end of the road bed of the old, very old, Cobourg and Peterborough railway. It is there, good and fast. Just now visitors who took the field over are never able to tell whether the protuberances are the work of Nature or of man. Time heals a scar. And when a man wants filling for a hole in the yard he takes his little barrow and a shovel and appropriates what is needed.

The Sports.

The sports were the main thing. This chronicle is written that others may see how these things are done by men who have an eye and a purpose single to giving the worth of one's money. In addition, to the excellent catering that Bro. Thos. Hooper always provides. None of your cafeteria snatches, but a large plenty, laid out on a capacious plate, trimmed with eatable trimmings—in fact, a $1.75 lunch box exposed. Followed with ice cream and a delicious pie and washed down with lashous of hot coffee. My! Say, some supper! Well, yes.

We mentioned improvements. This time it was a real Soviet, following along the best Russian lines as to authority and perogative. For all events there had to be entries. The function of the Soviet was to see that such was forthcoming. Those that seated themselves along the edge of the old road-bed and fancied that they would sit there and criticize and make rude remarks were presently disenchanted. The Soviet, led by Ross Dobbin, hauled them out, stood them up and brought them to the starting line, meek, docile and animated. That's efficiency. There wasn't a tired business man on the ground ten minutes after the Soviet got into action. And this brings us to the matter of baseball. And there is only room in this paper and its crowded columns for the briefest mention. Four concussions followed. A team from the Chapter were beat out by the Blue. Score, 13 to 3. The Shriners vs. Preceptory with score of 6 to 4. The Railbirds vs. Blues, of which there were many, the Blues winning by 6 to 0. Then Royal Arthur Lodge raked up a team and set it at the Chapter, winning and whaling the Chapter by 6 to 2. Glory enough for one day.

Batteries for the first game were: Chapter, Chas. Thornton and Angus Richardson; Blues, G. R. Langley and Alex. Darling. Batteries for Shriners, Chris. Graham and Carl Webber; Preceptory, Ross Dobbin and S. H. Holden. Batteries for Railbirds, Art. Metheral and A. L. Killaly.

Now there were features about this baseball movement that should be recorded. One of the teams had Webber, the druggist, as pitcher. Webber plays all sports well, and baseball like a professional. His pitching is expensive—to the other side. Just like Geo. Haley, who was placed on one team and heaved for both and didn't find it out until he was hauled from the field and told to be good. Doc. Smith of Lakefield was selected as umpire, on the ground that Lakefield men are always fair and impartial. Walter Stocker claimed that his claim should be considered, but he was chased from the box as being prejudiced. Doc. Smith got along for a time, being, as suggested, fair. This did not please the Soviet. He was reasoned with and told that Royal Arthur simply had to win. How it should win was left entirely with umpire. It was assumed that he knew the niceties of the position. Would he pay attention? He would.

Presently came a decision that was absolutely fair. Then fell the Soviet. The umpire was seized, roped, hog-tied and surrounded and hurried to the edge of the lake for instant immersion and only rescued by a hastily-got-together brigade which wanted to see unfair play. In the meantime Chris. Graham announced, in his best Empress voice, that Doc. Smith would continue to umpire—while he lived.

Tug-of-War.

The tug-of-war provided hostilities. Ten men on a side, Peterborough Lodge vs. Corinthian Lodge. The prowess of these teams had been a matter of discussion all winter. The first pull, with Wells Fraser as clerk of the works, was not satisfactory. One team had to pull uphill. This was disgusting. So the factions adjourned to the old road-bed to find a level spot. Presently an enquiring friend discovered a place where the natives had pulled out the old ties for firewood, leaving excellent cavaties—no craters—in which to get a foot hold.

Getting into line, the pull was on. It is an open question whether the rope was aged and had become tired or that some designing person had nicked the rope, but it broke. Twenty men went sprawling, and amidst laughter arose and asked the other man how the rear elevation of his white pants looked. The tidings were not reassuring. In the midst of a wordy dispute Frank Kerr came along, wearing his new K.C. degree and a bad hat and said that the whole thing was ultra vires, and that if Chief Pandash was well advised he'd come down and turn the whole crowd off the reservation. The Chief's business is to be judicial and to suppress violence. Two pulls more, with breaks in the enfeebled rope, and it was decided to call it a day and a draw.

The Races.

The races came on. And with them the fine work of the Soviet. No entries. That would be attended to. Take the case of the race for bald-headed men. No entries. The Soviet went about, lifted a hat, found evidences of baldness or future baldity and haled the squirming culprit to the starting line. Few Masons are really bald. Their domestic affairs are so conducted that there is seldom occasion for losing hair by pulling. But, eighteen men were lined up who were accused of premature baldness. Walter Stocker had indiscreetly gotten his dome trimmed, sand-papered and varnished and was ruled out on the ground of provocative baldity. That is, Walter could not manufacture an entry. The winners in this race are known to fame.

In deference to social observances the fat men's race was changed to stout men's race. No Masons are fat. Several are stout. That was the reason that Bob Hicks came to the scratch, ran, won out, and gained applause as making a fine run at the pools and on the turf. The prize list and prizes show the winners. Eighteen entries, ranging from visible to imperceptible stoutness.

The race for married men brought in a full field. A few were just married and several were ruled out on the ground that they were only near married, but told to go on and join up. Adjt. Bunton excelled in this contest, making amazing speed, and casting a shoe, losing his heel but saving his sole. The heel was retrieved and welted on with a stone. This race was termed the race for Henpecked Husbands.

The Boot Race is a contrivance. The contestants discarded boots, piled them in a heap, went back to the starting line and the Soviet calmly proceeded to tie the boots together and mix them all up. Len Frazer was first to the pile. He threw half-dozen pairs into the next field, and in the end found that his own boots were with the lot so bestowed. Getting the boots assorted and fitted on was a work of some time. The winner was applauded.

The Eats.

The ceremonies were disturbed by the call to supper. On the boat this was eaten, and having time on its hands, a syndicate composed of John Smith, wearing the bagpipes, Adjt. Bunton, John Jary, and others, willing and able, borrowed a washtub and paraded the boat from stem to gudgeon, soliciting alms for the benefit of the Fresh Air Fund for the kids at Jackson Park. The collection was a success. It must have been the bagpipes. One can now understand how men become desperate when the pipes come into action. All shelled out. Silver resounded as it fell into the pan. An occasional bill fluttered down to add its value. When the seance was closed and the pipes tired, the sum amounted to $30.31. This will be handed to the committee with all despatch. For immediate expenditure. There is always money in the country, when the proper inducements are offered.

The prizes—premiums, someone termed them—were presented with due ceremony. Boxes of cigars were the awards in the ball games. The boxes were opened and sampled. Also in the tug-of-war. Doc. Smith and Doc. Marshall, having won out in the boot race, were given high-class spinning tops. Robert Hicks, stout man's race, had a very fine, though primitive, milk bottle. Len Frazer and Dr. Wood each gained what Chris Graham called fur-lined frying-pans. In the bald-headed race, W. Rose gained a bathing cap and Jas. Hardie a hair brush. Adjt. Bunton divided his prize with the crowd, not being a smoker. Other prizes for contestants were equally inappropriate.

On leaving the boat the inmates formed in line of one hundred and twenty men, and solemnly marched to the Exhibition Grounds, headed, of course, by Bro. Smith and the pipes, to spend what money had been earned and left unexpended. And which meritorious proceeding closed a powerful day.

Jump from Bed in Morning and Drink Hot Water

Tells why everyone should drink hot water each morning before breakfast.

To see the healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside bathing every morning for a week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges or whose skin is sallow or pallid, that one week of inside bathing will have them looking and feeling better every way.

5,300,000 PAY U.S. INCOME TAX.

Increase Totals Almost Million Over Preceding Year.

(By RALPH F. COUCH, United Press Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Nearly 1,000,000 persons a year are pushing themselves into the group with incomes large enough to compel payment of Federal income taxes, reports of the Internal Revenue Bureau yesterday showed.

Despite world-wide economic depression the financial budget of the average American family is increasing.

Approximately five and one-third million men and women contributed a part of their annual earnings to the Government in the last taxable year for which official reports are available at the Internal Revenue Bureau. This report is for the taxable year 1919 and the tax money was paid into the Treasury last year. When the returns for 1921 are available at least 6,000,000 payers will be enrolled on the Government books, it is expected.

To meet the world supply of automobile tires, American manufacturers require 375,000,00 pounds of crude rubber each year.

RAILWAYS REFUSE TO WAIVE CUT IN EMPLOYEES WAGES

REDUCTIONS CONTINUE EFFECTIVE PENDING FINAL NEGOTIATIONS

MONTREAL, July 29.—The conference between Canadian railway officials and the general chairmen of the four running trades has concluded here, but it brought no agreement from the railways to waive tentative wage reductions. It was announced this morning that reductions made effective July 16 will continue in force pending final negotiations or perhaps arbitration.

Detailed consideration of all matters affecting labour and wages is expected to be taken up in conferences between the various unions and railways early in the fall. In the interval both parties will assemble data in order that the actual conferences may be expediated.

FRUIT GETTING TO BE PLENTIFUL IN THE LOCAL STORES

FIRST SHIPMENT OF HARVEST APPLES REACH THE CITY.

Peterborough fruit stores are hardly able these days to hold all the fruits and vegetables a bountiful nature showers upon heat-burdened humanity to make life more pleasant. All the shops have by cases and boards extended their store fronts up and down the street, and by their genius have encompassed some feet more frontage.

Plums are coming in from Niagara district, but next week wil see them more plentiful. They will not be cheap, for the crop is a failure, the wholesale fruit men say. Green gages are selling at 25 cents a quart, or $1.75 a basket.

Canadian peaches are a little green to sell yet, one fruit man said, but next week there shoud be good ones.

Cherries are just done. The last of the crop is going at 25 cents a quart, or $2.00 to $2.25 an 11-quart besket.

There are no raspberries. Thimbleberries are selling at 25 cents, huckleberries, the last for this season, at 35 cents, and black currants, 30 and 35 cents.

One dealer was rejoicing over a fine shipment of harvest apples from Stoney Creek Orchards. They looked green, but he averred they were good, and said he would get $1.25 a basket.

Tomatoes are selling lower — plentiful at 15 cents a pound.

Fine stalks of celery from Kalamazoo, Michigan, growers, were displayed on Charlotte tSreet this morning at 10 :#8 15 cents a bunch. The stuff was of good quality, and the dealer said sales were good.

A large hole had already been made in a crate of Spanish onions that just came across the Atlantic from the home of onions and garlic. They were very firm, and were selling at 2 pounds for 25 cents.

Potatoes are hard to buy, dealers say, and the price remains at 60 and 70 cents a peck, with no prospect of cheaper tubers till farmers bring in larger quantities.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

STRATHROY, July 29.—Herbert Greenfield, Alberta's Premier-designate, will be in Strathroy some time next week, according to advices received by Mrs. Greenfield, who is visiting friends here.

The U. F. O. of West Middlesex will tender a reception to the Western Premier during his visit, and arrangements to that end are now going forward. Harold Currie, director of the U.F.O. for West Middlesex, expresses himself in terms of enthusiasm over Alberta's choice.

"I know Mr. Greenfield well," he said, "and he is eminently the man for the job."

Voice of the People

To the Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir: In last night's Examiner is contained the statement that Mayor McIntyre told the Examiner that he had received a communication from Mr. Barber, informing him that the Council's procedure was illegal, under the contract.

The article in the Examiner further says that the flaw in the council's notice to terminate was not made very clear to Mayor McIntyre, he intimated, and that apparently was not foreseen by City Solicitor Widdifield and Alderman Gordon, both of them lawyers, who knew the terms of the contract, and were present when the resolution was passed.

I wish to say that Mayor McIntyre says that he did not state that Mr. Barber had discovered a flaw in the council's procedure, and I wish to add to that, that there was no flaw in the council's procedure, or the resolution, that Mr. Barber did not see any flaw in it, as the resolution was properly drawn.

The innuendo in this article that the resolution was inefficiently and illegally drawn, is not true either. I drew the resolutoin and in justice to Mr. Widdifield I wish to say that he did not know the contents of it until it was passed in the council, and the resolution is in absolutely proper form, is drawn in the proper wording, and there has never been any flaw in it, and there is no flaw in it now.

Further than that, the statement that I failed to know what was the proper course to be taken in the drawing of such a resolution, I require to be withdrawn in the Examiner in its next issue, as I do not intend to permit the Examiner or any other paper or person to make the statement that, professionally, I am incompetent.

The insinuation that two lawyers did not know their business, is considerably more than I intend to stand and permit to take place, as is indicated by this story, which the Mayor repudiates, contained in last night's Examiner.

The fact is, Mr. Barber did not give to the contractors the notice that the city council asked him to give and refused in fact, to do what the city council asked him to do, and the Examiner has no right to attempt to untruthfully unload the responsibility which Mr. Barber refused to take, upon Mr. Widdifield or myself.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

Ed.—In the Examiner's article theer was no intended reflection either by innuendo, insinuation or imputation upon the professional abilities of Alderman Gordon and City Solicitor Widdifield. If Mr. Gordon insists that the inference he has complained of would be generally taken from the passages he has underscored, the Examiner regrets that such an interpretation was possible.

And because there was no desire to disparage the work of Mr. Gordon and City Solicitor Widdifield, the qualifying adjective "alleged" was inadvertently omitted in connection with the word "flaw."

The purpose in the article which Alderman Gordon finds so offensive, was to point out that in spite of the careful directions to Mr. Barber he failed to comply with the Council's wishes. If two experienced lawyers could find no deficiency in the resolution and in the clause of the contract which the resolution was designed to implement, how could Mr. Barber, a layman, discover a fault. Surely if there was any interpretation of that reference it might safely be that there was no deficiency in the resolution. And the Examiner further pointed out that H. L. Seymour, Mr. Barber's representative, offered no objection when the resolution was passed in Council in his hearing. In brief, the article indicated what Mr. Gordon himself says, "that Mr. Barber did not see a flaw in it." It is probably safer not to burden this explanation which the Examiner cheerfully offers, although he has not asked for it, to City Solicitor Widdifield, together with a profound apology to Alderman George Newcombe Gordon, M.P.

CHARGED WITH THEFT OF 82c

Charged with the theft of 82 cents from William Cripps, 11 years of age, on July 13, Norman Robinson, a youth of 17 or 18, appeared before Magistrate Dumble to-day. The story is told that Robinson, seeing young Cripps with the money in his hand on George Street Wharf, proceeded to put him down and take the money. The little lad, in the box to-day, said he had 85 cents, and Robinson got 82. Stanley Jones, a little fellow, like young Cripps, in bare feet, and red and blue cotton sweater, confirmed timidly what Cripps said.

Robinson was horrified at such slurs being made on his character. He threatened to have another "case" (whatever that was) and a lawyer (which he was invited to get). Despite the youth's vehement manner, the Chief remained undismayed, and asked for a week's remand to get a witness to prove Robinson did take the money. He wanted the youth locked up. He wasn't working, he said. Robinson said he was. The Magistrate wanted him free to enjoy the summer air, so the Chief gave in without further protest. Robinson promised to show up next Friday.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Gains of 1 to 2 points by active issues at the opening of to-day's stock market indicated that shorts were anticipating their customary week end covering of contracts. General Electric, Bethlehem Steel and American Locomotive which were among yesterday's heaviest, cancelled more than half their gains. Rails and Oils were mixed, showing fractional advances and declines. Shippings, Tobaccos and Chemicals were inclined not to ease. Demand exchange on London was quoted at 3.56, but no business was reported at that figure.

Shippings were under pressure during the morning Mercantile Marine Preferred declined over 4 points and United Fruit adde dr 1-2 points to yesterday's setback.

Rails showed increasing irregularity, Northern Pacilc rising 2 points, while Louisville and Nashville lost that much. Equipments of the better grade were firm, but Crucible Steel was heavy, and coppers reacted on the lower prices quoted for the refined product. Oils were dull, foreign as well as domestic issues moving within very narrow limits.

Call money opened and renewed into next week at 4 1-2 per cent.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, July 29 (Canadian Press). — With a double holiday coming, trade on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning was hardly enough to call it a market. Brazilian opened at 22, but weakened slightly. Eight shares of C. P. R. went at 127 1-2. Trading in Victory bonds was also slow. One sale of 50,000 shares of Victory 33's at 97.90 swelled the total for the forenoon.

Bank stocks and commercial bonds were neglected.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 29 (Canadian Press). — New declines in the price of wheat took place to-day. Export demand was poor and receipts large. Bears pointed out that in three weeks Chicago had received 1,300,000 bushels, whereas shipments from here had been only 3,000,000 bushels.

Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 2 cents lower, with September 1.24 to 1.25 and December 1.26 1-2 to 1.27, were followed by a material set-back all around.

Rains had a bearish effect on corn. After opening 3-8c to 1c lower, including September at 60 1-2 to 61, the market underwent a slight further drop.

Oats were easier, with other grains starting unchanged to 1-4c to 3-8c off, September 38 3-4 to 39, and then continued to sag.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, July 29 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange easy, demand $3.56 1-4; Canadian exchange 11 per cent. discount.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, July 29. —(Canadian Press.)—The local market was not very active at any time during this morning's session. Abitibi remained unchanged at 27 1-2. Brazilian was fractionally weaker at 22. Dominion Steel did not vary from its opening quotation, but Laurentide lost its early half point gain and closed at 68 1-2. National Breweries went down another 3-8 to 52 5-8. Riordan remained unchanged at 4. Spanish River was weaker by a 1-4 at 54 3-4.

VIVIAN SPURGIN MAKES ADMISSION

CHICAGO, July 29.—Vivian Spurgin, daughter of Warren C. Spurgin, the missing president of the closed Michigan Avenue Trust Co., who with her mother, returned to Chicago from Detroit, where they fled following Spurgin's disappearance, has admitted that she had knowledge that her father had taken more than five hundred thousand dollars of the bank's money before he fled, it was announced to-day by James E. McShane, Assistant State's attorney, and Ben Newmark, chief investigator for the State's Attorney's office, who questioned Miss Spurgin and her mother upon their arrival here.

Miss Spurgin stated, acording to the State authorities, that the information was given to her by her mother following a conference with her father, during which he bade them good-bye, and said he would probably never see them again. Both Mrs. Spurgin and her daughter are being detained for further questioning to-day by Mr. Newmark and Mr. McShane, who intimate that they believe the wife and daughter know more of the bank president than they have told.

Questioning of the woman brought out that Spurgin and his wife had been estrangtd, that he had told them that he contemplated flight, and had turned over to them $75,000 worth of insurance papers, and gave each $750 in cash when he told them that he would probably never see them again. They fled to avoid publicity, they assert.

The search for Spurgin has developed two new clues, one leading to Ouray, Col., where he said to have had mining interests, and the other to the neighborhood of Mobile, Ala., where it is reported he had many friends.

WHEAT CUTTING IN SASKATCHEWAN.

SASKATOON, Sask., July 9. — (Canadian Press.)— Wheat cutting in a few isolated spots on high land began here this week but will not be general until August 1. Sixty day oats are being cut in several places to the west of Saskatoon.

CAVAN FAMILY HOLD REUNION

An event of more than ordinary interest, and one which was unique in its character, took place at the home of Mr. R. M. Hooten, ex-reeve of Cavan, on Friday, July 22nd, the event being a re-union of the Swain family and family connections, rerepresentatives of the name being in attendance from various parts of the provinces of Ontario and Manitoba. The gathering numbered one hundred and twety-five and included all ages from the babies in arms to the ripe old age of 88 years. Two ladies of the company, whom everybody was delighted to see, were specially noticeable, their combined ages being one hundred and seventy-four years.

The larger part of the company arived by autos in time for dinner and after a sumptuous repast the young men repaired to an adjoining field and had a snappy game of baseball. After this Mr. R. S. BLAMES GEDDES FOR TREATMENT the British Foreign Office. These developments have stirred Britain for several weeks.

KING DRAWN IN

LONDN, July 29.—The King today was drawn into the Lloyd George-Lord Northcliffe feud.

The Premier carrying his fight on Northcliffe into the House of Commons read a message from the King repudiating the accuracy of a statement said to have been made by Northcliffe in America.

In this statement as cabled here Northcliffe was represented as saying that the King told Lloyd George there must be no more killings in Ireland. "I hope", Lloyd George told the Commons" that the King's statement may do something to sterilize the effect of the criminal malignity which for personal ends is endeavoring to stir up mischief between the Allies, misunderstanding between the British Empire and the United States and prostrate the hope of peace in Ireland."

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(Canadian Press).—Lord Northcliffe has cabled King George's Secretary to the effect that he never ascribed to the King the words reported, and, further, that he never gave such an interview.

AGRARIAN SUCCESSES HERE INTEREST U. S.

Because of Growth of Farmers' Political Movement There.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Reports of recent elections in Western Canada, in which there is disclosed a perceptible growth of farmer strength at the polls are attracting much notice in Washington.

There are in consonance and keeping with the developments in Washington and in various parts of the United States. Not only in the movement for the formation of farmers' organizations growing all through the leading agricultural States and this movement being felt in politics, but the recent formation of an agricultural group of "bloc" in the House and in the Senate is becoming something more than a mere formality.

The Senators and House members from the leading agricultural States are working together for legislation asked by the farmers with a measure of harmony and co-operation which has never before been known in Congress, so far as the agricultural elements are concerned.

The agricultural "bloc" at each end of the capital—that is, in the House and Senate—is diligently working to crowd through Congress legislation dealing with farm credits, the regulation of the packers, dealings in grain futures, and several other matters. Some of this legislation is bitterly resisted by the members of Congress from the non-agricultural sections and especially by the members from the great financial and commercial, as well as manufacturing centres. The agricultural group has on several occasions demonstrated its power and its leaders hope to augment that power. To some extent, the agricultural and labor elements are showing signs of working together, but not entirely so. One of the subjects as to which the agricultural group is just now addressing itself is forcing a reduction in railroad rates, which are assailed as too high.

It is generally assumed here that the experience of Canada in respect to the growth of agricultural sentiment as a force in politics and legislation will closely parallel that of the United States.

HIS MONEY GONE: PAPER IN POCKETBOOK

MONTREAL, July 28.—Once again the old game of securing a man's pocket-book, and changing paper for read money has occurred in Montreal. Joseph Cormerdelli, of 57 City Councillors street, has complained to the police that yesterday afternoon he was swindled out of the sum of $3,500 by three confidence men.

According to the story told by the victim to the police, a few days ago he was approached by a well-dressed stranger. This man told him he was interested with two other men in a lucrative business venture but they had not sufficient capital. Full details of the venture and the enormous profits earned were given to Cormerdelli. The proposition looked sound, and promised a very good return.

The sum necesary to complete the transaction was $3,500.

Not having the money in the bank in Montreal, Cormedelli took a train the day before yesterday to Toronto, where he secured the necessary money and brought it back to Montreal in a leather pocketbook It was stipulated beforehand that it would be better to have the money in bills of fairly small demonination as the money was to be used to start the business immediately. Yesterday morning, Cormedelli says he arrived in Montreal with the money. He communicated with his new business associates and told them he had the money. An appointment to meet them at two o'clock yesterday afternoon was made. In due course the appointment was kept.

There had been some hitch in making out the agreement completing the deal, the victim was informed, but as an evidence of good faith that the money has been received, Cormedelli was asked to show the money.

The pocket-book was produced bulging with the new bills. The money was counted and the pocket book handed back to the victim. He returned it to is pocket without looking in it.

Another appointment to meet his new acquaintances was made for today, and he went home. On arrival home he thought it wise to conceal the money in some secure place until to-day. Taking the pocket-book out of his pocket Cormedelli was astounded to find instead of his good money nothing in the pocket-book but old newspaper. A frantic hunt for his business acquaintances failed to show their whereabouts and the police were called on to assist him to find them. So far no arrests have been made and no trace of the business friends con be found.

IS THIS A CURE FOR LEPROSY?

Chaulmoogra Oil Introduced Into Veins, Has Shown Good Results.

LONDON, (By Mail.)—The medical correspondent of The Times writes:

It would appear from recent statistics that leprosy may shortly be added to the list of curable diseases. The progress made with the new "Chaulmoogra Oil" is indeed a romance of patience and imagination, much of the credit of which belongs to Sir Leonard Rogers and his coworkers. He has now reached the conclusion that the "upper hand" in the fight with leprosy is being won.

Chaulmoogra Oil has long been known, as was pointed out recently by Dr. Henry, of the Wellcome Chemical Research Laboratories, as a somewhat uncertain remedy for leprosy. But it remained undeveloped until the technique of administration was improved by Sir Leonard Rogers and others. They gave preparations of the oil by veins. The result was a sharp reaction with swelling up of the deprous tissues. On subsequent examination the leprosy bacilli were found broken up and in process of destruction.

The oil had, in some manner, destroyed or dissolved the fatty coating which these leprosy bacilli possess, thus rendering them unable to resist the curative powers of the body. Further work suggested that it was contained acids which gave the oil its value, these being of a low-melting and unsaturated type. This latter idea caused Sir Leonard Rogers to use cod liver oil, another substance containing acids of this type, as a treatment for leprosy. He gave some injections of it, and the results have so far been as good as those with Chaulmoogra oil.

More important still, the work of leprosy bacillus, as is well known, is similar in some respects to the tubercle bacillus. Both have fatty envelopes, both are what is described as "acid-fast"—i.e., in relation to dyes used in staining them. Injections of oils of the type descibed have been given recently to some cases of lupus ((tuberculosis of the skin), with very great success. Some cases of glanduar tuberculosis have also been treated with success. Work is now being carried on in connection with pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption), but so far the success here is less gratifying. The oils are given by injection into the muscles, cod-liver oil being used in some cases instead of Chaulmoogra oil.

Lt.-Col. C. W. Peck, V.C., D.S.O., M.P., together with twenty-one Canadian competitors for Bisley arrived at Liverpool recently by the Canadian Pacific liner Metagama. Col. Peck in an interview stated that providing they had good weather, they hoped to pull off some of the big prizes, as the team was feeling very fit. Major C. W. Butler is the Adjutant in charge. Among the best shots in the party are Sergt. W. A. Hawkins, G.M., who won the King's prize in 1913 and Private A. H. Caplin, winner of the Prince of Wales prize in 1904. Major Geo. C.G.E. SWAMP CRESSMAN'S IN O.B.A.A. SEMI-FINALS

CITY LEAGUE WINNERS WALLOP MERCANTILE CHAMPS BY 15 RUNS TO 1—ELECTRICIANS HAD A WIDE MARGIN IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

The Cressman team, winners of the Mercantile League, proved week opposition for the C.G.E. team, City League titleholders, in the first game of the semi-finals in the O.B.A.A. intermediate series at Riverside Park last night, the big factory crew walloping the big store outfit by 15 runs to 1. They took all the gimp out of the Mercantile League representatives by scoring six runs with two out in the first innings, and from then on the game was only an exercise gallop for the electricians.

Chris. McCarney was at the heaving station for the C.G.E. and the auburn-haired youngster had too much stuff on the ball for the Cressman crew, eleven of them expiring by the strike-out route, up to the ninth they only got five hits off him, no two in one innings. In the final innings they managed to nick three in a row for one run. Back of him his team mates supported him in sparkling fashion, the only error being a low throw to first by Rutherford in an attempt to complete a double play.

Bartley started for the losers and his lack of control in passing two men and hitting another in the opening session was taken full advantage of by the C.G.E., who inserted three hits where they would do the most harm, while errors by Hunter and Sage were thrown in for good measure, the total being six runs for the City Leaguers. And the trouble all started after the first two men were easy outs. Bartley allowed another run in the second, but blanked the winners in the third and fourth, only to have them comb him for four hits in a row in the fifth, and he was finally derricked with two runs in two on and nobody out. Scates was sent to the gunning pit and got out of the hole with the assistance of a double play by Hunter, after which the relief provider relieved Corrin.

A base on balls, a wild pitch, an error and an infield out gave the electricians two runs without a hit in the sixth, but in the eighth they fell on Scates for five clear hits, so effectively bunched that four runs came in.

The City League winners put the game on ice right in the first innings. Rutherford and Barrie expired on infield taps, but Corrin walked, going to second on a passed ball, and Legon was hit. Helson doubled to right, scoring Corrin. Frost cracked a single off Bartley's glove, Legon registering. Hunter's error on Dugan's roller sent Helson home. Foley singled to left, filling the bases. A wild pitch inserted into the proceedings at this stage by Bartley provided transportation for Frost, and then Bartley loaded up the sacks again by walking McCarney. Rutherford unloaded two-thirds of the cushions by cracking one to Sage, who threw badly to first, and Frost and Dugan planted their foot prints on the counting station. Graham made a nice catch of Barrie's fly back of second to end the agony.

There wasn't any pressing need for any more runs, but anyway the C. G. E. bagged another in the second. Corrin beat out a hit down the third base line, to be forced at second by Legon. The latter stole second and romped in when Helson's single took a bad hope over Graham's shoulder. Frost was hit. Dugan forced Helson at second on a roller to Sage and Foley was thrown out by Hunter.

There was a merciful lull until the fifth, and then the electricians started the fireworks again. Dugan opened with a single to left and Foley duplicated the hit. McCarney's single over third scored Dugan. Rutherford hit safely to left and Foley was caught between third and home. Bartley, however, held the ball too long and then threw low to Bergoine, Foley scoring. Scates took up the pitching burden at this stage. Barrie cracked a liner into Hunter's hands and the short-stop doubled Rutherford off second unassisted. Corrin struck out.

The winners got two more in the sixth. Legon was safe on Graham's fumble and went to second on Helson's sacrifice. He stole third. Frost walked. A wild pitch scored Legon and moved Frost up to second, and then the latter went to third on a passed ball and registered while Graham was throwing out Dugan. Foley ended the innings by a roller to Cobb.

In the eighth Helson beat out a bunt and Frost singled to centre. Dugan's double to left drove in the pair and Foley doubled over third to score Dugan. Rutherford singled through short and Foley counted. Barrie fanned and Corrin was thrown out by Graham.

The big store team scored their only run in the ninth. With one gone Wade and Bergoine singled in succession to right, and then Head singled to left to score Wade with the only counter for the Mercantile Leaguers. The next two were easy.

PETERBORO GOING AFTER PLENTY CUP

PLAYERS HAD ANOTHER WORK-OUT LAST EVENING.

Everything was "set" to-day for the journey of the Peterborough soccer team to Brantford to-morrow, where they play Brantford in the Plenty Cup series. It will be a fast game, and the players are keen for the fray. Last night they met a mixed team of the Caleys and C.G.E. and defeated them 3-0 in a 60-minute battle. The Plenty Cup team were like young colts, and they did not find the opposition hard opponents. They were given a fine work-out, and showed up much better than on Tuesday night.

Morrison scored after 20 minutes' play, and Chambers got another right after on a long shot. At half-time it was 2-0. No interval was taken, and the Plenty team kept the ball in the enemy's territory during most of the last half-hour. Chambers scored with a terrific drive. Swan had no chance of saving.

The line-up follows:

Plenty Cup team — Griffin; McDonald and Ralston; Burrows, McMillan and Frost; Manders, Chambers, Hotston, Wright and Hannah.

Mixed team—Swan; Hardie and Moir; Roberts, Brown and Hensby; Anderson, Parkins, McDougall, Rorrison, and Bartley.

Working Better.

The Plenty Cup team showed a better brand of combination than in the previous game. The team machinery worked better, and after last night's lubrication a real front should be put up against Brantford. The players all claim to be in good shape, but they know they will have to be on their toes all the time to defeat the chosen eleven from Brantford. Throughout Western Ontario fast football is the rule, and the game to-morrow will be "go" from the first blast of the "ref's" whistle.

The Peterborough boys are under a handicap in Brantford, for they have a 200-mile railway journey that is sure to tire the men to some extent. They will be up at three in the morning, and so every invigorating influence will be needed to keep the men in condition. They leave on the 4.16 C.P.R. and change in Toronto to the G.T.R., reaching Brantford at 10 p.m. The game starts at 3 p.m. Acting Secretary Fred. Sutcliffe, Alex. Dick, and J. W. Worth are going with the team, and Fred. Sutcliffe wants every player to be at the station at 4 a.m. "Bobbie" Hannah will be on the reserve list to-morrow, the other line-up being the same as heretofore.

The team will play in the C.G.E. blue and white striped jerseys, which are all freshly laundered for the battle.

BASEBALL

The Central Ontario League team will meet at the Water street bowling alleys to-morrow morning, prior to leaving for Oshawa at 8.45. The game is called for 2.30 in the afternoon.

INVENTS DOLLAR SHOES FOR PARIS

PARIS, July 29.—(United Press).—Shoes at five francs a pair and they'll last forever!

In these days when a pair of pre-war American shoes costs 150 to 200 francs and when a Paris shoemaker won't consider an order under 350 francs, the invention just announced, of a method of manufacturing footgear at five francs, with the added advantage that the material can't wear out, is exciting interest in anti-H. L. C. circles.

It is due to a blind worker in a factory near Lyons. He discovered, so the report goes, an alloy which permits him to make a pair of shoes weighing three and one-half ounces, water and fireproof, as solid and elegant as the finest product of the American shoe factories, and so simply designed that a child can put the parts together.

M. Paul Michel, the inventor, is keeping the secret of the alloy to himself.

SPORT COMMENT

Those who had begun to cancel their New York reservations for World Series Week are now pausing again to think it over. Both New York clubs have shown their ability to move forward rapidly, and with the power they should have through the stretch this may be the year that the Big Town duplicates Chicago's feat of fifteen years ago. Chicago proved that it could be done, and both Huggins and McGraw have the stuff to get there in the way of talent.

The Rabbit Punch.

Dear Sir,—Few people realise the dangers of the "rabbit punch," or the "occipital punch" (to give it its technical name), used so effectively in the recent fight with Carpentier. This is a jarring blow struck at the base of the brain, which rocks the skull, sharply jarring the spine, resulting in temporary paralysis of the entire nerve system, rendering the body limp, seriously interfering with the proper co-ordination of brain and muscles through the nerves and temporarily rendering the fighter unable to judge distance. It also robs him for the time being of the sense of direction—all of which are harmful enough.

But the real menace is not in the immediate results, but in the ultimate consequences. Very few laymen realise that the delicate nerve structures may be and frequently are seriously injured by the "temporary" snapping back of the spinal column.

The vertebrae are very easily put out of alignment by this process. Anything short of perfect alignment can have only one result—pinching or constriction of the nerves passing through the tilted vertebrae interstices on their way to the various parts of the body.

This constriction, in turn, brings about an abnormal condition in whatever part of the body is supplied by the pinched nerve with the vital energy which we know as "nerve force."

The "rabbit punch" is to boxing what the deadly headlock is to wrestling, a means to a victorious end, it is true, but one so deadly and far-reaching in its destructive results that I firmly believe the day is rapidly approaching when the boxing fraternity will take the action which the wrestling fraternity is taking in barring the headlock. I am sure that you will agree with me that this action will give good, clean sport, in the sense of athletic contest, a tremendous forward impulse.

Dr. F. X. Sauchelli.

Getting Distance.

As queries begin to come in regarding the immense distance that Babe Ruth and Abe Mitchell obtain, queries asking the why and wherefore, we take up the matter again.

These two can outrange the field because through the proper application of excessive power they develop greater speed as the bat or club hits the ball.

Ruth's bat and Mitchell's driver, both heavy weapons, heavier than the average, are whipped through the air at greater speed than the weapons of any contemporaries.

Both happen to have not only great physical strength, mighty hands, wrists and forearms, but also the knack of timing.

Any man who can swing a heavy bat or club at greater speed than any one else will hit the ball a greater distance. What could be simpler?

Also Dempsey.

The same thing applies to Jack Dempsey's terrific hitting force.

Dempsey can swing a heavy fist at a faster pace than any other fighter.

In the act of hitting alone Dempsey can hit faster than Carpentier. Once started, either right or left travels at an astonishing speed.

He hit both Willard and Carpentier with such speed of fist that many close to the ringside failed to see the blow land. Fitz also had terrific speed linked to his punch, not the jabbing speed of a Corbett, but the speed that was picking up impetus as it moved along.

Many are called, as you've read about,
With the accent placed on the "down" or "out."

K. H. G. Cobb's lifetime big league average is approximately thirty points above Speaker's, who has known several big drops below his rival's high standard.

NEW U. S. TARIFF NOT EFFECTIVE TILL NEXT YEAR.

Date Still Uncertain, But This is Probable.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(By Canadian Press.)—The time when the new tariff law will take effect is utterly uncertain. It is unlikely that its effective date will be delayed until next winter but such a thing is not outside the bounds of possibility.

The insitence of the advocates of early tax revision on putting a tax revision measure through Congress ahead of tariff revision is beginning to bear fruit. President Harding, without flatly saying so, has thrown his influence to the side of those who want tax revision first by calling for expeditious action on this matter in his recent special message to the Senate. The President's words are being used as an argument in their favor by senators who demand tax revision ahead of tariff legislation.

A well-defined plan has been made by a number of the Senate leaders to drive the tax bill ahead of the tariff bill as soon as the tax bill passes the House. While there may be a hitch in this plan, it undoubtedly has back of it the republican organization of the Senate, though it is displeasing to a number of individual republican senators.

The House will pass the tariff bill next week. It will then go to the Senate and be referred to the Finance Comwittee. The House will then take up the tax bill. Representative Longworth says that bill can be passed by the House about the middle of August. If that is done the tax bill will go to the Senate and be referred to the finance committee before the tariff bill is reported out of the finance committee. At this point, the advocates of early tax revision will try to give the tax bill right of way ahead of tariff.

If the Senate takes up the tax bill late in August or early September ahead of tariff, it is likely to be October 1 or perhaps the middle of October before the tax bill is passed This would so delay the tariff bill that it is entirely conceivable it might not be finished in the extra session and might have to wait for its completion until the regular session of Congress next winter.

Needless to say, United States interests that want duties are going to oppose such delay strongly but the chances for forcing the tax bill to the front and the tariff bill temporarily to the rear in the Senate are growing every day.

NEW CRESCENT CLOTHES SHOP

Well dressed young men and their elders, who appreciate snappy but sensible clothes, will be interested in the opening of the new Crescent clothes shop in the Capitol Building, George Street South.

The members of the new firm — Messrs. Carroll and Dale—come to Peterborough with a clothing experience gained in two of the largest Canadian clothing manufacturing concerns that have gained wide reputation as style leaders.

In addition, both men are returned soldiers—Mr. Carroll from serving in the Navy, and Mr. Dale as an Infantryman.

The selection of smart garments shown are attractive samples of man-tailored suits and topcoats. The designing of Crescent clothes seems particularly adapted to most types of men in various new models, and should secure personal inspection.

According to reports the German automobile industry is rapidly reviving and exports are increasing to Latin America.

SOME FARMERS HAVE A STRONG EYE FOR CROP FAILURES.

One sound pervades the sun-filled country about Peterborough these days and drowns the drove of bees and insects that hover in the air. Up from bronzed fields pours the incessant rattle of busy binders, laying low the golden crops. From afar it is a beautiful prospect. One thinks of barns filled with the season's crops, of bulging granaries, of busy flour-mills and bread for millions of people. Closer investigation, the farmers say, will bring anyone out of such a reverse, for most of crops are failures. Barns are not choked with crops this harvest, they declare, and practically all look anxiously into the approaching winter.

Many of the farmers have finished their harvesting; others are only fairly well started. Some alsace threshing has been done, and alsace is about the best crop there is, farmers state. The corn, of course, looks well, seeing it had so much sun, but the early potatoes were practically burnt out by the intense heat, and they are watching the progress of the late potatoes with anxiety.

BASEBALL SCANDAL MAY NOT END WITH TRIAL OF THE "BLACK SOX"

(By Henry L. Farrel, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 29. — Ban Johnson's statement that more ballplayers are liable to be put on the carpet after the "Black Sox" are tried, started some of last winter's skeletons shaking in the closets.

Connie Mack and his 1914 Athletics are being brought into stories, it being said that if the gaunt Philadelphia leader gave the real reason for breaking up his great machine after it had lost four straight to the Boston Braves, it would be a sensation.

Mack, however, has an answer to that.

In a message to the United Press he says: "Such stories are too ridiculous to make a reply. The Athletic players were clean and they are still clean, as can be shown by the players who are still in the game. I have stated many times why the 1913 team was broken up."

Benny Kauff, who was mentioned in the "confession" of Heinie Zimmerman, is still out of the game, although he was cleared of the charge of grand larceny in connection with a stolen automobile, for which Judge Landis suspended him from the game.

The Giants applied to the baseball commissioner for Kauff's reinstatement just as soon as he was acquitted, but the application was not acted upon, and Kauff is still out of the game.

Fred Toney, Giant pitcher, was mentioned last week in the testimony at the Black Sox trial, but John Heydler, president of the National League, hastened to assure the New York club that it was all a mistake, and that Toney had nothing to do with the "fixing" in 1919.

BASEBALL

Officials of the two major leagues are agreed on the point that there should be some letting up in the pitching restrictions to bring back the hitting to more normal lines. With this much agreed upon they start out in separate ways to effect a remedy, recalling days of the past when one league declined to follow a valuable suggestion from the other, apparently for no other reason than the desire to be originators or nothing. In the present instance teamwork by those seeking a cure for the hitting evil would seem quite in order, if only to keep out of the sport a return to the petty policies whcih inju ed it in the past.

The National League Club Owners met and decided that the pitching restrictions were too severe. They advocated the use of resin in limited quantities, the same to be apportioned to the pitchers under the supervision of the umpires. Resin enables a pitcher to get a better grip on a ball and thereby make it break, or curve, better when thrown toward the plate. The smooth surface of the ball, to which nothing may be applied without penalty, worked a hardship to pitchers, according to the views of the National League Club Owners.

The question was put to the American League and was frowned upon. Whether the answer was provided through a vote of all club owners or was simply the opinion of the executive never was announced. At any rate the more recent decision of the American League that a special powder be applied to the baseballs by the umpires, indicates that the junior league was willing to help the pitchers. Apparently it wanted to pursue its own method of settling the point. If resin is unsatisfactory why resort to some new substance, ingredients as yet unknown, which was prepared by a Philadelphia chemist? Resin does not discolor a ball enough to cause any complaint, whereas the new substance, which furnishes he same sticky feeling as resin, makes the sphere even whiter than before the application. Thus it is a better target for the batsmen; even if the pitcher is enabled to grip it more securely.

Following closely on the American League decision favoring the mysterious chalk-white substance comes the announcement that the National League is experimenting with a particular sort of sail thought to contain the ingredients which will put the ball in the condition desired. Since the American League turned down the resin proposal the National may be expected to frown on the resin, and in turn the American will pass up the special "soil rub" if it proves effective. Meanwhile the pitchers of the two leagues must be working under different conditions, one group handicapped more than the other, since it is hardly likely that each substance will have the same effect on the ball. Why not put the entire question up to Judge Landis and end this bit of petty bickering. Baseball is too big for such tactics.—New York Times.

CHINA PAINTING
Mrs. Langley McCarthy
TEACHES BISCOFF'S NEW AND BEAUTIFUL WORK IN CHINA PAINTING.

AT THE THEATRES

The Capitol Theatre has a big programme of pitcures for the last three days of this week. The beautifully-colored Pathe Review, the troubles of a shoe clerk, depicted in "Dangerous Occupations," the entertaining little "Barnyard Scandal," the cat Felix in "My Hero," Brownie the wonder dog, in a Century comedy, the concluding instalment of "Fighting Fate," the serial which has been attracting 'movie fans' to the theatre for months, all these make up the first part of the programme, followed by the opening chapter of a serial of Western life, "The Purple Riders," with Joe Ryan in the stellar role. This is a cowboy picture with hard riding and quick firing men always in the foreground, and promises to be out of the ordinary as a serial attraction.

Thomas Meighan's realistic portrayal of Jim Montgomery in "The City of Silent Men," held the tense interest of the audience from start to finish of a remarkable picture. They suffered with him in the death of his mother, thrilled through the minutes of his sensational escape, and exulted in the triumphant close. Applause sounded through the house as he swam the Hudson under the rays of the searchlight after escaping from Sing Sing prison with the help of his staunch old convict friend, Bill Hawkins, and a sort of silent hiss was accorded the detective who finally trailed him after many years. With its strong human interest, its powerful rendition of deep emotion, and its tense moments, this is a picture which combines splendid acting by everyone of the actors appearing in it, with backgrounds of real, true to life effects. It must be seen to be appreciated, and is a production that will never be forgotten.

DRINK MORE MILK

New York World.)

Many Americans begin declining mentally as well as physically shortly after maturity. And many who look physically fit early in life are on the decline so far as efficiency is concerned. All of which is due to an unbalanced diet.

If the average American would eat only about half as much meat as he does, consume more greens and drink more milk, about a quart a day—he wouldn't hit the toboggan as early in life and would retain his pep until a ripe old age. His sight would be much better too.

So asserted Prof. E. N. McCollum of John Hopkins in discussing summer nutrition problems before the representatives of one thousand New York City agencies, gathered in the board of estimate chamber of the city hall to co-operate in spreading knowledge of food values and their health properties.

With what he calls his "colony of rats," Prof. McCollom has experimented produced pictures of his "family," which has progressed to something like the fiftieth generation, to prove that the rat that isn't properly fed is like the child suffering from malnutrition, while the one receiving the necessary amount of butter fats and other required food allotments is a fine specimen of the rodent family.

Before much attention was given to diet, Prof. McCullom recalled lions, tigers and all manners of wild beasts in the zoos and circus menageries suffered from rickets and other diseases resulting from improper feeding. The animals died off quickly. Today they are fed scientifically and although confined to the cages, they are as healthy as their progenitors in the jungles were.

Dr. Frank J. Monahan, deputy health commissioner, who directed the conference, startled his listeners by declaring the children of the wealthy suffer more in numerical proportion from malnutrition than do the offspring of the poor. Dr. Monahan, who is Mayor Hylan's physician, explained this is because the rich youngsters feast on sweets and rich foods, while those in tenements put substantial meals into their tummies.

"Ill health," remarked Dr. Monahan, "is no longer regarded as stylish, even among the very wealthy. In fact the really bon ton thing now is to be in fine fettle physically."

The conference adopted resolutions to encourage the more general use of milk in the standard diet for adults as well as children and to discourage the drinking of tea and coffee by children.

HYDRANTS LOW, 2 WATER MAINS ARE TOO SMALL

FIRE CHIEF SAYS CHARLOTTE AND SIMCOE STREET MAINS SO SMALL ONLY ONE LINE OF HOSE POSSIBLE TO ADVANTAGE.

MANY HYDRANTS ARE TOO NEAR TO GROUND

At a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee last night, the chairman read the following report from Fire Chief Grange on the condition of the hydrants as he found them upon inspection:

Ald. R. Morrison, Chairman F., W. and L. Committee, City Council:

Dear Sir,—As requested, I inspected all the fire hydrants in the city in order to know how many were too low for speedy operation in event of fire. I found that seventeen hydrants were too low to allow making a complete revolution with the wrench in removing the cap. I measured each one and below will be found the exact distance between the nipple and the ground:

Hydrant on Water street, between King street and Charlotte, 6 inches.

Hydrant on Water street, between Charlotte street and Simcoe, 8 inches.

Hydrant on Water street between Murray street and McDonnel, 8 inches.

Hydrant on Water street, north end of street car line, 10 inches.

Hydrant on Water street, corner of Barnardo avenue, 8 inches.

Hydrant at corner Murray and Ayime streets, 6 inches.

Hydrant at G.T.R. station in flower garden, 6 inches.

Hydrant at bend of Driscoll Terrace, 6 inches.

Hydrant at corner of Hunter and Burnham street, 10 inches.

Hydrant at corner Armour road and Woodbine avenue, 5 inches.

Hydrant at corner of Roger and Dufferin streets, 5 inches.

Hydrant in front of 723 Bethune street, 5 inches.

Hydrant opposite 532 Weller street, 8 inches.

Hydrant on Hunter street, opposite Bell Tel. Co., 12 inches.

Hydrant on Hunter street, opposite Chambers street, 12 inches.

Hydrant corner Hunter and Bethune streets, 10 inches.

Hyddrant, Union and Dublin streets, 10 inches.

Most hydrants in the city are lower than they should be. Greater speed can be attained if the hydrants are all three feet from the ground. Many of the hydrants are placed in rather inconvenient places. Some are inside the walk where there are trees and difficult to locate at night.

There is another matter, and of a more serious nature to which I wish to draw your attention. The water mains on Charlotte and Simcoe streets are only 5 inches in diameter. In event of a big fire on either of these streets I could not use more than one line to advantage. If I used two hydrants I would be robbing them and have no effective pressure from either. I have reported on this matter before, asking for more protection for these streets. I advised than an eight inch main be attached at George street and lead up King street to Louis, then to a hydrant at corner of Louis and Charlotte. Part of this request was granted. The hydrant was placed at that corner but was connected to the five inch main on Charlotte street. This is a serious matter and I would like to see some action taken.

Some of the hydrants in East City have spindles smaller than those on the west side. Our wrenches will not fit those smaller hydrants. This is a considerable handicap.

I would also advise than all fire hydrants be painted red rather than green as at present, and the tops and caps white. This would make them more easily discernible at night.

Respectfully submitting all of the above, I am sirs,

Your obedient servant,
GEO. GRANGE,
Chief of Fire Department.

Ald. Morrison said the Chief's report plainly showed that the hydrants were too low, and if not at a sufficient height, minimized the efforts of the firemen.

Ald. Turner spoke strongly against the city paying for hydrants that were not efficient, and he said the Utilities Commission should be asked to have the hydrants raised to a sufficient height to be efficient.

The chairman said that Mr. R. L. Dobbin had explained that some of the hydrants for some reason could not be raised any higher than at present.

Ald. Crowe remarked that it was a wonder the fire underwriters had not gone into the matter.

Ald. Gainey moved that the chairman of the Utilities Commission and the superintendent of the Waterworks be invited to attend the next meeting of the committee on the matter reported upon by the Chief and that the previous request made to the Commission to have the hydrants painted red be amended to have the tops and side nipples white as suggested.

Ald. Crowe was seconder and the motion carried.

MILITARY OVER-RULED BY GOV'T IN IRISH CASE

EGAN AND HIGGINS RELEASED PENDING HEARING OF APPEAL AGAINST HABEAS CORPUS ORDER OF TUESDAY.

TO ENCOURAGE SPREAD OF PEACE ATMOSPHERE

DUBLIN, July 30 (Canadian Press). — The Crown Attorney announced to-day that the Government had decided to release John J. Egan and Patrick Higgins pending a hearing on the appeal against habeas corpus and contempt of Court orders issued in connection with their cases.

The Master of the Rolls accordingly stayed the order he had issued for the attachment of General Sir Neville Macready, commander of the British troops in Ireland, Major-General Sir Edward Strickland, division commander, and others, for their failure to comply with the habeas corpus writs issued on Tuesday.

These writs called for the production in Court of Egan, sentenced to death by a military Court in Limerick last June for having ammunition in his possession, and of Higgins, accused of having taken part in an ambush at Clonmult.

The overruling by the Government of the military in the decision to release Ega nand Higgins is considered here as an indication of a fixed intention on the Government's part to encourage the spread of the peace atmosphere.

POTATO GROWERS SAY PRICES WILL GO HIGH

"There won't be any potatoes go to waste next spring," said a local grower this morning, who, estimating the yield from his own field, and also on the strength of reports from other growers, expects a comparatively light crop. One lot of potatoes on the market was noticeably of larger size than the others, but they were grown on newly turned ground. "I have been getting a crop that is much lighter than last year and of smaller size potatoes," said another market gardener," and I'm selling them off now because the people will buy them in that size, when they can be scraped. The The tendency will likely be to hold them for higher prices."

A demand has sprung up from some outside sources indicating that this market may develop the firmness the growers expect.

PACKERS TO BE REIMBURSED BY FOOD MINISTRY

DISPUTE WITH BRITISH MINISTRY OF FOOD OVER PAYMENT FOR CANADIAN BACON SETTLED AT LAST.

CREDIT MEIGHEN WITH MAKING IT POSSIBLE

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, July 30. — Immediate payment of £350,000 by the British Ministry of Food to Canadian packers for Canadian bacon requisitioned when control was re-imposed two years ago, have now been agreed to by the British authorities.

This announcement is made to Mr. J. H. McLean, of the Harris Abbatoir Company, of Toronto, who has just returned from a trip to the Old Land.

He credits Premier Meighen with making an amicable settlement of the matters in dispute possible.

"Two matters were in dispute between the Canadian packers and the British Ministry of Food," said Mr. McLean. "These were:

"1—Payment for bacon belonging to the Canadian packers and requisitioned by the British Ministry of Food when control was reimposed in August, 1919.

"2—Dispute regarding the interpretation of the contract between the Canadian packers and the British Ministry of Food, covering the sale of the Canadian packers' production of Wiltshire sides for the months of September, October, November, and December, 1920, regarding the first issue.

"Payments on account had been December, 1920.

"Regarding the first issue, payments on account had been made by the Ministry, but an unadjusted balance remained due, amounting to about £400,000. The packers had continually pressed for a payment on account of a substantial portion of the outstanding balance. This the Ministry had refused to do. It is now agreed that an immediate payment will be made by the Ministry of £350,000, and the War Losses Commission will be asked to determine whether or not any further sums are due the packers.

"In respect to the second issue, five of the Canadian packers recently went to England expecting to arbitrate the points in dispute between the Ministry and the packers. However, the arbitration was not held, owing to the failure of the parties concerned to agree on the preliminaries.

"A satisfactory basis of arbitration has now been agreed upon, and arbitration is expected without further delay.

"The satisfactory adjustment of these matters was achieved solely through the good offices of Mr. Meighen, the Canadian Prime Minister. Without his assistance, the settlement would have been impossible. The arrangements for prompt arbitration will achieve a fair settlement of matters which have so long been in dispute, and so removes a source of friction between Great Britain and Canada.

"Moreover, the payment on account for requisitioned bacon relieves the packers of a severe financial strain," said Mr. McLean.

AUGMENTED CABLE NEWS SERVICE TO START ON MONDAY

The Canadian Press, Limited, has completed arrangements with Reuters, the great British news agency, and the British Press Association, which will enable it to supply to its members an augmented cable service, particularly covering events in the British Empire. The new service is effective Monday.

The Canadian Press also hopes to make arrangements with the Havas Agency of Paris for occasional despatches covering French news of interest to Canada not carried out of London by the Associated Press.

The Examiner is thus able to promise an augmented and more complete news service to its readers, especially as regards British news. The enlarged Canadian Press service, coupled with the exclusive foreign despatches of the United Press, and the news-gathering facilities afforded by the Examiner's special correspondents, will result in a much more complete telegraph service to Examiner readers.

CIANFARRA

Camillo Cianfarra, chief lieutenant of Henry Wood in the Rome Bureau of the United Press, is a native of Italy. In his youth he came to the United States and remained ten years. During that time he worked on a number of New York newspapers, and acquired a mastery of the newspaper methods used on this side of the Atlantic before returning to Italy as a staff correspondent of the United Press.

During his service in America, Cianfarra covered the Russo-Japanese peace conference at Portsmouth, N.H., for La Prensa of Buenos Ayres, and gave that paper a 24-hour scoop on the signing of the peace treaty which ended the Russo-Japanese War.

During the Great War, Cianfarra was in charge of the United Press Bureau in Rome, and covered the stirring events on the Italian Front which brought about the collapse of the Austrian resisfance, and proved the prelude to the final breakdown of the Central Powers.

Cianfarra covered the famous San Remo conference for the United Press last year, an all the other conferences in Italy which followed the Fiume controversy, and resulted in the signing of peace between Jugo-Slavia and Italy.

LOW MOAN WAS SALVATION OF MRS. W. H. STONE

LODGED ON LEDGE FOR EIGHT DAYS ON BRINK OF 500-FOOT ABYSS, HELPLESS WOMAN'S MOAN ATTRACTED RESCUERS.

TRIED TO REACH ROPE BY PILING UP STONES

BANSF, Alta., July 30 (Canadian Press). — A low moan, breathing in it the last hope of life, saved Mrs. W. H. Stone, widow of the Perdue University President, from death, it was revealed here to-day.

The first searching party sent out for Mrs. Stone and her husband, who was dashed to death in a fall over a precipice, was crawling slowly over the slope of Mount Glory, weary of the tedious climb.

As they were about ready to give up the search and return to civilisation, they heard the faint cry. There they found Mrs. Stone, almost unconscious, imprisoned on a narrow ledge. She was rescued.

Mrs. Stone was exceedingly weak to-day, and has not slept since she was rescued. Physicians said it would probably be a week or ten days before she can be removed from the temporary camp at the foot of Mount Eon.

Mrs. Stone had been a prisoner on Rock 7, 50 feet above an abyss, from Saturday, 16th July, until Sunday, 24th July, when she was reached by the rescue party.

Before her strength failed she had done everything in her power to pile up the small stones in order to reach her rope, dangling some 15 feet over her head. But the rocks were small and her scheme was thwarted when she was yet several feet below the end of the rope.

The new proprietor has been in business, and, it is understood, formerly kept a restaurant in this city.

TRADE OPENING PRESENTED BY SOUTH CHINA

G. E. KINGSFORD, WHO HAS JUST COMPLETED AN INTENSIVE INVESTIGATION, SAYS OPPORTUNITY FOR CANADA BIG.

IMMEDIATE RESULTS NOT TO BE EXPECTED

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Ont., July 30 (Canadian Press). — That Canada has a chance to break in and get an enormous trade in South China, if she will only get down to business and remedy conditions that are hampering her, is the statement of George E. Kingsford, who has just returned from Hong Kong after an intensive investigation lasting a year and a half, of conditions there.

Mr. Kingsford is a son of the late Magistrate Kingsford, and served with the original 1st Battalion overseas.

China takes trade like a rabbit takes lettuce, he said. A little nibble at first, and then, as she finds it good, she will take a great deal. To get Chinese trade, Canada must make exhaustive examination of the possibilities over there without any hope of getting immediate results. The examinations of the United States and Great Britain must be followed.

There are two things that Canada must do to get Chinese trade, in the opinion of Mr. Kingsford. In the first place, a change must be made in the mail service, and in the second place Canadian banks will have to go to the East.

WILL BULLETIN BASEBALL RESULTS

Besides giving special bulletins on the football games in Brantford to-day, the results of the Peterboro-Oshawa baseball fixture will be put out as they come in. There is a great deal of interest by both sections of the sporting fraternity in these games and the fans should take advantage of the Examiner service to follow the progress of the games.

STARVING ARE MASSACRED IN FOOD SEARCH

COMMITTEE OF 63 APPOINTED TO GET RELIEF TO FAMINE-STRICKEN RUSSIAN AREAS—RUMOR HOOVER'S OFFER IS ACCEPTED.

MOSCOW PAPER SAYS REPORTS EXAGGERATED

RIGA, July 30.—(Canadian Press —The offer of Herbert Hoover to aid Russia in relieving the suffering due to famine on condition that all United States citizens now held prisoners in Russia be released has been accepted by the Russian authorities who suggest immediate negotiations in order to realize speedy assistance, according to a despatch from the Rosta News Agency at Moscow received here to-day.

FIGHTING HAS BEGUN.

RIGA, July 30.—(United Press.) —Fighting has begun between the starving hordes in Russia and the inhabitants of the district untouched by famine, according to unofficial despatches received here to-day. A party of hungry refugees was massacred at Ekaterinburg when it tried to rush the town and seize food, one report to-day said.

Twenty thousand men, women and children are dying daily in the famine, Soviet newspapers admit. Scurvy and other epidemics have broken out. As the long columns of ravenous plague-ridden victims sweep down on towns, where there is plenty of food, the inhabitants confront them and try to turn them aside by force. They claim they are acting in defence of their homes.

RELIEF COMMITTEE WORKING.

BY ED. L. KEEN

LONDON, July 30. — (United Press Staff Correspondent)—Sixty-three Russians of all classes have ben appointed a famine relief committee with powers, according to a wireless despatch from Moscow today. M. Kamonoff is presiding officer of the new body.

The committee is confronted with the staggering task of getting supplies to ten provinces where 1,000,000 tons of food is needed. Hundreds of sufferers died in Russia today of hunger, according to unofficial reports. The famine committee started work by systematizing transportation, moving food into the stricken districts by rail and moving thousands of persons out of those areas on the same trains on their return journeys. The committee is empowered to seize food stuffs wherever found and divert trains in any direction.

Famine reports are exaggerated, according to the newspaper Pravda. An editorial in this paper, sent broadcast from Moscow by wireless said:

"There is no such catastrophe as the anti-Soviet press in foreign countries would wish to see. The poor harvest in the Volga district is compensated for by the splendid one in the Ukraine. The situation is difficult, but there is no panic. There have been no programs. There are no Jews in the famine districts."

50-FOOT CRUISER IN LOCAL WATERS

Frequenters of our attractive waterway yesterday were curious to explain the presence of a magnificent 50-foot cabin cruiser, named "Gradawa," flying the American flag aft. On enquiry it was found that the advertising of the Trent Waterway Development Association in the Motor Boat Journals had again obtained direct results by the presence in this foreign craft of Dr. W. W. Plummer, family and friends, from Buffalo.

On interviewing Dr. Plummer, he stated that this was the most delightful cruise he had ever made, and the party were so enthused about it, they said they would not cease talking about it until they came on the trip next year.

The Doctor particularly referred to the particular courtesy and hospitality which had been shown by all the lock-masters and bridge tenders. He said he had a wonderful trip to Peterborough, and made the suggestion that navigation might be made easier if the present white and black buoys were changed so as to make them white buoys, with two black bands painted on each.

He left with the cruiser this morning for the first leg of his trip to "Viamede," on Stoney Lake, and expects to cruise through to Orillia, after the short stay at "Viamede."

It is the intention of Dr. Plummer to write an article on his cruise for publication, together with the reproduction of photographs which he is taking en route.

ACQUITS CAPTAIN KIDD OF PIRACY CHARGE

Massachusetts State Archivist Says He Was the Innocent Victim of Gov. Bellomont.

BOSTON, July 30. — Song and story are wrong. Captain Kidd was not a pirate, and his fabled treasure does not exist. Privateersman he was, but of good repute. His hanging as a pirate and murderer at Execution Dock, in London, in 1701 was to satisfy the political exigencies of the time.

These are the findings of John H. Edmonds, State Archivist for Massachusetts, as announced in a lecture at the Old South Meeting House. Mr. Edmonds was discussing "Lord Bellomont and the Pirates."

Bellomont, he said, was appointed Governor of New England in 1695, with a special mission to suppress piracy.

"Before leaving England," Mr. Edmonds said, "he agreed with Captain William Kidd, a privateersman of good repute from New York, to proceed against pirates in a ship called the Adventure Galley, on a 'no-capture-no-pay' basis. The adventurers included Captain Kidd, Robert Livingston, Lord Chancellor Somers, the Earl of Orford (First Lord of the Admiralty), the Earl of Romney, and the Duke of Shrewsbury (Secretaries of State). Bellomont and the straw man, to whom the King's grant of treasure was later made, did not contribute a cent.

"On 6th September, 1696, with a 'crazy' vessel and a crazier crew, Captain Kidd proceeded on his mission," the archivist said. "He picked up several pirates including 'a Moorish ship of 200 tons and a Bengal merchantman of 500 tons, both having French passes and being lawful prizes.'

He came to New York and then to Boston "through the trickery of Bellomont, who promised him safe conduct. With the remnant of his crew he was arrested, sent to England, tried for murder and piracy, convicted, and hung on Execution Dock, on Friday, 23rd May, 1701, to satisfy the political exigencies of the times. It was either Lord Bellomont, the Lord Chancellor, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the Secretaries of State, or Captain Kidd, and under this circumstance he had no chance. Collusion and perjury are plainly evident in his trial; the French passes, which would have cleared him of the piracy charge, though produced in Parliament, were suppressed in the Admiralty Court. The least said about Bellomont's action in the matter the better. He fooled Kidd, he fooled his council, and the worst of it is, he allowed it in his letters to the Lords of Trade.

"The Captain Kidd of to-day is a comoosite pirate made up of all who frequented our shores from 1637 to 1837. Propaganda of the worst kind blackened the reputation of a man of whom a recognised French authority says: 'It may be well doubted whether any man in equally trying circumstances has ever been truer to his trust.'

"And yet the great American public persists in calling Captain Kidd a pirate and in searching for his treasure which does not exist."
